GROSSMANN & SCHLENKER.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Celebrated by the A. O. H. at a Grand Banquet in Hangsterfer's Hall.

INTERESTING SPEECHES AND CHOICE MENU.

Congressmen Gorman and Weadock the Guests of the Evening.—Letter of Regret from the Governor.—What was Said in Response to the Toasts.

St. Patrick's day was celebrated in this city by a banquet given by the Ancient Order of Hibernians in Hangsterfer's hall. For the past few years these banquets have been a feature of St. Patrick's day in this city. They are always exceedingly pleasant social occasions and witty speeches follow the preliminary feast. These banquets are annually growing more popular and Tuesday night's banquet eclipsed all of its predecessors. Congressmen Gorman and Weadock were the guests of the evening and were received in the whole souled, hearty fashion usual with the sons of Erin. The committee on introduction found themselves unable to introduce many new faces to Congressman Gorman, however, for the congressman was in the house of his friends and acquaintances.

The reception from eight to ten was spent in social chat and, at ten about one hundred and seventy-five guests sat down to the well laden tables. The menu was an excellent one and Hangsterfer excelled himself in its preparation. After it had been intelligently and generously discussed, Toastmaster Edward Duffy tapped on the table and began his brief speech of welcome.

Toastmaster Duffy said on this the festival day of all festivals of the Irish people, it is meet that we should renew those bonds which hold us to each other and the father land. As we look along the dark history of the past we are forced to admire the courage of the Irish race. History fails to furnish greater stories of oppression. Wherever there has been a struggle for liberty, Ireland's sons have stood manfully and unflinchingly. The Irish soil belongs to the Irish people and her sons will never rest until they establish an Irish Congress for the Irish nation.

A telegram was read from Alfred J. Murphy, secretary of the senate, stating that duty prevented him from being present. A letter of regret was also read from William H. Hughes, editor of the Michigan Catholic.

W. E. Thompson responded to the toast "The Day We Celebrate."

"The yearly course which brings this day about shall never see it but a holiday."

Though many nations, he said, have signalized their regard for heroic action by instituting days and ceremonies, but few have come down to us in their original vigor. In spite of centuries of inflicted wrong and countless sacrifices, the natal day of him who was her national hero and patron saint is celebrated by Ireland's sons in every clime. He paid high tribute to the national aspirations of the Irish race. No Roman martyr ever faced the Numidian lions with more courage or heroism than Ireland's sons have faced the British lion. Ireland has in every age produced men who loved country better than life.

Daniel Dwyer responded happily to the toast "The Ladies."

"Age cannot wither her Nor custom stale her infinite variety."

He did not know why he had been selected to respond to the toast unless it was for the modesty which marked the medical profession. Woman is the temple around which we all gather to worship—some of us unfortunately. We owe much to her. If it had not been for Isabella of Spain, who aided Columbus after other courts had refused him, we could not have celebrated here tonight. But why go back so far? It is but a few days since that Miss Drexel, of Philadelphia, dedicated her fortune of $5,000,000 to good works. And doubtless there are many ladies in Michigan and Ann Arbor who would, if necessary, pledge their jewels to defend the rights of their country. What effect age has on her, we know not, but she never grows weary in doing acts of charity and good works.

Toastmaster Duffy announced that Gov. E. B. Winans, who was to have responded to the toast of the State of Michigan, was unable to be present on account of illness, and read a letter from the governor, which stated that until the last minute he had hoped to be able to attend.

W. B. O'Neill responded to "The University of Michigan."

"Here's to the college whose colors we wear, Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue!"

The toast seems appropriate for this festive day celebrated by the sons of a land which ever kept alive the lamps of learning. The University's halls are thronged with representatives of every clime. He drew a simile between the University and the Irish Universities, in which Science and Biblical knowledge, when banished from the continent, took refuge. Neither persecution, hostile legislation nor bigotry can deprive the Irishmen of their brightness of intellect or instinctive love of learning. To-day statistics tell that the percentage of illiteracy in Ireland is less than in any other country in Europe. He paid tribute to many distinguished Irish-Americans, and the names of the orator, Daniel Dougherty, and the poet, John Boyle O'Reilly were greeted with great applause. From the University of Michigan many Irish-Americans have gone forth to distinguished success in various walks of life.

Congressman Gorman, in responding to the toast "The United States of America,"

"Fair be all thy hopes And prosperous be thy life in peace and war," after various humorous references said: "In connection with this day it is proper to in some way connect this country with that island beyond the sea, which perhaps some of you left in younger days. You landed in this home of liberty, in this country formed of the one great principle, the greatest liberty to the individual compatible with good government. You came here as others, aliens, foreigners. You began building up what is now called the United States. You came in 1607. You came thirteen years later. And the one great principle inculcated in the minds of these foreigners, these pioneers, was the greater civil rights given, the greater the duty to protect those rights. Any nation which sought to abridge those rights found resolute warriors. Another great principle was that no man could take from you that which you did not willingly give. No man could take your hard earnings unless you felt it your duty to give! When the mother country attempted to abridge these rights, you went to battle with the firm determination to defend your home and rights, your liberty and property. The settlements joined hands for the better protection of the individual rights of each. We have grown rapidly and to-day are the peer of any nation on the earth. We are progressive, ingenious, skillful, industrious. We delight in the intercourse of society. We stand equal before the law. We know no class." He took issue of the statement that history repeats itself. We never again will occupy the same position as a hundred years ago, and who can tell when St. Patrick's day is celebrated 100 years from to-day, but what men will think we were more than a hundred years behind the times. He spoke of the great progress of invention and the danger of the control of the wealth of the country by a few men. The sentiment of liberty and justice can be relied upon to deliver us from many dangers. The recent trouble in New Orleans, while not a credit to American citizens, is but illustrative of the determination that society must be purged and the laws obeyed.

John V. Sheehan spoke to "The Irish American."

"Let all the ends thou aimest at be thy country's, Thy God's and Truth's."

Mr. Sheehan was decidedly humorous and related several anecdotes to liven up his discourse, which was very forcible and eloquent in parts. One striking feature of the Irish-American, he said, was the well known fact that when he came to this country he ceases to be Irish. The moment he arrives in New York, he becomes a policeman or an alderman. The German comes to this country to vote, but the Irish to hold office. They have come here to relieve our citizens of the burden of office holding. During the time of the Chinese riot when the cry was raised that the Chinese must go, a delegation waited upon the Celestial minister and said there is no use, we can't escape the vengeance of the Irishmen. They were told: "Emigrate to Ireland, that is the only country I know of that the Irish don't control." The exiled Irishman came to this country with no crank remedies for social disorders. Following close on the heels of the Spaniard was the ever present son of Erin to explore this continent. He was here to assist the boys of '76 and to avenge the wrong of ages against that cruel oppressor of his race. He was here to build railroads and canals. He was here to fight in the Mexican war. He was here in millions in '61 and marched boldly to the front. He is here today, fifteen millions or more, a mighty power in the land, and if ever called upon to repel foreign invasion, the mighty continent will echo to his tread.

Congressman T. A. E. Weadock, of Bay City, responded to the toast "The Ancient Order of Hibernians" whose motto is "Friendship, Unity and True Christian Charity." He found this place replete with old memories, as he had graduated here eighteen years ago. He found the worthy toastmaster to-day as he was eighteen years ago. Joe Donnelly's laugh was here as of old; the ladies were beautiful and fascinating then, they are the same to-day. He paid an eloquent tribute to the lamented, brave, true hearted Fr. Van Earp. The A. O. H. is a band of men associated together, who in this land preserve the memory of the land they left. There is no worthier motto than theirs. Well has it been said that this republic was established by the liberty-loving people of all nations. We bring here love of home, of friends and true charity. We have watched the progress of the struggle in Ireland and have held up the hands of the men who are fighting Ireland's battles. But we say to them now before you ask America for further help, you must get together and agree between yourselves. We want them to talk less about the harp and to do something for themselves. We want them to cease calling upon the policemen, which they have held up to infamy, to keep their opposing factions apart. When they come to us united again, they may expect the aid which their cause demands. These sentiments of the speaker were greeted with great and long continued applause.

The Chequamegon furnished the music of the occasion and did well. It was half-past one when the feast of words were over and the happy gathering dispersed.

The jury in the case of Smurthwaite vs. Thomas, for the recovery of $600 in gold, failed to agree.

The New Hospital.

Through the courtesy of Mr. H. Reeve, Jr., superintendent of the new hospital buildings now in process of construction, the DAILY is enabled to give a detailed account of their construction. They are situated on East Catherine street, about 100 feet north of the street. The allopathic building fronts north, toward the river, and is 210 feet in length. The south part contains two public wards, each 110 feet by 33 feet in size, capable of holding 48 patients. The middle portion is reserved for private wards, and will accommodate 30 patients. The amphitheatre and administration rooms occupy the north end, which is semi-circular in form, and measures 75 feet in diameter. The amphitheatre will seat between 400 and 500 persons. In the basement beneath the amphitheatre is found a kitchen, laundry, drying-room, coal-bin, and several bed-rooms. The basement underneath the central and southern portions is entirely unoccupied, but is to be plastered and kept clean.

The homeopathic building is situated about 100 feet west of this building, and is 22 feet lower owing to the slope of the ground. The central and southern portions have nearly the same form as those in the allopathic building, and contain two public wards, 73 feet by 33 feet, capable of accommodating 32 patients, and a private ward which will accommodate 8 patients. The front part is in the shape of a square, and is devoted to the same uses as the front portion of the allopathic building, but the amphitheatre is smaller, having seating capacity for only 250 persons. The whole length of this building is 178 feet.

The foundation walls of both buildings are four feet thick at the bottom and gradually narrowing to two feet six inches at the top. The outside brick walls are twenty inches in thickness. In both buildings there is an elevator for carrying patients from one floor to another. The boiler house, which will contain five boilers, is located to the northwest of the allopathic building, and has a chimney 92 feet high. The ground between the buildings and East Catherine street will be built up on terraces, and although it is of irregular and uneven nature, when graded up and leveled the grounds will present a picturesque and attractive appearance. The site, overlooking as it does the valley of the Huron, offers one of the best views to be seen in the vicinity of Ann Arbor.

Chamberlain & Austin, of No. 6, Beacon street, Boston, are the architects. The buildings have all the modern improvements in the shape of heating, ventilation, etc., and are modeled after the celebrated Johns Hopkins hospital, of Baltimore, which cost $3,000,000, and is one of the finest hospitals in the world. About 70 men are now employed, but progress is slow, owing to the changes in the weather. When completed the building will cost about $85,000, of which $10,000 will be for grading. The allopathic building will be ready for use next October, when college opens, but the homeopathic building will probably not be finished until a little later.—U. of M. Daily.

The Demorest medal contest at the town hall, last Friday night, was a good success. In spite of the stormy night, the hall was well filled, and everybody went away pleased with the evening's entertainment. The music was very fine and all the contestants acquitted themselves nobly, and were all deserving of a medal, but there was only one to give, which was awarded by the judges to Miss Luella Townsend, for her declamation on "A Barrel of Whisky." The award was just, while all the exercises were meritorious, and very creditable to those concerned.

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors," which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.

We'll write it down till everybody sees it
Till everybody is sick of seeing it
Till everybody knows it without seeing it—that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of chronic catarrh in the head, catarrhal headache, and "cold in the head."

In perfect faith, its makers, the World's Dispensary Medical Association of Buffalo, N. Y., offers to pay $500 to any one suffering from chronic catarrh in the head whom they cannot cure.

Now if the conditions were reversed—if they asked you to pay $500 for a positive cure you might hesitate. Here are reputable men, with years of honorable dealing; thousands of dollars and a great name back of them and they say—"We can cure you because we've cured thousands like you—if we can't we'll pay you $500 for the knowledge that there's one whom we can't cure."

They believe in themselves. Isn't it worth a trial? Isn't any trial preferable to catarrh?

JOB LAW SUPREME.

SLAUGHTER OF ITALIAN PRISONERS.

Eleven of Them Bludgeoned and Eddled, and Three of them Later Hanged—An Outbreak That Uncle Sam May Have to Pay For—Follow Countrymen of the Dead Men, at Home and Abroad, Demanding Reparation—The Italian Government Sends in a Vigorous Protest, and Secretary Blaine Telegraphs as Vigorously to Gov. Nichols.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 16.—Thirty-four years ago a political mob murdered a dozen or more Italians who were thought to have obtained too much influence in the politics of this city, and Saturday eleven more of the same nationality were slaughtered by a mob led by the "best citizens" because a duly authorized court and a jury selected with the greatest care did not find them guilty of the murder of Chief of Police Hennessey. The intention of the leaders of the movement to resort to mob law was announced boldly the night before; the preparations for the slaughter were made with deliberation; but notwithstanding this there was practically no attempt to prevent the mob from working its will. The mayor never gets to his office much before noon, and although he must have known the temper of the people and the danger of an uprising, he didn't hurry himself. In fact, the work was made as easy for the mob as it was possible without the officials bringing the prisoners out and delivering them up to death.

Leaders of the Mob.
J. C. Wickliffe and W. S. Parkerson, both prominent citizens, were the immediate leaders of the mob. The call for its meeting was issued the night before, and to said call the names of eighty-one citizens were appended—men in business, professional men, and all prominent in some walk of life. The mob collected around the statue of Henry Clay, where Parkerson made an address in which he called upon the citizens to avenge the death of Hennessey, and told them to bring their guns. This was about 10 o'clock a. m., and shortly thereafter the mob was on its way to the jail, many of its members having taken Parkerson's advice and armed themselves with shotguns and Winchester.

Little Trouble at the Jail.
When the jail was reached there was little trouble. There was no one there to uphold the majesty of the law. The gates were broken in speedily, and those with guns were admitted. The only effort to save the lives of the prisoners was the sending of them all to the woman's department, which was quickly invaded, and the wretched men shot down or bludgeoned mercilessly. Three of the prisoners had been ordered acquitted by judge, and others had not even been tried. The three ordered acquitted were spared, but the others to the number of eleven met the fate of death.

Amusement for Those Outside.
Those of the mob who had been admitted to the jail clamored to have a hand in the fun, and Politz, the prisoner who went crazy during the trial, was first shot and then dragged to the outer gate, where he was delivered to the mob, who fastened a rope around his neck and hauled his yet living body up to a lamp post, where, as it hung it was filled with bullets. Two others were treated in the same way, while the crowd yelled with delight. When the bloody work was done Parkerson asked the mob to disperse, and they did so, first carrying him in triumph on their shoulders for some distance up the street. One of the men lynched was quite a wealthy merchant—Macheco—and his connection with the murder of Hennessey was that he owned the house where the conspirators are said to have met the night of the murder.

Names of the Victims.
The names of the men who suffered death are as follows: Gerachi, Romero, Monastero, Caruso, Cometez, Trabina, Macheco, Scalfetto, old man Marchesi, Politz, and Bagnetto. They were absolutely defenseless, and their screams of terror were appalling when their slayers entered the room, which was soon converted into a slaughtering pen. A dozen reports rang out as the victims were pointed out to those who were detailed to do the killing, and in some cases the bodies were riddled with bullets. Three or four of the men were knocked in the head before being shot. Romero was shot to death as he knelt praying for mercy.

Vengeance Sated and Order Restored.
Half an hour after the events above recorded the mob had dispersed and order was restored. Around the jail a curious crowd of thousands was gathered, while at the newspaper offices other throngs stood around the bulletin boards waiting for the latest news. Nowhere was there a word of condemnation for the lawless work. Every one approved it, and the only thing that seemed to be regretted was that O'Malley, a detective who had been active in gathering evidence in favor of the prisoners, and who was Hennessey's mortal enemy, had not also been killed. But he had disappeared, and could not be found, or he probably would have made the twelfth victim.

A Reflection of Public Opinion.
The Times Democrat reflects public opinion in the following editorial: "This paralysis of justice was due neither to the incompetency of the police nor to the incapacity of the officials appointed to administer the laws; it was due to the settlement in New Orleans of lawless bands of men hailing mostly from southern Italy, who brought with them to this country of freedom and of free institutions the pernicious ideas and murderous methods which have planted conspiracy and assassination societies in their quondam home, and which enable the members of those societies to defy detection and laugh justice to scorn. The short, sharp, and decisive drama of yesterday had in it, moreover, a warning for another class, which it will do well not to disregard. We refer to the jury-fixers, who are experts in getting at talesmen and jurymen, and in filling the jury box, partially or wholly, with men pledged to consult, above all things, the interests of the criminals and to see that the convictions shall not be arrived at by juries against them."

Another Juror in Trouble.
Saturday morning Juror Livodiols walked into the Southern Pacific railroad office, where he was employed, and went to his desk. Immediately the other clerks in the office went to the chief in body and said that either Livodiols must leave the company's employment or they would. Livodiols was discharged.

INDORSED BY BUSINESS MEN.
Action of the Stock and Cotton Exchanges—Jurors Not Safe.

The cotton exchange met Saturday afternoon and unanimously adopted resolutions declaring that "While we deplore at all times the resort to violence, we consider the action by the citizens this morning to be proper and justifiable." Resolutions of similar purport were also adopted by the board of trade (produce exchange), the sugar exchange, and the stock exchange adopted a resolution expelling J. M. Seligman, one of the jurors in the case, and returning to him his dues for the past year. He was also expelled from the Young Men's Gymnastic club. Later, when at the railway station preparing to leave the city, Seligman was arrested by a mob of citizens, but the officials refused to hold him.

Facts About the Trial.
Hennessey was foully assassinated on the night of Oct. 16 last, being shot and mortally wounded as he was entering his home. He had been active in prosecuting Italian offenders, and in running down the alleged Mafia, and those who were said to be members of the society were held responsible for his death. Only one witness for the prosecution swore to any identification. He was at home across the street when the murder occurred, and the night was a dark, drizzly one, the only light being that of the street lamps. The testimony for the prosecution was almost entirely circumstantial, and the witnesses for the defense, which was an alibi, were much more numerous than those for the prosecution, absolutely nullifying the testimony for the state, unless it were assumed that they all perjured themselves. This the citizens and the mob readily assumed, although one of those swearing to an alibi for several of the prisoners was an American lawyer who was of counsel for the defense.

INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATIONS.

The Matter Taken up by the Italian Minister at Washington City.
WASHINGTON CITY, March 16.—The slaughter of Italians at New Orleans has been taken up by the Italian minister here, and yesterday Baron Fava formally brought it to the attention of the president. As a result Secretary Blaine sent the following despatch to Gov. Nichols last evening: "It has been represented to the president by the minister of Italy accredited to this government, that among the victims of the deplorable massacre which took place in the city of New Orleans yesterday were three or more subjects of the king of Italy. Our treaty with that friendly government (which under the constitution is the supreme law of the land) guarantees to the Italian subjects domiciled in the United States the most constant protection and security for their persons and property—making them amenable, on the same basis as our own citizens, to the laws of the United States and the several states, in their due and orderly administration."

A Regret and a Vain Hope.
"The president deeply regrets that the citizens of New Orleans should have so disparaged the purity and adequacy of their own judicial tribunals as to transfer to the passionate judgement of a mob a question that should have been adjudicated dispassionately and by settled rules of law. The government of the United States must give to the subjects of friendly powers that security which it demands for our own citizens when temporarily under a foreign jurisdiction. It is the hope of the president that you will co-operate with him in maintaining the obligations of the United States towards the Italian subjects who may be within the perils of the present excitement, that further bloodshed and violence may be prevented and that all offenders against the law may be promptly brought to justice."

A Serious Matter for Uncle Sam.
The fact that six of the accused Sicilians had been acquitted and the other three given a verdict of mistrial emphasizes in international law the outrageous nature of the mob's work. Whatever the failure of justice may have been, the only thing to be considered is the verdict of the jury, which relieves the accused persons of the stain of assassination. The knowledge of these facts causes the matter to be viewed in its most serious light in official circles here. Money damages will probably be demanded, and other reparation asked. The case is also aggravated by the fact that Baron Fava called Secretary Blaine's attention to the danger of mob law, at the time of Hennessey's murder, and, as it is stated, the secretary in turn called the attention of the Louisiana authorities to the same fact.

The Sort of Reparation Possible.
Just what further steps, if any, will be taken by the president beyond the mere disapproval of mob violence, as evidenced by the tone of Secretary Blaine's dispatch to Governor Nichols, cannot be yet ascertained. Among congressmen and diplomats who have given such matters some attention, it is thought that the only reparation that can be obtained is, possibly, damages by the wives or relatives of the dead Italian subjects from the municipal government of New Orleans for not protecting the persons of individuals—aliens—who, at the time they met their death, were temporarily at least in the custody of the municipal authorities of that city.

INDIGNATION AMONG ITALIANS.

A Profound Sensation in Rome—Americans in Danger of Mob Law.

LONDON, March 16.—A dispatch from Rome says that the news of the massacre of Italian prisoners in New Orleans did not become generally known in that city until yesterday morning. It created a profound sensation, and cables have been passing between the cabinet and the Italian minister at Washington City. The general feeling is one of the utmost indignation and thirst for reprisals in some form. An English visitor who was mistaken for an American had a narrow escape from being mobbed. It is expected that the subject will be brought up in the chamber of deputies.

Will Keep Italy Away from the Fair.
Count Rasponi, of the Italian legation in Paris, expressed himself in very strong terms on what he called the cruel massacre of his countrymen. He said Italy could not afford to let such an outrage on humanity go without redress, and that it was a stain on the American people that could never be effaced. He added, that in his own personal opinion, it ended all prospects of Italy taking part in the Chicago exhibition. The count was very excited. He also said that he had no doubt that if the men had been guilty they would have been convicted, as the jury would not have dared to acquit them.

Instructions to Baron De Fava.
The Italian cabinet has instructed by cable the Italian minister at Washington City, Baron De Fava, to protest vehemently against the murder of Italians in the prison at New Orleans. Baron Fava has enabled in reply that he had presented the protest to the government of the United States, and received in reply the promise that full satisfaction would be given.

IN GOVERNMENT CIRCLES.
Statement in the Italian Parliament—Blaine Bears from Nichols.

ROME, March 17.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday Marquis Di Rudini, the Italian prime minister, made a statement with regard to the killing in New Orleans. The premier informed the chamber that the Italian government had taken prompt cognizance of the affair, and had at once placed itself in communication with the American government through the Italian minister at Washington, Baron De Fava. In response to its representations the Italian government had received the assurance that President Harrison recognized the right of Italians resident in the United States to the protection of the government and laws of that country. This assurance was accompanied by an expression of the profound regret felt by the president for the unfortunate occurrence.

Italy's Power in Case of War.
It is stated that orders were given yesterday to suspend the directions previously given for diminishing the active force of the navy. Without any doubt the Italian navy is now one of the finest in the world, and could easily block entrance to the Mediterranean to any power except France or England, while sending swift sailing cruisers to every ocean to prey on the commerce of an enemy. As to the Italian commerce, it is largely confined to the Mediterranean.

COMMENT AT HOME AND ABROAD.

Chicago Ministers Hesitate to Denounce Mob Law—Press Opinions.

CHICAGO, March 17.—A meeting of Methodist clergyman hesitating to denounce mob law was the spectacle presented in Chicago yesterday at the regular weekly meeting of the clergy of that denomination. This body is generally not slow at putting its opinions on record in regard to any matter affecting public morals in any degree. Yesterday Rev. F. M. Bristol and four other ministers presented a set of resolutions declaring that, though the body deplored the failure of justice in the courts, either in New Orleans or elsewhere, lynch law is utterly abhorrent to free institutions.

Dr. Bland was very much opposed to the passing of such a resolution. "When the law will not take care of a lot of murderers, it's time the people did something." He further deprecated any hasty action on the part of the meeting, and wanted to wait awhile until both sides of the question could be heard. Revs. E. H. H. and Goodwin also opposed action, and finally the resolution was referred to a committee, upon which Revs. Bristol and Church, who signed the resolution, refused to serve, while Dr. Bland, the most persistent opposer of action, was made a member thereof, and the matter was postponed for a week.

The New York Editors.
NEW YORK, March 17.—The press of this city is unanimous in declaring that the act of the New Orleans mob was bad policy, the Tribune being most severe in its denunciation. It says: "The more the New Orleans murders are investigated the worse the whole transaction appears. * * * The very violence of assertion and vituperation by the leaders of the mob goes far to create the impression that their own minds were not free from doubt. This is particularly true in regard to the alleged bribery of the jury. If any evidence exists that such a crime was committed, that evidence has not yet been transmitted by telegraph." Editorial expressions in The Times, Sun and World are rather deprecatory than denunciatory, and go on the principle that mob law "does not pay."

English Newspaper Opinions.
LONDON, March 17.—The press of this city has varied views as to the New Orleans mob. The St. James Gazette is deprecatory, and says: "It is all very dreadful, but quite just. Only one thing is more dreadful than this execution. That is that the crime is justified by the facts." The Pall Mall Gazette asks: "If you scratch an American has it come to mean that you will find a savage Indian? It is not uninteresting to note the irony of the fact that this wholesale lynching is coincident with the proclamation of the world's fair bidding all nations to come to the celebration of American civilization." The Globe reverts to the proclamation of the World's fair, which it quotes, and proceeds as follows: "None of the effete monarchies of Europe can compete with these new revelations of American civilization. Lynch law, which is peculiarly an American institution, should have its tribunal erected in Chicago, where the Anarchists were treated much after the same manner."

The Star is of the opinion that "the impressive feature of the New Orleans affair was the perfect orderliness maintained throughout the proceedings. Here, champions of law and order stand aghast at such proceedings. The American democracy has sounder notions as to what law and order really means."

Carried Away by a Whirlwind.
WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 18.—While James Pollock and son were riding in a carriage from Dallas Monday they were overtaken by a whirlwind, and the men and carriage were lifted bodily and carried some distance and thrown against the trees. Each of the men weighed above 200 pounds, and both were badly injured.

Commissioner Groff Resigns.
WASHINGTON CITY, March 16.—Commissioner Groff, of the general land office, has tendered his resignation, but it has not yet been accepted by the president. His sole reason for resigning, he says, is failing health.

THE NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.

DESIRE TO SAY
That THE NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY was incorporated by the Legislature of Vermont in 1848. Its existence practically covers the whole history of Life Insurance in America, as the oldest company wrote its first policy in 1843. Hon. Henry Clay, of Kentucky; Hon. Amos Abbott, of Massachusetts; Hon. Alex. Ramsey, of Pennsylvania were among the incorporators. That during the forty years of its successful experience, it has passed through the cholera epidemic of 1854, the financial panics of 1857 and 1873, as well as the ordeal of the Civil War. These were periods when corporations and individuals were tried to their utmost capacity. On every side were failures, large and small, but the NATIONAL came out with a record of solid prosperity, and not a scar to mark the greatest financial disturbances ever known in this country. Its policy contracts, therefore possess all the security and permanence that stability and successful experience can guarantee.

That it wrote in MICHIGAN during the year 1888 $74,000, and during the year 1889 $752,000, which was the largest per cent. of gains during said year by any company in Michigan. No company writes a more satisfactory policy, writing in the face of each policy three guarantees:

FIRST.—A paid-up policy.
SECOND.—A cash surrender for each year after the third.
THIRD.—An extended insurance which provides for all emergencies that may overtake anyone between youth and old age.

Nobody Wanted Him.

Last evening a well dressed man of apparently thirty-five, was found crying on the steps of a South Main street block, and was taken into Werner & Brenner's. As his cries did not cease, and nothing could be discovered as to the reason of them, the jail was telephoned to and Turnkey McCabe took him to the jail and gave him a bed. He apparently heard nothing that was said to him, although spoken to in both English and German, and uttered no sound except that of sobbing. A pencil was given him, but he would not write. He cried himself to sleep. He had twenty-six cents and a number of letters addressed him in German. This morning he was still crying. Dr. Kapp came down to see him. He was dumb, but wrote an excellent hand, and stated he was from Wisconsin, had no place to go and nobody wanted him.

The success of the Limited Mail is remarkable, and the sole reason for this is that never before was anything like it produced on the stage. No wonder it has packed houses, for in this play realism reaches its highest point. You see the mighty train of cars drawn by a locomotive sending forth smoke and cinders. You see also the telegram flashed across the wire in letters of fire. You see the saw mill in operation with its circular saw four feet in diameter. All these effects are brought about by the finest stage mechanism in use.

A NEW ERA.

Are you rich?
Do you own a library?
Or would you like to be rich and own a library?
We will tell you how it can be done.

This is an age of progression. An age in which the intellectual development of man has not a parallel in the annals of history. In the spring of the year 1771, in Edinburgh, there was compiled and issued the first edition of Encyclopædia Britannica, in three volumes, and as demanded by the advancement of the arts and sciences, editions followed in succession until the completion of the last and ninth edition in December, 1889, in twenty-four volumes and general index, with an average of 850 pages to the volume.

The Encyclopædia Britannica is the original and model upon which all other works of the same class have been based, and it is now, as it always has been, beyond comparison; superior to all similar compilations. The thoroughness with which it has been edited, and the eminent talent employed in the preparation of its leading articles placing it beyond the reach of rivalry. The original edition of this work, issued by A. and C. Black, is sold in this country to-day for $8, in cloth, and $10 in half Russia, per volume. The same work, bound by Chas. Scribner's Sons, is sold at $5 in cloth and $7 in half Russia.

The same work issued by J. W. Stoddart & Co., under the title of "The American Reprint," is sold at the same price as the Scribner edition. In the early part of the year 1887, there appeared what is now known as the "Allen Edition" or "Photo Edition" of the Encyclopædia Britannica. It is reduced in size, and in many other ways unsatisfactory as compared with former editions. In this connection, justice to the reader demands that we briefly notice a work entitled, "Americanized Encyclopædia Britannica," as published by Belford, Clark & Co. It is the plan of the publishers of this work to use the reputation of some newspaper to sell it as a premium to the paper, such as, Free Press, of Detroit; Pioneer Press, of St. Paul, etc. In the language of a recent issue of a literary review: * * * "It is an imposition, an impostor and a fraud—a mangled thing having not only no value in itself, but possessing elements of itself and positive injury by its silence and omissions." * * * They say: "The extensive articles on," "proves false. We find Astronomy cut down from 80 pages to 20; Anatomy, from 110 to 20 pages; Architecture, from 94 to 24; etc. The same is true of Biography. We find the biography of Benjamin Franklin cut from 8 pages to 3½; Horace Greely, from 2½ to 1, etc. "Americanized indeed! The same lopping off process is used in nearly all American subjects, for no other purpose than to save space. The absurdity of a few obscure Chicago literary hacks revising and amending the Encyclopædia Britannica is too glaring to require an extra comment. It is published in 10 small volumes, and in this work it can be truly said, the "Britannica" exists only in the advertiser's fancy.

In March, 1890, there appeared vol. 1 of the genuine Ninth Edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica, with new maps and original American articles, published by R. S. Peale & Co.

This work they completed in November of the same year, and sold through the trade in that time nearly 25,000 complete sets, at $1.50 per volume.

That of itself is sufficient guarantee of the public's appreciation.

In January, 1891, finding a demand for a fine, wide-margin edition for an exclusive subscription sale, they have issued one of this character, on a fine-toned paper, elegantly printed and corrected to date. This work is in many ways superior to any student heretofore issued, as any student will, after having seen it, readily testify.

It is only the unequalled facilities for manufacturing and unparalleled sale of their first edition that enables them to present this edition so that the masses of our American people can secure this wonderful library in a style and at a price which will please all and place this great king of encyclopedias within the reach of every family.

By the practice of economy we become rich. True economy is found in buying the best and for the least money, and when one owns the Britannica he has in his possession the literary achievements of the world's greatest writers.

We are authorized to offer this great work for a short time at a price and in a way never before reached.
