Rev. S. Thompson Morris, of Dexter, was the first speaker, and spoke earnestly on the District Schools and a Uniform System of Text-Books:

We live in an age of startling propositions. A few days ago the mayor of New Haven stated that the city ought to own the railroads. The new mayor of Boston suggested the same thing there. We are living in an age of progress. I refer to the last quarter of a century. You form a part of the grandest nation in the world, which stands at the head in public schools, and Michigan stands at the very head of the states. C. R. WHITMAN, RAILROAD COMMISSIONER.

The Appointment Entirely Unexpected, Mr. Whitman's Name Not Having Been Discussed in Connection With the Office.

Governor Winan's last night sent in the name of Hon. Charles R. Whitman, of this city, as railroad commissioner. This is the most lucrative office in the gift of the governor, and is the one for which Hon. George L. Yaple was supposed to be booked. Yaple, yesterday, however, filed his notice of contest for Burroughs' seat in Congress. Mr. Whitman is at present regent of the University. The appointment is an excellent one. No one can for a moment question Mr. Whitman's competency. The appointment was a complete surprise to Mr. Whitman himself, who expected nothing of the kind. This appointment undoubtedly disposes of the chances of the other Washtenaw applicants for state offices. George N. Davis of Grand Rapids, was appointed warden of the Jackson prison, and Galusha Pennel, of St. Johns, warden of the Ionia prison.

Death of Mrs. Dr. Frieze.

Dismissal of Prof. Bellows.

Prof. Bellows who has given the best years of his life to the up in arms on the subject, taking Mr. Bellows part. The difficulty between the board and the professor, so far as we can learn, grew out of the fact that Prof. Bellows, an author of a text book himself, did not stick closely to text book work. He believed that the instruction should be more professional in its character, and that the strictly academic teaching could more properly be done by the public schools. He had expressed himself willing to comply with the requirements of the board, but they had failed to formulate what they wanted.

> The students are circulating a petition which is being signed by nearly all of them asking for Prof. Bellows retention. The townspeople are indignant and Prof. Bellows evidently retain his great popularity.

The Sunday News says: Prof. C. F. Bellows, whose resignation has just been asked for by the state board of education, was seen by the Sunday News at his home to-day in regard to the differences that exist between him and the board, He said: "I understand the request for the resignation came because of the objection to the professional work it was alleged I was doing, whereas the board wanted academic work. Strictly, the work of the normal school is professional work, and that is the fundamental object for which the school was instituted, and for which the state is yearly paying out large sums, supposing it is preparing teachers. The common school is what we call academic. The policy of the normal is, and has been, too largely of the public school, and to do district and graded school work. It should be above this. I have always been a zealous advocate of doing specifically professional work, because that is the foundation of the school.'

SENATOR HOAR, of Massachusetts, whose pet hobby was the force bill, has been saying that the action of the senate, in laying it aside, "means the death of the republican party."

THE entire executive and legislative work of the state of Michigan is in the hands of the democracy. The cry of that party during the campaign was for a reform of great wrongs said to exist in state affairs. The responsibility for righting all wrongs lies with the democratic party Let the work proceed, gentlemen.—Coldwater Courier,

The democratic legislature can make Michigan a democratic state, or can send it back to the republican column. A great responsibility rests upon the shoulders of our representatives. If they serve the people best, Michigan will be democratic. Out with the barnacles. Reduce the army of office-holders. What if there are fewer offices to go around? The mission of the democratic legislators is not to make or retain offices for democrats. It is to best serve the people. The people are overburdened with taxation, state as well as national. Let the legislators remember this. Let them combine all the prison and reformatory boards into one, which, making itself familiar with all our prisons and reform schools, may adopt the best methods and also do away with the rivalry of the different boards in obtaining appropriations, blood money from the people; let them do away with the game warden and his host of deputies, and have the game laws enforced by sheriffs. Let them wipe out the sixty or seventy clerkships in the delinquent tax department of the auditor-general's office. them overhaul the other state offices, lopping off sinecure clerkships. What we want is democratic economy. What if the other fellows have held the fat offices for years, and now is an opportunity for democratic office-holders! Is it not better to look out for the pockets of the thousands of democrats who will not hold office? Is it not better to save the people's money than to favor the few? Gentlemen of the legislature, the people are watching you.

In connection with the canal which Mehemet Ali caused to be cut by unskilled Fellah labor, to connect the waters of the Nile with the sea at Alexandria, a characteristic story of the Napoleon of Egypt has been told. A French engineer, in conversation, ventured to criticise the viceroy's plan for the canal while the work was in course of completion. "Your highness," he said, "will pardon me for suggesting that your canal will be very crooked." "Do rivers in France always run in a straight line?" promptly asked the pasha. "Certainly not," responded the surprised Frenchman. "Did not Allah make them?"

"Assuredly, your highness," replied the engineer, who thought the question-er's wits were wandering. "Well, then," answered Mehemet Ali, triumphantly, "do you think you or I know better than Allah how water ought to run? I imitated him in my canal, otherwise it soon would be a dry ditch, not a canal." The Frenchman was silenced, if not convinced, and the canal was certainly made very crooked, and so remains. - San Francisco Argonaut.

Increasing the Speed of Railroad Trains There seems no serious difficulty, on the engineering side, in securing and maintaining a speed of 100 miles an hour, or probably more; but the capitalist is here intimidated. Higher speeds cost money for initial and operative expenses in vastly higher ratio than either increase of speed or the returns to be expected on capital so invested. Our fastest trains do not directly pay, even now, when the wear and tear of engines, cars, roadbed and bridges, to say nothing of flesh and blood, nerves and health, are considered. When the people want higher speeds and need them so badly as to be able and willing to pay for them, the engineers will construct and the railroads will furnish trains of still higher velocity and of still greater safety.-Professor R. H. Thurston in Forum.

A deaf old lady riding in an electric car became much alarmed because of a blockade, and asked a young woman next to her what had happened.

"There is no danger," replied the young woman. "Remember that a kind heaven bends over all."

MIZPAH.

A plain, broad ring, massive, antique and golden, Lieth before me now, Hallowed by memories sacred, pure and olden, And a heart spoken vow.

I lift it gently; by the moonbeam's glimmer I trace an ancient word,
"Mizpah," no other; but my eyes grow dimmer,
And my heart's depths are stirred.

From the bright gold Time's never tiring fingers Have nearly worn that prayer; But on the tablet of my heart it lingers,

'Tis written changeless ther The Lord watch between us when we are parted

When our tired feet
Tread paths diverging ever; when, sad hearted, We never meet.

Watch between us when earth's strong tempts Lead us ofttimes to fall; When, sinful, we would sell our heavenly freedom For Satan's thrall.

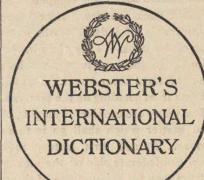

Watch between us when with this life aweary, When with dark woes opprest;
When fainting in our labors, endless, dreary,
We find no rest.

Oh ever watch! through all the years so fleeting Through weal and woe;
Till our tired hearts have ceased their restless

In grave mounds low. And when at last, "life's fitful fever ended,"
We soar on high,
Our songs of praise shall evermore be blended
Beneath Thy loving eye.

The Improvements on the Fair Grounds.

Superintendent Mills made a full and interesting report to the board both here and in Detroit. of managers of the fair association last Thursday, which is given in full here, a good crop no doubt.

I would respectfully report the doings of your superintendent for the past year. As I have given itemized accounts, from time to time, to the auditing committee, and they reported to you, I will give, at this time, only a general report. The work of moving from the old to the new grounds placed a greater amount of work than usual in the hands of your superintendent.

Mr. Watarman's Generous Offer of $20,000.—Over $20,000 More to be Raided.

A solution of the "Gym." probfor the U. of M. athletes is practito give $20,000, if an equal amount is raised within three months by the alumni and friends of the University. That this sum will be forthcoming cannot be doubted for an instant.

The welcome and surprising news was made known to President Angell while dining with Mr. Waterman, on Wednesday evening. Mr. Waterman said to a Detroit Tribune re porter Friday evening:

the offer. The actual physical ne- tives. cessity of a gymnasium there has it should have been provided long ago. Nothing will take the 'colt,' out of young men so quick, and it

The University has a great many wealthy friends both here and in Chicago who, I guess, have never the control of the bottle-wrapper that'll get your money back for you.

How many women are there who'd rather have the money than health? And "Favorite Prescription" produces health. Wonder is that there's a many women willing to suffer when there's a they have a chance to do it a great good. It ought to be an easy thing to raise $20,000, $30,000 or even $40,000, and I limited the time to successful fairy spectacle, the "Water three months because I knew they here shortly, is said to surpass all would give the money now just as his previous efforts. the University will now come to its rescue."

A meeting of the alumni and their friends will be held early next week at the city hall or one of the hotels, in Detroit, to endeavor to raise the necessary amount for a gymnasium for the University of Michigan.

President Angell's letter announcing the liberal offer is as follows:

EDITORS U. OF M. DAILY:

May I beg of you to announce to your readers that Mr. Joshua W Waterman, of Detroit, has generous ly offered to give the sum of $20, ooo to the regents of the University for the erection of a gymnasium building, provided that the alumni and other friends of the University will raise an equal sum. President.

President Angell had nothing additional to say this morning as to the plans for reaching the alumni. He suggests, however, that each student constitute himself a committee of one to write personal letters to his friends and relatives, urging them to contribute at once.

"More effective work can be done in this way than in any other," said the president. "Circulars are thrown into the waste-basket; but personal letters are always given some consideration. I have written to the U. of M. alumni associations in Chicago, Kansas City and Washington, and have also sent personal letters to friends of the University.
