It is presumed that their legislation has been careful, wise and honest, and that when they admitted the defendant into the streets of the city, it was the deliberate judgment of intelligent and conscientious citizens and that the permission given was surrounded with proper safe-guards. It is not the province of courts to review or revise that which is merely legislative in its character; the legislative and judicial are independent branches of government. If the legislative is clearly illegal or unconstitutional, courts do and should interfere; but injunctions arresting public enterprises should not be granted unless the grounds for the same are reasonably free from doubt.

I have invited and received a full argument on the motion.

The precise question involved has never been passed upon by the Supreme Court of Michigan. It is a new question in all the states, as modern as is the use of electricity itself as a motor for propulsion of machinery.

I am satisfied that it is the law of the state that a street railway operated by animal power does not impose upon the street any new or increased servitude, entitling the owner to compensation. The question therefore resolves itself into the problem whether or not animal and mechanical power as a that there is no such distinction. The motor is not the test or criterion, but the use of the street and the mode of such use.

> Mr. White frequently noticed that his boarder was subject to fits of glumness during which he was not responsible for his own actions. When under such a spell he was quick to carry out whatever idea his brain might conceive. Only [a few weeks ago, he spent a part of his hard-earned savings to buy a number of books that Mrs. White happened to mention. Acting under the advice of some friends he consulted a physician in the city, who advised him to do very little study as his brain could not bear the strain of steady work. Nothing has been missed by Mr. Lieuty, except an old necktie, which was found in the prisoner's possession. When asked at his examination what had caused him to go into the Sutherland residence, Foster replied that he had been in the habit of visiting a young man who had lived there the year before. Later he said that he desired to procure a piece of old silk for a young lady who was making a crazy quilt.

Mr. White was in the city early Wednesday morning to render assistance to his unfortunate boarder but the latter refused to ask him to go on his bond, adding "there's no use of my getting bail." Foster was to have graduated with this years' law class but his present unlucky predicament will probably interfere with his plans. All in all, it is a very singular case.

He advertised: "Send ten cents and learn how to find the day of the month

WHAT the Movement is.

ALL.

The farmers' movement is thoroughly educational. In its social aspect it recognizes the isolation of the farmer with the resulting evils, and attempts to overcome that isolation. In its financial aspect it is a protest against present methods of centralization, and an attempt to restore the industrial equilibrium which has been destroyed by the combination and trust, by securing a fair ratio in the exchange of raw products for finished commodities.

In its relation to citizenship it strives to develop an educated farm yeomanry who will cast conscientious ballots not merely for the party brand, but for the home and the native land. Hence it aims to break down isolation and distrust, and substitute an educated farm sentiment and farm leadership. It recognizes that present conditions are the natural outgrowth of having intrusted the government to those who preferred private interest to general welfare when private interest and general welfare clashed. It seeks justice through morals and evolution.

In its political aspect it is a protest against bourbonism, bossism, corruption at the polls and class legislation, whether McKinleyism or other class ism. It is a movement in favor of the same protection to the farm as is accorded to the factory.-N. H. Ashby in American Agriculturist.

The Alliance in New Jersey.

The Alliance has in mind a special work, and that is a reduction of the salaries of the state officials. They will take no independent action in this matter this year. They will be guided by the legislative committee of the industrial senate, who will spend much time in Trenton during the session of the legislature. They will seek to secure some steps looking forward to a change of the constitution, a reduction of all salaries to $5,000 a year, including the governor's, and the changing of the compensation of the clerks of the supreme court and chancery. These latter officers they think should be paid by the state, and all fees over and above the salaries should be paid to the state. They include all the supreme court justices and chancellor in the list of officials. They now get $9,000 and $10,000 a year.

The Alliance will wait and see what the senate is going to do in this connection. Next fall they will take an aggressive hand in the matter. They will then have a vigorous state Alliance, with branches in every county. It is suggested that the matter of reducing the salaries of officials be made the issue of the first campaign, and that the Alliance withhold its support from all candidates for the assembly and senate who refuse to be pledged to the uniform salary scheme.—Trenton Special in Philadelphia Press.

The Medical Profession.

The attitude of the medical profession toward what is known as "patent medicines," is not at all unreasonable. Thousands of these nostrums are offered to the public every year. Some of them are dangerous, and most of them are futile. Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), among these nostrums. It has overcome the wholesome prejudices of physicians in all parts of the country, and some of the strongest testimonials in its behalf come from medical men who have used it in their practice, and who do not hesitate to endorse its wonderful results. This is extremely gratifying, but by no means astonishing, for every claim that is put forward in behalf of S. S. S. is based on a series of actual experiments extended over a long period of time.

WHERE PROTECTION FAILS.

High Duties on Steel Rails Do Not Prevent Lockouts and Strikes.

The country has never seen a time, perhaps, when there was such an abundance of evidence to show that protection cannot guarantee "steady work and high wages." That high tariff organ, The Boston Commercial Bulletin, furnishes we are all glad to say, is not classed the following two items, placing them together:

The rolling mill and pipe works at Scottdale, Pa., have been closed down indefinitely, as have been also the Charlotte furnace and coke works. About 10,000 men are out of employment in Scottdale alone. The Frick company has also shut down nearly 1,200 ovens.

The officials of the Illinois Steel company give the following reasons why the rolling mills at South Chicago, Ills., have been shut down. They say: "We are trying to settle a scale of wages with the men for the coming year, and want time to adjust it. We have been negotiating with the men for ten or fifteen days in regard to the wages, and I can't tell how long it will be before we arrange the entire scale. We will be obliged to make some reduction in wages, as the mills in the east have done so, and we want to meet the difference." The Illinois company's mills have generally been shut down at this season for repairs.

This statement that the wages of steel rail workers have been reduced is of interest in view of the facts brought out in the senate debate on the steel rail tariff last summer. A dispute having arisen as to the difference between the labor cost of making steel rails in America and in Europe, an inquiry on the subject was sent to Carroll D. Wright, United States labor commissioner. He reported that the labor cost in one ton of rails in Europe is $11.32 and in America $11.59, a difference of twenty-seven cents. In his letter to Senator Carlisle, moreover, Mr. Wright made the following striking statement:

"You will pardon me if I call your attention to one analytical feature which and will never be any better off until should be observed in the use of the analysis herewith forwarded. Labor cost in one ton of steel rails-I mean after all the materials have been assembled in the steel rail works and are ready to be subjected to the proper manipulations for the production of standard steel rails -should be less per ton relatively in this country than in Great Britain or on the continent, because American producers of standard steel rails dispense with at attracting the attention of every least one expensive process still adhered family. There seems to be but one to by the foreign producer; and furthermore, our materials, ore, etc., are purer than those used in most other places; so the quantity of ore, for instance, required for the production of a ton of standard steel rails is less in this country than in other places, and of course the labor required to produce one ton of steel rails is, so far as the purer materials are concerned, less here than abroad.'

To cover the difference of twentyseven cents a ton the two houses of our high protective congress put a duty of $13.44 a ton on steel rails. The price of rails is now $24 a ton in England and $28 in the United States. The American railmakers are now consolidated into only six or eight establishments, and they have a practical monopoly of the home market.

The shutdown of the Chicago concern is not the only evidence that the steel railmakers are not getting all that high protection promised. The great steel rail king of this country is Andrew Carnegie. The following interesting news item has recently been printed: "Five hundred employes in Carnegie's steel works at Bradford, Pa., have struck for the advance in wages which was promponed." Here is another from a Philadelphia paper: The Edgar Thomson Steel works of Carnegie Brothers & Co. (limited) have again broken their phenomenal record at rail making. An output of 1,441 gross tons of rails in twenty-four hours is now the record, the best previous performance having been 1,417 tons. The best day's work by any other mill is said to be 1,312 tons. The difference between the price in The difference between the price in England and America, as above given, is $4 a ton, which would be $5,764 on Carnegie's one day's output. To insure Carnegie against the competition of the cheaper English rails the McKinleyites imposed a tariff of $13.44 a ton, which, on Carnegie's 1,441 tons, would amount to a tariff protection of $19,366.04. THE FARMERS' BURDENS.

The Comments of a Southern Journal on an Opinion from the West.

The Kansas City Times says the farmers are no longer rich. They no longer have more than they can spend. In our once prosperous agricultural districts they are reduced almost to poverty.

In the eyes of the public farming has ceased to be the pleasant and profitable occupation of a former generation. In the older states it is a common thing to see farm houses going to decay, while in the new states dugouts and shanties are the rule. Everywhere may be seen the track of the loan agent and the blight of the mortgage.

The fact cannot be disguised that the farmers of the west are growing poorer every day, while the farmers of the south are seriously hampered in their progress. And yet this is all wrong. Agriculture should be the great source of the nation's prosperity, and when it decays the entire country will suffer. It will not do to say that the farmers are idle and thriftless. They work hard. They are economical. They make the best of their hard lot. It is easy enough to explain the present state of affairs. Our farmers pay a heavy tax on nearly every article they buy, and nearly all they sell must go at prices fixed in the markets where the producers of the world compete for buyers. If a protective tariff puts money in the pockets of those who are engaged in manufacturing pursuits, it does not compel them to pay higher prices for agricultural products. The value of everything raised on a farm is largely determined by the price of our surplus supply in foreign markets. Farmers, therefore, when they sell have to compete with the producers of the world, and when they buy they have to pay an exorbitant tax to a privileged class on our eastern seaboard, for whose benefit the McKinley bill was enacted.

In conclusion, our Kansas City contemporary declares that our farmers under existing conditions are mere serfs we have tariff reform. These are stubborn facts, but tariff reform is not a sufficient remedy. We must overhaul our entire systems of finance and taxation. We must have a currency that will meet the wants of this rapidly developing country, and we must have local banks of issue that will not outlaw the farmers by rejecting real estate as a security for loans. When we get all these reforms we may expect to see the agricultural interest enjoy its olden prosperity, but not before. - Atlanta Constitution.

A Hint to Railroads.

The Listener saw a sight the other day which has moved him to make a protest. On the Back Bay, at the crossing of the Boston and Albany and Providence railroad tracks, a gang of men were engaged in burning up a lot of railroad ties. Evi dently the ties made capital fuel, for the fire was crackling merrily. They were evidently disused but by no means rotten. Of course the railroad would pic not venture to keep ties in place on the roadbed until they were rotten. The Listener has often seen ties burning on the tracks near the city, but never before so far within the city itself, and actually within a short stone's throw of the homes of the poor people who would have been only too glad to relieve the railroad corporation of every stick of their disused ties at an hour's notice.

Did it ever occur to you, Messrs. Railroad Superintendents or Directors, or whoever is responsible for this destruction of good fuel, that your old ties would give at least a little warmth to a good | conclusion; a letter. many households that have had none, or next to none, through all this cruel weather? There would be no need of advertising for people to come and take | you came by Mr. Dent's? the ties; every laborer among the number who work at the task of destroying them must know families who would be glad enough to get them. The railroads could actually save money by giving the wood away. - Boston Transcript.

A Vessel in Two Parts.

A vessel constructed on the shores of Lake Michigan was recently floated down to the sea in two sections. The course was through the Welland canal, down Lake Ontario and on to Montreal, which was reached in eleven days. The after section of the ship, containing the machinery, had steam in one boiler and backed at the rate of seventy revolutions per minute, steaming stern first, while the forward section followed in charge of two tugs. On arriving at Montreal the two sections were placed on greased ways in a dry dock, and when the parts were closed in upon each other the butts came together so closely that a knife blade could not be inserted between the plates. The re-riveting was accomplished with facility in the usual way, and the vessel was floated out of the dock a complete hull, defying the eye of any expert to tell where the junction had been made.-New York Commercial Adver-

National and State Alliances. J. H. Turner, secretary of the State Farmers' Alliance of Missouri, said in a recent interview with a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter: We are in a state of quiet activity at Alliance headquarters in this city, preparing for the meeting in February next of the presidents of the State Alliances. which will be held here. Thirty State Alliances will be represented, and this meeting will elect a legislative committee, whose duty it will be to attend to the engrafting, as far as possible, of Alliance principles into legislation. The order is growing very fast. On Nov. 20 the State Alliance of California was or ganized, and by December of this year we will have State Alliances in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Arizona. Those of Ohio and Iowa will be organized by April next. Though very often solicited to do so, the National Alliance has refused to interfere in state politics. Our policy is to educate and not to agitate. When the people are educated they must of themselves decide what is best for them to do. The Farmers' Alliance leaders do not dictate. It is too early to predict what will be done in 1892. Some of the Alliances in the west are anxious for a third party. I do not think, how-

A Card Trick.

An easy trick is that of discovering a given card. One method of doing it is to deal the cards into three packs, face upward, and request a spectator to note a card and remember in which heap it is. When you have dealt twenty-one cards throw the rest aside, these not being required in the trick. Ask in which heap the chosen card is, and placing that heap between the other two deal again as before. Again ask the question, place the heap indicated in the middle, and deal again a third time. Note particularly the fourth or middle card of each heap, as one of those three cards will be the card thought of. Ask for the last time in which heap the chosen card now is, when you may be certain that it is the card which you noted as being the middle card of that

This same result can be produced with any number of cards, so long as such num-ber is odd and a multiple of three. The middle card in the last heap indicated will always be the chosen card.

It proposes to dispense with lawyers in the competition for the United States sen-

Since the time when the professions contained all the education of nations the law has been regarded as the principal source of supply for public men Young men went into the law as much because it was the stepping stone to political preferment as anything else. The selection of congressmen from any other class has been exceptional in this country. The bar and politics have been almost one and the same thing.

If the Alliance continues to wield political power and persists in its exclusion of lawyers it will either destroy a superstition or do some terribly bad governing. Which will it be?

Education has extended. The farmer and merchant know more of the inside of public questions now than the lawyers and preachers did when the constitution was adopted-not more of technical forms, but more of the essential reasons for this or that legislative or executive action. The trend of civilization is always away from barren technical recital and toward simplified common sense. As people learn more they re quire less and endure less of the elaborate ritual of technique. Perhaps we can get along with few lawyers among public men.—Kansas City Times.

Farm Insurance in Germany "Nothing is more remarkable," said Mr. Conried Moliter, "to a German who Publications sent free. is now an American citizen than to no tice the change in political affairs which he finds on revisiting his native land after even the lapse of a decade."

Mr. Moliter is a merchant of Salt Lake City, U. T., and a mining engineer by profession. He had just returned from a visit to his native land, and is loud in his praise of the young emperor. "The emperor," he continued, "has started in to reverse the old Bismarch regime. His latest step has been the introduction of a state system of insurance for the live stock of farmers. In every commune or township where one half of all the farmers desire insurance it becomes obligatory on all the rest to avail themselves of the law. The sum paid for loss is to be seven-tenths of their value for dead animals, and eighttenths of the value for such as are killed because they have contracted disease or endanger the safety of the rest. The premiums are fixed at 1 per cent. of the value of the animals insured. The state makes a free gift of $10,000 per annum to the insurance fund, but should the losses exceed this sum, together with the amount of the premiums, then the premiums are to be raised three-quarters of 1 per cent., and if this does not suffice the state agrees to make good the deficiency. The whole scheme will be directed from Berlin, where there will be a central insurance bureau, governed by directors appointed by the government. This bureau will control the local officers, receive the premiums and pay the losses. -New York Star.

GEORGE W. MILLEN. WHO AS SPECIAL AGENT FOR

THE NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE CO That THE NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE

COMPANY was incorporated by the Legisla-ture of Vermont in 1848. Its existence practically covers the whole history of Life Insurance in America, as the oldest company wrote its first policy in 1843. Hon. Henry Clay, of Kentucky; Hon. Amos Abbott, of Massachusetts; Hon. Alex. Ramsey, of Pennsylvania were among the incorporators.

That during the forty years of its successful experience, it has passed through the cholera epidemic of 1854, the financial panics of 1857 and 1873, as well a the ordeal of the Civil War. These were eriods when corporations and individuals were tried to their utmost capacity. On every side were failures, large and small, but the NATIONAL came out with a record of solid prosperity, and not a scar to mark the greatest financial disturbances ever known in this country. Its policy contracts, therefore possess all the security and permanence that stability and successful experience can guarantee.

That it wrote in Michigan during the year 1888 $74,000, and during the year 1889 $752,000, which was the largest per cent. of gains during said year by any company in Michigan. No company writes a more satisfactory policy, writing in the face of each policy three guarantees:

FIRST.—A paid up policy.

SECOND.—A cash surrender for each year after the third. THIRD.—An extended insurance which rovides for all emergencies that may overtake anyone between youth and old age. Other facts and figures gladly furnished by Room 1 Hamilton Geo. W. Millen.

Tributes from the Faculty.

The Chicago Daily News quotes the members of the University faculy in its issue of last Friday:

President Angell said that Dr. Winchell was probably one of the most widely known active members of the faculty, and that in his death the University of Michigan suffered an irreparable loss. He continued, 'I regard him as a profoundly learned man, with a mind rich in stores of many-sided knowledge. He was the most tireless student I ever knew. He would sit in his study eighteen hours out of the twenty-four and give his undivided thought to a single subject of study. His powers of mental application were almost unequaled.'

Dr. Winchell's colleague in the THE 1890 census shows that there geological department, Prof. Pettee, said: "His especial claim to fame rests upon his presentation of geological theories, to his studies upon the relationship of geology to other branches of science and to his great works on the reconciliation of science and religion. She has the reputation of being one of the and few pleasant days passed without popularize science, he had been much their meeting. Miss Grahamis a charming talker, and enjoys relating incidents of her granduncle, Mark Catesby, the noted naturalist of the Eighteenth century. She has the friendship of many Washington celebrities, and corresponds with Mrs. Jefferson Davis.-Exchange.

Miss Captain Clay!

Miss Minnie T. Clay, a recent student at Abbott academy, Andover, has received an appointment as captain of a team vessel on Sebago lake, Maine, She has studied navigation and passed a successful examination as pilot and navigator; and, although she is the first lady to receive such an appointment in Maine. she is considered well qualified for her position. The steamer of which she is captain is owned by her father.-New York Ledger.

The refreshments served at afternoon teas, that popular mode of entertaining. are of the most simple kind. Bread and butter sandwiches of thinly sliced crustless bread, brown and white, wafers or tea biscuit, may any one of them be offered with a cup of tea, and for more formal occasions pound cake or any solid cake, chocolate and coffee may be added.

Emma Abbott wears in her coffin a part of the handsome veil she used to wear in her performances of Juliet. This veil she bought in Paris, and she was wont to call it her mascot, because fortune favored her from the moment it came into her possession. At her death half of it was cut up into souvenirs for the members of her troupe.

What to do with the vast quantity of silk new lying unsold at Yokohama is a topic which engages the attention of not only business men, but financiers in general. The quantity of silk thus detained is put at nearly 30,000 bales.

Brainy Workingmen.

The idea that workingmen cannot be trusted to aid in a philosophical adjustment is so erroneous as to excite the surprise of all thoughtful men. The science of political economy was born among the lowly. Adam Smith, whose "Origin of the Wealth of Nations," was our emancipation proclamation to labor, was cradled in the hut of a Scotch laborer, and accustomed to toil. And no subsequent writer on that subject has been able to lay down any new principles, or to successfully counteract the views of works on political economy are but little more than the "Origin of the Wealth

The annual message of Governor Abbett, which is a comprehensive review of the public affairs of New Jersey, dwells at great length upon the conditions which affect the farming industry of his state. These conditions, which have been made the subject of investigation by a special commission, are anything but cheering, although they do not differ materially from the prevailing agricultural conditions in Pennsylvanis and other eastern states. Governor Ab att reaffirms the statement of the commission that farm land has fallen in value in New Jersey about 40 per cent. within the last fifteen or twenty years. but he derives some consolation from the fact that the value of land per acre is higher in New Jersey than it is in any other state in the Union.

Governor Abbett admits that grain raising is no longer profitable in New Jersey, and finds that the farmers are obliged to compensate themselves with the cultivation of vegetables and fruits with the rearing of cattle and with the dairy industries. But the great depre ciation of land values in the state indicates plainly enough that the farmers have not found in these substitutes sufficient compensation for the loss of former profits in wheat raising.

Chief among the causes to which Governor Abbett refers the agricultural depression in New Jersey are unequal taxation, state and federal; unjust discrimination in freight charges; bad roads and high rates of interest.—Philadelphia

The Brotherhood of Man. Newspaper readers, no doubt, are generally aware that the Alliance farmers have been derided as "hayseed socialists," and that their proposals have been commonly criticised as socialistic, but it is not so much their specific propositions, however radical, as the tone and language of their papers, their campaign orators and their campaign songs, which give an adequate idea of the thoroughly revolutionary spirit of these men.

The Alliance press and platform have indeed constantly declared that the demands they now make are but the first steps of a radical new departure, the first blows in a fight which is to end only in the total overthrow of the money power, the destruction of private monopolies in all forms and a general remodel ing of the industrial system on the basis of equality and fraternity.

Especially in Kansas and Nebraska, which may be considered the moral centers of the movement, the watchword of the campaign seems to have been that rallying cry raised today by the oppressed in every land, "The brotherhood of man." -Edward Bellamy in American Agriculturist.

In Missouri's Legislature.

A dispatch from Jefferson City says: The farmer members are anxious to get all the information they can regarding corporations in the state and their assessed property valuations. The third resolution on this subject was presented in the house by Representative Lee, of Carter. It specified that every county clerk in the state be required to furnish the house with a list of corporations in each of the counties, with the assessed property valuation of each and other information concerning them. The resolution was laid over until to-morrow.

Representative McLin, of Johnson, introduced a resolution to exclude all lobbyists from the house. He said there was reason to believe that the house would be overrun with railroad lobbvists before the session was well advanced.

Miss Otis' Dolls.

Miss Elita Proctor Otis, the youthful proprietor of The Saturday Review, who is now in Paris with her mother, has a curious and novel fad for dolls. When she lived at the Chelsea, New York city, a whole room in her apartment was devoted to them. Little dolls and big dolls, old dolls and young dolls, dolls of high and of low degree, and dolls of color-in short, every variety of dolls known to the rising and the risen generation could be found there. For many months they have been stored away in large trunks, but will soon be resurrected and their ranks re-enforced by dainty marvels of Parisian manufacture, as Miss Otis intends to sail for New York this month.

Every man knows how good he would be were he some other man.

The Glee Club at the Jackson Prison.

During the visit of the University Glee and Banjo Clubs at Jackson last Saturday, they were invited by the warden of the state prison to sing a few selections for the benefit of the convicts. After orkinwg hours, all the convicts were assembled in the chapel and the warden addressed them as follows: "Men," said he, "the Michigan University Glee and Banjo Clubs have consented to sing a few songs for your entertainment and I want you to keep quiet." His orders were not necessary, however, for the men showed a marked appreciation for the privilege granted to them and maintained careful attention during the hour and a half that the students entertained them. Both clubs exhausted their whole repertoire of selections and some of the pieces called out much enthusiasm from the listeners. It was a treat that will probably remain a conspicuous landmark in the monotonous existence of the unfortumate inmates. After the concert the clubs visited the various departments of the institution, ending up at the warden's office, where a light lunch was waiting for them. The event was as much a source of pleasure for the students as for the convicts who are indebted to them for their kindness.

IN SILENT SORROW.

New York Pays Her Last Tribute to Sherman.

HER PROUD HEAD BOWED IN GRIEF.

he Renders Homage to the Ashes of the Honored Soldier - Twenty Theusand Persons Follow the Warrior's Remains, While an Immense Multitude Watches in Reverent Sadness the Pageant of Death-The City Panoplied in the Drapery of Sorrow and Rusiness Suspended NEW YORK, Feb. 20 .- Twenty thousand persons joined the cortege which fol-lowed the remains of Gen. Sherman yesterday from his late home to the Debrosses Street ferry, on their way to their final resting place at St. Louis. Everywhere there were the emblems of mourning. Business was generally suspended, flags innumerable floated at half-mast, and the black drapery of sorrow streamed and fluttered all over the city. Previous to There seems to be little going on the order to march the strains of military bands and the tramp of bodies of United States troops, national guards, veteran societies and civic organizations was heard in every direction, pushing forward long suffered from a severe throat to take their places in the line. All the or bronchial affection, superinduced courts were closed and public business was suspended as far as possible. The exchanges closed at noon, and the desire to do honor to the memory of the great soldier found expression in all walks of life.

Roman Catholic Services.

Rev. T. E. Sherman, the general's son, who arrived home from across the Atlantic last night, performed the services for the dead of the Roman Catholic church at 12 o'clock, there being no one present except the immediate friends, Secretary Blaine and wife, Mrs. Walter Damrosch (Secretary Blaine's daughter), and Rev. Father Taylor, and a boy choir, with some other invited friends-in all about 150 persons. The service was brief. President Harrison had been invited to look upon the face of his old commander, but he kindly replied that he preferred to keep with him the remembrances of the general while alive. He did not wish to see him in death, when their associations had been so warm and genial. Just be fore 11 o'clock a beautiful floral shield was received from the cadets at West Point, and Lafayette post, G. A. R., draped the casket with a large flag, presented to the post some time ago by the general. The flag will remain on the casket until it arrives at St. Louis.

Arrival of Distinguished Men. About 1 p. m. carriages began arriving containing George W. Childs, Gen. Schofield, ex-Presidents Hayes and Cleveland, Governor Pattison, Governor Bulkeley, the senate and house committees, Chauncey M. Depew, general officers and their staffs, and others invited to attend. It was nearly 2 p. m. before President Harrison arrived with the members of his cabinet, and 2 o'clock was the hour for the procession to move. A draped caisson stood in front of the house, and immediately behind it was the general's charger, with his military trappings, draped in black velvet and led by a private. In the side streets flanking the line of march were the different bodies which were to move into line at the proper time.

THE SOLEMN JOURNEY BEGUN.

The Funeral March Through the Streets of the Metropolis.

At 2 p. m. Gen. Howard appeared on the front steps of the house and, followed by other military chiefs, formed a double line to the curb. As they took off their hats the multitude uncovered, and in a oment the casket, borne on the shoulders of six soldiers, appeared. Reverently it was carried to the caisson and placed in position, the marching order was given, and an army band over in the neighborhood of Central park began playng a funeral march.

Arrival at the Ferry. When the head of the procession reached Desbrosses street ferry, a few minutes after 5 o'clock, it found an immense throng awaiting it. The mounted police soon opened ranks on each side of the street. The ferry gates were thrown open, and the caisson upon which the body rested was first driven aboard the boat, escorted by Lafayette post, 140, under Gen. Viele. A few minutes later the funeral party was aboard, the boat swung into the stream, and the great funeral, the last tribute which the metropolis could pay to a favorite son of the republic, was over. The Landing at Jersey City.

When the boat with Gen. Sherman's remains and the guard of honor touched the Pennsylvania ferry station in Jersey City at 5:40 p. m. many thousands of people were in and around the station. Chief of Police Murphy, with 170 policemen, and the Fourth regiment of the National Guard of the State of New Jersey, were drawn up between the ferry entrance and the north end of the station, beyond which out of sight stood the special train. The military presented arms, the police their batons, colors were lowered, the Fourth regiment drum corps played a dirge, and church bells tolled as the funeral caisson passed from the boat to FRUITS, NUTS and CONFECTIONERY the train. The people were guiet and respectful.

On the Funeral Train. The national guard of New Jersey were represented at the station by a guard of honor named by Governor Abbett to accompany the remains through the state. The funeral train was made up of seven cars as follows: A composite or "combination car" in which the remains were conveyed; the Danville, the Pennsylvania railroad difting car No. 704; the Pullman cars Albia and Cado; President Roberts' car No. 120; General Manager Charles Pugh's car No. 180. The guard of honor were in the Danville and composite car; the senate and other committees in General Manager Pugh's car; the other cars were used by the family. The composite car was festooned heavily with black drapery. The other cars were less elaborately draped. The train left Jersey City at 6:45.

WHERE OUR HERO LIES BURIED.

A Splendid Demonstration of Grief and Affection at Sherman's Funeral.

St. Louis, Feb. 23.-Gen. Sherman's remains arrived in this city at 8:48 Saturday morning. They were given over to the charge of Ransom post-Gen. Sherman's old G. A. R. post-as the train crossed the bridge. When the funeral train pulled into the station here the in the province of Cordova have revolted, streets for blocks were a dense mass of and a state of siege has been declared.

surging humanity, while for miles along the route which the funeral cortege would traverse the pavements, balconies, windows, and housetops were alive with people awaiting its appearance, It was with difficulty that the police could keep the center of the streets clear.

A Silent Multitude. The silence of grief hovered over all. During the earlier hours of the morning the only sound that broke the stillness in the city was the roll of the muffled drums as the different bodies which would take part in the pageant tramped to their places. The insignia of sorrow was everywhere, the flags were at half-mast, and the faces of the people bore abundant evidence of their sorrow at the occasion which called them together. About 10:30 the casket was taken reverently from the train and placed upon a heavily-draped caisson drawn by four black horses. Immediately in the rear of the caisson a black charger came, draped, and carrying the military boots reversed in the stirrups and the accoutrements of a general officer.

The Order to March. At 11:20 Gen. Merritt gave the word to march. The glorious Seventh cavalry, its ranks depleted by the storm of bullets at Wounded Knee, but its spirit as unbroken as ever, led the cortege. After them United States batteries, and following them the infantry. The caisson followed, guarded by twenty-four veterans of the Thirteenth volunteers, thirteen of the men having been with Sherman in all his campaigns during the rebellion. They were arranged in a hollow square around the caisson. The family and friends of the dead soldier came next, with the honorary pall-bearers. The boys in blue comprised the next division, and pre-sented a fine appearance, notwithstanding that their heads were bowed in grief for the loss of their beloved commander.

Citizens and Ex-Confederates. The rest of the column was made up of civic societies, among them the Southern Historical society composed of ex-Confederates who had fought hard to stem the advances of the man whose dust was in front. There were innumerable societies following, and last citizens in carriages. In the line were governors, statesmen, soldiers, and representatives of every walk in life. The whole of the Missouri legislature was there, the St. Louis city officials. a number of members of congress, and scores of the distinguished of the land. Arrival at the Cemetery.

The cortege was 2½ hours passing a given point, and when the head had reached Calvary the rear had not formed down by the station seven miles away. It was a splendid tribute to one of the 1.3tion's greatest men. At Calvary Rev. T. E. Sherman, the general's son, took charge of the ceremonies first, and read over the grave the office for the dead of the Roman Catholic church. When he had done the coffin was lowered into the grave, and the sound of the clods rolling on it unloosed the pent up emotions of the general's daughters, and they sobbed aloud. They were led away, and Col. Forsythe then took charge of the military part of the services. The infantry was drawn up in line near the grave, three volleys were fired, the last being followed by the deep diapason of a battery outside the cemetery which fired a triple salute.

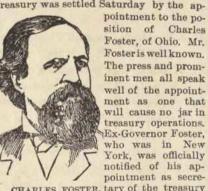

"Taps; Lights Out."

Then a bugler stood at the head of the grave and played the good-night call "Taps; Lights Out." And as the tones of the instrument rose into the vault of heaven the great throng dispersed and the body of the chieftain was left to its eternal rest. The family and friends from the east went immediately to the train, and about 6 p. m. started on their sorrowful return journey.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Features of the Celebration at Chicago and Elsewhere.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Washington's birthday was generally observed in this city yesterday, most places of business being closed. The patriotic exercises at the Auditorium under the auspices of the Union League club were well attended. At the Auditorium there were thousands of school children who listened to addresses by local orators, and also by Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky. He was also the principal speaker at the Union League club at night. Other speakers were President Palmer, of the World's fair; Gen. Miles, and Judge Blodgett. There were numerous other celebrations of the day, one being in the Central Music hall, where the Personal Rights league found fault with a good many things of Washington's day, especially the constitution. The Patriotic Sons of America gave an entertainment and dance, at which patriotic speeches and songs were the feature. The telegraph reports the general observance of the day all over the country.

Pittsburg Beats the Record.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 24. - Washington's birthday was never so extensively or appropriately observed in Pittsburg and Allegheny City as it was yesterday. Business was generally suspended. The weather was fine, and the street decorations elaborate. A magnificent equestrian mon-ument to Washington was dedicated in Allegheny park in the morning. In the afternoon civic and military organizations paraded the principal streets in both cities. At night there were numerous banquets.

Another revolution is reported in the Argentine Republic. Government troops THE NATIONAL LEGISLATURE.

Proceedings in the Senate and House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 20.-In the senate yesterday Ingalls, in a brief address, tendered his resignation as president pro tem, of the senate, to take effect on the election of his successor. The credentials of Vance as senator from North Carolina for the term beginning March 4 next were filed. Several bills of an unimportant nature were passed, after which the Indian depre lations bill was discussed and passed. The Nicaragua canal bill was made the unfinished business. At 6 p. m. the senate udiourned.

The nouse, after consuming three hours in the disposition of a claim bill, went into committee of the whole on the postoffice appropriation bill. Without disposing of the bill the house, at 6 p. m., took a recess until 8 o'clock last night, the night session to be for the consid eration of the immigration bill. Little progress was made on the bill at the night

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 21.—The senate yesterday passed 130 pension bills, and after other business of a routine nature proceeded with the consideration of the Nicaragua canal bill. Vest made a long speech in opposition to the bill, taking the ground that the Bulwer-Clayton treaty between the United States and Great Britain was still in force. Without action the senate adjourned.

In the house Cannon reported from the committee on rules a resolution for the immediate consideration of business reported by the committee on judiciary. Democrats filibustered, because Cannon announced that he would move the previous question on each bill and cut off debate, but the resolution was finally adopted. The bill for the relief of the supreme court was taken up, senate amendments non-concurred in, and a conference or-dered. The bill to fix salaries of district judges of the United States was then taken up, but without action recess to 8 p. m. was taken. At the evening session 113 private pension bills were passed.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 23 - The senate Saturday passed a bill prohibiting bookmaking or pool-selling in Washington City or Georgetown, or within one mile of the boundaries of those cities. An amendment to extend the provisions of the bill to the whole District, which would include the race course, was disagreed to. The sundry civil appropriation bill was reported. The Nicaragua canal bill was considered, but no action on the bill was taken. The conference report on the navy appropriation bill was presented and agreed to.

The house got into a snarl over the approval of the journal and three hours were consumed before the question was settled. The senate bill fixing the salaries of United States district judges at $5,000 per annum was then taken up and, after brief discussion, passed. The postoffice appropriation bill was taken up in committee of the whole and after debate laid aside with favorable recommendation. The deficiency bill was then taken up. The Democrats insisted that it be read, and then a long debate took place as to when it should be voted on. No conclusion wrs reached, and it was 9 p. m. before the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 24.-In the senate yesterday a number of petitions were presented and referred. The credentials of Platt and Jones of Arkansas, for the term beginning March 4 next, were filed. There was quite a discussion over a proposition to print 100,000 copies of the agricutural report on "Diseases of the Horse," but finally an amendment fixing the number of copies at 50,000 was agreed to. An executive session was held, and when the doors reopened the sundry civil appropriation bill was resumed until 6 p. m., when recess was taken to 8 o'clock. At the night session an amendment to the bill appropriating $10,000 to the family of the late Professor Joseph Henry, of Smithsonian Institute fame, was adopted, 115 pages of the bill disposed of, and at 11 p.

m. the senate adjourned. In the house the journal was read and approved without objection on the part of the Democrats. The conference report on the bill providing for the allotment of lands in severalty to the Indians was agreed to. The house then went into committee of the whole on the deficiency appropriation bill, but without disposing of it the committee rose. The postoffice appropriation bill was passed, and the house m., when recess was taken to 8. When called to order at night the immigration bill was considered in committee. An amendment was adopted giving refuge to "political" offenders, the bill reported to the house, the previous question ordered on it and a substitute offered by Oates, and the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 25.-In the senate yesterday the sundry civil appropriation bill was considered and several amendments adopted, and then Cameron presented resolutions of sorrow at the death of the late Representative Watson, of Pennsylvania. Eulogies were delivered and the senate, as a further mark of respect, adjourned.

The house, after routine business, took up the direct tax bill and after a long discussiou, it was amended, passed, and conference committee appointed. The conference report on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to, and the house ad-

Marshall Field's Tariff Bill Case. CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—In the case brought by Marshall Field & Co. to test the legality of the United States revenue law, Judge Blodgett yesterday decided in favor of the government. The case will be taken to the supreme court. The judge simply affirmed the decision of the appraisers, and the decision was short. He said that he was much impressed by the arguments o the attorneys for the appellant, but it was not the policy of his court to interfere with the present tariff rates, owing to the trouble it would cause. Moreover the supreme court was the place where final decision must be made, and he would allow an appeal. The appeal will be taken immediately.

More Bulidozing at the Fair Site. CHICAGO, Feb. 24.-A crowd of 3,000 men and boys, mostly idlers, by threats and intimidation yesterday compelled 100 men employed in Jackson park by World's fair contractors to cease work. Two patrol wagons filled with policemen were called to the scene, and the crowd soon fell back and was excluded from the park. There was no shooting, and no one was injured. Only a portion of the frightened laborers resumed work after order had been restored.

The horse ridden by Mrs. J. W. Jones, wife of a farmer living near Carrollton, Ark, ran away Monday, throwing the woman and dragging her half a mile by the stirrup. She was dead when picked up.

tive Ferguson introduced a bill yesterday providing for the appointment of state examiners to register or reject applicants for authority to practice medicine in Michigan. The three examining boards provided for will include the chief schools The three examining boards of medicine-allopathic, homeopathic and eclectic. The committee appointed to investigate the Nellie Griffin murder is divided into two factions. Senator Sharp, the chairman, prepared a report recom-mending the dismissal of Superintendent Newkirk. Other members of the committee were in favor of censuring Newkirk, but not of dismissing him.

and House.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 20,-Bills were introduced in the house yesterday making an appropriation for a display at the World's fair and creating a commission to arrange it; increasing the special tax on gross premiums of life insurance companies from 2 to 3 per cent.; providing for the care of veterans of the war at the Soldiers' home. Bills were introduced in the senate: Compelling the purchase of dairy and farm products direct from the farm by the state institutions; increasing the special tax on iron ore to 20 cents and on copper ore to $5 per ton; joint resolution limiting introduction of bills to the first thirty days of the session, and redistricting the legislative districts.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 23.-It has been written on the statute books for some time that a liquor dealer is liable if he sells liquor to a man after that man's wife has warned him not to do so. Representative Wagner Saturday introduced a bill which provides that the wife must furnish a good photograph of her husband at the same time that she files the notice.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 25.-The three Independent senators who were elected last fall have held the balance of power in the senate all winter. Yesterday by an adroit flank movement on the part of the Democrats, the three were toppled headlong from their commanding position and the Democrats have a clean majority. The senate has had two contested election cases on hand for some time, Democratic contestants laying claim to the seats of Horton and Morse, both Republicans. The committees held back their reports because it was clearly understood that the three Independents would not vote to seat the contestants, their votes being neces-

Lapsed in Their Vigilance. Yesterday several Republican senators attended the state convention at Jackson and the Democrats seized the opportunity. The committee's reports unseating Hor ton and Morse were presented and adopted, and James H. Morrow and Charles Fredlinder were declared elected in their places, thus giving the Democrats a clear majority. All the Republican senators have been wired to return at once, and an attempt will be made to overthrow the action.

Confessed His Crime.

MANISTEE, Mich., Feb. 24.-Johannes Salamonsen, who was arrested last week on suspicion of being implicated in the murder of Record Carlson, broke down and made a full confession. He says that he put sixty grains of strychnine in a flask of whisky, and when he came to Manistee with Carlson induced the latter to drink the mixture. Carlson became violently ill, and, on a pretense of securing a doctor, Salamonsen took out his friend's pocketbook containing his keys and then left him to die in a vacant lot. He returned to Eastlake and in Carlson's trunk found $165 in money, the possession of which led to his being suspected of the

And the Fate of Seven Was Peculiarly Horrible - Two Women Among the Victims, One Terribly Burned After Death-One Unfortunate Cut in Two A Mine Explosion in Nova Scotia Results in the Loss of Over One Hun-

New York, Feb. 21.—An appalling disaster occurred shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning in the Fourth avenue tunnel near Eighty fifth street, in which two women and four men met their death, and several other persons were seriously injured. All were employes of the New Yord, New Haven and Hartford railway. The accident was caused by the New Hainto the shop train, the rear car of which was filled with car-cleaners and other employes bound for the railroad shops at Mott Haven, and which had left the station five minutes ahead of the New Haven train. The tunnel was filled with a dense fog, owing to which the engineer of the shop train ran under slow headway. In the meantime the New Haven local was speeding along in the rear.

within twenty feet of the shop train he brakes, but it was too late. The engine had telescoped the car containing the unfortunate employes on their way to work. The scene that followed beggars descripand there were moans from the dving The passengers on the New Haven, none of whom was injured, rushed pell-mell over each other in the dark tunnel, panic-stricken. Following the crash, flames burst from the wreck and clouds of smoke rolled up through the air vent in the tun nel that was almost directly over the scene of the accident. Fearful cries for help were heard by those who were passing in the street overhead. A Woman's Frightful Fate.

In the meantime firemen had swarmed down into the tunnel and had began their work of subduing the flames and rescuing the injured. One of the women car clean ers had been struck by the engine and her condition was sufficient evidence to be-lieve that she had been killed instantly. The lamp in the car had exploded and scattered flaming oil over her clothes and besides being horribly mutilated, her head and body were terribly burned. Out of a broken window of the wrecked car where the engine of the local had pinned him fast, hung John Haucke, a car cleaner, crying for help. The firemen as tenderly as possible tried to pull him out, but the efforts caused him such intense pain that he begged to be left where was. was gotten out it was found that his legs had been partially burned off. He died on the way to the hospital.

The List of Unfortunates. The following is a correct list of the dead and injured: Dead-John Haucke, Michael Mullane (aged 15), Mrs. Nellie Supple, Mrs. Ellen Fay, John Murray, aged 49, all of this city, and an unknown colored man. Injured—William F. Brown, a brakeman, injured internally; M. M. Culbreth, colored cook, suffering from shock; Engineer Fowler and Brakeman Linn, slightly hurt.

great disaster in the history of the Cumberland coal fields occurred Saturday aftof a mile from the school. The quarry was | ernoon, when an explosion took place in frozen over, and it is supposed that the the east slope of the Spring Hill mines, resulting in large loss of life. Many of the bodies were terribly mutilated and it is known that 113 persons lost their lives, and some families are mourning the loss of two or three members. As soon as the news went abroad the mouth of the pit was surrounded by shrieking women and children, and the scene was one to stop one's heart beats. It is the greatest disaster ever known in this coal field. The two previous calamities were the explosions at the Ford pit, Itellarton, ten years ago, when forty-five lives were lost, and the disaster at the Drummond mine, Westville, seventeen years ago, when sixty-five men were killed. The Spring Hill mine is owned by English and Montreal capitalists. It employed 1,000 men and had an output of 500,000 ton a year. The Mine Completely Wrecked.

The mine has been completely wrecked. Choke-damp set in immediately after the explosion, and did its deadly work well. Rescuing parties were organized, and brave volunteers were not wanting to go down to recover the bodies of the dead and save those who might be alive. All night long the work went on, and as corpse after corpse was brought to the surface the despairing wails of the bereaved rent the heavens. Many of the dead were almst unrecognizable. first exploring party found the bodies of two so badly mutilated that they could only be taken to the surface in bags. One body was cut in two across the abdomen, one arm was missing, the face was a mass of blackened, burned flesh, and the only thing to denote that it was a human body was a tuft of hair on the back of the head. The brain was exposed to view, and presented a sickening spectacle.

One Way of Paying for Sewerage.

MR. EDITOR .- In answer to your invitation of the 17th, for views on the sewer question, I should like to submit the following: I would not bond the city for any sum, because bonds like general taxes fall heaviest on those least able to bear the burden, because the increased taxation would retard other needed improvements, and finally they are unnecessary. There is over $300,000 of bare land value south of the river, and I think it is safe to say that this land value will be increased five per cent. by the construction of a sys. tem of sewerage. Now what I pro pose is this, let us tax this bare land value say 11/2 per cent. for the construction of the main sewer. Let us pursue this same taxing of the value of the bare land in the construction of the lateral sewers, and as a result you will find that we shall have a system complete without entailing any hardships, and perfectly assessed on just the property which derives the most benefit.

The "Gym" Entertainment Next Week.

The joint entertainment by the Dramatic, Glee and Banjo Clubs and the Chequamegon orchestra which takes place at University Hall, on the evening of March 5, promises to be one of the most successful efforts yet undertaken in behalf of the new gymnasium project. About $10,000 must be raised before the conditions under which Joshua A. Watterman presents the large sum of $20,000 towards the new gymnasium, will be fulfilled and the only way to reach the requirements will be by a liberal patronage of the undertakings gotten up in the interest of the "Gym"

The University Dramatic Club will bring forward, for the first time, a comedietta entitled "The Rosetinted Envelope," in which Miss Ida Z. Hibbard and Messrs. E. H. Smith and A. C. Lewerenz will take prominent parts.

The organizations already mentioned will be assisted by Mr. Sam C. Park, well known as an amateur ventriloquist, in a laughable burlesque, entitled "Mind and Muscle composed of Messrs. Thayer, Van-Deventer, Van Inwagen, Starret, and Gardner; and by a guitar quintette, consisting of Professor Haug, of Detroit, and Messrs. Page, Ferris, Starret and Worden.

Careful preparations are being made for the event by the committee in charge and the combined musical and dramatic features cannot fail but to be a drawing card for a large number of amusement going residents of the city.

Expensive Coal.

Consumers of coal are generally willing to accept the high prices that have been maintained throughout the past season with at least apparent resignation, but when the price, already out of the reach of some classes, is threatened to be raised twenty per cent. higher by the railroad companies, it is time that legal redress should be sought by the wronged parties. An extreme case of the evil referred to is said to have the custom of railroads to charge one dollar a day demurrage on loaded cars kept over held by customers more than five days. For some time past the university has purchased its coal in ten car lots, shipped to the city from Ohio over the T. & A. A. railroad. Not long ago the railroad saw fit to detain the assignments at Toledo until considerable had been accumulated, when they rushed the whole amount in, leaving the university authorities with about fifty cars waiting to be unloaded in the T. & A. A. yards. The contract had been let for hauling the fuel from the freight Feather Weight depot to the campus and no provision had been made for such a sudmost $30 a day.

He had no "original ideas" of Hamlet to ventilate, he simply reproduced Shakespeare's ideal as nearly as possible. The result was gratifying.

The Philadelphia Press of November 29, 1890, also says of him. Robert Mantell revealed his "Hamlet" for the first time in Philadelphia at the Walnut last evening. Every seat in the house was filled, and the favorable verdict of the audience was indicated by frequent applause and curtain calls. Mantell makes an ideal "Hamlet" in appearance-tall, graceful, "the glass of fashion and the mold of form." He gives the royal Dane light brown hair.

Sergius Stepniak.

To-morrow morning the boards will be opened for the lecture to be given Saturday evening, by the celebrated leader of the Russian revolutionary party, Sergius Stepniak. About thirteen years ago he first came into public notice by publishing in Italian "Underground Russia," a work which has had extended circulation in this country. Since then he has been in Bngland, writing and speaking in behalf of the Nihilists. His recent works are, "Russia Under the Tzars," "The Career of a Nihilist," "Russian Storm reading;" by a mandolin quintette Clouds," "Russian Peasantry." The following is an outline of the lecture he is to give here:

"NIHILISM," ITS PAST HISTORY AND PROSPECTS.

Whal Nihilism is. Liberals apd Nihilists; their respective positions. Democratic tendency as the characteristie common to hoth parties. Great exaltation as the chief peculiarity of the extreme party. Its cause. Russian universities as seminaries of Russian thought. The intensity of intellectual life going on there below the surface. Turgueneff's graphic account of it. The militant Nihilism of to-day. Its character and prospects. The certain advent of Democracy in Russia, and the change it will bring in her international position. Conclusion: The movement in favor of Russian freedom, started in England. Its significance and bearing.

The office of the Ann Arbor Gas Company will be moved March 1st, to No. 22 E. Huron street.
