TRACING UP A SHOE

And Considering Moving a Railroad Track a Mile.

THE CHARITY BALL AN ASSURED SUCCESS.

The Children's Fancy Dress Party.—The Wilson Bill Passes the House.—Hobart Guild Lectures.—An Enterprising Firm.

Judge Parks on Lincoln.

Judge Parks, of Winfield, Kan., who lectured before the Oratorical association last Friday on "Lincoln as a lawyer," has consented to address Unity club next Monday evening on "Personal Reminiscences of Lincoln." It will be remembered that Judge Parks was a personal friend of Lincoln for many years and was engaged with him in a great many cases; so that his address cannot fail to be full of interest to all.

Death of John Wagner.

John Wagner died at his home on West Washington street Wednesday evening, aged 84 years. He was one of the pioneers of this city and was born in Wuertemberg, Germany, December 28, 1809. He learned the trade of a blacksmith. In 1836 he came to Detroit and in 1837 he opened a blacksmith shop in Ann Arbor. He was a good business man, much respected for his integrity. Three children survive him, Frederick Wagner, of Pleasanton, Kansas; Godfrey Wagner, of Chicago, and Mrs. Henry Mann, of this city.

Leaving Emery Out in the Cold.

The Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Michigan railroad have under serious consideration the straightening of the line of their railroad between this station and Whitmore Lake, and especially to avoid the sharp curve at Emery. Several lines have been run by the surveyor which would leave Emery station out by a mile or a mile and a half, and there has been a little excitement among those residing near Emery. It does not appear probable that any change will be made now, though it would not be surprising if some day, when the road was out of the hands of a receiver, if such a change would be made.

The Wilson Bill Passes.

The Wilson bill passed the House last evening by [illegible] majority and amid great excitement. Reed, Crisp and Wilson made great speeches. Only seventeen democrats could be mustered against the bill. The duty on barley was raised five per cent. Speaking of the vote the Washinston correspondent of the Free Press says:

"Every Michigan democrat was recorded on this roll of honor in the affirmative. Gorman came from his bed of pain and staid all through the afternoon, and voted on every ballot. The democrats cheered him for his great pluck. He suffered much, but he staid by until the finish and then was driven back to his sick bed with the consciousness of duty done."

Tracing Stolen Shoes.

The shoe dealers of Ypsilanti have been somewhat excited over a transient shoe dealer locating for a short time there. They tried to get an ordinance passed requiring a license, etc., but that wouldn't work. The transient advertised a Douglas $3 shoe for $2.25. One of the local dealers, knowing that all dealers who handle the Douglas shoe, have to sign a contract not to sell for more or less than the named price, sent over and bought one of the shoes, which he found to be a Douglas shoe. He notified Douglas who wrote back that they had never sold shoes to such a man and asked to have the shoes forwarded. They discovered by a private mark that the shoes belonged to a lot which had been shipped to Bay City and stolen out of a Michigan Central car while in transit to that city. The Central had to pay $185 for the shoes. Detective de Rosier of the Central force, has been working up the case.

The Charity Ball.

The charity ball will be held in the Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening, February 6, and it will undoubtedly be one of the great social events of the season, besides netting a large fund to make many deserving persons happy. All arrangements are being perfected for a very highly successful ball. The beauty of the arrangements is that all the receipts will go to the deserving poor. The canvas used by the junior hop committee has been secured. Stabler has charge of the decorations. The printing has been donated, the refreshments are all expected to be donated, and are in charge of Mrs. de Pont.

The patronesses for the evening are Mesdames. Angell, Thompson, Pettee, Nancrede, de Pont, Carrow, Stanley, Vaughan, Knowlton, Adams, Bach, Clarkson, Doty, Clement, Hall.

The following gentlemen will constitute the floor committee: Ross Granger, Carl Warden, Carl Miner, John Rogers, Earl Babst, Bert Barian, J. J. Quarry, Harry Dinglan, Fred McOmber, H. M. Senter, John L. Duffy, Dan Quirk, Thomas Cooley.

The Chaumegon Orchestra furnishes the music, which they have especially prepared for the occasion. Tickets are $3 which will admit a gentleman and lady, ladies' tickets are $1.

An Enterprising Firm.

During the early part of the week a representative of the Argus paid a visit to the carriage factory and warerooms of Walker Bros., on W. Liberty street. He was most agreeably surprised at the push and enterprise of this hustling firm, for, although on every hand he had heard the cry "dull times" at this place he found the proprietors cheerful and hopeful. The first floor of their fine new building was completely filled with carriages, harnesses, whips and blankets and the second floor was nearly filled with carriages, while on the third floor were stored carriage trimmings and fixings. The work rooms were stocked with parts and parcels of carriages which were being put in shape for the spring trade in carriage building, which the firm thinks will be quite heavy. Walker Bros. are to be congratulated for their perseverance and business pluck which is bound to insure success.

Lectures on European Cathedrals.

Rev. Mr. Sunderland will exchange pulpits on the coming five Sunday evenings with Rev. Lee S. McCollister, of Detroit, and Mr. McCollister will repeat here in the Unitarian church a series of five lectures on "The Great Cathedrals of Europe," which he has given with much success in Detroit. The subjects and dates will be as follows:

Feb. 4. Kirks and Abbeys of Scotland.

Feb. 11. Churches and Cathedrals of England.

Feb. 18. Cathedrals of the Rhine.

Feb. 25. Cathedrals of Florence, Milan and Venice.

March 5. Cathedrals of Pisa and Rome.

The lectures will be illustrated with lantern views.

"Elizabeth Peabody and the Modern Kindergarten Movement in Education" will be Rev. Mr. Sunderland's subject at the Unitarian church next Sunday morning.

The Hobart Guild Lectures.

Rev. Robert A. Holland, D. D., rector of St. George's church, St. Louis, Mo., will deliver a course of six lectures in Harris' hall this month, on the Slocum foundation. The subject of the lectures is the "Divine Manhood, or the Highest Good."

The times and places of these lectures are appointed as follows: Sunday, Feb. 18, 7:30 p. m., St. Andrew's church, "Following After Wind;" Tuesday, Feb. 20, 8 p. m., Harris hall, "The Noise of Waterspouts;" Thursday, Feb. 22, 8 p. m., Harris Hall, "Midsummer Night's Dream;" Sunday, Feb. 25, 7:30 p. m., St. Andrew's Church, "The Divine Man;" Tuesday, Feb. 27, 8 p. m., Harris hall, "The Art of Living;" Thursday, March 1, 8 p. m., Harris hall, "Immortality."

The subjects are certainly taking ones in a popular sense and those who have heard Rev. Dr. Holland will be sure to attend these lectures. He is one of the strongest orators in the Episcopal church.

The Children's Fancy Dance Party.

The Juvenile fancy dress dancing party, given by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Granger at their academy on Maynard street, Wednesday evening, was a very successful affair. The program, begining with the Kaleidoscope by the class, included the Sailor's Hornpipe, Fan Dance, Dance of the Gypsies, Minuet, Cachucha and concluded with America, danced by little Miss Margaret Adams and Master Edward Ross Granger. The music was fine and many of the costumes were brilliant.

The Sailor's Hornpipe was danced by Lillian Cousins, Lena Sorg, Irene Fruhauf, Lulu Leisimer, Luella Granger, Flossie Adams, Lulu Covert, Helen Winslow, Franklyn Ferdon, Edwin Ferdon, Willie McLean, Richard de Pont, Earl Maynard, Ernest Gwinner. Miss Minnie Foley gave the Fan Dance.

The participants in the Dance of the Gypsies, were Nellie Mingay, Eva McCandless, Edith Eberbach, Cora Minks, Adele Felt Ferdon, Wanda Baur, DeHull Travis, Donald de Pont, Sidney Martin, Homer Godfrey, Ernest Vanderwalker, Rudolph Pistorius.

The Minuet was danced by Catherine Cutting, Birdie Herbert, Rena Rettich, Mattie Wahr, Bessie Maynard, Grace Greenwood, Margie Wheeler, Hazel Stafford, Luella Granger, Southard Cutting, Ralph Doty, Harold Bennett, Cecile James, Bradley Granger.

The Cachucha was danced by Luella Moore, Luella Swift, Bessie Stafford, Lulu Lusty, Minnie Foley, Hettie Carleton.

Extend Their Thanks.

WHEREAS, We, the Young Men's Christian League, of Ann Arbor, Mich., having been the recipient of a beatiful piano, the gift of Miss Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., and wishing to express our earnest appreciation to the generous donor, and to convey to her our thankful acceptance of the same, do hereby adopt the following resolution:

Resolved, That the League accept the piano in the spirit that it was given, and as a body of Christian workers do dedicate its sweet melodies to the advancement of Christ's Kingdom in Ann Arbor, tending that God will bless it to His own use and to our spiritual welfare.

Resolved, That the League convey to Miss Rogers, the giver, by means of these resolutions, in a degree at least, the appreciation and genuine gratitude we feel for the gift of this appropriate and valuable adjunct to our usefulness, and that we are not only thankful because of the good we hope to do with the instrument, but because the lesson which the liberal spirit of the donor teaches is one which we as individuals should seek to cultivate and imitate in order that we may fulfil the high missions for which God intended us.

Resolved, That these resolutions be engrossed on the records of the League, a copy be sent to Miss Rogers, to whom we are so deeply obligated; and that copies be sent to the city press for publication.

W. B. PHILLIPS,
H. D. ALLMENDINGER,
Committee.

The Charity Ball an Assured Success.

That the charity ball will be a decided success is now assured. Every detail is being carefully arranged by the various committees. Masonic hall, which has been kindly offered by the different masonic bodies, is excellently arranged for entertaining a large crowd, as the recent Knights Templars' reception demonstrated that fully 600 persons could be assembled in their hall without crowding, and the commodious parlors will furnish abundent room for those who desire to go and not dance.

The hall is being beautifully decorated and the refreshment committee is making arrangements to attend to the dancers' wants in this direction.

At least 300 tickets should be sold, as in no way can more be done for the needy.

The committees have been chosen with special reference to making this a general charity ball and it should be attended by both merchants, citizens, University professors and students, for where charity is the object, there should be none to stand back or hesitate.

There will be no expenses and the total receipts will go to the cause for which this ball is to be given While it was first voted that half the receipts should go to the northern sufferers and half to the deserving poor of the city, it now seems probable that most of the funds will remain in this city. Let every one buy a ticket.

The Resumption of Business..

From all parts of the country comes the news of the revival of business. All indications seem to point to a gradual resumption of business operations. From Charlotte comes the news that the Bennett furniture factory, one of the largest in the state, has informed its employes that the old scale of wages will be restored at once. This firm has been running right along, but under a reduction of wages. Advices from Detroit also state that work in the various manufacturing firms there will start up gradually. The Detroit Bridge and Iron works will soon start and will increase the forces as work seems to warrant. The Griffin Car Wheel works now employ about 80 per cent. of their usual force and are working full time. The Art Stove works is running full time with the greater part of its force, and the Michigan Stove works are running five days a week with a force of about 1,400 men. The Peninsular, which has been running with a small force, has now started both founderies and employs 700 men. The Michigan-Peninsular Car works are starting up gradually and increasing the number of employes as business increases.

Similar cheering reports come from the East. The Caldwell Lawn Mower Company, of Newberg, N. J., recently started up with more orders than it had last year at this time. The Brockaw Manufacturing company of the same place has posted a large sign, offering to give employment to all sewing machine operators who apply. The print mills of Garner & Co., at Wappinger Falls, Dutchess County, are now running until 9 o'clock at night. Twenty-five hundred people have gone to work in Yonkers since January 1. Alexander Smith and Sons' carpet mills, the largest in the United States which have been closed down since last July are now running with a force of 2,000 men. All the silk mills at Patterson, New Jersey, which closed down in August and September are now running again.

Very little, it is said, of the present product goes to the stock room, and there is but little stock in the hands of jobbers and agents. This leads manufacturers to believe that the spring trade will be fully up to that of last year.

The Two Johns—Monday night.

Few actors are met at the station by a tally-ho coach, but when the Two Johns comedy company arrives next Monday they will be escorted to one of those most admirable turnouts, drawn by four thoroughbreds, and driven to their hotel. The Two Johns, by the way, are men of enormous weight, and the promoters of the scheme are now figuring up as to whether Thomas Phillips, Wm. B. Hurray and John A. McDonald (weight 451 pounds) will be able to get up a ladder to the top of the coach or have to be hauled up by a derrick. The Two Johns company will appear at the Grand Opera House, Monday, and in addition to the very laughable performance, novel specialties will be introduced, including Miss Frances Grey, in her new and sensational whirlwind dance; Edwin Jack, the English wing-dancer; Fred Barr and his banjo, and the Clerisse sisters in a musical turs. Everything is up to date and patrons of fun are promised a treat. The Two Johns will appear at the Grand Opera House, next Monday evening.

Prince of Wales' Bracelet.

It is probably not generally known that the Prince of Wales wears a bracelet on his left wrist. On a recent occasion when he appeared in public the gleam of the golden bangle was noticed by a very few individuals, and among those who noticed it there was an interchange of wondering glances. The wearing of the bracelet is not, however, foppishness on the part of his royal highness, for the bangle has a history. It belonged originally to Maximilian, the ill fated emperor of Mexico, and it is a cherished possession of the prince's.—London Tit-Bits.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

Two night watchmen will soon be patrolling Ypsilanti, paid by the business men.

The Congregational church of Chelsea will build an addition to the rear of their church

Mrs. Maria Hayden, of Ypsilanti, broke her arm, Monday, by falling on an icy sidewalk.

The six months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lowery, of Bridgewater, died Monday.

Ypsilanti's colored minstrels, having recovered from their Milan trip, will give another performance, Feb. 9.

J. Lukins, an old settler of Bridgewater, is dead. He was the father-in-law of Solomon Tate, and was eighty-two years of age.

Nina, the eight-year-old daughter of Charles H. Hadley, of Unadilla, died January 27, from paralysis, after an illness of eight months.

New stoves have been purchased for the Congregational church in Webster. It is not fashionable to carry foot-warmers with you these days.

The Ypsilanti reporter of the Times is responsible for the statement going the rounds that a Ypsilantian imitated Benjamin Franklin, in taking his watch out of his pocket to see if he had time to go home and get the watch, which he thought he had left there.

Joseph M. Allen, who died at the residence of his son in Wayne, Monday, was born in Whitney, Vermont, February 23, 1825. He came to this county with his father, who had taken up land from the government two and a half miles north of Dexter, in 1831. His father died when he was eight years old. At the age of fifteen he learned the printer's trade in Jackson. In 1848 he was married to Miss Mary M. McMillan, at Jackson, and five children came to them. He worked at the printer's trade in Jackson for ten years, becoming the proprietor of the Jackson Gazette and merging it into the Jackson Citizen. In 1851 he went to Detroit and engaged in a newspaper and job office. In 1882 he started the Dexter Sun and in January 1883 purchased the Dexter Leader, merging the Sun in it. Only a few months ago he sold the Leader to John I. Thompson. His failing health caused him to retire from business. The funeral services were held in Dexter, Wednesday.

The Advertising

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bounds of reason because it is true; it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsements which, in the financial would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

HOOD'S PILLS cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phœbe Thomas of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida street, San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficiency of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co.'s and George J. Haeussler, Manchester.

How Unpleasant

it is to see a beautiful child's face disfigured with vile humors, bursting through the skin in pimples, blotches and sores, and sadder still, when the young and innocent are laughed at and twitted in all such cases. Parents should give them that good and good and pure remedy, Sulphur Bitters, which will search and drive out of the blood every particle of humor.—Health Gazette.

Chelsea.

Ice could now be harvested at the thickness of seven inches.

Mrs. Geo. McClain and son went to Albion last Monday to visit friends.

Rev. L. A. Moon will preach next next Sunday night on Martin Luther.

H. M. Woods, of Ann Arbor was here on business, Tuesday and Wednesday.

There is less employment in and about this village this winter than for many years past, and laboring people are having an unusually hard time.

The township treasurers do not have to make returns to the county treasurer till the first of March. There is still a chance for delinquent tax payers.

Stock does much better to get what salt they need in small quantities daily, in their food, rather than to get a large quantity at once and then none for awhile.

Israel Vogel is now doing some work in the shop across the street from where he was in the shop formerly used by H. M. Boyd, until he can rebuild his shop.

John C. Taylor has sold his farm in Lima to Frank Cooper, who will move onto it in the spring, and Emory Chipman, of Unadilla, will move onto the farm where Frank now is.

The company's stock yards in this village are to be removed within thirty days and C. J. Chandler & Co. will proceed to put up three buildings in their place for future use in their egg and poultry trade.

An unusual number of farms will change hands in this county next spring, partly brought about by over indebtedness and partly by the fact that it is generally believed that farming is about as low as it can get, and not likely to improve in the near future. Farming lands have been held too high for the burdens they have to bear and the net proceeds from them. Farmers are far more numerous than any other class, and yet our laws have been made against them and in favor of less numerous classes that were more united and better represented in the law making power. The farmers should post themselves better in the affairs of government and take a more active part in politics. These are days of hustling, and the farmers have not hustled for their rights like every other class, and it is no wonder they have got left. Nothing short of a thorough knowledge of men and things that are going on will enable them to have proper representatives at the seat of government and recover their rights so long disregarded.

The market continues very dull and gives no sign yet of any advance. Wheat brings 55c for red or white, rye 44c, oats 28c, barley $1 per hundred, beans $1.35, clover seed $5.75, dressed pork $6, chickens 6c, eggs 12c, butter 14c.

O. A. Burgess, of Sylvan was here Wednesday morning with three saw logs and the sleigh tipped over while turning in the log yard and he had one leg caught under the load and pretty badly bruised but fortunately no bones were broken. It was a narrow escape.

There is an alarming number of precocious baby school girl and school boy sweethearts in this village. Parents should take measures to shut down on such trifling nonsense at a time when their education and preparation for useful lives demand and should have their whole undivided attention.

Israel Vogel's blacksmith shop on North Main street was discovered to be on fire last Sunday morning about four o'clock. It was so far gone when discovered that nothing of the contents was saved. The fire company saved the foundry and sheds. Mr. Vogel's loss is about $300, insured for $200. The origin of the fire is unknown.

"If you don't look better, feel better, eat better and sleep better, bring it back." That is what we say when we sell a bottle of "Parks' Sure Cure." ONE OF THE BEST FEATURES

Of the Pyramid Pile Cure

Is the fact that it cures ever form of Piles without one particle of pain. This desirable point is not obtained by the use of injurious opiates which simply deaden and paralyze the nerves of the parts and make matters worse in the long run. But it is done solely by its remarkably healing and sothing effects. And while it thus gives immediate relief at the same time the disease is not merely checked, but a radical cure is rapidly accomplished. And the point we want to make clear is that, all that is done without a particle of pain.

This fact is one reason for the popularity of the Pyramid Pile Cure and constitutes one very great difference between it and almost any other kind of treatment for piles. Every kind of surgical operation for piles is excruciatingly painful besides endangering the life of the patient and in most cases is not to be compared with the Pyramid Cure, neither in making successful cures without pain nor in cheapness and safety.

The Pyramid Pile Cure has been before the public too long and its merits recognized by too many people to allow it to be classed with the many salves, suppositories, pills, etc., and you run no risk in trying it, as is often the case with new and untried preparations. If you are every troubled with any form of piles or rectal diseases do not forget the Pyramid Pile Cure.

The Gorman family, of Willis, will soon move onto the D. M. Joslyn farm to work it.

Everybody and everybody's hired man are busy at the year's wood pile now that a little snow has come.

L. A. Mapes has moved his effects from here to his home in Unadilla, where he will reside for a while at least.

Bert Mann has seventeen mink holes and lots of tracks thrown in, and three skunk holes that smell real strong, all of which he will sell to the highest bidder or let out on shares to hatch and skin.

Walter Webb, of Dakota, is calling on relatives and friends in this vicinity. He will leave here for Minneapolis next Monday. He says the hard times have reached Dakota, but are easing up somewhat.

The oyster supper was a complete success. Those present, 24 persons in all, ate about three gallons of oysters, besides a large amount of pie and cakes and tarts and fixings in general. The society didn't make much money.

It is a great domestic remedy, and should be kept in every home. Mr. Norman Cheatham, Waverly, Sussex Co., Va., who has never been without it for twelve years, subscribes to this opinion. He says: "Our family has been using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for twelve years, and are never without it in the house. It is invaluable."

Parks' Sure Cure is a positive specific for women who are all "run-down" and at certain times are troubled by backaches, headaches, etc. Sold by Eberbach & Sons.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

WONDERFUL CURES!

THOMAS MINCHIN.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Nervous Debility and Catarrh Cured.

Thomas Minchin says: "I was reduced to a nervous wreck—only weighed 118 pounds. The result of early abuse was the cause. I had the following symptoms: Miserable mentally and physically, melancholy, nervousness, weakness, specks before the eyes, dizzy, poor memory, palpitation of the heart, flushing, cold hands and feet, weak back, dreams and losses at night, tired in the morning, pimples on the face, loss of ambition, burning sensation, kidneys weak etc. Doctors could not cure me; but Drs. Kennedy & Kergan by their New Method Treatment, cured me in a few weeks. I weigh now 170 pounds. It is three years since I have taken their treatment."

MAJOR W. A. SIMFIELD.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Blood Disease and Dyspepsia Cured.

Major Simfield says: "I had Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach for many years. To make matters worse I contracted a Constitutional Blood Disease. My bones ached. Blotches on the skin looked horrible. I tried sixteen doctors in all. A friend recommended Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. I began their New Method Treatment and in a few weeks was a new man with renewed life and ambition. I cannot say too much for those scientific doctors who have been in Detroit for fourteen years. I conversed with hundreds of patients in their offices who were being cured for different diseases. I recommend them as honest and reliable Physicians."

CATARRH TWENTY YEARS.

Three Hundred Dollars Spent for Treatment in Vain.

This is what Dr. Hartman's free course of treatment did for me: I was sick for eighteen or twenty years and did not know what was the matter with me. I expectorated a gray, sticky mucous from the throat. Every time I took cold my throat got sore, and I would have fever. I had catarrh in my head, and it commenced to affect my eyes. My nose was stopped up, and every morning I had coughing spells. I consulted several physicians, one of whom said he could cure me in six months. I kept on doctoring until I spent $300, and was not any better, but kept gradually growing worse until I was confined to the bed. I got some Pe-ru-na and it cured the catarrh in my head and my eyes are better. I don't have any more dizzy spells, my head feels clear, I can breath through my nose, and my throat is cured. My voice is clear. My appetite is good and I sleep well. When I began taking Pe-ru-na I weighed only 121 pounds, but now I weigh 135. I wish I could tell everyone about Pe-ru-na, so that thousands more would be cured.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

[OFFICIAL.]

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
ANN ARBOR, January 30, 1894.

Special session.

Called to order by President Watts.

Roll called. Quorum present.

Absent—Ald. Schairer, Wagner, Snow, Prettyman—4.

The following call of this meeting was read:

Ann Arbor, Jan. 27, 1894.

W. J. Miller, City Clerk:

Please call a special meeting of the Council for Tuesday evening, January 30, 1894, at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of extending the time for the collection of taxes. Also directing the Mayor and Clerk to draw a warrant on the the University Hospital Aid Bond Fund for principal and interest due February 1st, 1894 Also taking up the lighting question for consideration and action.

W. W. WATTS, President.

Ann Arbor, Jan. 30, 1894.

W. J. Miller, City Clerk:

Call a special meeting of the Common Council for Tuesday evening, January 30, 1894, at 7:30 o'clock, to consider the petition of the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti Street Railway Company asking permission to run their motor over the tracks of the Ann Arbor Electric Street Railway Company as far as the intersection of Main and Williams streets.

W. W. WATTS, President.

The following communication was read:

City Treasurer's Office,
Ann Arbor, January 30, 1894.

To the Honorable Common Council:

GENTLEMEN: There is yet remaining due in unpaid taxes the sum of $12,517.37, which it would be impossible to collect in the time specified for that purpose. In accordance with former custom I therefore ask that the time for the collection of taxes be extended up to and including Feb. 28, 1894.

Very respectfully yours,
GEO. H. POND,
City Treasurer.

By Ald. Manly:

Resolved, That the request of Geo. H. Pond, City Treasurer, be granted, and that the time for collecting of taxes be extended up to and including Feb. 28, 1894.

Adopted as follows:

Yeas—Ald. Herz, Martin, Wood, O'Mara, Ferguson, Taylor, Manly, Kitson, Pres. Watts—9.

Nays—None.

At this point Ald. Schairer arrived.

By Ald. Taylor:

Resolved, that the Mayor and City Clerk be and they are hereby ordered and directed to draw a warrant on the University Hospital Aid Bond fund for three thousand, six hundred dollars, ($3,600.00) for principal and interest due Feb. 1st, 1894, payable to Harrison Soule, treasurer of the University of Michigan.

Adopted as follows:

Yeas—Ald. Schairer, Herz, Martin, Wood, O'Mara, Ferguson, Taylor, Manly, Kitson, Pres. Watts—10.

Nays—None.

The following communication was read:

Ann Arbor, Jan. 30, 1894.

To the Hon., the Common Council of the City of Ann Arbor:

The Electric road being unable to bring the passengers of the Ann Arbor & Ypsilanti road into town, the officers of the said Ann Arbor & Ypsilanti Street Railway Co. respectfully request that permission be granted to run the motor down to the William street switch. By this permission the motor line will be able to resume business, thereby bringing into Ann Arbor 300 or 400 people per day from Ypsilanti and the surrounding country, to the benefit of business and the accommodation of the public

Therefore we respectfully petition your honorable body for permission to come in with the motor until the electric road shall be able to transfer our passengers.

JUNIUS E. BEAL,
Pres. A. A. & Y. St. Ry. Co.

At this point Ald. Prettyman and Snow arrived.

Ald. Schairer moved that the communication be laid on the table. Lost as follows:

Yeas—Ald. Schairer, Herz, Wood—3.

Nays—Ald. Martin, O'Mara, Ferguson, Taylor, Manly, Prettyman, Kitson, Pres. Watts—8.

By Alderman Ferguson:

Resolved, That and permission is hereby granted unto the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti Street Railway Company to use, occupy and to make use, with their small steam motor, of the Ann Arbor Street Railway Company's track on Packard street and to and up to the south line of William street, the said Ann Arbor Street Railway Company consenting, until the 1st day of March next, and not afterward.

Ald. Prettyman moved that the resolution be laid on the table until our next session.

Adopted.

On motion the Council adjourned.

W. J. MILLER,
City Clerk.

A NARROW ESCAPE!

How it Happened.

The following remarkable event in a lady's life will interest the reader: "For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I couldn't sweep a room without sitting down and resting; but, thank God, by the help of New Heart Cure all that is past and I feel like another woman. Before using the New Heart Cure I had taken different so-called remedies and been treated by doctors without any benefit until I was badly discouraged and disgusted. My husband bought me a bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and am happy to say I never regretted it, as I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. I weighed 125 pounds when I began taking the remedy, and now I weigh 130½. Its effect in my case has been truly marvelous. It far surpasses any other medicine I have ever taken or any benefit I ever received from physicians."—Mrs. Harry Starr, Pottsville, Pa., October 12, 1892.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. This great discovery by an eminent specialist in heart disease, contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1894.

The average value of farm lands per acre in 1870 was $56; in 1880, $46; 1890, $28. What is the cause of this?

It is estimated that the real estate in New York City alone is worth more than all the land between the Potomac and Rio Grande.

There are in the neighborhood of five thousand millionaires in the United States and all but about 186 of the number are north of Mason and Dixon's line.

"The first lesson in the art of money-getting is the knowledge that it isn't the man who does the work who makes the money, but the man who gets the other men to do it."

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

When dealing with election matters in the South, republicans are always in favor of a "free ballot and an honest count," but when a dishonest count is traced to their own door in Michigan, a republican governor characterizes it a "mistake."

In accordance with the call issued by Judge Person last Monday, a grand jury assembled yesterday at Mason for the purpose of investigating the crooked canvasses on the salaries amendments of 1891 and 1893. Now we shall see what we shall see.

There are a few more than eleven hundred millionaires in New York city whose wealth is sufficient to enable them, if they chose, to buy all the real estate of the entire southern states and evict the population by due process of law. This dangerous concentration of capital has resulted to a considerable degree from vicious republican legislation.

Monday, Gov. Rich applied to the Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel the clerks of Gratiot and Gogebic counties to send in new returns of the vote cast on the constitutional amendment of 1891, whereby the attorney-general's salary was increased from $800 to $2,500. The errors in the canvas of 1891 are said to have been made in these counties.

The state central committee of the Kansas populists issued an address to the people, last Tuesday, in which they declare that their party is the only salvation of the country. If this be true, and the men the populists have placed in the gubernatorial chair in Kansas, Colorado and Oregon are fair samples of the leading lights of the party, then, indeed, is the salvation of the country afar off.

Judge Cox, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, has decided that Secretary Carlisle has the legal authority to issue bonds, and that the Knights of Labor, as an organization, had no standing in court to maintain the injunction. The judge holds that no person can legally begin an action against an officer of the government unless the rights of property of complainant or complainants are involved. The decision is as everybody expected it would be.

The period of republican rule from 1861 to 1893, witnessed more business depressions than any corresponding period in the history of the country. The worst of these panics, as to the number of men out of employment and the continuance of the depression, occurred in 1873, after twelve years of republican rule. There were 3,000,000 men out of employment, and serious labor riots occurred in different sections of the country, and the effects of the depression lasted for six years.

Otis Fuller, who was appointed to the wardenship of the Ionia prison by Gov. Rich, a long time ago, is still on the outside fuming and trying to get in. Warden Parsell is still holding the fort and drawing the salary, and is likely to continue to do so for some time to come. Sometime ago quo warranto proceedings were brought to test Parsell's right to hold the office, and Tuesday, Parsell filed his formal answer to the information. The next step in the proceedings will be the filing of the rejoinder by Fuller. The case may be ready for trial about March 1st.

"Neither injunctions nor filibusters nor Boutelles nor Reeds nor Burrowses nor all these powers of evil combined must be permitted to prevent the democratic party from relieving the country from the curse of republican misrule just so soon as the herculean task can be accomplished."—Detroit Free Press.

And ever democrat who accepted a nomination and election on the platform of '92, should be found in the thickest of the fight doing his full duty to his pledges and the people rather than consorting with the enemy and giving them aid and comfort, by raising objections to petty details.

Attorney-General Ellis is the only state official benefitted by the alleged salaries amendment of 1893, who has, up to the present time, turned over to the auditor-general the money drawn in consquence of said amendment. It begins to look as though the members of the canvassing board do not intend to turn over the money they received from the same source, and it is said they have been advised that the state cannot recover from them. Probably it is true that the state cannot recover, but should the inquiry now being made by the grand jury at Mason establish their criminallty in the matter of the crooked returns, they will need more than this amount to square themselves with the people.

New Zealand has conferred upon women the right to vote. In a recent election there, one of the most keenly contested elections ever held on the island, they took a deep interest in the questions at issue and it is said that their influence was wholly for good. They were eager to learn their new duties, and many meetings for women only were held, at which the new electors were instructed how to use their ballots. With their impulsive natures, they are said to have become almost more partisan than the men. They crowded the meetings of their favorite candidates, and gave them ovations when they arose, and showers of bouquets when they sat down. They canvassed for votes with a charming persistance that would not be denied and exhausted, their arguments, personal and theoretical, upon the male elector, who was suspected of leanings toward the other side. Thousands of them registered and but very few of their votes were defective. It is estimated that they cast one-third of the total vote.

When Governor Rich filed his application for a mandamus to compel a recanvass of the votes on the salaries amendment of 1893, he is said to have characterized the gross fraud perpetrated in connection therewith as a "mistake," but in filing a similar application in the matter of the canvass of 1891, he characterized that canvass as a "fraud." His choice of words is a little unfortunate when considered from the standpoint of justice, and would seem to imply that all the influence of strong partisanship is to be thrown into the investigation of the two canvassers. In the canvass of 1893 there were changes made in the returns from twenty-five counties, making a difference of 13,000 votes; there was no publication of the returns, and two sets of returns were missing; while in the canvass of 1891 there was a change in only one county, and the papers were all on file and the required publication had been made. What is there in these facts to lead one desiring to do exact justice to characterize the former as a "mistake" and the latter as a "fraud"?

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

When his Excellency informed the people through the Tribune exclusively that a slight "mistake" had been made by the state board of canvassers in the footing of the returns on the little matter of an amendment to the constitution, whereby the salaries of the members of the board were more than doubled, the g. o. p. heelers at once began smelling about with the determination to find, if possible, some highly scented transaction of the preceding administration, not with the laudable purpose of serving the people in the righting of any wrong which might have been committeed, but with the object of turning the public gaze away from their own rascality. They now claim to have discovered that the amendment of 1891 raising the salary of the Attorney General was not carried. The dust they have raised, however, will scarcely blind the people to the damaging facts in their own record; for granting that all their charges are true, this important difference still exists, viz., that their administration developed three times as many salary grab rascals as its predecessor. After all we are inclined to think this is a fair illustration of the relative number of rascals in the two parties.

STILL IN THE RING.

Tuesday's Washington dispatches contained the interesting information that Senators McMillan and Stockbridge had had enough of Gov. Rich, and that accordingly his name would be taken off the gubernatorial slate, and that of Col. A. T. Bliss, of Saginaw, substituted therefor. But why is this thus? Is it due to the recent exposure at Lansing and the efforts of the governor to renovate the augean stables of the g. o. p.? It can hardly be possible that this sudden determination to cut short the political career of his excellency is due to his efforts to serve the people instead of whitewashing the members of his political household who may be in need of such an application. Possibly it may be an effort to recompense Gen. Alger for getting off the senatorial track, by favoring Alger's long time political adherent and former staff officer, Col. Bliss for governor. Then again, this contemplated departure from party usage and custom may be attributable to a desire to get Pingree out of the list of possible candidates for the senatorship by tempting him with the gubernatorial persimmon. But whatever the purpose may be, an effort to thus summarily dispose of Rich will make a right merry old fight; because, while the governor may be a little disfigured at present, he informs the public that he is still in the ring.

Under the protective system the consumer is required to pay taxes, not alone for the support of government, but for the benifit of individuals who engage in favored industries. Under this cheme of taxing the whole people for the purpose of enriching a class, stupendous profits have been made by the favored few, and fabulous fortunes have accumulated in the hands of manufacturing lords, standard oil magnates, coal barons, sugar trust operators, railroad kings and steel and iron monopolists. Labor, the principal factor in the production of all this wealth, is denied the full measure of its earnings, and at the same time is forced to do more than its proportionate share toward the support of the government. It is high time, therefore, that some method of raising revenue be adopted whereby the wealth of the country will be compelled to bear a larger part of the government burden. An income tax will do this and will at the same time be just and equitable. It will place the burden of administration upon those who are strongest and who receive the largest benefits under the laws, and the greatest amount of governmental protection. While the democratic party is not charged specifically with the duty of passing an income tax law, it is charged with the duty of reducing taxes on necessaries and increasing those on luxuries, and in that declaration lies the principle of the income tax. Taxes cannot be reduced on necessaries and a sufficient revenue raised for the expenses of the government without imposing new taxes. In this emergency the decision to tax incomes is eminently wise and just, and it should receive the earnest support of every citizen who believes in just and equal taxation.

BOND ISSUE.

Some days since, Secretary Carlisle decided, on account of the embarrassed condition of the treasury, that the time had come when it was necessary to protect the gold reserve from farther reduction by an immediate issue of bonds. Accordingly he issued a call for subscriptions for $50,000,000. His authority for doing this is found in the Act of Jan. 14, 1875. These bonds are to be redeemable in coin at the pleasure of the government after the expiration of ten years, bear five per cent. interest, payable quarterly, and are to be sold at not less than 117.23. This reduces the rate of interest to three per cent.

Upon the question of issuing bonds there is considerable difference of opinion, sentiment being divided along the same lines, and as appeared during the debate on the repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman Act. All agree, however, as to the necessity of increasing the government revenues in some way.

The right of the secretary to issue bonds under the act named and the necessity for doing so are not to go unchallenged, however. The friends of silver are making a determined stand to prevent it if possible. The judiciary committee of the house last week ordered a favorable report on Representative Bailey's resolution questioning the right of the secretary to issue bonds, nevertheless the best financers of the country practically agree that his right is not questionable. The silver men would prefer to have the secretary coin the silver bullion lying idle in the treasury, and still others hold that the emergency should be met by issuing legal tender notes. In the absence of any action by Congress, however, Secretary Carlisle seems to have adopted the only course open to him.

Mrs. Carrie S. Bugg, of Lodi, has begun suit for a divorce from Henry Bugg. They were married in Saline, November 21, 1889, and have a three year old child. The divorce is asked on the ground of extreme cruelty and neglect to support her.

The report given currency in the Argus of Tuesday that the Ann Arbor Democrat would be printed at the Times office turns out to have no foundation in fact. Since Miss Bower has been acting as great record keeper of the L. O. T. M., various untruthful rumors have been circulated concerning her paper. Miss Bower is quite capable of running her own business, and we are glad to know that she expects to continue to do so.

Those who are willing to donate sandwiches and cake for the charity ball are requested to send in their names at once to Mrs. P. R. dePont with the amount they are willing to donate and to see that the articles are at Masonic hall on Tuesday. A large quantity of sandwiches and cake are needed, also money to buy coffee, sugar, etc., so that those disposed to send money instead may do so. The object is to have the entire receipts from the sale of tickets for the charity ball, clear for the benefit of the deserving poor.

The great speech of Lawyer Sawyer in the Hand murder case fills eighteen columns of the Ann Arbor Register. And to think that the prisoner was compelled to listen to all that and go to the penitentiary for life besides.—Adrian Press. It must have been in the sewer. It was not in the Register.—Ann Arbor Register.

We apologize to the Register. We had given them credit for publishing the speech, and we have a very distinct memory of reading it there, but the Register denominates the paper in which it appeared "the sewer," and while we would not think of applying quite so hard a name as that to the Register, it must be so, if the Register says so.

Ann Arbor High School.

The clsss in drawing which begins this week will recite in the library room at 2 o'clock on Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

Mr. J. H. Matthews, of the State Agricultural college of Iowa has been spending several weeks inspecting our methods of work in the physical laboratory.

The orator of the senior class was chosen last Tuesday after chapel. The seniors had intended to chose the orator by contest, but as the time is limited and no definite steps were taken, it was thought best to elect one. Mr. W. E. Turton, of Salt Lake City, Utah, was elected by a large majority, and all are satisfied with the result as Mr. Turton is deemed very competent to hold this position.

The programs of the literary societies are very interesting this week. The subject of the debate at the Lyceum is, "Resolved, That Gov. Altgeld was justified in Pardoning the Chicago Anarchists." Messrs. Thurman and Turton support the affirmative, while Messrs. Weinstein and Trowbridge are to defend the negative. There has been quite a great deal of preparation for this debate and all should be present who can. Visitors are always welcome.

The "Alabama."

Saturday, February 3, the widely heralded and popular play of American life from the pen of Augustus Thomas, entitled "Alabama," will be presented at the Opera House. Few plays have achieved the phenomenal success attained by "Alabama." Mr. Thomas carries his auditors into the midst of the drowsy state of Alabama, just awakening to a new life through the efforts of Northern enterprise and capital. He shows them its magnolia groves, its war relics, its prejudices and its heart; in a word, he has written a dramatic poem, simple and sweet, abounding in interest and pulsing with truth. "Alabama" is something to think of with delight—an idyl of the bayou borders—not alone for the passing pleasure it gives the spectator, but for what it means to the American stage. In itself, it has the subtle charm of poesy. It brings with it the soft airs and the dreary quietude of the somnolent South. It appeals to the eye with a series of pictures, breathing chivalry and sentiment—twin characteristics of the ardorous Southern; to the ear with the musical dialect whose spell is potent, and to the mind with a harmonious blending of all these mellowing influences. It would indeed be a veritable Gradgrind who would look at "Alabama" and not feel his soul soften and expand and his heart warm with human love.

Embarrassing.

Mark Twain tells thus the story of his first great London banquet, at which, by the way, there were 800 or 900 guests. He admits that, not having been used to that kind of dinner, he felt somewhat lonesome.

The lord mayor or somebody read out a list of the chief guests before we began to eat. When he came to prominent names, the other guests would applaud.

I found the man next me rather a good talker. Just as we got up an interesting subject there was a tremendous clapping of hands. I had hardly ever heard such applause before. I straightened up and set to clapping with the rest, and I noticed a good many people round about me fixing their attention on me and some of them laughing in a friendly and encouraging way. I moved about in my chair and clapped louder than ever.

"Who is it?" I asked the gentleman on my right.

"Samuel Clemens, better known in England as Mark Twain," he replied.

I stopped clapping. The life seemed to go out of me. I never was in such a fix in all my days.—Youth's Companion.

Schwaab.

It was an awfully wet day. I and a cousin of mine, Al Carmfax, of Barbour, Va., though practicing law in New York, found ourselves at Squire Pennington's tavern on the Sassafras river, east shore of Maryland. By dinner time (and a capital dinner the squire gave us) the barroom was full, though it would have been fuller, perhaps, if they hadn't "local option."

Well, after dinner we all fell to talking. You know how sociable they get south of Mason and Dixon's line who go duck shooting. One thing led to another, till we began guessing where the others "hailed from." I confess it made me mad when a big countryman from across the line in Cecil county reckoned I was "from out west somewhar," but the fun came in when a smooth shaven, round faced, big paunched chap, called Schwaab by our host, spoke up.

"Now, vare you dink I was from, eh? Vat goundrymans vould you dink I was?"

Dead silence. The audacity of Herr Schwaab was quite appalling. But a wink from Pennington gave Al the cue.

"You're from Boston."

Schwaab grinned.

"Noa, note zo bod os dot."

Another guessed South Carolina, another California, and my friend from Cecil county ventured the opinion that he was a Spaniard.

"Now, you vas a voolin," said Schwaab, "I zee dot in your eye. Vell, you giff it up, eh? I dought you vould. I z'bect, vun dime or annuder I vool more as a hundert beebles. I bees a Cherman. Haw, haw, haw!"—Life.

Star Photography.

Star photography is one of the most tedious operations known. In some cases the exposure of the plate must last for several hours. During all this time both the plate and telescope must be moved so that the image of the star will be stationary on the plate. The exposure of a star of the sixteenth magnitude is two hours, and only the image of one at a time can be secured unless those adjoining happen to be of the same size.—Exchange.

SALARIES SCANDAL.

GOVERNOR RICH THE FIRST WITNESS EXAMINED.

Judge Taft Renders a Decision Against the Detroit Street Railway Case—The Company Enjoined From Further Use of the Streets—Two Lines Not Included In the Decision.

LANSING, Feb. 1.—Governor Rich will be the first witness to be sworn before the grand jury at Mason today.

Prosecuting Attorney Gardner had a long conference with the governor Wednesday, at which he received from the executive a long list containing the names of witnesses to be sworn before the grand jury in the investigation of the frauds in connection with the canvass of the returns upon the salaries amendment of 1891. The governor also outlined the line of questioning to be followed in examining the witnesses and will furnish the prosecuting officer with all the information in his possession.

The governor was anxious that Prosecuting Attorney Gardner should have some assistance in conducting the examinations, and the latter selected M. V. & R. A. Montgomery and Cahill & Ostrander of this city. None of these gentlemen will be permitted to enter the juryroom, but they will assist in preparing indictments, should any be found by the jury, and will act as counsel to the prosecuting attorney. The gentlemen selected to render this assistance are well known to the bar of the state and are lawyers of high ability.

THE CITY WINS.

Judge Taft Decides Against the Citizens' Street Railway Company.

DETROIT, Feb. 1.—Judge Taft's decision in the suit of the city of Detroit against the Citizens' Street Railway company was handed down from the bench of the United States court by Judge Swan Wednesday forenoon. This is a suit in equity brought by the city of Detroit for an injunction to compel the Detroit Citizens' Railway company to cease the running of its cars and to remove its railway tracks from the streets of the city.

JUDGE W. H. TAFT.

In the introduction of his opinion, Judge Taft gives a concise resume of the steps that have been taken in the case, and then goes on to recite and discuss the matter of estoppel, which was the question argued before him in this city two weeks ago. In his opinion the gist of the whole controversy lay in the question of the effect of the invalidity of the extension until 1909 upon the ordinance of 1879. He believes that while the extension was void as a binding stipulation upon the city, the ordinance as a contract was only voidable; in other words, the extension may have been the consideration for many of the obligations assumed by the company, but the ordinance as a contract was workable until May, 9, 1893. Of all the money spent by the new company, all but a very small amount was spent after the city had declared by ordinance its intention to insist on the invalidity of the grant beyond 1893.

After reviewing the case in all its phases the judge concludes as follows:

Let a decree be entered enjoining the Citizen's Street Railway company from occupying the streets of Detroit with its railway tracks, except on the lines of the Congress and Baker and Cass avenue lines, and from running their cars thereon after four months from the entering thereof, and enjoining the city from taking any action under the ordinance of March 29, 1892, to interfere with the operation of the Congress and Baker and Cass avenue lines by the company.

The costs will be taxed to the defendants.

I have given the four months' time because if the tracks are to be removed this will not be an unreasonable time. It will also afford an opportunity for an adjustment of this trouble. He closed by expressing the opinion that the municipal authorities would act honorably and not take advantage of the position in which the company is thus placed. He also advised a compromise.

STATE BANKING LAW.

It Is Fully Sustained by the Supreme Court.

LANSING, Jan. 27.—In a unanimous opinion written by Justice Montgomery, the supreme court Friday affirmed the constitutionality of the general banking law of the state. The case was that of Edward J. Bissell, receiver of the Milford State bank, which failed in September, 1891, vs. Francis Heath, one of the stockholders of that institution.

The constitutionality of the banking law was attacked on the following grounds: First, that the title is double; second, it attempts to confer upon the receiver the judicial power to adjudicate claims to be paid in the course of liquidation; third, that as applied to the present case, it impairs the obligations of contracts made by shareholders before its passage, by imposing a liability not before that time existing. The court considered all these objections at length. All were overruled, and the constitutionality of the law fully sustained.

WITH HER HUSBAND'S COUSIN.

Mrs. Norman H. Brown Elopes From Young's Prairie.

KALAMAZOO, Feb. 1.—The handsome wife of Norman H. Brown, a farmer of Young's Prairie, near Penn, has caused a sensation by eloping with Charles Pitts, a cousin of Brown's from Tonawanda, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Brown visited relatives in Tonawanda last November and when they returned home Pitts accompanied them, remaining only a few days before Christmas, when he left for his home in New York, but soon returned here.

It is believed that the couple had some arrangements to leave together before Pitts returned to New York, and that he returned home for the purpose of getting money to carry out their plan. The runaway wife and mother leaves behind two children, both boys, to be cared for by their father. Mrs. Brown is the stepdaughter of Rev. J. M. Wright of Penn. She has always moved in good society and has been active in church work.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

James Foster Shot Dead by Andrew Glenn at Esteys.

GLADWIN, Jan. 29.—At the village of Esteys, in the township of Bentley, Gladwin county, on Saturday, Andrew Glenn shot and instantly killed James Foster.

The men lived together. The shooting occurred early in the morning, but no one was informed until nearly evening. Glenn was then arrested by Deputy Sheriff Benton of Rhodes, and was brought to Gladwin and lodged in jail.

Glenn admits the shooting, but claims it was an accident. Others claim that there has been bad feeling between the two for some time, and that the shooting is the result.

Conductor Badly Injured.

ALPENA, Feb. 1.—Percy Hackett, conductor of the Alpena and Northern express, met with an accident on his afternoon run that will probably result in his death. Someone unknown flagged the train, and he swung out on the car steps to look ahead. His head struck a post and he was thrown off his car and was picked up in an unconscious condition. He was hastily brought to this city and placed in the care of physicians. After several hours' work over him he recovered consciousness, and the doctors think that he may possibly recover.

Killed by a Train Robber.

SAGINAW, Jan. 31.—Major W. C. Ransom, auditor of the Saginaw, Tuscola and Huron road, has received a dispatch announcing the death of his son, William E. Ransom of the Union Pacific railroad offices in Omaha. Some three weeks ago he had an encounter with a train robber and received a blow on the head which has resulted in his death. The deceased was formerly connected with the auditor's office of the Chicago and Grand Trunk road, and had many friends in Michigan.

Will Go to the State Treasury.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 30.—Several years ago the remains of John Harley were found in the woods north of this city and it was apparently a case of suicide. John Mowatt was appointed administrator of his estate and he found assets to the amount of $1,900. Every effort has been made to find relatives both in this country and Europe, but without success and now Mr. Mowatt wants to be relieved of his trust. The money will be paid into the state treasury.

Culp Pleaded Guilty.

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 29.—W. H. Culp pleaded guilty before United States Commissioner McGurrin to passing counterfeit coin and was held to appear before the United States court at Grand Rapids, March 6, in $1,000 bail. Culp said it was his intention to place himself at the mercy of the court and get off with as light a sentence as possible. He stated under oath that he had never before tried to pass bad money and that he only worked off five of the counterfeits.

State Health Report.

LANSING, Feb. 1.—Reports to the state board of health show influenza, bronchitis, rheumatism, tonsilitis in the order named causing most sickness in Michigan during the week ending Jan. 27. Scarlet fever is reported at 50 places, typhoid fever at 28, diphtheria at 26 and measles at 10 places. Two cases of smallpox are reported at Otsego. Consumption was reported present by 42 per cent of the observers making weekly card reports.

Suffered Three Years.

SAGINAW, Feb. 1.—Allan D. McMaster, aged 56 years, who has been an esteemed resident of Saginaw for years, died Wednesday of chronic bronchitis, of which he has been a sufferer for the past three years. He was born in St. Helens Isle, near Montreal, and for some years before settling in Saginaw was engaged in the lumber business, which vocation he pursued after he came here.

Foul Play Is Suspected.

ST. IGNACE, Mich., Jan. 31.—Two brothers named Truckey left here for their home in Goscap Sunday evening with a dog team. When a few miles out the elder brother called in at a house, leaving his brother, Antoine, aged 18 years, standing in the road by the side of the sleigh. Returning in a few minutes, he found Antoine across the sleigh, dead. Foul play is suspected.

No One Hurt.

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 30.—During the progress of the union revival meeting at the First Baptist church Sunday evening the fire department was called out by a burning chimney not far from the church. Presently some one entered the vestibule of the church and yelled "Fire." There was a rush that half emptied the crowded house in a trice. No one was hurt.

Aged Lady Severely Burned.

ADRIAN, Mich., Jan. 27.—While Mrs. Catherine Miller, an aged German lady, was busy at work with her sewing machine a spark of fire flew upon her dress, and ere she was aware of it the garment was blazing. After some futile efforts to tear off her clothes she ran out, rolled in the snow and extinguished the fire, but was quite severely burned.

Forty-Five Cents—Five Years.

DETROIT, Jan. 31.—William McHale, who picked Mary Wilson's pocket of 45 cents Nov. 4, was convicted in the recorder's court Tuesday morning, and sentenced by Judge Chambers to five years in Jackson prison. McHale, though only 20 years old, has been arrested 11 times. He has paid fines and served time in the house of correction.

Fire at Cass City.

CASS CITY, Feb. 1.—The blacksmithing and woodworking shop of Adam Muck was burned to the ground Wednesday morning; loss, $500. Had the wind been blowing from the east an entire block would have been wiped out.

Suicided by Drowning.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Peter Anderson committed suicide by drowning in the lake, while temporarily insane. She had been twice released from an insane asylum as cured.

Game Law Violators Arrested.

LUDINGTON, Feb. 1.—Twenty-two men were arrested here Wednesday by Deputy State Game Warden Kennedy for violation of state game laws.

PLACED AS A RIDER.

INTERNAL REVENUE BILL UPON THE TARIFF MEASURE.

The Proposition to Increase the Bonded Period to Eight Years Stricken Out and the Tax Increased to $1—Kentucky Members Predict Ruin and Disaster In Their State.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The internal revenue bill was placed as a rider upon the tariff bill Wednesday afternoon by a vote of 175 to 56. The entire day was spent in the consideration of amendments which were offered to the various internal revenue features. The principal fight came upon the proposal to increase the tax upon whisky from 90c to $1 and extend the bonded period from three to eight years.

These provisions, especially the one looking to an increase of the bonded period, were bitterly opposed by prominent members upon both sides of the house, and despite the opposition the latter proposition, that is the one to increase the bonded period to eight years, was stricken out, while the increase of the tax from 90 cents to $1 was allowed to stand. The Kentucky members say that this will bring ruin and disaster to the whisky interests in their state. Kentucky alone has over 85,000,000 gallons of whisky now in bond, upon which the tax will be increased without giving them the benefit of an extension of the bonded period.

Only one other amendment of importance to the internal revenue features of the bill was carried. It was a provision to extend the operation of the income tax to all moneys and personal property given or bequeathed by inheritance. This, it is estimated, will increase the revenue from the income tax about $3,000,000 per annum.

In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The entire time of the senate Wednesday was consumed in the discussion of the resolution of Senator Stewart of Nevada declaring that the secretary of the treasury has no power to issue the bonds for which bids have been invited.

The Record in Brief.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The house Thursday adopted the amendment to the the tariff bill repealing the reciprocity clause of the McKinley law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—No business of importance was transacted in the senate Friday. House: Duty on cut stones was increased to 30 per cent ad valorem.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The tariff debate was concluded Saturday night, so far as it relates to the customs schedules.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Hawaiian controversy and federal elections bill occupied the attention of the senate Monday. House: General debate upon the internal revenue features of the tariff was entered upon.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Federal elections law and the bond question occupied the senate Tuesday. House: Income tax was argued.

DISFIGURED FOR LIFE.

Terrible Fight Between an Officer and a Burglar.

BUFFALO, Jan. 31.—Patrolman Hunter of the Third precinct had a bloody encounter with a burglar Tuesday morning. Hunter heard a window break on Elm street. He ran and grabbed the burglar, who proved to be John Steinback, a tough well known to the police. Steinback began slashing at Hunter's face with a razor. He cut off a piece of Hunter's nose, and cut a deep gash in his cheek, about four inches long, and cut him several times across the face.

Blinded by blood Hunter held on and the two went down on the walk where a desperate struggle ensued. Hunter managed to get his revolver and fired twice, purposely avoiding hitting his prisoner. Steinback fought more vigorously. Finally two citizens helped and Steinback was landed in No. 3 station house. Patrolman Hunter is disfigured for life.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE.

Twelve Thousand Killed by an Earthquake In Kuchan, Persia.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30.—Additional advices by the steamer Belgic from China announce the complete annihilation by earthquake of the town of Kuchan, Persia. Twelve thousand people were killed in the awful disaster. Ten thousand corpses had been recovered to date. The only important and beautiful city of 20,000 people is now only a scene of death, desolation and terror. Fifty thousand cattle were also destroyed.

Colonel W. H. H. Taylor Dead.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 31.—Colonel William Henry Harrison Taylor, for the past 17 years state librarian of Minnesota, died Tuesday morning after an illness of five or six months. His first wife was his second cousin, a daughter of President William Henry Harrison. Colonel Taylor was the president's private secretary. In the '80s he was for four years postmaster at Cincinnati.

A Long Sentence.

TOLEDO, Jan. 30.—William Botts was sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary for two years longer than his natural life by Judge Lemmon. He was convicted of having robbed a second hand store and a life sentence was added under the habitual criminal law. This is the first sentence under that law in northwestern Ohio.

A Young Girl Scalped.

TOLEDO, Jan. 30.—Julia Friedman, 16 years old, was literally scalped by the passenger elevator in the store of Julius Strauss, where she is employed. She was watching the elevator make an ascent, and her head was jammed between the top of the car and the door. Her recovery is doubtful.

Wool Growers' Convention Called.

DENVER, Jan. 31.—At the request of many wool growers of the western states Governor Waite has reissued his call for a wool growers' convention in Denver Feb. 5. He has received notice that the governors of Pennsylvania and Montana have appointed delegates to the convention.

Jared W. Finney Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Justice Brown of the supreme court has appointed Jared W. Finney United States district attorney for the Eastern district of Michigan, to succeed Theodore F. Shepherd, whose term has expired.

Mr. J. M. Carnahan
Patton, Ill.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"Gentlemen:—I am very happy to write to you that I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with great success. I have been troubled with this complaint for over ten years, with dull headache nearly all the time. After taking three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, I am cured of catarrh and clear of the headache. I was also troubled with a scalp disease, which was very annoying, four or five years. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I do not have any trace of this trouble. I sleep well, have a good appetite and feel strong, quite in contrast to my feeling before I began to take this good medicine." J. M. CARNAHAN, Patton, Ill.

—THE—

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

Every subject of importance is dealt with in its pages—impartially, on both sides—at the very time when the course of events brings it to the front, and by the very men or women whose opinions are most valued. The REVIEW does not hesitate at the most liberal expenditure in order to secure articles from the highest authorities. Its list of contributors forms a roll of the representative men and women of the age.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW is the most widely read magazine of its class in the world, being neither scholastic nor technical, but popular and practical in its treatment of all topics.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW is the only periodical of its kind which has a recognized place as

A FAMILY MAGAZINE

This is because it devotes much attention to subjects that are of particular interest to women.

No other periodical in the world can point to such a succession of distinguished writers as have contributed to the REVIEW during the past four years. The list embraces American and British Cabinet Ministers; United States Senators and Representatives; Governors of States; American Ministers abroad; Foreign Ministers to the United States; Judges of the Supreme Court; Ecclesiastical dignitaries and eminent theologians of every denomination; officers of the Army and Navy; famous physicians and scientists; and in general men and women whose names are household words throughout the English-speaking world.

MATRIMONIAL.

A forlorn figure she was. She was sitting on her trunk at a landing on the banks of Red river, waiting for the down boat. About her was a group of amused but sympathetic bystanders, and she was telling them her story.

"I answered it in good faith," she said. "Here is his advertisement. I cut it from a matrimonial agency paper."

She took the clipping from her pocket and read it aloud, her black eyes snapping dangerously:

I am a widower, 34 years old. I live, with my two little girls, upon my cotton plantation. I have 1,000 acres, more or less, my own unincumbered property, situated on the beautiful Bayou St. Lucas. I have a nice cottage home embowered in vines, with gardens, chickens, cows, harness and saddle horses, flowers, fruit—every comfort except a wife. With a view to supplying the deficiency, I ask a correspondence with some respectable young lady, hoping to persuade her to

"Share my cottage, gentle maid.
It only waits for thee
To add a sweetness to its shade
And happiness to me."

References exchanged.

ALEXANDER GRAVILLE.

"I answered that advertisement," said the black eyed girl sitting on the zinc covered trunk.

"I was a teacher in a small private school in New York. The work was hard; the pay was poor. I had a stepmother at home and a houseful of small half brothers and sisters. I wanted to get away. I—I—had had a—disappointment"—the black eyes filled—"and I was unhappy. I had read 'Jane Eyre' and I—really thought that man might be another Rochester. We corresponded. He gave the postmaster as reference. I wrote to the postmaster, and he answered that Mr. Graville's character and standing were all right. He had a good farm, he was honest and paid his debts.

"Mr. Graville wanted me to come on and be married at his home. I drew what money I had saved out of the savings bank, sold my watch and came on. My stepmother was glad to get rid of me. I got here yesterday. He had said he would meet me at this landing—it would be a pleasant ride out to his cottage. I had written a letter just before I left, saying when I would arrive. I found nobody to meet me. I asked the way to Mr. Alexander Graville's. Nobody could tell until an old darky sung out:

"'Dat white 'oman mus' mean ole Sandy Gravel. He live back here in the swamp, but he ain't got no ca'age to send for nobody. Got nuthin but er cyart. Hit's here now. His son Ben driv' in to git some pervisions.'

"'Has he a son?' I asked.

"'Got a swarm of 'em,' was the answer. 'All done married but Ben.'

"My mind misgave me, but I had no place to go to—no money, so I hunted up Ben and told him I was going to his father's house. He was a freckled, patched, stupid looking young man. He looked at me with eyes and mouth open in amazement and was so bashful that I refrained from asking questions. I never hinted to Ben that I had come on to be his stepmother.

"On we drove, over stumps and roots and gullies—through mud and swamps. It seemed to be 20 miles. At last we drew up before a dingy, two roomed house with a shed at the back. A few scruggy peach trees and a neglected grapevine were the only green things in the yard beside the weeds. A woman was milking a scrawny cow in front of the gate. She had her back to us and a sunbonnet on. Two shock headed, barelegged children sat on the fence. They gave the alarm when they saw a stranger in the cart, and a man, who had been squatted in a fence corner holding off the calf got up and came toward us.

"'That's pap,' said Ben.

"He looked nearer 60 than 35. He was grizzle and snaggle toothed; his neck was red and wrinkled. He came up to the cart. He was agitated and chewed his tobacco wonderfully fast. I got up from the flour sack.

"'I am Amelia Jones.'

"He turned very red and told his son to carry the sack of flour into the house.

"'I wasn't expectin you,' he said. 'It's so long since you wrote.'

"'You have deceived me,' I burst out. 'You said you had a nice home, embowered in vines and fruit trees. You said you were 35. You said you had only two little girls. You said you were rich'——

"'No, I didn't,' he interrupted. 'I said I had 1,000 acres of land—so I have—though a big part of it is swamp. Acres don't make folks rich in these parts. This ain't New York. I said I was 35. I didn't say I was a few years over, for I'm spry and young enough for any woman. I said I had two little girls livin with me—said nuthin about the boys. They're all big fellows and married and gone, 'cept Ben. As for the house, ain't that a good house?—double pen and a shed to boot! Don't leak unless it rains and got a first rate chimney. And ain't there a vine? And what's the matter with them peach trees—ain't there fruit?'

"'And do you imagine any young woman in her senses would marry you and live here?' I cried.

"'Do I? Well, there's no imagination about it. There's three women have married me and lived here. Two of 'em's dead and buried, and yonder stands t'other. I couldn't hear from you. I concluded you was playin me a Yankee trick; couldn't wait nohow. So I married Miss Susan Barnes, and if you say she ain't a young woman in her senses, why, she'——

"'Why, I'll show her—that's what I'll do,' said Mrs. Graville No. 3, dropping her milk pail and rolling up her sleeves as she came to the side of the cart.

"I begged Ben to drive me back to the river, and here I am—waiting to take the first boat. I've played the fool, and I'm punished. It's crushed all the silly romance out of me. How I'm to pay my passage, I don't know. I'll offer to do chambermaid's work.

"But this Miss Amelia Jones was not forced to do. 'Ole Sandy Graville' came to the front. He proved to be not such a bad lot after all. He rode up presently on a bony mustang and promptly gave the little 'Yankee schoolmarm' enough money to pay her passage back, with an additional sum to cover the expense of her coming. He had drawn on his cotton crop. He looked cast down and sheepish. He explained to his friends in this wise:

"'I was a fool—a doggone fool, but I meant it all honest. I put a kind of rose color over things in that advertisement. It's the way you do in the papers, so that young postmaster said. He put me up to it. He wrote the ad and the letters. I really spected to marry her, but I'd give my promise to Susan in a kinder joky way, and she held me to it. I didn't hear from t'other one. Bayou was up and critters all in the plow, and I ain't been to the postoffice in full six weeks. I'm awful sorry to disappint the girl, but, Lor' sakes! she never would 'a' suited. Nice lookin—a fair daisy—but Susan could jes' go all around her doin housework, let 'lone takin a hand in the crop, in the press of choppin out or cotton pickin.'"

Miss Jones did not return to New York at once. She remained in the neighborhood several weeks, hospitably entertained by old Captain Stewart, a war veteran, and his wife. She very nearly decided to become the governess of the captain's little granddaughter and cast her lot with the "big hearted southerners," as she called us, in spite of her experiences with the eccentric widower of Bayou St. Lucas.

But one day there came to her a letter with a New York postmark. On seeing the handwriting, Amelia turned first pale, then rosy red. It was from the recreant lover, and he asked to be forgiven and taken back.

Womanlike, she was ready to forget her wrongs. She took leave of the friends she had made under such queer circumstances and returned to her northern home. A month later she wrote to Mrs. Stewart:

"Congratulate me, good friends. I am married to Jack and happy as a queen. Tell this, please, to Mr. 'Alexander Graville.' He may suffer some lingering remorse for 'disappointing' me, and I bear him not a bit of ill will."—Mary E. Bryan in Atlanta Constitution.

The Everlasting Topic.

"These cold snaps just take the life out of me," said the withered vine as it clung closer to the veranda post and shivered violently.

"I feel pretty well run down myself," replied the mercury in the thermometer.

"This weather breaks me all up," added the water pipe.—Detroit News-Tribune.

"How?"

"Well, he appointed a bill collector to go round with the plate, and blamed if every man in the congregation didn't ask him to call again on the 15th?"—Atlanta Constitution.

The Law of the Jungle.

The law of the jungle, which never orders anything without a reason, forbids every beast to eat man except when he is killing to show his children how to kill, and then he must hunt outside the hunting grounds of his pack or tribe. The real reason for this is that man killing means, sooner or later, the arrival of white men on elephants, with guns, and hundreds of brown men with gongs and rockets and torches. Then everybody in the jungle suffers. The reason the beasts give among themselves is that man is the weakest and most defenseless of all living things, and it is unsportsmanlike to touch him. They say, too—and it is true—that man eaters become mangy and lose their teeth.—Rudyard Kipling in St. Nicholas.

Strange.

It seems that some 180,000 persons commit suicide yearly. When one realizes how large is the number of persons who are "tired of life," it seems doubly strange that so few of one's own enemies should be among them.—Milwaukee Journal.

GLASGOW WAYS.

Points That Interest an American In the Scotch Metropolis.

"Let me take you tomorrow to see our municipal buildings, and you will see a palace which cost several millions of your dollars, of which sum not a sixpence was stolen nor jobbed," remarked a Glasgow bailie to a Boston Herald correspondent, who was his guest.

Next morning I went to the municipal buildings—what we would call the city hall, writes this correspondent. I found the place no less palatial than it had been described to me. It is far and away the most beautiful building of the kind I have ever seen. Its marbles, its stairways, its reception rooms, are exceedingly beautiful; its business rooms are in admirable taste. The building is the palace of a king—King Demos—and no crowned colleague has a lovelier dwelling.

There were no loafers in the halls; no large jawed politicians were holding up the exquisite iron gates; no office seekers were sprinkling the yard with strong language and tobacco juice; the place was more than respectable—it was attractive.

In this palace of King Demos there are state apartments most richly bedecked; there are a drawing room, a danceroom, a banquet room, and I know not what, and these apartments are used on festive occasions when official citydom is expected to disport itself to the credit of the community—which latter by one, two, three, four or more thousand representatives comes to join in the gayety.

The mayor of Glasgow is called the lord provost. He is chosen for three years at nothing a year. He is expected to live in some state and hospitality and to uphold the gentle dignity of the town. It costs him from $10,000 to $15,000 or $20,000 annually to do this, as circumstances serve. Obviously it is easier for a rich man than it is for camel to enter the provostship of Glasgow. But the Glaswegians propose that if the camel be not available, then shall not the rich man have it all his own way. They talk now of endowing the provostship, so that the sums necessarily spent upon splendor may henceforth come from the public purse. But they do not propose to give the lord provost a salary. His services must be gratuitous as before.

Glasgow is a solid looking town. Every building is of stone, after the Scotch way. One rarely sees brick in Scotland. The ribs of the hills are dug out for building withal, so that a Scotch town seems built to endure. Wherever you go you find stone stairs in the buildings of Glasgow.

The difference between British building and American is not more marked than in this matter of stone stairways and brick partition walls—dwelling houses, I mean, as well as warehouses.

Deeming it necessary to prevent the construction of sky cleaving buildings, which shut out light, air and everything but ugliness, the Glasgow folk enacted a law that no building shall be higher than the width of the street on which it fronts. You can build a mile high if you have a thoroughfare as wide as that.

A capital thing they have in Glasgow which we have not. The municipality has constructed a number of bathhouses, fitted with huge white tiled swimming tanks, each holding from 80,000 to 100,000 gallons of water. The water is kept at a temperature of 70 degrees. These baths are open day and evening throughout the year. The admission to these baths is 4 cents per person. Half a million bathers use these tanks in a year. Connected with the bath buildings are washhouses where workingmen's wives do their family laundry work, having for a charge of 5 cents per hour the use of a washing stall with hot and cold water and steam drying appliances.

Heliotropism.

Heliotropism is the peculiar property shown by many plants, notably the sunflower, of always turning toward the sun. In the case of seedlings the phenomenon is especially marked. The cells on the light side are apparently retarded in growth, thus causing a curvature toward that side. Professor Romanes has experimented with an intermittent light, such as that of an electric spark discharge, upon mustard seedlings, and has found that the heliotropic effect produced in this way is far greater than that caused by the sun or any other form of light. Strange to say, however, this abnormal influence is unaccompanied by the generation of phlorophyll, the green coloring matter in plants which requires sunshine for its proper production.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Photographs Report Better Than Eyes.

At a meeting of the Academie des Sciences, Paris, M. Zenger exhibited two photographs which he had taken at midnight from his window, looking on the lake of Geneva and Mont Blanc. The lake and the mountain are feebly imaged on the plates, although they were both quite invisible to the eye in the darkness. It is well known that many stars, invisible to the eye, are revealed on the photographic plate, and some years ago an advertisement on the hull of the Great Eastern, at Birkenhead, which had been tarred over so as to be invisible, was quite legible in photograph which had been taken of the vessel.—London Globe.

Modest Abbe Delile.

It is said that the French Abbe Delile once had in his household a very quick tempered relative, with whom he sometimes had animated disputes and who sometimes went so far as to throw books at the abbe. The abbe must have been a person of great amiability and self control. Once, when a particularly large and heavy volume was thrown at him, he caught it gracefully and said:

"My dear friend, I must beg of you to remember that I prefer smaller gifts."—New York Mail and Express.

NOT CALLED.

He may be a scholar familiar with books,
In person a model, unrivaled for looks.
An orator, too, like the great Mr. Puff,
But that, to our notion, is not quite enough.
In language decided the truth must be told,
We think for our parish he's rather too old.

For aught that we hear of he may be a saint,
And none of his errors makes any complaint.
He knows all the canons and rubrics by heart,
And oft to the needy will blessings impart,
But he isn't the shepherd we want at our fold.
We think for our parish he's rather too old.

Did you ever learn that experience tells
And work by a master for full value sells?
You make a mistake when that man you pass by,
And say, when inquired of the reason and why,
In language emphatic, "The truth must be told,
We think for our parish he's rather too old."

Oh, what shall we do when our pastors get gray
And cannot quite compass the world in a day?
I know nothing else save devoutly to pray
They soon may be called to some region away,
Where angels invite to the city of gold,
And none will refuse them for being too old.

—Tacoma New Era.

CONVINCED.

Peter Carter pushed his chair back from the table and surveyed the faded little face on the opposite side of the tea tray.

Faded enough now, though she was barely 27. You would hardly have believed how fresh and pretty Carry Carver had been on her wedding day. Her husband saw the change, but somehow he supposed all women faded just so.

"There is so much to do, Peter, and the children demand so much of time," pleaded the meek wife.

"If I were manager in this household. things would happen very differently."

"I have no doubt of it," said Carry quietly.

"There is no earthly reason," went on Mr. Carver, ignoring the sarcastic meaning of her tone, "why the work shouldn't be done and you dressed and enjoying yourself, cultivating your mind or something, at 11 o'clock every morning that you live. Washing up a few dishes, sweeping a room or two—what does it all amount to? Why, my dear, don't you see the folly of asking for a servant to help you do nothing at all?"

The morning sunshine crept down the pale green wall paper, sprinkling drops of gold on the few little geranium plants that Peter called a "waste of time" and lay in noon splendors on the carpet, and still Carry Carver stood there, thinking—thinking.

"Carry! Aren't you going to get up this morning? It is half past 7, and"——

"I cannot, Peter," groaned Carry, turning her face away from the light. "I am suffering such dreadful pains in that foot I sprained last night."

"Well, what shall I do?"

"You must take charge of the housekeeping yourself, Peter," said Carry, hiding a smile in the folds of her pillow. "It's only for a day or two, and I don't know of any help you can obtain. It won't be much, you know."

"That's true," said Peter, somewhat encouraged.

"Please darken the room, and keep the children away, and don't speak to me if you can help it. I have such a racking headache, and the least excitement drives me wild."

Peter shut the door with distracting caution and went down stairs on creaking tiptoe. As he passed the nursery door a duet of voices chimed on his ears.

"Papa, papa, we are not dressed."

"Dress yourselves, then, can't you?" said Mr. Carver, pausing.

"Pet is too little to dress herself," said Tommy loftily, "and mamma always dressed me!"

"Where are your shoes?"

"I don't know," said Tommy, with his finger in his mouth.

"I know," said Pet, aptly revenging herself for the hit at her diminutive proportions; "Tommy dropped them out of the window."

Crash! went a fancy bottle of cologne off the table as Tommy groped for his garters. Bang! fell Mrs. Carver's rosewood writing desk to the floor, bursting off the frail hinges and scattering pens, envelopes and postage stamps far and wide.

Mr. Peter Carver was an affectionate father in a general way, but human nature could not have endured this.

And he bundled the two little creatures miscellaneously into whatever articles came uppermost, rending off strings and fracturing buttonholes in frantic desperation.

The fire obstinately declined to burn, although Mr. Carver opened the over doors alternately and drew out all the dampers he could spy.

"Confound the fire!" said Mr. Carver, mopping his wet forehead with the stove cloth. "It won't go. I'll have a blaze of kindling and try the breakfast on that."

He seized the ham and carved several thick slices, which he transferred deftly to a gridiron, and then, elated with his success, broke several eggs over the ham.

"Bless me, how they run!" he ejaculated, rather puzzled. "But I know I'm right. I wonder why this coffee doesn't boil. I'll stick in a few more kindlings—that's the idea. There are the children crying—hungry, I suppose. I do believe they do nothing but eat and cry." Mr. Carver rushed to attend the peremptory summons of the milkman.

And then he sat down, tired and spiritless, to a repast of half cooked meat and liquid mud, by courtesy termed coffee.

He looked despairingly around at the chaos that reigned in the kitchen.

"Nine o'clock, as I live—and nothing done. Well, I see very plainly there's no office for me today. Now, then, what's wanting?"

"The clothes for the wash, please, sir," said a little girl, courtseying humbly at the door.

"Up stairs and down stairs" went Peter Carver, laying hands on whatever he considered proper prey for the washtub rummaging in bureau drawers, upheaving the contents of trunks and turning wardrobes inside out for a mortal hour before he had completed the requisite search.

The kitchen was empty when he returned.

"Where are the children?" was his first alarmed thought, expressing itself unconsciously in words.

"I saw 'em go out of the door, please, sir," said the washerwoman's little girl.

The July sun was beginning to glow intensely in the heavens. The pavements reflected the ardent shine with tenfold heat, and poor Peter Carver was nearly melted ere he espied his hopeful son and heir, with Pet following.

Neither of them would walk—in fact, the little wanderers were far too weary—so Mr. Carver mounted one on each arm and carried them, limp and unresisting, through the streets.

"I'll have a nurse for you, my young friends, before the world is a day older," he said, grinding his teeth with impotent wrath as he deposited Pet and Tommy on the floor and went wearily to his household duties.

"How are you now, Carry?" he said about an hour afterward, throwing himself into a chair by her bedside and fanning himself with the newspaper he had laid there that morning.

"About the same, dear. How does the housekeeping get along?"

"It don't get along at all."

"Is dinner ready?"

"Dinner?" echoed Peter in a sort of dismayed tone. "Why, I haven't got through with breakfast yet!"

"But it is 12 o'clock."

"I don't care if it's 25 o'clock—a man can't do 40 things at once."

"Where are the children?" asked his wife.

"In bed. They were too much for me, so I undressed 'em and put 'em to bed to get them out of the way."

"Poor things," said Carry.

"Poor me, I should think," said Carver irately. I had quite enough to do without 'em. I've broken the plates, and melted off the nose of the teapot, and lost my diamond ring in the ash barrel, and cut my fingers with the carving knife."

"Have you looked after the pickles and baked fresh pies?"

"No!"

"Nor blackened the range, nor cleaned the knives, nor scrubbed the kitchen floor?"

"No."

"Nor made the beds, nor swept the chamber, nor dusted the parlors, nor polished the windows, nor heard the children's lessons, nor taken care of the canary birds, nor"——

"Stop—stop!" ejaculated Mr. Peter Carver, tearing wildly at his hair. "You don't mean to say that you do all these things every day?"

"I do, most certainly—and long before 12 o'clock. And yet you wonder that I am not dressed and cultivating my mind before 11 o'clock."

"My dear Carry," said Peter penitently. "I have been a brute. I'll have a cook and a nurse and a chambermaid here just as soon as I can possibly obtain them. You shall be a drudge no longer."

A few minutes afterward the unskilled cook was scorching his whiskers over a gridiron covered with hissing mutton chops, which would alarm him by suddenly blazing up into his face without the least premonitory symptom, when a light step crossed the kitchen floor and a little hand took the handle of the gridiron from his grasp.

"Carry!"

"I release you from duty," smiled the wife. "My ankle is better now."

"I say, Carry!"

"Well?"

"Tell the truth, now. Wasn't that ankle business a little exaggerated?"—Buffalo News.

Bird Slaughter.

An American dealer sold last year 2,000,000 birdskins. All were used for ornamenting woman's attire. Women ought to cry down this vanity that feeds and pampers the destruction of the feathered tribes. The birds sacrificed are of course those of richest plumage, and of course also those that will be least easily replaced. In fact, if this thing continues, American bird life of the gentler order will pretty soon become extinct. Is not the warfare the American Humane society has opened upon the birdskin traffic wholly justifiable? We think so. The destruction referred to contributes not one whit to human need or human comfort. It adds nothing to the intellectual, nothing to the mental. It is simply wantonness practiced at the beck of fashion, and as silly and meaningless a fashion, too, as ever was spawned from the brain of a man milliner. There are birds in plenty that shed their plumage to supply the vain demand for flaming headgear. Why should the fashion monarchs be inexorable and also demand the bodies of our feathered songsters?—Sacramento Union.

The Female Ailantus.

Mr. C. F. Saunders of Philadelphia justly calls attention to the great beauty of this tree. The male ailantus first disgusts by its disagreeable odor, and then the flowers fall, leaving nothing more behind them. But the female flowers have a rather pleasant fragrance and are followed by the fruit, which soon takes on a beautiful golden color. Most will agree with him that there are few things more beautiful than the female ailantus with its young fruit during the months of August and September. By the way, the name is ailantus and not ailanthus, as frequently written, the tree being named from the Chinese "ailanto."—Meehan's Monthly.

English In Spanish.

The ordinary method of construction by which the Spanish writer places adjectives after nouns has sometimes a droll effect if he chances to adopt English words into his composition. Thus it certainly sounds odd to read in La Nacion that "the congress of the United States has finally disposed of the dangerous Bill Sherman," and in Il Comercio of Lima that "the American congress committee has voted for Bill Wilson to kill Bill McKinley."—New York Recorder.

SHOOTING HONKERS.

GREAT SPORT WHICH IS FOUND IN THE NORTHWEST.

Countless Swarms Which Congregate Between the Red River Valley and the Mississippi—Shooting Does Not Appear to Diminish Their Number.

Wild goose hunting on the plains of the northwest is a sport which always has great charm even for the experienced Nimrod. It is a sport replete with incident and a recreation which must once be indulged in to be thoroughly appreciated. The wild goose is known in all parts of North America, but in no section of the country does this bird appear in such numbers as in that territory lying between the Red river valley and the Missouri river. There the geese swarm in countless numbers and become corpulent on the grains of No. 1 hard which have been shaken from the stalk by the reaper and are lying in the stubble everywhere. Large numbers of the birds are killed by resident hunters and for eastern markets, but no apparent diminution is noticeable in the size and number of the flocks to be seen when the shooting season begins each year.

An hour's lively sport with the honkers on the wheatfields of North Dakota means but one thing to the inexperienced hunter, and that is something for his pains, especially if he happens to get in a well concealed stand directly in the line of flight. Then it is nothing uncommon for him to "tumble over" a wagon load of geese in very short order. Wild geese are a staple commodity in North Dakota and readily bring from $2.50 to $3 per dozen during the shooting season. In the little towns and stations along the Northern Pacific railway, during the fall and spring flights, almost everybody turns out for a few hours in the morning and toward the close of the day to shoot at the geese, and a right warm reception are the birds treated to. Many will ride to the outskirts of the town and shoot from a buggy or wagon at the passing myriads overhead and occasionally bring down a bird at long range.

The hunter who is out for business and is shooting for market and the money there is in it drives out 10 or 15 miles over the prairie several hours before daylight, and after selecting a spot where the geese have been seen in great numbers the day before digs a pit in the ground large enough to conceal himself and arranges the stubble or grass about the mouth of it so as to present a natural appearance. Close by he plants his decoys and settles back in the pit and anxiously awaits the coming of the morning. It is still dark, but from every quarter of the prairie come sounds of animal life which foretell the coming of a new day. The mournful cry of the curlew is heard overhead, and a flock of plover demonstrate their close proximity by the hurtling noise of their wings.

For some time he sits in a cramped position, listening to the booming notes of a prairie chicken, which bird is pouring forth a volume of drumlike sounds. The sharp yelp of a coyote not far away is unmistakable evidence that that thriving, skulking animal has jumped up a cotton tail and is hustling for an early breakfast. At the first peeping of the gray dawn the hunter suddenly hears a welcome sound—the faint and faraway honk-honk of the goose. He examines his gun and notes the direction of the sound. Nearer and nearer the sound comes, and finally he ventures to take a peep out of the pit and discovers the distant outlines of a large flock spread out V shaped in the morning sky, bearing off to one side. Apparently they have not seen the decoys, and the hunter thinks it is yet too dark.

Suddenly the leader is seen to waver, and with loud cries the flock turns and circles around the decoys as if suspicious of their genuineness, but drawing nearer at each turn. They have approached within easy shooting distance, and just as soon as the flock pitches down among the decoys the loud bang! bang! of a heavily loaded shotgun is heard, and two puffs of smoke are seen coming apparently from the surface of the earth a short distance away. Several geese are lying on the ground, and one is skimming away over the prairie with a tipped wing.

Some other flocks appear, and the shooting becomes lively until the sun is fully two hours high, when the flocks diminish, both in size and number, and with the exception of a few stragglers the morning flight is over.

Crystal Springs is the name of a small station on the Northern Pacific, 30 miles west of Jamestown, N. D. There are several small alkali lakes in close proximity to the station and a number of springs in the hills near by, from which the place gained its name. The town proper consists of a depot, boarding house and water tank and a population not exceeding 10 souls. One April morning a few years or so since the writer, in company with the telegraph operator at the place, sallied forth in quest of geese, large flocks of which were seen circling around and alighting on a small lake, fringed with bushes and tall grass, not over a mile from the station. After a full hour spent in crawling over the ground and keeping out of sight as much as possible the hunters crept through the grass to the bushes and looked cautiously out.

Upward of 1,000 geese were sporting on the water, diving, squawking and carrying on at a great rate. When the edge of the flock had come within 30 yards the hunters raised their guns and gave them a barrel, following it up with the remaining barrel as they rose heavily from the water. Twenty-eight geese were gathered up as the result of the shot, 24 of them the white or brant geese. The remaining four were fine specimens of that wariest of all birds of its species—the blackhead or Canadian goose. The morning's work was highly satisfactory.—Cleveland Leader.

THE DATE OF THE EXODUS.

It Would Seem to Lie Between the Years 1430 and 1300 B. C.

Although the monuments and papyri give us no direct information upon the subject of the exodus, they do indirectly indicate a certain period within which it must have taken place. Thothmes III, who was the most powerful king of that dynasty (the eighteenth) which finally drove the Hyksos invaders out of Egypt and reunited the whole country under one scepter, extended his conquests as far as Mesopotamia, overrunning Palestine on his way. He left lists of the conquered nations, but does not mention the Israelites among them. Rameses II of the nineteenth dynasty, the supposed oppressor, who reigned about 200 years later, also subdued Palestine and left lists of the conquered peoples, but he, again, does not mention the Israelites among them.

What is perhaps still more important is that, while the Israelites have left records of invasions by Mesopotamians, Moabites, Canaanites, Midianites and Philistines, they do not mention any invasion by the Egyptians, and the conclusion is that the Israelites were not settled on the west side of the Jordan till after the wars waged by Rameses II at the commencement of his reign, which began not earlier than 1388 B. C., or, as some now say, 1266 B. C.

It has been attempted to explain this difficulty away by suggesting that Rameses II kept close to the seacoast on his march through Palestine and did not strike inland till he was some distance to the north of the Israelites, but it is inconceivable that he should not have secured his long line of communications by establishing posts so far inland that they must have been brought into contact with the Hebrews if the latter had at that time been settled in their owr country.

The earliest date, therefore, at which the Egyptian history will permit the exodus to have taken place, even when full allowance is made for the time spent by the Jews in the wilderness and in conquering Palestine, would seem to be about 1430 B. C., while, if the shorter chronology be adopted, it could not have been much earlier than 1300 B. C.—Scribner's Magazine.

Power of Passion.

Ardent Lover—Do not turn from me, Mabel! Something seems to tell me we were born for each other. In the eloquent glance of your eye, the flitting blush that mantles your brow and cheek and in the very tones of your voice there is something that stirs my inmost being to its profoundest depths. Kindred natures are linked by sympathetic chords that vibrate in unison when love touches the heartstrings, and the chambers of the soul resound with the melody it awakes. Deep responds to deep. Unheard by the cold world, the thrilling music pulsates from heart to heart, and the listening angels bend down to hear love's immortal symphony. Mabel, dearest Mabel, does not your own heart's answering thrill bid you to hearken to my plea and make me the happiest of mortals?

Girl of the Period—Gee whiz!—Chicago Tribune.

The "Alabama."

"Alabama" comes to the Grand Opera House and brings with it the record of having been one of the greatest New York successes of the last 10 years and of having won everywhere the reputation of being the very best American play yet written. The play has for its background the poetic setting of the South, for its theme domestic love and the obligation for all sectional feeling. In New York the play was witnessed by the Southern Society on several evenings and they were its most enthusiastic audiences. The characters in the drama are drawn with an artist hand. Nothing could be finer than Col. Preston, the high minded, strong willed planter; Col. Moberly, pompous and consequential, yet brave and chivalrous; Squire Tucker, uneducated and amusing, but with a courageous heart and strong arm; Raymond Page, an unscrupulous legislator, familiar and objectionable; Mrs. Page, the pretty and devoted widow; Carry Preston, a sweet southern girl, and Decatur, the faithful old colored servant of the style that prevailed before the war. All these and several other characters act amid beautiful and typical Alabama scenes. The scent of the magnolias is in the air, the flowers bloom on every hand, a golden moon sheds its light through the mossy banners of the grand old trees, a rare sunrise lights up the old mansion and all abounds with peace and happiness at the end. Frank C. Bangs, of "Silver King" and "Jim, the Penman" fame, heads the cast.
