THE next U. S. Senate will contain 47 republicans, 39 democrats and two farmers' alliance.

THE Detroit Journal has long been masquerading as an independent sheet. It now strives to pose as the republican party organ.

THE Stockbridge Sun, an independent paper, with somewhat republican leanings, says:

Without regard to party and party affiliation, and without saying a syllable against either of his opponents, we recommend the support at the election of Hon. John W. Champlin for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court.

CARROLL D. WRIGHT, in his address in the Unitarian church, Sunday evening, on Religion in Politics, gave utterance to several true truths, which while generally admitted, are too often not acted upon. In speaking of the Christian's duty to vote as well as to pray, he said: "No man who stays away from the primaries has a right to complain of the misdoings there."

JUDGE CHAMPLIN.

THE democracy is proud of its standard bearer this spring. What manner of man is he Hon. Levi T. Griffin told us in his nominating speech.

It would ill become a lawyer before a political convention to criticize a high judicial officer, as respects the declared law of a particular case. To the credit of the state be it said, no stain of corruption, favoritism or dishonor has besmirched our judiciary.

act, which reduced the passenger rates to two cents a mile. And still further, it was he, poised at the very pinnacle of his greatness, with a halo of glory about his head,

This is the pleasure and profit of our learned friend. But turning to the democrats and the convention, he is the pioneer of our party in the judiciary of the Supreme Court since 1854.

A Lover's Lament.

Your face is like a drooping flower, Sweetheart? I see you fading, hour by hour, Sweetheart!

Your rounded outlines waste away. In vain I weep, in vain I pray, What power Death's cruel hand can stay?

The Two Per Cent. Loan.

EDITOR ARGUS.—I have read Mr. Ball's paper before the Farmers' Institute, as reported in your paper and with your permission I would like to say that I think it would have been just as good and more effective had the stab at the "Two Per Cent. Loan" been left out.

There is no danger of this government taking upon itself functions it is unable to carry out or that will be unbecoming to it as a great nation. One of its great fundamental principles is that it is by the people and for the people and the fact that any great measure for the benefit of the mortgaged masses is instituted or championed by any one person, be he rich or poor, high or low, should not weigh against it.

No class legislation! No! That would not do. It would establish a pernicious precedent that must not be tolerated. We must continue, however, to allow the gilded national bankers to continue right on pumping in or out all the money necessary to operate all the immense commerce of this nation with a strict regard for their own profit and never for the welfare of the people.

It is all right for them to have this money at an annual two per cent. It is not class legislation in the one case because the law does not say to the farmer you must not go into the banking business but it is compelled to place the necessary qualification and restrictions in the way to keep him out where he competent; but it is class legislation in the other case because it is proposed to help a class that in all probability must lose their homes and see their wives and children turned into the street unless they get aid from some source.

Mr. Ball's remarks on the "two per cent. loan" read very well to the mind of the average man, with a snug bank account and a well placed mortgage or two on his neighbor's farm, but how will it read to the man on whose efforts success from different causes has not smiled; to the millions of honest toilers all over this western world who have ventured to secure for themselves and family a home in which to pass the declining years of life?

The time is not far in the future when the "two per cent. bill" will be the popular document to support. It may not be exactly in its present form and it may be with greater limitations, which I would favor. I believe I would make it a little more classy, in other words, I would confine its benefits strictly to the mortgaged class. I would have its chief objects the offering of opportunities to save the home and fireside and I firmly believe the masses of the American people would appreciate the relief.

The time is also coming when the government will pose as a gigantic railroad and telegraph company with full power to carry at cost and thus allow the producer a chance to live easier. This excessive freight and toll tax to pay dividends on stock that is three-fourths water is going to be a matter of history or there will be war.

We want the republic of Washington, Jackson and Lincoln a government which was truly of the people, by the people and for the people, a government for the greatest good to the greatest number. JOHN E. HALL. Dexter, March 14, '91.
