John Tillison, aged 25, a brakeman on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad, was instantly killed while coupling cars at Big Rapids. His head was caught between the tender of an engine and some projecting timbers on a car, and crushed. He leaves a wife and children at Grand Rapids, where he resided.

A brakeman named Miller, whose home is at Battle Creek, was knocked off of a Chicago and Grand Trunk train about a mile east of Flint, by a bridge. He sustained a terrible cut over the left eye and other injuries which are considered to be of a fatal nature. Miller is said to have been married only a short time ago.

Four convicts escaped from the state prison at Jackson the other morning by cutting through the roof of the west wing and sliding down the walls by ropes, but three of them were recaptured in short order. The one who got away was Thomas McGregor, alias Edward Beattie, sent up from Macomb county in 1882 for burglary.

Frank Thompson, a teacher in the Reform school at Lansing attempted to punish a colored boy named William Diggs. William objected, and to make his objections more forcible, drew a knife and inflicted serious wounds upon his teacher. William was arrested for assault with intent to kill, and is now in jail awaiting trial.

Evidently the inhabitants of Ishpeming don't care much for "shows." The Agitator says: The way Ishpeming has been left alone by traveling troupes of various kinds of late is a positive relief. Not a single one for several months, and now with cold weather already upon us all danger is past for another six months at least.

At Jones' Crossing, in Cass county by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of a companion named Zeph Woger, a young man named William Weatherbese had his face terribly lacerated by shot, his front teeth knocked out, and the whole of the base of the tongue torn away. With careful nursing his life may be saved.

An employe in Morley Bros. store at East Saginaw was neatly scalped the other morning. While taking down one of the heavy iron shutters the high wind forced the shutter against him and pushed his head through the window. His scalp was taken off as nicely as an Indian could have done it, but a doctor drew it back in place and stitched it down and the man will be all right again soon

The different lumber firms in the vicinity of Cadillac have reduced wages of employes, and a number of men have discontinued work. It is said that the reduction in wages is caused by the low prices in lumber. The cut is but 10 per cent. for skilled labor, while the yard men are cut 25 cents per day. Men in the woods now get but $18 to $26 per month, when formerly they received $26 to $34 per month.

Frank Cobb, the young man who murdered his brother at the breakfast table in Texas township som two years ago, and who was tried and finally turned over to a tribunal which sent him to the asylum for the insane at Kalamazoo, escaped the other evening through the negligence of his attendant. He is not very dangerous or very crazy either for that matter, if a non-professional person is capable of judging.

It is stated by the Grand Traverse Herald that in the season just closed Judge Ramsdell has sold 1,100 bushels of peaches. He has also disposed of his entire apple crop, amounting to about 150 barrels, most of it being taken by upper peninsula dealers. He has also found a ready market in the orchard for pears and all others of his fruits. The peaches netted $2 per bushel at depot or dock.

The annual meeting of the Michigan state beekeepers' association will be held in the city hall at Flint, December 5, and 6. It is expected that many prominent apiarians from this and other states will be present and address the meeting, among them the Rev. L. L. Langstroth, and a programme is being prepared which will include several short papers. Reduced hotel rates have been secured, and reduced railroad fares can be obtained by writing to Prof A. J. Cook of Lansing.

David Hobart, postmaster at Holly was knocked down and robbed by three men a few nights ago. He was on his way home from the postoffice with his wife and sister-in-law, and while passing Wilhelm Bros.' lumber yard three men came out of the darkness, knocked him down and grabbed the tin money-box which he was carrying. He cried out, when one of them shot him, the ball entering near his forehead and passing out behind an ear producing a large scalp wound.

Thomas McGregor, alias Edward Beattle, a convict from Macomb county, sent to Jackson for five years for larceny, in August, 1882, escaped from the state prison the other morning. Three other prisoners escaped at the same time, but were recaptured a short distance from the walls. They cut through the roof of the west wing, during the night, and emerged about 7 o'clock in the morning, sliding down the west wall, on the river front. They were discovered by the guard, just in time to draw in three out of the four.

PROHIBITION ADVOCATES.

Tenth Annual Convention of the N. W. C. T. U.

The tenth annual convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union convened in the Central M. E. church in Detroit, October 31. In every respect the convention was a notable gathering of the representative women of our land. Delegates were present from nearly every state and territory in the Union, as well as from the Dominion of Canada.

The work of organization having been performed, committees appointed and the convention gotten in good working order, the President, Miss Frances E. Willard, delivered her annual address.

The speaker contrasted very forcibly the strength of the organization now, with the weakness of previous years. The absence of a few from the present meeting was noted, special mention being made of the president from Arkansas. She wrote: "The women of this state vote by signature on the license question. I stay at home to work up petitions. The holidays will find us practically under prohibition." The speaker called attention to the strategic points where hard work is to be done. In Maine the vote will be taken on amendment next year. The failure of temperance would seriously affect public opinion; we must do effective work. As Maine is a strategic point, so also are Ohio and Iowa. Subtract the prayers of the temperance women of Iowa from the movement and what would be left?

THE EVENING

of the first day was occupied with addresses of welcome from the presidents of the Detroit and state Unions, and responses by delegates from Massachusetts, New York, Iowa and South Carolina.

THE SECOND DAY

was taken up with reports of committees to whom had been intrusted various departments of the work. The report of the secretary indicates more rapid progress in the temperance work during the past year than ever before in the history of the Union. The work of temperance education, especially among the children, was being prosecuted unflaggingly, and hopeful results are looked for.

IN THE EVENING.

of the second day, delegates from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Canada, delivered thrilling addresses. A particularly pleasing feature of this session of the convention was the short address delivered by Mrs. Wallace, widow of Ex-Gov. Wallace of Indiana, who made a strong plea for the ballot for women, not only as woman's God-given right, but as woman's sacred duty, and as one means of putting down the evil, and the sooner bringing about the happy day when "prohibition, immediate and unconditional," shall be placed upon the statute books of our land, and the stain of the legalized liquor traffic be wiped out of the flag so dear to the hearts of all.

THE THIRD DAY'S SESSION of the N. W. C. T. U. was devoted entirely to the regular convention work. This included mainly the reading of reports from the workers in every branch of the work. Almost every section of the country from Maine to California, and from our great northwest to the Land of Flowers was represented. The work among the freedmen of the south, as well as among the Indians of the southwest, has been ably prosecuted by that staunch advocate, Mrs. Sallie F. Chapin of South Carolina. Mrs. Chapin thinks the temperance work at the south is at its height, and that great results are to be expected.

The work among the lumbermen of Michigan is conducted by W. F. Davis of East Saginaw, whose report was not so hopeful in its tone. Forty thousand men are employed in the lumber camps, and their spiritual condition is truly deplorable.

At the evening session the question of woman suffrage came up, and a lengthy and animated discussion followed. The members of the Union, with but few exceptions, are in favor of suffrage, but unanimously agreed that at present the W. C. T. U. should be non-committal.

THE FOURTH DAY

of the N. W. C. T. U., was indeed a busy one The reading and adoption of reports, election of officers, adoption of a platform, deciding upon a place to hold the next annual meeting, and other questions of importance came before the convention for action. The convention was invited to go to Cleveland, O.; St. Louis, Mo.; Lincoln, Neb.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Portland, Me.; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Baltimore. Md.; and Newark, N. J. The decision was in favor of St. Louis.

THE ELECTION.

Miss Frances E. Willard was unanimously reelected President. Mrs. Mary Woodbridge was elected recording secretary by acclamation, Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, assistant and Miss Esther Pugh of Cincinnati, was elected treasurer.

THE PLATFORM

adopted declares for prohibition, asks for the abolishment of internal taxes and revenues, pledges the influence of the W. C. T. U. to that party, by whatever name called, which shall furnish the best embodiment of prohibition principles and will most surely protect our homes. Of the colored people the platform of the W. C. T. U. says: Recognizing the fact that the colored people exert an important influence on morals, particularly in the west and south, and also that they are a potent factor in politics, we feel it to be an urgent necessity to vigorously prosecute our work among these, especially the scientific and law departments, to more thoroughly impress them with the responsibility of citizenship and to give them a more elevated and refined standard of action and government.

The pulpits of the city were very acceptably filled by members of the W. C. T. U. the Sunday following the convention, and after a short session of the committees on Monday morning, the tenth annual convention of the N. W. C. T. U. was ended.

Two Very Curious Arrangements.

"You don't understand this arrangement," said the proprietor of the hotel; "you see you have lived out in the woods all your life and don't know anything about such a civilized instrument as a piano."

"Mebbe so, sir; mebbe so," said the squatter, and the old fellow went away. About an hour afterward he came back, bringing a curious arrangement made of several leather straps, a lot of cords and two pieces of pine board.

"Got er sorter curious arangement here myself," he said to the proprietor, "but I don't un'erstand it. Now I'll give you a tune. Hold this with yer right hand,' thum,' an' fore-finger, an' this with yer lef." The man took hold and the squatter continued:—"You've been livin' in town all the time an' don't un'erstan' this arrangement," and he pulled the strings and sent two large fish-hooks into the thumbs of the proprietor.

"That's the music," he said when the man yelled, "but I don't reckon yer un'erstan' it," and leaving the victim to take care of the trap, the old fellow sauntered away.

Veils are worn short, barely reaching below the eyes, and are omitted altogether by those whose complexions do not need protection.

THE NEWS.

NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Statistics of the postal union shows that the United States ranks first in the number of postoffices.

The coinage executed at the mints during October was $5,284,704, of which $2,350,000 was in silver dollars.

For the week ending November 3, 371,499 silver dollars were issued against 1,033,000 for the same period last year.

Judge Otto, who for many years has been the official reporter of the United States supreme court, has tendered his resignation.

The war department has issued a special order appointing a special investigation into the failure of the Greeley relief party.

The President sustains Postmaster-General Gresham in his war on the New Orleans National bank as agent for southern lotteries.

It is estimated by the commissioner of pensions that $40,000,000 will be required for the payment of pensions in the next fiscal year.

The case of Chester A. Arthur, collector, vs. Henry Pastor, regarding the improper duty on washed wool in 1876, was decided against the collector.

The secretary of the interior sustains the decision of the Commissioner of Indian affairs to the effect that the courts of Indian territory are not to be recognized as courts of record.

According to the report of the chief of ordinance 33,621 arms were made at the national armory during the year. Various recommendations are made regarding the arms of the army.

Postoffice inspector, Amos P. Foster, has been discharged from service for rendering false accounts. Foster was stationed at Ausin, Texas, and sent in accounts for services never rendered.

Secretary Teller has written a letter to the attorney general as to whether he can legally detail an examiner in the pension office to assist the United States district attorney in investigating frauds by attorneys and claim agents upon pensioners.

Judge Ferris, second auditor of the treasury, says that not one in ten of the pension claims filed have any merit, whatever, and that frequently the claim is filed without the knowledge of the party whose name appears as claimant.

The amount disbursed by army pension agents in the last fiscal year was $59,906,501. Of this there was disbursed at Washington, D. C, $3,440,610; Indianapolis, $5,154,895; Chicago, $5,684,779; Columbus, Ohio, $5,684,320. The total amount of arrears of pensions disbursed by agents during the year was $79,811.

The United States supreme court has decided that self-killing by an insane person, understanding the physical nature and consequences of his act but not its moral aspect, is not death by suicide within the meaning of the condition in a policy of insurance upon his life that the policy shall be void in case he shall die by suicide.

A prominent lawyer of Washington named Bradley, has been united in marriage to his former client, Miss Mary Harris, who was tried for the murder of a treasury clerk named Burroughs, July 6, 1875, and was acquitted on the ground of paroxysmal insanity, and who became an inmate of an insane asylum, from which she was afterwards discharged cured.

The annual report of the paymaster general of the army to the secretary of war shows receipts for the last fiscal year $15,490,310, disbursements $13,382,164, $145,221,630 in bonds of paymasters, June 30, 1883, and the remainder deposited in the treasury. Since last report five officers of the pay department have retired, having attained the age of 64, one died and one was dismissed for misappropriation of public funds. Maj. J. R. Wasson, the officer last referred to, was a defaulter in the sum of $5,452. The amount was made good during the progress of the trial.

The command of the army of the United States from Gen. Sherman to Lieut.-Gen. Sheridan was quietly effected at noon on November 1st. In relinquishing the command of the army Gen Sherman thanked the officers and men of the army for their fidelity to the trust imposed upon them, and assured them he would watch their future progress with parental solitude. Lieut. Gen. Phil Sheridan, who assumes the chief command of the army of the United States, vice Gen. W. T. Sherman, retired, was 30 years ago a pupil of Gen. Robert E. Lee, at West Point, and stood 34th in a class of 52. Only 13 of the class still survive. Sheridan is the 14th commander of the army and the fifth to hold the rank of lieutenant general, his predecessors in the latter respect being Washington, Scott, Grant and Sherman. His assumption of the chief command will not raise his rank to general, the rank enjoyed by Grant and Sherman.

The commissioner of the general land office, the Hon. N. C. McFarland, in his annual report states that the disposal of public lands during the year embraced 19,030,769 acres and Indian lands 399,225 acres, an increase over 1882 of about 5,000,000 acres and over 1881 of about 8,000,000 acres. The receipts from all sources in connection with disposals of public lands were $11,088,479, and from sales of Indian lands $625,404, a total of $11,713,883. Public lands were disposed of as follows:

	Acres.
Public Sales	273,069
Private entries	2,179,955
Pre-emption entries	1,285,710
Mineral entries	31,520
Homestead entries	8,171,914
Timber culture entries	3,110,930
Entries with military county land warrants	45,414
Entries with land claim scrip	10,580
Total number of entries of filings posted during the year	251,685

Aggregating 20,000,000 acres. The increase in the number of claims recorded in 1883 was 55,548 over the year 1882. The commissioner states that he is satisfied that pre-emption filings are made or procured to be made to a great extent.

GENERAL ITEMS.

Four young men of Erie, Pa., were drowned while crossing the bay to the peninsula.

A coal shed in St. Johns, N. F., fell the other morning, killing several laborers.

Edward Richard, an inmate of the soldiers' home at Milwaukee, has been asleep for 30 days.

Cree half-breeds in Dakota are plundering ranches, killing cattle, and raising the Old Harry generally.

They're at it already. The new governor-general of Canada has received letters threatening his life.

A fire in Savannah, Ga., a few days ago, destroyed $1,000,000 worth of property, and resulted in the loss of eight lives.

United States authorities have asked the Canadian government for further information regarding the postal savings bank system of Canada.

A Canadian judge asks to have the Dominion law so amended that the testimony of agnostics and unbelievers be admissable in criminal cases.

The round-house and repair shops of the Toledo, Cincinnati & St. Louis railroad at Dayton, Ohio, recently completed, burned to the ground the other day.

A company of nine persons, citizens of the Cherokee Indian nation, has been organized for the purpose of establishing a national bank at Vinita, Indian territory, with a capital of $50,000.

The coroner's jury at Buffalo find that the explosion of the boiler of the steamer Colorado September 29, was caused by the negligence of Chief Engineer Lovett in not having the stop valve open.

The case brought in the circuit court at Chicago to test the validity of the high license law is decided by the court in favor of the soundness of the law, and now goes to the supreme court.

Colored people of Kansas City, Mo., have organized themselves into the "Civil rights agitation club," and have pledged themselves to support such candidates as will work in behalf of equal civil rights for the Negro.

A disastrous tornado visited Springfield, Mo., and vicinity the other morning. A number of persons were killed, many more were seriously injured, houses were blown down, and trees cracked like pipe-stems.

Miss Aggie Hill of San Francisco is bound to have a slice of Senator Sharon's fortune, even if she cannot have the senator himself. She has brought suit in the superior court of that city for divorce, division of property and alimony.

Gov. Cleveland of New York has issued a proclamation calling upon officials within the state having in charge the execution of the laws, to exercise the utmost dilligence in the discovery and punishment of violators of the bribery acts.

In the divorce suit of Roger Minot Sherman vs. Florence Bagley Sherman, on trial at Danbury, Ct., Judge Andrews dismissed the complaint for want of jurisdiction, and Sherman will have to look elsewhere for his divorce.

A ring bearing the name of Zora Burns, the murdered girl of Lincoln, Ill., was sold by a stranger in Cambridge City, Ind. Officers immediately started in search of the stranger as soon as the discovery was made, but he had "skipped."

Mary Churchill, the daughter of a wealthy gentleman of St. Louis, Mo., who disappeared very mysteriously a few months ago, has been discovered working in the laundry of the insane asylum near Indianapolis, Ind. She retured home with her father, but declares that she will go back to the laundry again.

Nathan S. Haines, the absconding market master of Dayton, Ohio, who eloped with a woman of the town named Clara Fredericks, taking with him $15,000 of the city's money, was arrested in Montreal, and brought to Dayton. Remorse had done its work, and in a few days the wretched man died in jail, in the presence of his wife and aged mother.

A misplaced switch on the Missisquoi Vermont road, threw a train from the track, and the engine into the river. The engineer had both legs broken and his skull fractured, and the fireman killed. Edward Ellis, a brakeman, has been arrested on suspicion of having misplaced the switch.

Fire broke out in Garfield, Col., the other morning, and soon getting beyond control reached the store of Sperry Bros., containing over 600 pounds of giant powder, which exploded, hurling buildings, timber, and fire in every direction, totally destroying the postoffice, hotel, in fact the entire business portion of the town, Loss over $50,000, insurance one-third. A number of people were knocked down and badly stunned. Only one person was fatally injured. The people of Garfield are in a sad plight. Not only are the majority homeless, but without food or clothes for the winter.

The entire business portion of Willoughby, O., was destroyed by fire on the 2d inst. It started early in the morning and spread with lightning rapidity. The fire originated in an old barn at 2 o'clock in the morning, and it was o'clock before it was got under control. Twenty stores and a dozen houses were burned, and half the town is thus in ashes. The losses aggregate about $100,000, distributed among upwards of 100 people. Among the building destroyed are Kennedy's livery stable, Kennedy's hardware store, Clark's drug store, Barnes' Bros.' paper and paint house, Smith' jeweler store, Bartholoway's millinery store Gunn's residence and Kennedy's residence. The entire contents of the buildings were also consumed. There was no organized fire department in the town, and everything was at the mercy of the flames. Aid was sent from Painsville and Cleveland.

The morning following the fearful explosion in London, the Fenian headquarters in Chambers street, New York, was crowded with Irishmen identified with the revolutionary movement of which O'Donovan Rossa is the recognized leader. Several of Rossa's lieutenants were industriously studying a map of London, which was spread out on a desk in the dynamite chieftan's sanctum. As each new comer arrived, the scene of the explosions was pointed out by a man who appeared well versed in the typography of the English metropolis. A reporter asked Rossa what he had to say about the explosions. "What have I to say about them," he answered, "is good. Many more like them are in store for England. I do not want you to understand that I lay claim to any personal knowledge of last the explosions, but I will not be surprised to hear of a good many more like them before a very long time." Secretary Joyce, of the fenian brotherhood, said to a reporter that the English government would find out that all the restrictions that country can impose upon the sale of explosive material will not prevent the agents of the fenian brotherhood from pursuing the work planned out for them.

ELECTIONS

In Several States Nov. 6--Both Parties Hopeful---Butlerism Rebuked---First Returns.

IN THE OLD BAY STATE

the election was intensely exciting, and a larger vote was polled than ever before. The Globe, Butler's organ, concedes his defeat by at least 12,000, and it is not probable that later returns will reduce these figures very much. Robinson's majority will exceed 18,000. The Republicans elect all five senators and 25 of 30 representatives. Lillie (Dem.) is elected member of the governor's council from Lowell.

NEW YORK

Republicans elected the Secretary of state and the rest of the election is claimed by the Democrats, though Republicans are hopeful that later returns may change the complexion of things. Of one thing they are sure, however, the election of the secretary of state by a rousing majority.

IN PENNSYLVANIA

early returns indicate that the breach is healed and a victory scored for the Republicans. The situation in the old Key Stone State is best understood from the following associated press dispatch: W. N. Hensel, chairman of the Democratic state committee, has issued the following: "The Republican majority in Philadelphia exceeds the most sanguine Republican calculations. It wipes out all our estimated majority; but the country districts held up to our figures and until the western counties are heard from I do not concede the state to the opposition." Chairman Cooper of the Republican state committee estimates that his party has carried the state by not less than 20,000 majority.

VIRGINIA.

The election in Virginia created the most excitement since 1869, when the conservative party was organized. Half the senate and the entire house of delegates were elected. This legislature reapportions the state for congressional representation and elects most of the heads of state departments. The new senators vote for a successor to United States Senator Mahone. The race issue was never before so strongly marked. A dispatch from Charlottesville says the Democrats claim the county by a large majority, also that as far as heard from in the state there have been majorities for the Democrats. Returns from all the districts in the state indicate the defeat of the Mahone party in the old Dominion state.

COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS,

elected one judge of the superior court and five commisioners. Complete returns from Chicago gave Shepard, Dem., for superior court judge 4,006 majority over Jameson, Republican. Returns from the country towns cannot overcome this, and the election of Shepard and the entire Democratic ticket, except one county commissioner, is conceded.

IN MINNESOTA

the Republicans are very jubilant. Sixty eight towns heard from (outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis) give Hubbard, Republican, for governor, 2,044 majority over Birman, Democrat. The secretary of the central Republican committee estimates Hubbard's majority at not less than 12,000, the balance of the Republican ticket 18,000.

THE NUTMEG STATE

comes to the front with marked Republican gains. The election was for half the senate, all the members of the house, and sheriffs in eight counties. This Republican victory will make the next senate stand 14 Republicans and 10 Democrats.

THE RESULT

in Kansas is uncertain. Only county officers and judges were to be elected. Enough returns have been received, however, to indicate the election of the Republican ticket.

IN MISSISSIPPI

the election passed off with only one disturbance. The fusionists carry Hinds and Madison counties by large majorities. The only disturbance in the state as far as heard from was in Cassiah county where Wheeler killed Matthews. Matthews went to the polls with pistol in hand. He received 24 buckshots in the face.

NEBRASKA

elected a judge of the supreme court and regents of the university. The interest in this state all centered upon the supreme judge. Returns are very slow coming in, but from first returns received, the Republicans were victorious.

THE LITTLE STATE of New Jersey elected Abbott, Democratic candidate for governor, by a good majority.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS

are also jubilant over the election of a Democratic governor.

IN COLORADO

the election was for county officers, and but little interest was manifested. The Democrats claim the election.

voted upon the constitution, and from returns already received, the defeat of the constitution is almost certain.

CRIME

Joseph L. Brady, who has served a term in penitentiary, was arrested at Terra Haute, Ind., for robbing the postoffice at Stanton, Ind., in September. Stamps were found in his trunk. He is said to be the man who robbed the Danville, Ill., postoffice in broad daylight several weeks ago. He is a dangerous character.

Charlotte Epps of Huntington, Ind., was found guilty of murdering her husband last June by the administration of poison. Epps was an old wealthy bachelor and was married to his murderess two months preceding his death, she previously having served him in the capacity of housekeeper. Her punishment is fixed at imprisonment for life.

Edward B. Connelly, a brakeman on the Lake Shore railway is in jail in Cleveland, O., on a charge of sending obscene matter through the mails. He confesses to having sent numerous letters of a lewd character to ladies of respectability living in Cleveland, and adjoining towns. He is a middle-aged man, and has a wife and child living in Lorain, Ohio.

Arthur B. Johnson, a prominent lawyer and politician of New York state, shot himself through the head in his office in Utica, a few days ago. His body was discovered by the young lady employed by him as private secretary. A nephew of Johnson was shot in Batavia New York, a few days previous by a man whom he had greatly wronged, and the tragedy so worked upon Johnson's mind that he committed the terrible deed.

The vote of the Supervisors in regard to a new jail is slightly misunderstood by a great many in the county. The board did not vote $20,000 for a jail, provided Ann Arbor will give the site, with $5000" as several of our cotemporaries have it, but they voted to allow $20,000 anyway. Then there was a clause granting permission to the city to use a portion of the room for a lock-up, provided it raised $5,000 for the privilege. This latter amount would be devoted to the procuring of a suitable site.

The rumor has gained credence that the city papers are intending to raise the price ot their subscriptions from one dollar to a dollar and a half. We are unable to state where this idea originated or how, but as far as the COURIER is concerned the rumor is entirely without foundation. We see no reason at present why a change should be made, and do not have it in mind so to do. Hence we shall continue to furnish the COURIER as before, for only a dollar a year, 52 numbers for a hundred cents, postage included. Walk up and subscribe, thereby keeping yourself posted on all that is going on about the town, county, State, Union, Europe and the globe.

COMMUNICATION.

To the good People of Ann Arbor:

My previous and present interest in the sacred cause of Temperance Reform; my position as Pastor of a church in this city; my desire to support every man and every measure that is good, and to oppose only those men and measures that are fraudulent or unwise, and therefore in the end injurious, seem to call upon me to give a public statement of my position and that of many others in regard to the present Conway Temperance Revival. I wish to say in the first place that I never in any way whatever authorized the use of my name as one of the so called committee under whose auspices Dr. J. H. Conway was brought to this city, and who are represented in its publication as endorsing him. At least five other names are, to my certain knowledge, similarly used without authority.

My experiences have taught me that no representative man or community can be too careful in demanding the fullest credentials and clearest record since the time of reformation, or at least of the last alleged reformation, of any person who comes before the public as a temperance worker. The cause has suffered incalculably in the past from the prominence of both men and women who have proven themselves utterly unworthy of any respect. Ann Arbor is no exception to that statement. It seems that to obtain the support and sympathy of the public as a temperance reformer often requires less capital than is demanded in any other pursuit. Previous good character is frequentily the most damaging impediment in the way of popularity, The man whose life been the vilest is suddenly exalted as a hero, and has crowds of admirers both male and female as he recounts with great gusto and in the midst of applause those shameful experiences over which the veil of obscurity should ever be drawn, or only removed in most penitential sorrow.

But to travel over the country as a temperance reformer too often requires absolutely no capital of education, of reliability, of sincerity, or even of decent morals, but only that of impudent and shameless audacity. I therefore always demand as a right, that I shall be fully satisfied of the record and standing of any public man who asks my endorsement. I claim that any true man is glad to give such assurances, and that unwillingness to do so is a just ground for suspicion. Dr. J. H. Conway is now in this city in such a position that I must either cordially and heartily support him, or have good reasons for declining. He and his friends have crowded an unpleasant issue upon the public through the press, as well as in other ways. I have been personally assailed because I will not give him my name, endorsement or assistance. I wish I could do so. I claim to have as deep devotion as my heart is capable of feeling, from my childhood to the present time, to this great work. Perhaps at times my earnestness has made me too severe. But I cannot, as yet, endorse Dr. Conway for the following reasons: He refuses absolutely to give me, on my urgent request, any reference whatever in regard to his Christian character or as a member of any church, though he publicly claims such relationship. With taste somewhat questionable in this community he signalizes his advent to the city by signing himself an M. D., on the hotel register, and on the two thousand temperance pledges which he had printed. Yet he refuses absolutely to give any answer as to where that degree was obtained, and by that fact causes his warmest supporters to fear that it is at least irregular. Knowing that suspicions attended him during all his work at Lowell and followed him to Ann Arbor, he still persistently refuses to give the information which, if he has it, would clear them all away, and help to unite all temperance workers in his support. Mr. Conway is, as I have found, exceedingly modest only when called upon to give satisfactory references. Yielding to the importunity of one of our ministers, not myself of course, he did at last give a reference in the city of Pittsburg. But as the gentleman so quoted has been dead several years, it has not been convenient to get any light from him.

In order to assist in the necessary work of obtaining satisfactory information, I wrote some days ago to several leading and representative men in Lowell, and to Francis Murphy. Mr. Murphy says that Mr. Conway signed the pledge in Pittsburg in 1876; but though asked particularly upon that point, he does not profess to know anything of Mr. Conway's medical record, or to be able to endorse his character since the year mentioned. I have not been able as yet to get an answer from Rev. Mr. Whitaker of Lowell, who was quoted in one of our papers last week, though I wrote him urgently, and have for some days had answers to other letters mailed to Lowell at the same time.

I have four letters in my possession from the city of Lowell, each one from a representative man. One is a city official, two, are well known Methodist pastors, and the fourth, one of the foremost, best known, and most responsible Christian workers in that city. These letters all agree in saying that Mr. Conway's work in Lowell is exceedingly overestimated, is very superficial and promises no lasting good. But what is worse, they agree in saying that the good people there could not get any satisfactory information in regard to his antecedents. Indeed his letters of support that were published last week leave that question of character not only unanswered, but unfortunately obscured. Concerning him these letters agree that no word could be obtained from Philadelphia, his professed home, nor information in regard to his title of M. D. Is it strange that one of the leading men of Lowell who is a representative of all the churches there should say even more than the mild words which I now use, that having with others labored to find some good concerning his past, and having failed, the gravest fear is excited that his medical title is unwarranted, his religious professions insincere, especially as they can "give proof that he has been, to say the least, very imprudent with women?"

I submit to the public whose servant I am for good, that I am, up to this time, compelled to refuse to give my name to Mr. Conway—my support to "the Conway movement," or to put my pulpit at his disposal. Though I was never asked by any person whomsoever to give my consent to the use of the opera house in his behalf, I submit that no blame could attach to any minister for refusing to make a formal request for its use in his interest. I repeat what I said in public not many days ago, that I have only grown in earnestness in behalf of Temperance with the passage of years. But that devotion does not commit me to every movement of every character, or my name or service to the support of every unknown and irresponsible adventurer whose only merit may be the unworthy use of the word, to me almost holy, TEMPERANCE.

Perhaps I should in closing, acknowledge my indebtedness for important information and very valuable suggestions, to the Rev. Mr. Spence, now of this city.

Respectfully,
RUSSELL B. POPE.

Ann Arbor, Nov. 7, 1883.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Response.

EDITOR COURIER: I see in your paper of October 26th, that ex-supervisor Wynkup carries the erroneous idea that the present Board of Supervisors do not comply with the law. Without making any apology I will try to answer his critical questions by taking the bull right by the horns, instead of commencing at the tail end. The first is that the Supervisors do not comply with the law in selecting the jurors, and that the Supervisor takes all the responsibility himself.

As for as Ann Arbor township is concerned the Clerk and myself acted jointly in selecting our jurors, in fact the Clerk had a list of jurors made out when he came to my office for my approval; in looking over the list I saw he had at least three over sixty years old, which I objected to on account of their age, according to law, but was told Judge Joslyn said the law does not prevent a man sitting as juror. It simply means you cannot compel a man to sit as juror, hence our aged jurors, and they are good ones too.

Next question asked by Mr. Wynkup was, how many can answer the question as to returning jurors that had asked for it? I, for one, can say I refused to return jurors that had asked to sit as such. As to asking for the office as Supervisor I must say in sincerity I never asked for the office, and believe it ought to be left discretionally with the voters to select and elect whomsoever they chose. Now as to selecting our favorites for jurymen, we don't do as you used to. I beg your pardon if I am wrong in this assertion.

We select men of good sound judgment who dare to do right. Some of them voted against us, but they are good jurors all the same. As to the per diem, some was paid back into the county treasury. As to the Board of Supervisors of Washtenaw county I can only give you my opinion. We do not claim to be infallible, but I will say this much (leave me out if you please) as an eye-witness, for the sake of those that know nothing about the doings of the Board of Supervisors, or not much. They are as honorable, conscientious, hard working body of men as you can find, with the exception of a few. I would think still more of them if they would have lowered Ann Arbor township $85,000 more on the equalization, which, if I understand the meaning of equalization in all justice and fairness we ought to have at least, if not more, than the above abatement.

COUNTY ITEMS.

CHELSEA.

From the Herald.

One hundred and ninety-five teacher's certificates have been granted by the county board of school examiners this year.

A singular turnip has been left at the Bank Drug Store by Jas. T. Little. It has five perfect tops but one single root. It is about seven inches in diameter. and nearly square.

Several days ago we were shown the oldest relics we ever seen. They are the property of Mr. and Mrs. Leander Tichenon, the most striking of the two is a cow that gives milk, and is 91 years old,—it is a a small cream pitcher in the form of a cow. The other is a teapot whose age is estimated at 150 years.

DEXTER.

From the Leader.

Albert E. Cook, brother of Prof. C. A. Cook will preside over the scholars at the Arnold school-house.

A young man from a neighboring county says "Pinckney" is too insignificant a name for our thriving village, and suggests "Livingston" as a more appropriate cognomen. Wouldn't it be well for our "village dads" so give the suggestion a thought?

MANCHESTER.

When a horse ran away Wednesday it struck Thomas Moran, who was engaged in wheeling a barrow, and knocked him over, injuring him in a way likely to be fatal,

From the Enterprise.

Telephone business has boomed this week.

We learn that Thomas J. Farrell has purchased the Goodyear House of Uncle Joe. McMahon, paying between $8,000 and $9,000, turning in his property in the north part of the village as part payment.

SALINE.

From the Observer.

Christ Geugarty takes the medal for raising fine cabbage. He has grown over 1,000 fine head of the same this season.

A. A. Wood shipped two carloads of sheep to Kansas last week. Frank Tower was guardian over the sheep on the trip.

Dr. H. R. Watson has bought the 80 acres of land of Wm. Mead lying one mile northwest ot this village, in Lodi township. The doctor is putting in drain tile and improving the place genrally.

The ministerial institute of this district of the M. E. church was held in this village on Tuesday and Wednesday. About twenty ministers were in attendance, and good wholesome questions were ably discussed and talked upon.

YPSILANTI.

From the Ypsilantian.

The Central depot is to be remodeled, the ticket office enlarged and the whole building painted inside and out.

John Terns and Andrew Witmire have joined in the establishment of a new cigar manufactory, and commence business with half a dozen hands.

From the Commercial.

We notice from a late number of the Chicago Tribune that our former citizen Major Cicero Newell made a fine show ot a band of Sioux Indians from the upper Brule in Chicago on their way to Washington, when Congress meets in December.

Thursday evening the Jackson Express (on the Michigan Central R. R.) going west at full speed, ran into several freight cars at the Peninsular Paper Mills. The entire train was ditched, but miraculous as it may seem no one was hurt save the engineer Chas. Wallington, who was somewhat scalded.

Another well. Mr. Geo. Moorman and Clark Cornwell proprietors of the mineral bath house. are putting down another mineral well on the flats in the rear of their bath house. Estimated cost $3000. Hope it will prove a success. It is surprising that the Depot capitalitists do not pitch in and utilize the Follet House.

Literary Notices.

The November Wheelman is welcomed again for its brightness of reading matter and its neatness of make-up. The frontispiece is an engraving of the Columbia Bicycle Prize Cup offered by the Pope Company. Good ideas are advanced in "Cycling as an aid to Scientific Researches." In a bicycle tour in Tyrol and Switzerland are interesting bits of foreign travel and incident, while the first part of "Castle Trundle" promises a good ending. The magazine is prized by every one at all interested in that best of all out-of-door sports, 'cycling.

History of the Pacific States. By Hubert Howe Bancroft. Volume VI. Mexico. 780 pp., 8 vo.

The last volume of this comprehensive gathering of historical annals brought us to the beginning of the seventh century; this volume takes the thread at that point, carries it forward and hooks it at the threshold of our own century. It not only gives us the straight-forward recital of stirring events but it stops to describe in careful detail points of the administrative and judical systems, mines and mining, agriculture and manufactures, commerce, revenue and finance, the secular clergy, religious orders and society. By all these facts the time and country and people are brought vividly to us. The more we see of this history, the more are we impressed with the wonderful character of it in its completeness. Certainly the West, the Union and future posterity will always be indebted to Mr. Bancroft for the fortune, the lifetime, the toil, the trouble and the brain-work freely expended to accomplish the noble undertaking.

With this volume we received a cabinet photograph of the fire-proof library building in which the author has his library of 36,000 books and manuscripts; also one of the publishing house of A. L. Bancroft & Co. in San Francisco, showing the decorations of the building in honor of the Triennial Conclave of 1883. These are presented to subscribers to Bancroft's works. In connection with this we might add that this immense publishing house is the one having the Pacific coast agency of the Chase Recipe Book and for them we print a California edition of the book.

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

Mischievous Malaria.

To say that malaria is mischievous is to put it very mildly. It is all that and more It is cunning, deceitful, treacherous, sly, and underhanded. It does its work in the dark, and in such a sly way that much of the mischief is done before it is discovered. It saps the foundations of a healthy system. It robs the blood of its vitality, demoralizes the liver, confounds the stomach, and makes the victim wish he were in his grave. It is sad to see people sit down in their misery, content to be the victims of mischievous malaria, and thinking that nothing can be done for them. The power of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS over the mischiefs of malaria has been so amply proved that there is no reason why anybody who can procure a bottle of this Prince of Tonics shall suffer. Great is the power of malaria, and great are its disastrous effects. But greater far is the beneficent influence of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. The preparation of iron in this favorite family remedy can be taken without ruining the teeth or producing constipation and headache.

Skinny Men.

"Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia, Impotence, Sexual Debility. $1.

A Hartford paper alleged that some statesmen take twenty drinks a day, and the following morning its office was filled with public men who desired to know if the paragraph should be consideed a personal attack.

As a purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla acts directly and promptly. A single bottle will prove its merits. Many thousands of people are yearly saved from dangerous fevers by the exercise of a little timely care in properly cleansing the system by the use of this remedy.

"Yes," the tall, thin passenger admitted, "a crying baby is indeed a sore trial. But then you must remember that the baby cannot swear, and when a human being is being dandled up and down on the loose end of a two-inch safety-pin, it's got to do something, and if it can't swear it must holler." And the jury was only out two minutes and came in with a verdict for defendant.—Burlington Hawkeye.

SAVANNAH, N. Y., March 3, 1883.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.:

Gents—I have been a great sufferer till within a few months, for ten years with that worst of all diseases—rheumatism. At times I have been wholly unable to attend to my business, and for eight weeks was confined to my chair, my only relief from pain being while some one of my family rubbed my limbs. At the same time was covered with scrofula. I had tried every treatment and every kind of medicine recommended, to no purpose, and was completely discouraged. Having heard a friend praise Rheumatic Syrup, as a last resort, I procured a bottle, but with little hope of receiving benefit. After taking two bottles, to my surprise, and need I say delight, I experienced a decided relief. Continuing its use, after taking four bottles, I find myself perfectly cured, and to-day am as well as ever in my life. Of the sores which covered my body, only the scars remain to testify of the efficacy of the Rheumatic Syrup. As a blood purifier and a rheumatic cure, it has no equal.

DEXTER HOGAN.

Who says that it is unhealthy to sleep in feathers? Just look at the spring chicken and see how tough he is.—Exchange.

Catarrh of the Bladder.

Stinging irritation, Inflammation, all Kidney and Urinary Complaints, cured by "Buchu-paiba." $1.

Estate of William Noble.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Washtenaw, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, the thirtieth day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three. Present William D. Harriman, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William Noble, deceased. A. L. Noble, the administrator of said estate, comes into court and represents that he is now prepared to render his final account as such administrator.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the twenty-seventh day of November, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for examining and allowing such account, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Ann Arbor, in said county, and show cause, if any there be, why the said account should not be allowed. And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage executed by John J. Davis and Adelle E. Davis his wife dated Jauuary 16th, 1872, to Jared S. Lapham which said mortgage was on the 27th day of January, A. D. 1872, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Washtenaw County, Michigan, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, in liber 44 of mortgages, on page 220. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice for principal and interest the sum of four thousand and five hundred dollars. No proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to collect said mortgage debt or any portion thereof. Default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained became operative. Notice is therefore hereby given that to satisfy said mortgage debt, interest and costs of this foreclosure that there will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House on Huron street, in the city of Ann Arbor county of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, (that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for said county) on Saturday the 5th day of January, A. D. 1884, at one o'clock in the afternoon of said day, the premises in said mortgage described, viz: The south-west quarter of the south-east quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of section six (6) town one (1) south of range seven (7) east, also the east half of the north-west quarter of section seven (7); also eleven (11) acres, more or less, off the south side of the east half of the south-west fractional quarter of section six (6) being all that part of said description lying south of the highway known as the trail road, all said lands being in the township of Salem, county and state aforesaid.

Dated, October 11th, A. D., 1883.

Estate of Mathew Howard.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Washtenaw. ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, the sixteenth day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three. Present, William D. Harriman, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Mathew Howard, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Mary Jane Howard, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Willard B. Smith or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the twelfth day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Ann Arbor, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in The Ann Arbor Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. AYER'S Hair Vigor restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

In most of the churches all over the land the services of next Sunday will be commemorative of the 400th anniversary of the birth of that "true great man," Martin Luther, who was born in Eisleben, November 10, 1483, and who lived to work out a most wonderful Reformation.

About a year ago an advance agent for a theatrical company borrowed five dollars of A. J. Sawyer. He failed to return it and Mr. S. had come to the conclusion the "goke" was on him. However, the other day, he caught the man in town and made him disgorge, hence he smiles again.

At last the long hill in Lower Town on the Dixboro road has been conquered by the bicycle. Mr. Louis Taylor, teller of the National Bank, and ye editor succeeded, the fore part of this week, in making the ascent without a dismount. It has been to Ann Arbor wheelmen what Corey Hill is to Bostonians.

Some six miles out of town in Lodi, at half past three Saturday afternoon a sad tragedy occurred. A little eight year old daughter of Mr. Kline was left at home to take care of her baby sister. She had gathered some chips, and while putting them on the fire her dress ignited. She ran out into the road, but the motion only fanned the blaze. Her flesh was burned to a crisp and she only lived two hours.

At the regular monthly common council meeting Monday night $75.00 was voted to the Vigilant Hose Company for taking care of the steamer; $54.00 to Alderman Henderson for 27 days work, and $1,000 was appropriated for a new engine house to be built in the Sixth ward on the vacant lot adjoining the Tappan school. They also decided to put up lamp posts on the south and west sides of the court house square.

The celebration of the Four Hundredth Anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther has been recommended by the general assembly of the Presbyterian church. In accordance with this recommendation Dr. Steele will deliver a discourse at the morning service on Sabbath next, on "The Life and Work of Martin Luther." At the evening service the subject of his lecture will be, "Luther at the Diet of Worms, with a description of the city and the Luther Monument."

A plan is being developed that seems likely to give the people of this vicinity an opportunity of hearing a great masterpiece in music presented in grander style than has ever been attempted in this vicinity. It is proposed to unite the musical talent of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti and put on Mendelssohn's oratorio of St. Paul. By this combination a full chorus of 200 voices would make University Hall ring as it never did before. The plan is for each musical society to work up the choruses separately at first until prepared thoro'ly, and then, after a few meetings together, to give it once in Ann Arbor and once here.—Ypsilantian.

Some two weeks ago at Burke's soap factory Jacob Ardner and Charles Heissler were scuffling and boxing, when the former delt the latter a powerful blow in the chest. He had previously been troubled with asthma, hence, perhaps, he was the more easily injured in that place. At any rate he died Monday night and the coroner's inquest Wednesday showed that a rib had been broken and that an abscess had formed in his breast. Heissler, who was a single man, had been in this country only a few months. Ardner was taken to the jail to await the verdict of the jury, and on its finding he died of pneumonia he was released.

For nine years and more Mary F., the wife of Ambrose Kearney, has been a sufferer from a tumor. At that time, in Fort Bend county, Texas,—her native place—she had an operation performed for it. However, it was but little abated, and since then she had been a patient sufferer. Friday another operation was performed, and it resulted fatally Saturday night. The funeral services, which were attended by a large number of friends, were conducted by Fathers Fierle, of this city; LeFebre, of Ypsilanti; Van Watership, of Northfield; and the funeral sermon was by Father Walsh, of Detroit. It was at the Catholic church, Tuesday, at 9:30 A. M.

The University boys have a strong foot ball eleven this year, and their desire to try results with the teams of eastern colleges is likely soon to be gratified, for the faculty has granted them a two weeks' absence for a trip. They leave on the 20th and return after Thanksgiving. During this time they will play the Harvard, Yale, Columbia, and Princeton teams. It is a good thing for Michigan University once in a while to allow these contests, for it always attracts attention to the institution, making its name more familiar to the ears of men, and thereby receiving good advertisements in all the large eastern papers. Even if they are beaten, this result, at least, is accomplished.

Entertainments.

The people of Ann Arbor will be favored on Saturday night with the grand opera, Maritana, by the Hess Opera Company. In the whole company there are sixty artists, choristers and musicians, while the chorus has thirty-five voices. Abbie Carrington, the prima donna soprano, is an American girl from Wisconsin born twenty-four years ago. She is said to have a high dramatic soprano voice with pure tones within the compass of her voice, which easily sustains the high E. The Memphis Avalanche says: "The resemblance she bears to Parepa Rosa in appearance, voice and method was striking in this character upon which Parepa built the structure of her popularity. The broad compass, purity, and clearness of tone, and the remarkable distinctness of enunciation that was Parepa's chiefest charm, Miss Carrington certainly possesses." The support is good and strong, while the costumes, scenery and stage properties are all that is desirable.

The County House.

The Saline Observer sums up the results of the past year's work at the Poor House:

The products on the county poor farm for last year consisted of 635 bushels of wheat, 253 bushels of corn, 525 bushels of potatoes, 50 bushels of onions, 5 bushels of turnips, 50 tons of hay, products of nine cows, $360, swine and increase of same, $226.25, poultry do, $20, total, $2,517.10.

For sustaining the County Poor House the following amounts are now due the poor fund for last year's board and care, from the townships named: Bridgewater, $70.20; Lodi, $70.00; Manchester, $185.83; Pittsfield, $24.30; Saline $127.76; York, $140.40. The total amount for the whole county is $3.922.29.

Estimated value of pauper labor, $75. The farm stock is valued at $1,420. The estimated value of farm implements on hand is $850; of household furniture, clothing, boots and shoes, groceries, dry goods, etc., $3,772.50. Whole number of male paupers maintained during the year, 129; female paupers, 56, total, 185; average number maintained, 71. Whole number under 16 years of age, 17; idiots 8; blind, 3; mutes, 3, Nativity of paupers, American, 76; Canadian, 8; English, 10; Irish, 40; Scotch, 2; German, 37; Swedes, 1; Italian, 1; Negroes, 10. The average number of persons supported at the county house for the year ending September 20, 1873 was 81, at an average cost of $1,-35 per week. The estimated expenses for the year ending September 30, 1884 are put down at $9.000. The superintendents recommend and have asked for an appropriation sufficieot to run the county house and make some needed improvements in the way of tile draining, and for the construction of a new barn.

PERSONALS.

Miss Clara N. Coleman is in Duluth.

Col. J. L. Burleigh was in town Tuesday.

A. E. Cook has been visiting his brother W. W. Cook, in Lansing.

Mrs. R. B. Pope was called away suddenly last week by the sickness of a sister in Ohio.

Carlton Hendrickson has been out to Pontiac this week visiting his brother, Firman, who is Dr. Hurd's private secretary.

Mrs. R. Hulbert, for a long time resident in this city, has moved from Chicago to spend the winter at Michigan City, Indiana.

August Widenmann of Whitmore Lake has been quite sick for some time and for the past two weeks has been at Mr. C. J. Durheim's for care.

A. Spalding, formerly resident on the corner of Fifth and William streets, is the money-order clerk in the postoffice at Kansas City, Missouri.

Mrs. Clay, a daughter of the statesman Cassius M. Clay, of Kentucky, has taken up her residence in the city. She is an active worker in the temperance cause.

J. T. Honey, the former postmaster at Dexter has been out West prospecting, with the idea of moving, but has finally returned home with a resolve to remain where he is.

Father Carey of this place has been officiating at the church in Hudson, for some time past. Recently he was presented with a gold headed cane and over $100 by the appreciative people.

UNIVERSITY ITEMS.

The medics began dissecting Tuesday.

W. C. Chandler '82, is in San Francisco.

Prof. O. C. Johnson is father of a new boy.

C. E. Boyce, editor of Things Chronicled, was called home to Port Huron last week on account of sickness of relatives.

Miss Lulu Bell of '83 is still too ill to resume her school work. In the meantime Miss Carrie Bell of '85 takes her work until Thanksgiving.

The bids for the University printing for this year were opened Monday afternoon and the contract was awarded to the COURIER office.

The Choral Union have it in mind to celebrate by an evening's entertainment the festival of St Cecilia, on the 22d or 23d of this month, at which all worshippers of the art are expected to be present.

The freshman class met Saturday and decided to have the following officers for the year: President, J. H. Cotteral; vice-president, Miss M. S. Rowley; secretary, F. D. Sherman; treasurer, C. J. Dixon; orator, J. H. Patterson; historian, Miss A. M. Bradford: poetess, Miss F. M. Potter; toastmaster, J. K. Pitman; marshal, J. L. Skinner.

Saturday morning the sophomores wrestled with their class election. The result was: President, M. D. Baker; vice president, Miss Jessie W. Ramsdell; secretary, L. W. Goddard; treasurer, W. J. Hussey; marshall, E. L. Dorn; orator, G. E. Cutler: historian, Will Sherzer; poetess, Miss C. E. Lorman; seer, Miss Kate Orr; toastmaster, W. W. Campbell; foot-ball captain, George Whyte; base-ball captain, J. Shotwell.

Last week it was dangerous for a lone freshman or sophomore to be out after dark, as the enemy were on the war path, and had an awfully sudden way at times of sending each other over the fence. A freshman took things cooly the other night, who was caught out by the sophs with his gloves and best hat on, when he asked for time to remove them. When they were taken off he submitted to the elevation. This is in quite a contrast to the sophomore who became panic-struck while making a call on some young ladies one evening recently. He heard the yell and saw dark shadows gliding along the street, and became possessed with so much fear that he begged the ladies to go home with him. So taking pity on his condition four of them escorted him home. Verily life at a University is attended with many stirring incidents.

BACH & ABEL.

Thursday: Clear and Bright and Indications of Fine Weather for a Few Days.

Let Us Give You a Pointer.

We sometimes name items at prices so out of proportion to apparent values that one smiles, says "A misprint," and passes it by. The prices on our colored silks for two weeks are not a misprint, although it does not seem possible that we could give such value for so little money.

Our Colored Silks at 85 cents cannot be matched at $1.10.

Our Colored Silks at $1.17 cannot be duplicated at $1.40.

Our Black Silks at $1.29 can't be approached in this city or any other for less than $1.60.

Another large shipment of Misses' Cloaks received this week. Examine them.

Here is what we can do for a short time on Silk Handkerchiefs: This week we will place on sale 25 doz. all silk, very large sized handkerchiefs, at the low price of 43 cents; sold at 60 to 75 cents elsewhere.

We are supplying Plush Cloaks and Dolmans in all values, from $35.00 to $60.00. Ladies who look around very cautiously usually return to us and purchase. Our prices are fixed, and the same for every purchaser. This alone would require us to name the lowest price at the first.

Choice novelties in Neck-wear for the young ladies are offered this week. We would like to have an opportunity to show them. We think you will like the styles, and don't think you will find them elsewhere,

You will not find a better stock of the still popular Jersey than we have taken care to secure. We can give you all sizes from 30 to 40. $2.50 buys them.

Ask to see our German Jackets, the only jacket in the city manufactured in Germany. It will wear longer than three jackets made in this country.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

MESSRS. J. C. AYER & CO., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

PHILOPENA.

"What sort of gift will I take?"
Asks my saucy debtor,
"Shall she make, or buy, the thing,
Which do I like better?"

Then to mine a little hand
Is yielded up completely,
While the red lips try to pout
And the eyes smile sweetly.

"Know'st thou—pris'ner at the bar,
(Still I hold her tightly,)
The meaning of that Grecian word?"
"No," she answers lightly.

"Pœna—penalty; philo—love,
According to the letter,
And if you cannot pay the debt
I must keep the debtor.

"Would you buy your sentence off?
Useless the endeavor;
Yet if you work the whole term out,
It will take forever!"

—I. R.

THE GOVERNOR'S STORY.

"We were poor," said the governor, "my mother and I. We lived in a little cabin on Gen. Linton's farm, and it was a hard time. My father had died when I was sixteen years old, leaving us nothing but an honest reputation; and, although I was stout and healthy, my wages were very low, and I had to toil late and early to provide the necessaries of life. But I suppose I would have been happy and contented enough, that is, as much as we unsatisfied mortals usually are, if it hadn't been for a woman. I don't know why it was that Helen Hinton had made such an impression on me, for she had by no means those great and noble qualities by which men as a general thing are attracted toward the opposite sex. On the contrary, she was proud, arrogant and overbearing, and I was confident that if she thought of me at all it was with feelings of contempt and disdain alone.

Not on account of my personal appearance, it is true, for though I was rough and uncultivated, and my hands were hard with incessant toil, and my face bronzed by exposure to the sun, still I had wonderful strength and agility, and my hair and eyes were as dark as midnight, and many said I was handsome. But I was poor and she was wealthy. I was Gen Linton's hired hand and she was Gen. Linton's daughter, and it was the old, old story. It must have been her bewildering beauty that drew me more and more toward her, for she was a queenly-looking girl, with flashing eyes and magnificent dark brown hair, and a form tall and magnificent and stately. But whatever it might have been I am certain of one thing, and that is, I learned to love her with a maddening, painful, consuming passion that seemed about to devour my whole being. I tried very hard to smother it and to drive her image from my heart. I knew I might as well think of plucking down the moon or the stars as to have dared to aspire to her hand.

But it was of no avail; the more I struggled the more I became entangled. In the morning, at noon and night there was but one face that I saw and one voice that I heard, and that was the face and the voice of Helen Linton. What was the worst of all to me, in some way she discovered my secret. How I can hardly tell. They say murder will out, and the same can most assuredly be said about love. I had not spoken about it to any one, not even to my mother, and as to Helen I had scarcely spoken to her on any subject. It is true that sometimes she would give me instructions in regard to the flower garden, which Gen. Linton had selected me to manage, having, as he said, more opinion of my taste in such matters than any of the rest of his workmen; but she never condescended further. I worshiped her like a star afar off, and knew the distance between us to be as wide as impassable.

One day she came into the garden when I was at work there, and, impelled by some unknown power, I gathered and presented to her a choice bouquet of flowers; and whether it was from my guilty looks that she then discovered all and determined to check me in the very beginning, or whether she had already probed to the very depths of my heart and thought I was presumptuous, I know not; but certain it is that she never spoke to me after that. She had been in the habit of giving me a nod of recognition whenever she met me before, but after this she passed me without even a glance; disdain within her haughty eye and contempt upon her scornful lip. You may know that my life was as wretched as it well could be. I used to sit down by the fire in our little cabin after my hard day's work was done, and curse my wretched fate, and call God unjust in what I considered the distinctions he made in the human race; but I little knew then what the sequel would be.

Crowds of company, gay ladies and gentlemen, came every summer from the city to spend the season at Linton Hall, and it so happened that one summer there came among the rest a young gentleman named Arthur St. John. He was reported to be wealthy, and handsome he certainly was, and it was not very long before he commenced paying devoted attention to Gen. Linton's daughter; and it was easy enough to see that she was as infatuated as he was. They used to ride out by our little cottage, on the bright summer evenings, on the Forest road, as it was called, on their prancing horses, he bending fondly above her, whispering words of love and tenderness, and she listening to him with a flush on her cheek and a smile upon her lip. I remember one evening that I stood watching them as they rode down from the Wild Glen, bathed in the golden halo that the gorgeous fires of sunset threw upon the scene, while the summer zephyrs, loaded with the perfume of wild-flowers, blew back her massive hair from her queenly brow, until the scene seemed to me celestial, and she an inhabitant of the celestial regions Just there she caught sight of me, as I looked at her almost entranced and spoke something in a low tone to her companion. What it was I never knew but they both looked at me an instant, and then the air rang with their laughter, and I heard him say something about presumption and impudence, and I guessed what it saw. It was hard to be thus tortured, simply for no other reason than because I had a heart, and could not control its impulses, and when I look back on that time it seems to me like some terrible dream.

Misfortunes, they say, never come singly, and they always come, too, when we least expect them. My mother suddenly sickened and died, and I was thus left alone, a wretched outcast on the earth. As I stood over her grave, it seemed to me that I had buried every hope. I determined to leave that spot, where I had seen so much misery. I cared very little where I went. Anywhere far away from there. Gen. Linton payed me what little he owed me, and I struck out for the far west. Railroads and steamboats were not half as numerous then as they are now, and even if they had been I was too poor to avail myself of their advantages. I walked, therefore, many a weary mile, until, after several days of travel, I found myself at the outskirts of a growing city. Here I stopped, because I thought I had gone far enough, and for the best of all reasons, because my money had given out. I had to do something. A large mansion, with beautiful grounds, stood before me. I applied to the owner for labor. He said he was very much in need of a gardener, but did not like to employ me without references.

After hesitating for a while, however, he concluded to engage me for a manth, and if he liked me, would then engage me permanently, he said. I found out in a short time that he was a lawyer, of extensive practice, immensely wealthy, and lived at his ease. I followed up the rule I had adopted through life, to be honest and industrious under all circumstances, and at the end of the month my employer, whose name was Parker, sent for me, he said, to pay me my month's wages. He then surprised me by asking if I could read and write, I told him that I could. Thanks to indefatigable energy and perseverence at the little cabin on Gen. Linton's farm, during the long winter evenings when the labors of the day were over, I had acquired the rudiments of a first-rate English education. My employer then told me that during the past month he had observed me closely, and that he believed me to be an honest man. "I will tell you something more," said he, "that I have discovered. You are a young man of extraordinary intelligence. Gardening is not your proper vocation. I am doing an extensive practice of the law, and I need some one to stay in my office. I know of no one better suited than you. With your application and industry, within one year from now you may be admitted to the bar. You must consent to become my student."

I don't know exactly how it was, but suddenly Judge Parker and the table seemed to become inverted and the room went whirling around and around, and we all seemed like flying off through the air, like Aladdin's castle, and the next thing I knew I was sobbing with my head upon the table.

He didn't say anything until I had regained my composure, and then I told him all; what a hard time I had had through life, and how this had been the only light that had ever shone upon my pathway. Tears sprang into the old man's eyes as I told him, but he said I must not not despair and he was certain I would come out victorious.

I went into Judge Parker's office and I studied hard, and at the end of the year, as he predicted, I obtained my license to practice law. He then asked me what I intended doing. I told him that I was intending to go off to some rising place and grow up with it, "and if I ever do anything," said I, "remember you are the man that made me."

He said I should do no such thing. He was getting old, he said, and was unable to attend properly a great deal of his business, and he wanted me to stay and assist him. "You must be my partner," said he, "with a share of the profits."

Again the room seemed turning round and round, but this time I managed to retain my feelings, and only said:

"May heaven thank you, for I can't."

Well, it wasn't long before the people seemed to take an interest in me, and they elected me to the state legislature, and then after a while to congress, and I always continued in the same honest, industrious course until they made me their governor.

I had heard but very little in all that time from Linton hall. I had heard that Gen. Linton had died, and Arthur St. John and Helen had married, and that the old place had been sold, and that was all.

As for my part, I was still a bachelor. Many a time, amid the thunders of applause that had surrounded me, fair hands had thrown me beautiful flowers and ruby lips had smiled, and bright eyes had glistened when I was near; but I thought of cold, cruel, haughty Helen Linton, and had judged them all alike, and had turned away.

One winter evening, shortly after I had been elected governor, when the wind was howling outside and I was enjoying the comforts of my room within, and wondering if any houseless wretches were out in that storm, to my great astonishment the servant ushered in a lady. It was something unusual; but I spoke to her as politely as I could and offered her a seat, when the light fell upon her features, and notwithstanding the sunken eye and hollow cheeks, to my consternation I recognized the face of Helen Linton.

To my relief, however, I found that she failed to recognize me. No; she would as soon have looked for a form from the tomb, as to have looked for me at that place.

She had come, she said, on a painful business. Her father had been a very wealthy man, and had left her a large property; but her husband had been very dissipate, and finding the family in want, in an unlucky moment had committed a forgery, for which he had been found guilty, and she had come to me to plead for his pardon. She told me all this amid sobs and tears, and concluded by prostrating herself at my feet.

I begged her to rise and be seated, and then I inquired her father's name. She said it was John Linton. I then asked her if she remembered the old widow and her son who once lived in the cabin on the forest road near Linton Hall.

She replied with some surprise, that she did.

I stood up.

"That boy," said I, "wretched, homeless outcast that he once was, now stands before you.

She turned ashen white, arose and staggered toward the door I told her to stop—I had something to say to her.

"Let me go," said she; "I showed no mercy to you and expect none now."

Then my heart was touched.

"Mrs. St. John, I will pardon your husband, but on one condition only."

She eagerly asked me to name it.

"It is this" said I; "that you will teach your children the folly and the evil consequences of pride; that you will guard them against its wickedness and nefarious influences through life, and that your husband will likewise reform and lead a different life.

She readily assented to my requirements, and in a few moments more she was on her way home, bearing the joyful tidings to her children.

The lesson that I taught her I hope may be a benefit to them through life.

She and her husband moved to a distant city, where he reformed, and became a useful and respectable citizen, and often speaks of me, I understand, with profound gratitude.

I am a bachelor yet, and there is but one woman to whose memory I ever drop a tear.

And that is to the memory of my mother.

She Got Them.

Mr. and Mrs Jones were starting for church. "Wait, dear," said the lady, I've forgotten something; won't you go up and get my goats off the bureau?" "Your goats," replied Jones; "what new-fangled thing's that?" "I'll show you,' remarked the wife, and she sailed upstairs and down again with a pair of kids on her hands. "There they are," said she. "Why, I call those things kids," said the surprised husband. "Oh, do you?" snapped the wife. "Well, so did I once, but they are so old now, I'm ashamed to call them anything but goats." Then they went on to church. The next day Jones' wife had a half-dozen pairs of new gloves in a hand some lacquered box of the latest design.

The Great Inter Oshun Syclopian Sircus was in town and they had a Minagery and the tiger got loose and the people all over town got scart and there was dead loodes of fun and climbing out of the way. Old man mcEvans he heard of it but he wasn't scart becaws he lives in the other end of town and he didn't think no tiger would go out there. He was sleeping on his galry and Mira was reeding a book up stairs when Jim Hinkle & Sam Richie saw them and they put up a Job on the old man They coaxt his big yeller dog round to the back of the house with a piece of pie—and they had black paint in a bucket and they painted stripes on the dog and Sam wanted to call it a zebra but Jim said they'd pretend it was a tiger. When they'd got it all ready they throo the piece of pie on the old mans nee when he was sleeping on the galry and the pie woke him up and he saw the yeller dog that he thot was a tiger coming for him and he yelled poleece and he thot his end was come and Mira she skreemed fire and Jim went to run away and he was shouting Mad Tiger and he fell down and Sam triped over him and spilt the paint on his head and the naybors come out with shot guns and blazed away at the tiger and shot a street car the first blaze and a man kiled the tiger, not the sure enough tiger, you no, but the yeller dog with a fence rale on the hed: and when they found that it was no tiger but McEvanses dog you shood have seen poor old McEvans pranze around and he just made the air bloo. It beet the sircus but it was a shame for the dog is dead and Mira sez her harts broke and the old man split his close and hes now laying for them boys and he says when he catches them he'll put enuff stripes on them to make a tiger ashamed of himself.

Bill Arp's Idea of the Change System in Politics.

Bill Arp in Atlanta Constitution.

One time there was an old tramp going around perusing the country and fooling the people out of a living, and one day he got the odor of a good dinner as he neared a farm house, and so he pretended he was a clock-tinker, and the unsuspecting old farmer got him to work on his clock for his dinner. Well, he got his dinner first, and then told the old man to stand up in front of the clock and watch the swing of the pendulum, and every time it went backwards and forwards to keep time with his hand and say: "Here she goes and there she goes," while he (the tramp) would stand back at the door and get the beat of it by his ear, and so tell whether it was going too fast or too slow. So the old man stood up and began his little song: "Here she goes and there she goes," and he kept it up about ten minutes, and on looking around, he found the tramp was gone. These office-seekers scheme and plot and toot first one horn and then another and bob up strenely like a kildee on a clod of dirt until they get an office, and about the time they get fixed in it good, and have their feet on the banisters, and a pipe in their mouth, a change has to be made and over they go. Here she goes and there she goes

"I say, ma, here's a riddle, made it myself. What's the difference between the wax-figger of a lady, and pa not letting me go to the circus last week?" "Cause one's a sham dame and t'other's a d a—Ow! ow! ow! ow!! that hurts. I tell you, can't you take a feller o' your size?"

The above depicts a very pleasant feature of bicycling as a sport. The club have ridden from their headquarters in the city, to a suburban village some twenty miles away, where they await the arrival of the racing members who were to start just thirty minutes later.

Five minutes more and the two foremost of the racing men—Fri, on his "Harvard," and Yonson on his "Yale," appear in sight. The pace is tremendous: the men are neck and neck, and Dodges, the captain of the club, whom you observe is leaning on his "Shadow" light roadster, in the foreground, declares the race a tie.

"Where are the other men?" he asks.

"Oh, behind, somewhere," is the reply.

"Are there any 'Harvard's' or 'Yale's' or 'Shadow's' among them?"

"Not one."

"Ah! that accounts for it," says the captain.

American bicyclers as a body will realize the force of the captain's last remark, but the thousands of new riders which the coming year will produce, should each one of them realize that the only true economy in choosing a bicycle is to be content with nothing less than the very best that money will procure. Each should find out all he can about bicycles before making his choice, and in order to assist enquirers in their search for information, we will, on receipt of a a three-cent stamp, send to any address, a copy of our large illustrated catalogue by return mail.
