From 115 Lbs. to 161 Lbs.
To the Cuticura Remedies I Owe My Health, My Happiness, and My Life.
A day never passes that I do not think and speak kindly of the Cuticura Remedies. Seven years ago I was all of a dozen lumps formed on my neck ranging in size from a cherry stone to an orange. The large ones were frightful to look at, and painful to bear; people turned aside when they saw me, in disgust, and I was ashamed to be on the street or in society. Physicians and their treatment and all medicines failed to do any good. In a moment of despair I tried the CUTICURA REMEDIES—Cuticura, the great skin cure, and Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, internally; the small lumps (as I call them) gradually disappeared, and the large ones broke, in about two weeks, discharging large quantities of matter, leaving two slight scars in my neck to-day to tell the story of my suffering. My weight then was one hundred and fifteen sickly pounds; it is now one hundred and sixty-one solid, healthy pounds, and my height is only five feet five inches. In my travels I praised the Cuticura Remedies, North, South, East and West. To Cuticura Remedies I owe My Health, My Happiness and My Life. A prominent New York Druggist asked me the other day, "Do you still use the Cuticura Remedies? you look to be in perfect health." My reply was, "I do, and shall always. I have never know what sickness is since I commenced using the Cuticura Remedies." Sometimes I am laughed at by praising them to people not acquainted with their merits, but sooner or later they will come to their senses and believe the same as those that use them, as dozens have whom I have told. May the time come when there shall be a large Cuticura Supply House in every city in the world, for the benefit of humanity, where the Cuticura Remedies shall be sold only, so that there will be rarely a need of ever entering a drug store.

Sneezing Catarrh.
The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodical from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANDFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.
But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing effected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of Sanford's Radical Cure manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, and safe.
SANDFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, and one box of CATHARRAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER; wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Taught by a Sensible and "Blessed Old Maid."

"There is no other way, Clara. I am the only relative she has left, and we must invite her here for the winter, anyhow. She and John stayed with father and mother while I was roaming here and there. Now they are all gone, Martha's alone, and it's no more than right for me to look out for her awhile. I'll write immediately."

"Yes, Nathan; that is right I know, but I can't help dreading it. I always had a horror of 'old maids;' " and Mrs. Tracy looked nervously around the plain kitchen of the little farm-house.

"You needn't be afraid of Martha; she isn't very old, and I venture to say, none of the prying, disagreeable old maids we read of."

In spite of his reassuring words, Mrs. Tracy dreaded the arrival of her husband's maiden sister, who he had not seen since the day he left his New England home to try his fortune in the new West.

But, as Clara soon discovered, there was nothing to fear from the quiet, sad-faced woman who came to them, whose life had been so full of devotion to others, and noble self-sacrifice, that there had been no time for growing hard and bitter because some of life's sweetest blessings had been denied her.

The children, Bert and Mabel and baby Ray, with the unerring instinct of childhood, felt the depth of her quiet kindliness, and took her at once into their loving little hearts.

Miss Tracy, although wholly unobtrusive, was naturally very observant. This, together with the interest she felt in her brother's family led her, before she had been many weeks an inmate of his house, to make a discovery.

Nathan, in his desire to get on in the world, was missing much that would have made life pleasant. In thinking so constantly of the future, he was losing all the sweetness of the present. That this was affecting the whole family was only too apparent. It was seen in Clara's anxious, weary face, and repeated in a less degree upon the countenances of their children.

There seemed to be no rest for any of them. No relaxation in the struggle for existence. Nothing to vary the wearing monotony of every-day labor, which, like some huge Juggernaut, was crushing beneath its wheels all that might have made life sweet and pleasant.

Martha shrank from interfering with the habits of her brother's family; but, looking ahead, she saw for them nothing but sorrow and disappointment, and felt that something must be done to save them.

Watching for an opportunity to talk alone with Nathan, she gladly accepted his invitation one morning to ride with him to town.

They were rolling rapidly over the level prairie road, when Martha broke the silence.

"It is truly exhilarating to ride in this bracing air, over these fine roads, especially with so nice a 'rig,' as you call it. The buggy is easy and the horses really fine animals. You must be doing well now, Nathan."

"I suppose I am, Martha; but it has been a hard pull, with losing crops, sickness, etc. We're in debt yet, but with hard work and economy I guess we can make it up in another year."

"Then what will come next?"

"I intend to have a nice large barn, and some choice cattle; then I shall build a good house and prepare to take comfort. There isn't a better farm than mine for miles around, and I must make the best improvements possible. Then, some day, we'll have the best of everything."

"But who will share it all with you?"

"Why, my family, of course!" opening his eyes wide with astonishment.

"All except Clara, you mean," solemnly.

"Why, Martha, how you talk. It is for her I'm working—who else, I'd like to know?"

"Now, Nathan, just take a few plain words from your sister, who means only kindness. I've had experience, and, in my judgment, Clara hasn't vitality enough to take her through another year of hard work. I have your interests at heart, and would not needlessly arouse your fears; but I am convinced that your wife is wearing out. She must rest from this constant labor, or your children will soon be motherless."

"Don't, Martha, talk in that way! Clara is as well as usual. She was always slender and delicate. I'd gladly have kept her in ease, but she knew she married a poor man, and was willing to work up." He was a little annoyed.

"I doubt not you have been kind and good to her, and now that she has helped 'work up' so far, I know you will be glad to give her a vacation. You do not realize what it is to care for three little children and do all the work that must be done in a farm-house. She might have been slender when a girl, but not careworn. To-night, if you will look at one of her old pictures, you will be convinced I am right."

"Suppose I am; what then?"

"How much would it cost to board — back to Ohio for the winter? I can keep house."

"Simply out of the question. She wouldn't go anyhow, Martha."

"I thought you didn't know it; but she is as homesick as a child to see her father and mother. She hasn't said so, she never complains, but an unutterable longing fills her eyes, and quick tears when she speaks of them. Sure of your consent and my willingness to keep house for her, she would go gladly."

"And you think it would do her good?"

"Undoubtedly, and it would be the cheapest medicine you could give her, and the surest. Think it over a day or so, Nathan."

That evening Martha was not surprised to see a startled, anxious look on her brother's face, as he closely regarded his wife, whenever he thought himself unobserved. Husbands are often the blindest of all persons in regard to their wives, but Nathan was convinced.

That night when they were alone, he suddenly exclaimed:

"Clara, how would you like to visit your mother this fall?"

She looked at him a moment in silence, while a wave of crimson swept over her pale face. Then, turning away, she said, brokenly:

"Don't talk about it, Nat; I know we can't afford it, and I'd rather not speak of it."

"But we can afford it, and Martha is willing to keep house for me. Now do you want to go, dear?"

There was an unconscious tone of reproach in his voice, and a look of pain in his face which she could not understand.

"O, Nathan!" she sobbed, with her face hidden on his shoulder, "don't imagine that I love you any the less, or am tired of our little home; but I do want to go. Just now there is nothing in the world I want so much as to see father and mother."

"Well, then, you shall go, little wife. Don't cry so; I didn't know you cared so much; but that settles it, you shall go."

After Mrs. Tracy and the baby were gone, Martha looked around the unornamented rooms and resolved that there should be something new, something bright and pretty, to welcome back the home-keeper. The "front room" had never been furnished, but after considering her resources, Martha thought she could manage it, if she could persuade Nathan into buying a carpet.

"A carpet? why Martha!" he exclaimed at her proposal, too astonished to say more.

"What was Clara's old home like? You don't want her to notice too sharp a contrast on her return," said the sister, quietly.

"I may get a carpet," thoughtfully; "but so many other things would have to follow."

"Nat, when father and mother died, we were going to divide things, but you had no home then, and while John and I stayed, everything remained the same. When I came here, I sold or packed everything, and there is a big box for you, which is on the way out here. Besides bedding and clothing, there are pictures, vases, curtains, a table-spread and some of mother's nice rugs. They will help furnish the room. I guess you can afford to buy a cane-seat rocker and two chairs, and we'll make the rest."

"I'd like to know how."

There are two bottomless chairs in the granary; I will ebonize the frames, cushion seat and back, and with strips of embroidery and heavy fringe they will be handsome. That old rocker which is forever coming to pieces can be mended and treated likewise, minus the rockers, and you'll have an easy-chair. A pine table which you can make, stained and varnished, and covered with the spread, will do nicely."

"Well, it sounds practicable, I'll help all I can."

"There will be ottomans to make, a mantle to put up, and a cornice for the curtains. It will take our spare time for all winter, but how pleased Clara will be."

"I intend to have everything nice for her some day."

"Yes, Nat; but a woman must have something to live on in the meantime. There's a love of the beautiful in every woman's heart, and it must be satisfied. If surrounded by grand scenery the mind can feed on that; but here, in this level, monotonous country, I believe the home should be very bright and attractive."

"There may be some truth in that, but I never thought of that before," replied Nathan.

"It is not common for a man to think about the home as a woman does, for he mingles with the world, while most of her hours are spent inside the four walls. Clara had no time to fix up anything; that baby was a sight of trouble; but if you and the children help, we can do wonders."

And they did. When Clara came home, four months later, she scarcely knew the place.

"Come and look at your wife," whispered Martha, when Nathan had finished the chores and was ready for a happy evening.

There she was in the pretty room, chatting with the children. Joy and gladness shone through her face, which had lost its sharpness and pallor, and there was an elasticity in her movements which recalled her girlhood.

"She looks ten years younger, Martha; and if I can help it she shall never work so again. You've taught me a lesson I'll not forget. We'll take all the comfort we can now if we never get a big house."

"Martha has made this so pretty that we shan't want another," exclaimed Clara, hearing his last remark as they entered the room. "I'm so thankful to you all for this pleasant home-coming."

"Martha deserves the thanks, for she planned it all," said Nathan, catching up the baby.

"You are a jewel, Martha; and to think that I was afraid of you and dreaded to have you come!"

"Was that because you knew I was an 'old maid?' " asked Martha, laughing.

"Yes, that was just it. I didn't know, you see, that you were such a 'blessed old maid.' "—Hearthstone.

The Camel Express.

Of all varieties of Indian letter carriers, clothed or unclothed, none are so picturesque, says Miss Gordon Cummings, as the camel express messengers. The men wear a serviceable red uniform and large green turban, embroidered with gold thread. From their girdle hangs a curved sabre in a red sheath. The camels are adorned with trappings of gay cloth and tassels, ornamented with blue beads and gowrie shells and small brass bells round the neck to give notice of their swift approach. It is said that their rough and rapid trotting, sometimes at the rate of eighty miles a day, is so trying to the riders as to shorten their days. Two heavy mail bags hang to right and left on each side of the camel, and the saddle is so arranged that a passenger can take a seat behind the postman.—Exchange.

"TO BE SHOT DEAD AT SIX."

The Fate of a French War Correspondent in the East—A Severe Example of Military Discipline in Tonquin.

A terrible example has been made in Tonquin. One of the special correspondents attached to the expedition now in the field was Camille Farcy, well known as a brilliant writer. He had long been connected with La France, one of the leading journals. The army which he was detailed to accompany was that of General Forgemol. The officer is a martinet, and entertains the most rigid ideas regarding discipline. Before the expeditionary force landed he, in conjunction with General Vincendon, concocted the following pledge, which all the journalists were obliged to sign:

"I, ——, promise upon my honor to transmit no information whatever, either by telegraph or mail, or by any other means, without first having submitted my manuscript to the officer commanding such expedition, or to such officer or officers as he may delegate that power to. I further agree that any failure to keep this pledge will expose me to the rigors of martial law.

This document was signed by all the correspondents attached to the expedition. When Farcy's turn came, he took the pen, but it was with evident reluctance that he signed. When he had done so he said to Forgemol:

"General, I sign this document only because I am forced to do so; because, without doing so, I could not fulfill my duty as a correspondent; because, without doing so, I could not accompany the expedition. But I warn you, sir, that I shall speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, touching such matters as may come under my observation." And with a defiant glance at the General, Camille withdrew.

The old General gnawed his grizzled mustache to conceal his wrath. He did what, perhaps, most men would have done—he set a spy to dog the footsteps of Farcy.

The expedient was successful. Two evenings after the spy detected the journalist, under a disguise, quitting the camp. He followed and saw him deposit a large envelop in one of the minor postoffices on the frontier. He was at once arrested and conducted to Forgemol's headquarters.

"Aha!" said the General, "at it already, my fine fellow? Well, what have we here?" and he seized and broke open the envelope. "Hum—addressed to La France. Evidently some correspondence which you were sending without my knowledge."

"Yes, General," said Farcy, calmly.

"Let us see what it is," said Forgemol, as he began to peruse the letter.

"General," said Farcy, coldly, "permit to remind you that you are violating p..ate correspondence."

"Private correspondence? Bah!" retorted Forgemol. "Very private, indeed! All Paris would know it in another day," and he resumed his reading.

There were some severe strictures in the letter upon the conduct of the compaign. Forgemol's reading was interrupted by oaths and when he finished he was purple with rage.

"So," said he, grimly, "you consider yourself competent to judge of the operations of a General in the field, do you? Well, sir, you shall have a taste of martial law to add to your knowledge of military affairs."

Farcy disdained to defend himself. A court-martial was immediately convened. Its proceedings were summary—its sentence short: "Camille Farcy is condemned to be shot at six in the morning."

It was then midnight. The doomed man was placed in charge of a Lieutenant and a squad of soldiers, put upon a special train, and was borne swiftly into the capital city, where the execution was to take place.

At half-past five o'clock the train dashed into the city. It passed under the walls of the palace where Albert Grevy, the Governor General, lives in state. The windows were brightly lighted, and the strains of a waltz were borne to the ears of the prisoner. The Governor was giving a ball.

"You have half an hour to prepare for death," said the Lieutenant, compassionately. "Would you like to have me send for a priest?"

"I suppose," said Farcy, "you will grant my last request?"

"Yes."

"Then let me go to the ball. I would like to have a waltz before I die."

The officer bowed, and repaired to M. Grevy's palace.

"His request shall be granted," said the President's brother. "Who could refuse a dying man's request? Bring him here, he shall dance with my daughter."

And it was done. The last moments of his life were spent on a ball-room floor.

At six o'clock the officer spoke: "The file is waiting," said he.

"Let us go," said Farcy. He saluted the dancers and withdrew. When he reached the ground where the file was waiting him, he refused to allow his eyes bandaged, and demanded permission to give the word of command.

"May all journalists do as I have done," said he; "it is their duty." Then, folding his arms, he cried:

"Fire!"

The crash of the muskets rang out on the morning air. Camille Farcy fell dead, pierced with balls.

The vengeance of General Formegol was accomplished.—Paris Figaro.

Literary Notes.

Edwin De Leon, author of "The Khedive's Egypt," contributes to the November Harper's a thrilling chapter of inner Egyptian history called "The Tragedy of the Mouffetich, an episode of Khedive Ismail's reign."

Woods Pasha, Admiral of the Turkish Navy and one of the best living authorities on everything relating to naval affairs, has written an article for the November number of the Forum on "Recent Naval Progress," in which he makes valuable suggestions as to the construction of our new war ships.

A popular treatise on the application of electricity is just published by Messrs. Cassell & Company, under the title of "Electricity in the Service of Man." The work is translated, with copious additions from the German of Dr. Alfred Ritter von Urbanitzky, by Dr. R. Wormell, with an introduction by Prof. John Perry, and contains upwards of 850 illustrations.

The co-operative activities of our country will find some helpful points in the article which appears in the November Harper's on "Co operation among English Working-men," by an able authority—A. H. D. Ackland. The progress of that movement from its start, forty years ago, furnishes many lessons of value for us, and the opportunity is presented to study the detailed operations of a co-operative society in stores, houses, factories, and banks with remarkable instances of its success.

Among the illustrations for "The Life of Lincoln," in the Century for November, will be a fine portrait of Sarah Bush Lincoln (stepmother of Abraham Lincoln) at the age of seventy-six. This portrait explains the most important influence of the President's early life. It will be remembered that Mrs. Lincoln said of Abraham: "I can say—what scarcely one mother in a thousand can say—Abe never gave me a cross word or look, and never refused in fact or appearance to do anything I asked him. His mind and mine—what little I had—seemed to run together. * * * * I had a son, John, who was raised with Abe. Both were good boys, but I must say, both now being dead, that Abe was the best boy I ever saw or expect to see."

The biography of "Schuyler Colfax," which Mr. O. J. Hollister has written, is an excellent example of the career of a "self-made man." Born in poverty, Colfax raised himself by his own unaided efforts to the second place in the nation, and came near to getting the Presidential nomination in 1872; but many of the political issues of that time are now moribund, if not actually dead, and the work does not now possess the interest it would have had had it been published some years ago. Mr. Hollister has had access to all the letters and papers left by Mr. Colfax, and has presented many valuable facts—notably, in connection with the Credit Mobilier affair, in which he acquits Colfax of all blame. The volume is a large one of over five huudred pages, and contains a portrait of Schuyler Colfax in the prime of his life, and another of Colfax and his mother in 1826. Published by Funk & Wagnalls, New York; for sale by the booksellers; price, $2.50.

Maria Henrietta, Queen of the Belgians, recieved a letter from the unfortunate ex-Empress Carlotta a few days ago, asking her to come and see her as soon as possible. The Queen had her ponies hitched to the caleche which she always drives herself, and set out at a gallop. Overtaken by a storm her Majesty took refuge in a barrack. Being mess hour the officers set about improvising the best dinner they could for their august visitor, But the Queen refused, saying: "A newly-arrived recruit should be content with the ordinary fare." And she sat down at the common table and ate a plate of cabbage soup and "picked" a pigs foot.

GIOVANNI DUPRE.

The story of a Florentine Sculptor, by Henry Simmons Frieze, Professor in the University of Michigan. London: Sampson Low, Marston, Searle, and Rivington. New York: Scribner and Welford.

"The story is told in simple language; the author has with great skill and delicacy brought out the leading traits of Dupre's career."—London Illustrated News, August 1886.

"We have rarely read a more delightful book upon the life and alms of an artist than 'Giovanni Dupre,' a biography which has just appeared from the pen of Mr. Henry Simmons Frieze. The book has all the fascination of a well told story, so that from the beginning to the end readers will follow the fortunes of the great Florentine Sculptor with unwavering interest."—(London) Publishers' Circular, July 14, 1886.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Texas, by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; every body said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial bottle of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Eberbach & Son's.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

Weddings are numerous, all over the county.

F. F. Taylor and wife of Dexter, have gone to Luther, Mich., to reside.

Miss Ida Crittenden, of Milan, was married Oct. 28th to S. B. Richmond, of Portland.

Willie Benton of Dexter township had an arm fractured recently by a fall from a wagon.

The Saline Good Templars will have a public installation of officers next Friday evening.

Alex. Gordon, of Saline, has gone to Urbana, Ill., to live with his daughter, Mrs. Ijams.

The depots of the Wabash and the T. & A. A. R. R's at Milan are to be made one. That's right.

The next meeting of the South-western Farmer's Club will be at L. M. Baldwin's next Friday.

The Milan Leader says that Crozier is still in the field. Thought so. Hadn't seen him in town lately.

James Mills died in Traverse City, Oct. 2, 1886. He came to Dexter in 1826, and went to Traverse in 1861.—Leader.

The Ann Arbor Argus has set itself up in the conundrum business, but propounds riddles no one can answer.—Saline Observer.

The lecture of Rev. Dr. Ramsay, at the M. E. Church, Dexter, next Friday evening, will be a rare good thing, and he should be given a big house.

Milo Clark, living four miles southeast of town, has purchased a valuable Percheron mare for breeding purposes, of Senator Palmer.—Saline Observer.

The Saline manufacturing company have had orders for repairing 39 windmills, and the erection of seven new mills, since the recent wind-storm.—Observer.

Prof. McInnis and wife, we are sorry to state, are both dangerously ill and it is feared cannot recover. The Professor's chair in the high school is at present being filled by Prof. Waller.—Dexter Leader.

Chas. Weisinger and W. A. Todd, of Adrian, passed through town, Sunday on their bicycles. They were out on a distance race, and made 50 miles in 3 hours 55 minutes, and 100 miles in 8 hours 55 minutes.—Saline Observer.

The scholars and teacher of district No. 8, Lima, known as Porter district, completed a quilt recently which was sold at an entertainment, the proceeds to be used to purchase a new backboard. That district must be awfully hard up.

Mr. Chilson Phillips recently drove into town with his big delivery wagon and proceeded up Main street to the residence of Mrs. Abbie Phillips, where he unloaded a generous supply of flour, meat, apples and potatoes.—Milan Leader.

Last Monday evening, soon after Mr. Crozier commenced his address, Barney Keelan, being intoxicated, in making his way out of the hall, from the gallery, stumbled against a second story window with such force as to break the glass and fall through to the pavement below, a distance of about twelve feet, sustaining some severe bruises but no broken bones nor serious damage.—Chelsea Herald.

Our citizens and residents along the line of the T. A. A. & N. M. Ry between here and Ann Arbor are justly indignant at the manner in which that company have used us by putting a train on their road that is of no earthly use to us. Ann Arbor merchants are also raising a howl because it is now impossible to get to their town and back again the same day, by rail, therefore cutting off a deal of trade.—South Lyon Picket.

The question of how best to utilize the water power at East Manchester has been up for discussion by our citizens for some time without reaching a final solution. A resident suggests that it would be a good point for a cheese factory and thinks that the farmers in this vicinity could organize a company and engage in the business to their mutual benefit. He thinks that more money could be realized from land for pasture than for wheat.—Enterprise.

Here is a late recipe for making a good town: Grit, push, snap, vim, energy, colleges, churches, schools, morality, enterprise, harmony, cordiality, advertising, cheap property, healthy location and good country tributary. Talk about and speak well of it. Help to improve it. Advertise in and read the the town papers. Patronize its merchants. Faith, exhibited by good works. Honest competition in business. Help all public enterprises. Elect good men to office. Speak well of its public spirited, enterprising citizens, and be one of them yourself. Remember that every dollar invested in permanent improvements is that much on interest. Always cheer on the men who go in for improvements. Your portion of the cost will be nothing only what is just.—Fenton Independent.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The President's Proclamation Says it Will be Nov. 25.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The following is President Cleveland's proclamation designating Thursday Nov. 25, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer:

A PROCLAMATION.

By the President of the United States:

It has long been the custom of the people of the United States on a day in each year especially set apart for that purpose by their chief executive, to acknowledge the goodness and mercy of God and to invoke His continued care and protection.

In observance of such custom, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 25th day of November, instant, to be observed and kept as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

On that day let all our people forget their accustomed employment and assemble in their usual places of worship to give thanks to the ruler of the universe for our continued enjoyment of the blessings of a free government, for a renewal of business prosperity throughout our land, for the return which has rewarded the labor of those who till the soil and for our progress as a people in all that makes a nation great.

And while we contemplate the infinite power of God in earthquake, flood and storm let the grateful hearts of those who have been sheltered from harm through his mercy be turned in sympathy and kindness toward those who have suffered through His visitations.

Let us also in the midst of our thanksgiving remember the poor and needy with cheerful gifts and alms so that our service may, by deeds of charity, be made acceptable in the sight of the Lord.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this 1st day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eleventh.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

[L. S.] By the President.

T. F. BAYARD, Secretary of State.

'RAH FOR ALLEN!

Gallant Capt. Allen has made the grandest campaign and run ever made either in this county or district. His run two years ago was a big one, but this beats it by a long distance. In this county he cuts the democratic majority from 1200 down to 500; Monroe's democracy is reduced from 800 to 700; Lenawee is raisad from 200 to 500 republican, and Hillsdale caps the climax by jumping from 1200 to 1600 for Allen. This elects him to congress by about 900 plurality. Everywhere he ran ahead of his ticket and ahead of his figures of two years ago. This shows in a peculiarly distinguished manner how it pays to stand up straight and honest. The people like a man who does not sacrifice principle for votes, and who is the same man away from home that he is in his own town. 'Rah for Allen!

THE STATE.

At this writing the returns from the State are far from complete, but enough is known to indicate the election of the complete Republican State ticket by majorities ranging from 5,000 to 10,000.

The State legislature is certainly and safely Republican in both branches, thus securing a Republican successor to Omar D. Conger in the United States Senate.

Of the eleven Congressmen from this State the Republicans have undoubtedly gained two, making the delegation stand seven Republicans to four Democrats, instead of six Democrats and five Republicans, as in the last House of Representatives.

Certainly the G. O. P. is still with us. It has not vanished at the dictation of either the third party or the Democracy. It has had a hard fight, and has come out on top, though in localities it has not been able to do as well as could be desired.

THE ELECTION.

Special to THE COURIER.

DETROIT, Nov. 3, 1886.

Ten thousand plurality on State ticket. Seven Congressmen elected. Twenty-five majority joint ballot in the Legislature.

W. R. BATES,
Secretary State Republican Committee.

The above telegram received this afternoon, as we go to press, is the latest authentic information about the result of yesterday's elections. They show a brilliant campaign and decided Republican gains everywhere. The U. S. Senate is safe. The Grand Old Party will now march on to the White House.

THE FIGURES.

The holding of an election one day, and the giving of complete returns the next, by a weekly paper, is something of an effort for a weekly paper, but we give below complete returns from this county. They may not be absolutely correct, but they will be changed but very little by the official returns. The full vote is given wherever possible, and majorities in other instances.

The first mentioned in each is the republican candidate, then follows democrat and prohibition.

Here the figures are, study them up to your heart's content:

The figures upon commissioners and coroners will be given next week in full.

The prohibition vote has fallen off in the county fully 200.

Mr. Allmendinger in this representative district, though defeated, made a grand run. Starting in against a democratic majority of over 400; with a popular one-armed old soldier as an opponent; with a thoroughly organized opposition having money at its back and plenty of henchmen at its beck; with everything, he is only beaten in the district by about 75 votes. It was such a run as he should feel proud of, even though defeated.

THE RESULT.

The result of the election last Tuesday in this county, while not perhaps exceedingly gratifying to republicans, is far from discouraging or disheartening. Mr. Yaple, for governor, for whom there was made a desperate effort, carried the county by less majority than Begole did two years ago, and the democratic majority has been nowhere increased. This, too, in the face of one of the most vigorous, determined and fierce campaigns ever waged by a democratic committee. The county democratic committee never has been more alive or more pushing than this year, and not a stone has been left unturned, anywhere, to bring out the full vote and secure democratic slips on republican tickets. While upon the other hand, the republican committee, with no funds to work with, or successful office holders to assess, have relied almost wholly upon the sound judgment of the people, uninfluenced by such arguments, to return their verdict. The democratic ticket is elected, to be sure, but by reduced majorities. Capt. Allen, for congress, goes out of the county only 528 votes behind, against 710 votes behind two years ago.

The great third party has not held its own. In an "off year," with all the democratic aid possible, its vote will not reach that of two years ago.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Don. Dickinson's decapitated congressmen have been heard from.

The defeat of Robinson in the 1st district is no credit to the district.

Washtenaw county can be redeemed by continual, presistent, and energetic work.

The democrats furnished the money but the prohibitionists couldn't furnish the votes.

Most all of the people, regardless of party, look jolly over Capt. Allen's election, anyway.

The $100 per month candidate didn't take well with the public, some way. Read out, as it were.

The "free trade" education of the 1st and 6th wards told at the polls on Allen and Luce, Tuesday.

If the German towns had not stood by Salsbury so well he would have been snowed under even worse than ever.

If the democratic party feels proud of the exchange they have made in the first district, replacing Maybury with Chipman, they are welcome to it.

"I'll be blamed if the democrats will furnish any more funds for the prohibition side-show," said one of the prominent democrats to ye local this a. m. "The investment has been poor."

Now if our temperance friends will only go back again to the first principle, organize non-partisan, W. C. T. U. societies, red and blue ribbon clubs, etc., they will be able to accomplish something for temperance perhaps. That is, work for temperance instead of the offices.

The following is a list of the congressmen elected in this state Tcesday:

1st—J. Logan Chipman, D.
2d—Edward P. Allen, R.
3d—James O'Donnell, R.
4th—Julius C. Burroughs, R.
5th—Melbourne H. Ford, D.
6th—Mark S. Brewer, R.
7th—Justin R. Whiting, Greenback.
8th—Timothy E. Tarsney, D.
9th—Byron M. Cutcheon, R.
10th—Spencer O. Fisher, D.
11th—Seth C. Moffatt, R.

The latest telegrams tell us that Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York (probably) Wisconsin, Nebraska, Minnesota, California, Kansas, Dakota, Utah and Wyoming have all elected republican officers, while the democrats carry New Jersey and the solid south, as usual. Speaker Carlisle has probably been defeated for re-election. So has Frank Hurd. In New York City Abram Hewitt, democrat, is elected mayor by a small majority. There has been a gain of about 30 republican congressmen, and one or two United States senators.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

About the Citizen's League.

MR. EDITOR:—The report of the citizen's league in your last issue says, "It is greatly to be regretted that our citizens generally take so little interest in the affairs of the league, seeming to regard it as an organization with some sinister political purpose."

If this is true perhaps some other sentences in the report throw light on the reason of such "regard."

Referring to spring elections the report says "various members of the (executive) committee in their individual capacity, thought it advisable to call a meeting to consider the expediency of preparing a citizen's ticket" (the italics are ours).

While this is believed to be true it will be remembered that the "call"—to the surprise of many who had advised it—when it appeared was for a meeting to nominate a citizen's ticket! offering no opportunity "to consider the expediency." That this intent, of the call—which kept many from committing themselves to it—was not carried out at that meeting, was in no wise due to the projectors, but to greater sagacity and wisdom of citizens present.

The capture of the meetings by politicians—the enlarged comprehension of the term "citizen," acquired by objectors to the rights of free speech—the ludicrous phase, such as the challenged citizen presiding and the curious methods finally adopted to select a citizen's ticket; and in the language of the report, "the well-known result" (?) of it all, are too fresh to need recounting in detail here; but they furnish significant reflections for theoretical politicians and believers in the superiority of divided forces and third party movements.

These and the peculiar methods of detective work resorted to by members of the league may be reasons why citizens generally take so little interest in the affairs of the league. Though all will agree that the "League" was intended and should be as the report says, it "is by its very nature a non-partisan body having nothing to do with politics."

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

BERLIN, GERMANY, Oct. 11, '86.

The city of Berlin lies in 52° 30′ north latitude, and 13° 24′ east longitude, from Greenwich. There is a somewhat worn conundrum that runs: "Why is Berlin the gayest city in the world?" Answer: "Because it is always on the Spree!" That Berlin is the gayest city in the world may be disputed by some, but that the Spree is a very important factor in its prosperity and growth, by no one. I remarked to a German last year that I intended to spend a year in Berlin. He replied, "There is nothing attractive about the place. It is nothing but a mud-hole." As the impression that I had received from a previons short visit did not agree with his, I inquired if he had ever been there, and found that he had not. Berlin may have been a "mud-hole," and not many years ago, but to-day it is acknowledged to be as clean a city as there is in the world and one of the finest.

Berlin differs from most of the large cities of Europe in its youth, and hence is wanting in early historical interest. The name appears first in 1244. In 1500 the city had 12,000 inhabitants, but after the Thirty Years' War, one hundred and fifty years later, the number was 91,000; in 1860, 496,000; in 1880, 1,122,000; today 1,340,000, thus making it the third city in Europe, and increasing twice as rapidly as London or Paris.

With this increase in population have increased all the splendor and advantages, as well as all the miseries of large and wealthy cities. The number of births each week is over 900, and the number of deaths over 800. For the last five weeks the number of suicides was six, nine, eleven, five, and two respectively.

Rents are higher here than in London. The yearly rent of dwelling-rooms alone amounts to $44,000,000, and prices have nearly doubled in the last ten years, although two thousand buildings are erected every year. These new buildings are all large and of several stories. One sees very few private residences, and no small dwellings, even in the outskirts of the city. Where the city ends, it ends suddenly, with buildings six stories high.

The female population exceeds the male by 100,000. Sixty-five thousand families consisting of over 400,000 persons, have dwellings of only one room. One hundred and forty thousand live in the fifth story or higher; 40,000 in attics; and 120,000 in basements or cellars. In some dwellings the rooms are divided in four equal parts by chalk marks, and a family occupies each part.

The common price for board and room at a boarding house is from thirty to fifty dollars per month. Of course, one can go as high as he chooses, but to have the comforts and conveniences that one can get in a city like Detroit for thirty five dollars a month, one must pay one hundred.

I do not wonder that Bismarck wishes to put a high tax on tobacco, when the use of government income from taxes causes a city like Berlin to resort to the novel plan in force here of paying taxes on one's rent. That is, if I rent a dwelling, which means one or more rooms, for $500 dollars a year, not only the owner of the property must pay his tax, but I also must pay a tax on the $500 rent I pay. There are all sorts of taxes—income tax, trade tax, and all usual taxes such as school, municipal, etcetera. I am not sure yet that I shall not be obliged to pay a tax on the salary I receive when teaching at home in America. This taxing of rents forced 25,000 poor people to move every three months to avoid paying it.

Every one seems to rent here, and no one to own his own house, except, perhaps, the Emperor. For a time, every fall and spring, the streets are full of immense green wagons, as large as a house, and made especially for moving furniture and household possessions. One would think the whole city about to decamp. After ten or twelve days these green upholstered houses disappear as quickly as they came, and you wonder whither, and what the six or eight men who accompanied each are now doing for a living.

The receipts and expenses of the city are $15,000,000 annually. Of this sum $2,000,000 go to the establishments for the sick and poor, and hygiene; two and a quarter millions; three-fourths of a million (less than one-half of the whole cost) for police; a million and a quarter for municipal government; three fourths of a million for lighting, cleaning and sprinkling the city; city buildings, two and a half millions.

About 800 steady laborers and as many assistants are employed in street cleaning. The cleaning is done between 12 o'clock at night and 8 a. m, excepting some of three principal streets, where men are sweeping also during the day. Last winter the cost of cleaning away snow and ice was $25,000, every snow-fall costing $1200. The sewerage system of Berlin surpassed that of any other city in the world, and cost the sum of $20,000,000.

One thing in which Berlin is behind, is the electric light. There are comparative few stores lighted by it and only one street to any great extent, Leipziger Strasse. The Royal Theater is the only theater so lighted. Elevators are also noticeably rare, not only here, but all over Europe. The Germans give full credit to America's inventive genius, but think that they themselves come to the front in the application, and in the perfection of machinery. And in many kinds they do excel.

Owing to the excellent police organization one can find out anything he wishes to know regarding the population, from the most important matters down to the number of babies nourished on mother's milk, nurse's milk, animal milk, etc. In 1884 the direct taxes amounted to $5,000,000, and the indirect to $10,000,000. Regarding the wealth of the population, 192 persons had an income of less than $105; 145,000 a yearly income of from $105 to $150; 1750 had an income of $2700 or more; 450,000 had an income of $225 or less. They must live on black bread and potatoes. Clothing is cheap, and all dress well. I have seen fewer poorly clad men on the streets of Berlin than any city I was ever in. B.

A. A. Crozier, son of O. R. L. Crozier, of Ann Arbor, has been appointed assistant botanist in the department of agriculture at Washington. And so the President recognizes the great political element that helped him into the presidential chair—the prohibitionists.

Circuit Court Commisioner McKernan was busy last week selling off the property known as the Goodale property, the greater portion of which was bid in by Messrs. Chas. H. Richmond and John M. Wheeler, of this city, they having bought the the mill property on the south side of the river known as the "Ithica mill" for $6,100; the Delhi mills including saw mill, for $1,500; and the residence and lot for $2,354.10, all of the above subject to mortgages of upwards of $8,000. That consists of the principle part of ihe property.

One of our business men deserves a big credit mark. When approached the other day by a traveling agent for job printing he told him very politely but decidedly that so long as we had first class printing offices in the city he would not send work away from home. All of our merchants should follow this worthy example and give transient solicitors in this line a cold shoulder. The newspapers in the place do more for every merchant in the place than he will ever repay, and it is no more than right that they should in some measure return the compliment.—Coldwater Sun.

The road to political success does not lie over the prohibition causeway.

"Earthquake prices," is the latest appelation for extravagant charges.

A more beautiful election day never was enjoyed by residents of this locality.

The meeting of the democrats Monday evening, addressed by Hon. Wm. P. Wells, was not considered a perfect success every way.

Rev. Dr. Ramsay is announced for a lecture at the Central M. E. Church, Detroit, Tuesday evening next, on "Cromwell," the proceeds to go to Asbury Chapel.

Congressman elect E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, will speak before the Unity Club next Monday evening upon the "Reminiscences of the War." Everybody invited.

Too much politics last Monday night, so it was impossible to get a quorom together at the council meeting. It is understood that another attempt will be made Thursday evening.

The old sign "Argus office," which has rested over the third story windows of D. F. Schairer's store for the past thirty years, was taken down last Monday and removed to the new quarters.

Mr. Wm. Luderer, whose work in building up the violin department of the school of music has been so long and favorably known will give the first of a series of violin recitals in university hall, Friday eve., Nov. 5th, at 7:30 standard. A varied and pleasing programme will be presented. Persons desiring to attend can obtain tickets free of charge at the book stores on and after Thursday morning, also at the door on the evening fo the recital.

The newspaper scribes of this city are indebted to Thos. J. Keech, manager of the telephone exchange, and the very accommodating employes thereof, for so full a report of the election news as they are enabled to give this week. The gathering of the vote of this entire county, so fully in one evening, and the publication of the same the day following is a triumph of modern improvements and inventions that the public can hardly fully appreciate. But the newspaper men do.

The series of letters from Germany which we are publishing are written for the COURIER by a graduate of the university who is carrying on his studies in Berlin. Our correspondent while in college was known for his thorough and diligent work and these letters further evince his careful and intelligently-formed views of the German capital. They will prove of interest because one can get a correct idea of a foreign people only by a residence among them, but not by a hasty trip across the country as too many travelers go.

A young "kid" named Nordrok, who has been repeatedly cautioned about his carelessness around the cars on the T. & A. A. R. R. tracks, had an experience Monday that will probably last him some time. He attempted to jump on the front of the yard engine while the same was in motion, and losing his balance fell directly between the front wheels. He had sense enough to lay still and before the ash box of the engine reached him the engineer had stopped the engine. The youngster crawled out and run like a whitehead, and will probably not attempt the thing again very soon.

At a meeting of the Congregational society last Thursday evening in the parlors of the church, a farewell was said to Lorrin Mills, previous to his departure from the city for his western home. Dr. Ryder, on behalf of the congregation presented him with an elegant gold-headed cane, bearing this inscription: "Presented to Dea. Lorrin Mills by his friends of the 1st Congregational church, of Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct, 1886." President Angell also had a few words to say. Dea. Mills, who has lived here a full half-century, and been identified with that church from its beginning, has helped immeasurably in building it up, and is certainly richly deserving of this slight token of the esteem of its congregation. He is now 82 years of age, but vigorous and active as many men in their fifties. He left Saturday last for his new home in Manhattan, Kansas where he will live with a daughter. It is perhaps needless to say that he regretted to leave his old home for a new one.

The last three days in October were beautiful ones. In fact we have had a beautiful fall.

Board of Directors—Geo. Stauch, Adam Goetz and Guy Stevenson.

After the first of January the popular book firm of Geo. Osius & Co. will be out of trade, as they announce their intention of closing out their mammoth stock entirely at that time. Mr. Osius contemplates returning to Germany, while Mr. Wahr expects to try business in the far west.

The third lecture on the Baldwin Foundation will be delivered to the Hobart Guild on Sunday evening next in St. Andrew's Church by Bishop Coxe, at 7:30 o'clock. Subject, "Constantine and the conversion of the Empire." The fourth lecture will be given on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Subject, "Charlemagne and the Holy Roman Empire." The guild extends a cordial invitation to every one to attend.

On Monday last Jacob Stark an old gentleman of the 3d ward, started down the Huron river on a fishing excursion. Not returning that night his relatives became alarmed, organized search parties and have been looking for him ever since, but without avail. As Mr. Stark was subject to sinking spells of some sort, it is feared he may be drowned, and the river is now being dragged. He is a brother-in-law of Gottlob Luick, of the 1st ward.

David Henning is a wealthy man. He was a resident of Ann Arbor for many years, and laid the foundation for his wealth in this city. He owns quite a portion of the triangular block to the north of the new M. C. station. If he could find it in his heart to buy up all the remaining portion of the block to the river and present the same to the city for a park to be known as "Henning Park" he would be erecting for himself a monument that would hand his name down to posterity in a manner that would be very desirable. No man has ever had a better opportunity to do something handsome for his old home than is now presented to him, and that spot of earth could be made beautiful and grand.

The lecture of Gen. Lew Wallace last Friday evening, before the Students' Lecture Association, was listened to with marked attention. The General has not one of the most pleasing voices, but still ranks higher in that respect than the majority of big guns that come here to speak to us. His lecture was filled with knowledge concerning "Turkey and the Turks" that was new to his audience, and he drew a picture of that nation far different from the impression prevailing among the people of the United States; showing them in a far better light than has ever dawned upon the vision of Americans in general He does not believe that the end of the Turkish empire is near at hand, for the reason that the great nations of Europe can not agree as to its division.

The rain came down in torrents, almost equal to the famous waterfall of Lodore last Wednesday evening, notwithstanding which there was a good sized audience at the opera house to hear Gov. Alger, Capt. Allen and Mrs. Hazlett, and no one went away disappointed. Mrs. Hazlett was especially brilliant, and her quick and witty replies to the young men who went down to the meeting to "break her up," as they claimed, sent them away feeling ashamed of themselves for ever attempting anything so ungentlemanly. They caught a Tartar every time they opened their mouths. But few speakers possess the power and eloquence to hold an audience until after 11 o'clock p. m., yet Mrs. Hazlett did that, and the audience was as enthusiastic at the end as at the beginning.

Last Saturday morning the telephone brought the news to this office that a woman and child had fallen from the high trestle bridge of the Toledo & Ann Arbor R. R., over the Huron river, into the water below, and was probably drowned. Dr. Darling, who was at this office when the news came, hastened to the scene, and by prompt action restored both the woman and babe, who proved to be the wife and child of W. S. Gabrelski, a young gentleman clerking in Bach & Abel's store. Mrs. Gabrelski evidently did the deed with the intention of "ending her troubles," as she said, and no doubt now exists but she was suffering from mental aberration. She was married something over a year ago, and evidently quite happily married. There has been no domestic unhappiness to cause such feelings on her part, but since the birth of her babe she has suffered some of the troubles women frequently have, and the babe is very fretful and restive. The case is a very sad one, and the family all have the sympathy of the community in their afflictions and trials.

UNIVERSITY ITEMS.

A fraternity hop by the sophs on the tapis.

What has become of the lady gymnasts?

Gas wanted at the new dent. laboratory bench!

The Southern Code Club Court takes the Kentucky Law Journal.

The new books go into Cornell university at the rate of ten per day.

W. A. Whitslar, D. D. S., M. D. '85, is practicing at Youngstown, Ohio.

The Unity Club has issued its programme or announcement for the year.

Bronchitis knocked Dr. Chadbourne out of his senior senior quiz last Friday night.

The U. of M. supreme court is now organized and ready for business. Appeal your cases.

The law students want Librarian Vance's salary increased and the library opened longer hours.

There are 600 American students at the University of Berlin, which is the largest in the world.

Some good work was done at the polls Tuesday by enthusiastic republican boys. They worked for Allen principally.

The gym. is now in full blast, with as complete an outfit as any in the west—and still there is room for a few more.

The civil engineers graduated at the university are in great demand out west, and that course is one of the strangest in the university.

At the meeting of the Philosophical Society next Friday evening, in room 24, Prof. Walter will read a paper upon Lessings "Laöcoon.", F. P. Watson is the president of the Freshman dents., Miss M. J. Robinson vice president, W. S. Taylor secretary and H. N. Holmes treasurer.

Quite a number of students of both political parties went home to vote. There is nothing like exercising the rights of an American citizen.

We had the pleasure of examing some of the advance sheets of Dr. Stowell's new work on "The Teeth." The Dentists have something good in store for them.

"We saw George Yaple go over the fence: Good-bye, George Yaple good-bye. With 'no tariff on wool' tacked on to his pants: Good-bye, George Yaple, good-bye."

A proposition to have the study of the Hebrew language pursued in the university is being brought forward, and the Argonaut thinks that it ought to be introduced.

The wife of O. W. Ruggles, who was ill with dyptheria, at the time of the death of her husband, died this Wednesday, a. m. These deaths cause much sorrow in the medical class of which Mr. Ruggles was a member.

Last Thursday the University Glee Club was organized with sixteen members. R. G. Cole was chosen musical director and Geo. J. Waggoner librarian. It is hoped to make such progress that by next spring a concert tour of the principal cities of the state may be made.

During the year Profs. Walter, Morris, Burt, Payne, Dewey and Adams will read papers before the Philosophical Society, and a portion if not the entire number will be published as a continuation of those given to the public last year by Andrews & Witherby.

The rain kept the attendance down at the meeting of the Dramatic Club last Wednesday evening. This year the club proposes to give a couple of entertainments, and take systematically the study of dramatic art and expression, supplementing Prof. Demmon's Shakesperian course, and Prof. Trueblood's elocution.

O. W. Ruggles, of the medical department, class of '88, died last Friday morning at his home on Thompson st., of malignant diptheria. His wife, who has been very ill with the same disease, died yesterday. He was a manly student, and by his uprightness had such popularity that he was elected president of his class.

There is said to be a scheme to consolidate the Adelphi and Alpha Nu literary societies, each of which is composed of about sixty members, the object being to secure the Alpha Nu hall for the purpose of a drawing room. The consolidation, it is thought, instead of becoming one great, strong society, would become weak and die out.

Herbert W. Brown, son of Rev. F. T. Brown, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church in this city, and a graduate in 1880 of the literary department of the university, was married October 19th, in Chicago, to Miss Wilma M. Jacobs. Their home is in Mexico City, where he is doing missionary work.

FIELD DAY.

The Field Day exercises were attended by a good sized crowd upon the fair grounds last Saturday, and much interest manifested in the popular games and sports of that popular event. In the tug-of-war the sophomores failed to show up and the freshmen were awarded the honors of course.

Madame Mora's Comfort Hip.

GOLD fields are scarce, but those who write to Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine, will receive free, full information about work which they can do, and live at home, that will pay them from $5 to $25 per day. Some have earned over $50 in a day. Either sex, young or old. Capital not required. You are started free. Those who start at once are absolutely sure of using little fortunes. All is new.

BACH & ABEL'S COLUMN.

A week later will be ample time to consider where things are cheapest when the store is in order.

What you are thinking of now is where you shall go to see the new things. Are they what you want? Are they as cheap as they can be? You shall judge. We are sure of one thing; you will search the city in vain for such a collection to select from. Why do we say what you know already from former years?

It is difficult yet to make any careful statements about the new dress goods. The counters are full. They can be looked at. This we are sure of. Take the whole of them, bottom to top, from the poorest to the best, you will find the most carefully chosen collection here; as, of course, you will find the largest variety here, whatever quality you look for. We will venture a word about a few styles.

Hair line stripe suitings, all-wool, 42-inch, price 90c.

Silk and woolen mixture, in all colors, 38-inch., price, 60 to 65c.

All-wool suitings, checks, 42 to 44-inch, six different patterns, price $1.

Fancy cable suitings, 42-inch., in a variety of combinations, price $1 50 per yard.

Mohair spiral stripes, all colors, 42-inch, price, $1 per yard.

Colored Drap d'Alma's and cut Cashmeres, in ten colorings, prices 90c. and $1 per yard.

Tricots in fifteen colorings, prices, 35 to 50c. per yard.

French Tricots, five colorings, 54-in., to close $1.65, former price, $2 and $2.25 per yard. You who read at a distance may write for samples. A represents it very well indeed.

Black and colored Cashmeres, 42-in., 40c. per yard.

We should add a word or two more about our large line of fancy black goods. We know of no way to let you into a proper appreciation of our stuffs, but to tell you to come and examine them

We never had or saw such Gloves for 65c., five button length Kid Gloves, fair skins and perfect in fashion, color and make.

No matter where you buy your stripe Velvets and Plushes, it's good to get a peep at the newest styles. The right stripes are now on our counters. Two-thirds of the ladies think our one dollar stripe velvets are one-fifty until we tell them the price.

On the whole perhaps we have the pleasantest cloak department in the country. A generous floor with abundance of light; but what makes it pleasant beyond example is the large variety of cloaks and how we sell them. Will tell you all about a little later.

Blanket time, that is the time to remind you of blanket wisdom. It isn't eas so close on the heels on warm weather to be blanket wise in a minute. We have been told we haven't much wisdom, however, all must admit, this is blanket wisdom. No matter how coarse, no matter how fine, no matter how thin, no matter how thick, no matter whether cotton or wool, but let the blanket be big. Of course, it depends on the size of your bedstead, if you have one. If you sleep on the floor let the blanket be large enough to wrap around you. There is but one virtue in blankets. That virtue is bigness. We have blankets for wise people and unwise. More for the unwise because we have more of them.

Large Blankets, $2,00, $3.00 and $4.00 and $5.00.

It will pay you to watch this column for the next three months.

JACKSON, May 28, 1886.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.:

Gentlemen—For ten years I have been a great sufferer from Dyspepsia and Neuralgia. About twelve years ago my kidneys and liver became diseased, my whole system deranged, my stomach became weak, and I was attacked with the worst form of Dyspepsia, which lasted until quite recently. About the same time Dyspepsia took so firm a hold on me Neuralgia set in, sometimes attacking me in the head about the temples, then in the back of my neck and shoulders, then in my stomach. The suffering and extreme pain which I have endured the past twelve years is more than I can describe. I have taken nearly every medicine I could learn or hear of; have employed the most skillful physicians. Dr. Slenou, one of the best and ablest doctors of our city, office 125 Main street, doctored me for a long time, and can testify as to the severity of my disease. I never succeeded in getting any permanent relief until I had used Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup. I have gained ten pounds of flesh in seven weeks. The sallowness which so disfigured my complexion and caused me years of sorrow has been entirely removed, and my general health is better than it has been in thirteen years. The severity of the Neuralgic pains had caused a contraction of the muscles, or nerves, on the right side of my face to such an extent as to partially close my right eye, which your Syrup has entirely cured. My face and eye are restored to their natural state. I most cheerfully recommend it to any afflicted in like manner, or for general debility. Very respectfully,

MRS. A. D. NOBLE,
Corner Mechanic and Mason streets.

A Wonderful Occurrence.

JACKSON, Mich., Oct., 1885.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.:

Gentlemen—In November, 1884, I was cut in the wrist by a broken bottle, from which I suffered extreme pain. I called upon a doctor who pronounced it Sciatic Rheumatism. He gave me a morphine injection in my right shoulder, which resulted in paralyzing my right side. I was kept under the influence of morphine until last March. My right leg and arm had become badly withered and my joints were so stiff that there was but little action in them. About that time I discontinued the use of morphine. Some six weeks ago I first heard of your Rheumatic Syrup and was advised to try it. And here let me impress this fact upon your mind that my right arm and leg were shrunken, paralyzed and withered so much that I could hardly walk or swing along, and that but little, and attended with great effort and pain. Since I have been taking your Syrup I have left off the use of crutches entirely, and only use a cane, and for the past few days I often forget it and walk without any aid. To say that I am happy, and that it has greatly benefited me but poorly expresses my idea of your Rheumatic Syrup.

Yours truly,

C. D. DENIO, Dealer in General Groceries, cor. Trail and Mechanic Sts.

Mr. C. D. Denio is a man well known in this community, and was probably the worst wreck physically of any man this country ever saw. He was paralyzed from Rheumatic poison, and no one ever expected he would get well. He is well, though, and it is simply marvelous. The above statement made by him is true, and may be fully relied upon.

I am truly yours,

FRANK L. SMITH,
Ex-Member State Legislature, and proprietor Hurd House, Jackson, Mich.
