The question seemed immaterial to him. 'Oh," he said, "yellows is only a name for it." It is to be hoped that radical measures will be taken to root out the dread disease which has made its first appearance in this county this year.

The Maccabees at Jackson.

Arbor tent, No. 296, of this city, went to Jackson last Tuesday morning, to take part in the Great Camp Jubilee, headed by the Chelsea band and accompanied by the tent donkey used in initiatory work. Nearly everybody was at the depot to see them off, and a large number of citizens took advantage of the low railroad fare on the special train and accompanied the tent to Jackson, filling fourteen cars to their utmost capacity-so full, in fact, that the train ran right through to Jackson without taking any more passengers between here and that city, except at Dexter. Arbor tent went up with the intention of capturing the first prize for the largest number of members in line in the great parade on Tuesday, and the prize is now in her hands. In the evening the Ann Arbor Knights secured all the tin horns that Jackson contained, and, as the Patriot says, 'Between the tooting on these instruments of torture and the braying of their donkey, the night was made decidedly hideous." James Russell Lowell, the poet, scholar and diplomat, died yesterday morning at his birthplace, Cambridge, Mass., after a long illness. He had reached the ripe age of 72 years, having spent a life of ceaseless literary activity, and the work he accomplished will ever remain as a monument to his scholarly attainments and lofty character.

THE death of George Jones, which occurred yesterday at Poland Springs, Me., removes one of the landmarks of American journalism. He was born 79 years ago and enjoyed the life-long friendship of a matter of fact, and in justice to Horace Greeley. "We love him for the enemies he has made," is a celebrated remark applied with great force in a speech nominating Grover Cleveland for the presidency. It evidently cannot be used by the admirers of Blaine, or at least they cannot love Blaine for the friends he has. The two men who are most active in support of Blaine's nomination in 1892 are Quay and Dudley, the two most unscrupulous and dishonest politicians of the day, the former branded as using state money for private purposes and the latter of unsavory blocks of five memory. Why is it that the cormorants and vultures gather around Blaine?

dealers, and received the answer, on record. This was on the night of November 12, and was visible all over the Atlantic states and over part of Mexico, and the West India Islands. Sweetly: stringent license laws for hawkers, peddlers, etc., and the fact that the licenses are placed so high makes the ordinances worthless. South Lyon, for instance, has just passed an ordinance requiring peddlers who travel with one horse to pay a license of $10 the first day and $5 for subsequent days, and for twohorse peddlers a license of $15 for the first day and $10 the second. The ordinance is worthless. The license is so high as to amount to practical prohibition of peddling. This the law will not permit. Licenses cannot be used for prohibiting purposes. They can only be sustained as police regulations.

No thanks are due the McKinley bill or the republican party for the great crops and the improved foreign demand. The revolution of time has brought a favorable season, and our granaries are bursting not any legislation but because the elements have been unusually propitious this year. And it will be noted that the "home market" does not absorb our wheat, but that the farmer is saved by the foreign demand. If he gets a good price this year It will be because Europe wants his surplus, and she would want it just as badly if he were not taxed an average of 57 per cent. on everything he buys from American manufacturers. If it were not for McKinleyism, however, the been intended by her from the beginmoney which the American farmer will receive for the wheat he sends abroad would go very much further than it will.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The source whence the meteors came was thus shown to be independent of the earth's rotation and exterior to our atmosphere. As computed by Prof. Denison Olmstead, of New Haven, it could not have been less than 2,238 miles from the earth.

"Humboldt, with other observers, noticed the great brilliancy of the aurora borealis during the fall of the meteors. Prof. Olmstead early suggested that the meteors probably emanate from a nebulous body which revolves round the sun in an elliptical orbit, the aphelion of which meets the earth at the time of the annual exhibitions.

Arago adopted a similar view to that time.

On the first of May last the employes of the Knickerbocker Machine Works, of Jackson, asked for a nine-hour day. which, after a friendly conference with the company, was granted, on the understanding that it should be tried as an experiment, and if not satisfactory to employers and workmen, the former status should be resumed. The latest reports show that the results have been mutually satisfactory, and that more work has been turned out in nine hours 31 S. Main Street. than formerly in ten. The same wages were paid the men as when the ten hour day was in vogue. This goes to show that the shorter day desired by workmen all over the country should be adopted, and that it would be an advantage to all concerned.

POSSIBILITIES REGARDING FUTURE FLYING MACHINES.

How Vast Navies and Expensive Land Fortifications Might Be Rendered Useless-Antiquity of the Idea of Flying. Some Schemes of the Ancients.

Regarding the rate of propulsion of the future flying machine, Professor J. Elfteth Watkins, the distinguished mechanical expert, declares that it simply depends upon the size of the propeller used and the rate at which the fans are revolved. mont, are visiting J. A. Alber, of In his opinion the old theory that the atmosphere was too tenuous a medium for a propeller to act upon has been demonstrated to be nonsense. Sufficient resistmaking the trial." ance is offered by it to render possible an enormous speed, so that it would not be too much to surmise that a properly constructed air ship might accomplish the distance between Chicago and New York within an hour's time.

Necessarily, however, there would be a duced, pleasing to the taste and achas been the guest of Miss Lillie limit to rapidity of flight, inasmuch as a positive and the guarantee propeller ceases to propel after a certain number of revolutions per second has been reached. It is open to any one's observation that a vessel's propeller, operating in the water, often revolves much faster when the craft is moving slowly than when it is going fast.

Attention was called by Mr. Hazen to the tremendous revolution which the introduction of practical air ships would work in the methods of offense and defense in war. Fortifications, on which it is suggested that Uncle Sam shall expend $20,000,000 as soon as possible, would be of little use against flying machines that could drop dynamite and other explosives from aloft. Likewise ships of war, however heavily armored, would be at the mercy of hostile aerial navigators.

Those who fought around the lady were dragged away. She was roughly seized, and such a tugging and hauling ensued that, had she not been to the manner born, she must have been rent in pieces. At last but one young man, a secret admirer of the lady, retained his hold. An active young fellow, he had so twisted his hands and arms into the girl's hair, and fought so vigorously with his legs, that he could not be removed until he was knocked down senseless.

The contest ended, and the bride being borne in triumph to the canoes, both parties proceeded to pick up their weapons and smooth their feathers. Everything had been conducted in the most honorable and satisfactory manner.—Lieutenant Colonel A. B. Ellis in Popular Science Monthly.

A Wonderful Sense of Smell.

The buzzard's wonderful sense of smell is a curious subject that has often been. discussed, the discussion of the matter having resulted in a general uniformity of opinion among scientists that they locate their food by their sense of smell alone. C. L. Hopkins, the noted biologist, says that he has noticed that in Florida they never leave the roots where the night is spent, especially on damp, foggy mornings, until the moisture has been dried by the sun. They then move slowly across the wind until a "scent" is struck, when they move more slowly "up the wind" until the carrion is located. Sometimes they will drift down the wind past their prey, until they have struck the scent, which they follow up until they have found the object of their search, sometimes in the densest thickets. Mr. Hopkins says that he has upon several occasions killed wild hogs in the thickets, and after dressing them and taking what meat he wished would see twenty or more buzzards coming down with the wind. On one occasion they had discovered some animal remains he had covered | pinned the beautiful girl fast! up, and on another had found a dead snake which he had buried.—St. Louis Republic.

The Old and New Way of Scouring Wool. tubs, much as our wives and daughters scour our clothes today. In the hand washing of wool, a tub was filled with the suds, in which one or two men with long poles stirred the wool until clean, when they lifted it upon a traveling apron, which carried it between a pair of rollers which squeezed out the water. The same principle is applied in the automatic scouring now in vogue.

Great forks or rakes seize the wool as it is carried by rollers from a feeding apron into the iron tanks, and by alternating motions of their teeth give it a thorough scouring. Thus cleansed, the wool is delivered by rollers to the drying machines, where hot air and great fans are now utilized to extract all the moisture without tearing the fiber.—S. N. D. North in Popular Science Monthly.

A Learned Jewess.

Eve Cohen Bacharach was born in Prague in the latter part of the Sixteenth century. The mother, who was a "woman of great knowledge," carefully educated the daughter, and together they took great delight in studying rabbinical literature. The most abstruse works written by the learned men among her people were thoroughly appreciated by the youthful pupil. Later in life her explanations of the "festival and penitential prayers" were listened to with rare pleasure. She was, it is recorded, in "Aramaic translations and paraphrases on the Bible quite at home." "No less marked was her proficiency in Hebrew, which she read and wrote with ease and elegance.'

Will Eat in Heaven.

We cannot discuss the subject of heaven with editors who show by their statements that they have never studied the question of the resurrection. Our bodies will be material after the resurrection. This is an article of faith. Heaven is a material place. The object of the resurrection is to reward the body for its partnership in the good done by the soul in the flesh. It shall have bodily enjoyments after the resurrection. Will eating and drinking be one of them? We think so. Why not!—Western Watchman.

The circumstances were these: In August, 1863, when the Philadelphia brigade was moving toward Mine Run, Va., I was detailed from my command, lieved to be a spy.

In order to throw him off his guard and also to enable me to learn the better whether he was a spy or not, I was instructed to report at his house, on the ment thought of giving up the fair cause | Mountain View farm, in Fauquier county, and state that I had come there by the pa poured both parties—the Mania to command of Colonel W. Penn Smith, in rally round the girl; the Ngatiroa, except in order to protect his home from any the small party expressly told off to straggling soldiers that might trespass with a view to foraging on the premises.

I was well received by the family, who, living in that out of the way country, were quite timid and in constant fear of the passing troops. I was housed there, and fed at their expense, and soon I realized that the hospitality of Virginia's first families was all that it was reported to be. The two pretty girls, sisters, one a blonde and the other a brunette, were at first a little shy of the "wild Yankee," as they called me, but we soon became friends, however, although they would persist in telling me the Confederate cause was just, and that the Union troops were invaders, and all that sort of thing.

The Mountain View farm covered a good many acres of ground, but the owner was poor at that time, and "sweet sixteen," as I called the pretty blonde, had no shoes with which to cover her well shaped little feet. Now I had a brand new pair of army shoes in my knapsack and a fairly good pair on my feet. I asked her if she would wear my new pair if I would make her a present of them. She seemed a little loath to accept them at first, not because of pride, but because she thought it unfair to take them from a soldier who might soon stand in need of them himself. But at last she did accept them, and was real well pleased to do so. Of course, they were a mile too big for her, but that didn't matter. She soon got used to

It used to be her custom to watch for foraging soldiers and then to send me after them to drive them away. One morning she said: "Oh, Yank! there is a forager out there. Don't you see him? There he goes under the trees over there." I started out after the intruder, but I ran all over the part of the farm indicated without seeing any one. It was very warm, and I was very warm and tired when I returned. On seeing her I told her that I could find no one, when she laughed right in my face and said:

"I just fooled the wild Yank for fun." It was fun for her, but not for me. However, I laughed with her. Just then I put my gun down on the ground, as was my habit, bayonet downward, intending to stick it into the ground and thus let the piece stand reversed, but instead of that I stuck it through her shoe and

But I often thought about that family, especially of one member, in my marches and in later years, but I never met again with any member of it. #### —Philadelphia Press. Intelligence in Mice.

The organs of hearing and smelling in mice are very efficient; but their eyesight is, we believe, poor. Their intelligence is, we should think, low, as might be expected from the paucity of convolutions in their brains. We suspended a tin of flour at such a height from the ground that our little friends could not quite jump into it, though the smell of the food made them very persevering in their endeavors to do so. We then arranged a string so that by a detour they could get at the good stuff that way.

One mouse by following that course attained to the desired goal, but evidently by chance, for being startled out of the tin, it continued for a long while to make futile efforts to recover its lost position by jumping up, never again seeking the road which had led it before to the object of its desire. For hours we have lain in bed watching mice trying in vain to spring into the tin of flour, none of them ever perceiving that there was a feasible road leading thereto .--Chambers' Journal.

A Valuable Set of Vestments.

A famous old set of vestments now in the cathedral sacristy was a gift to the late Archbishop Hughes. On these vestments, which were of the finest gold cloth, was worked the archbishop's coat of arms. They were embroidered in gold and incrusted with jewels. This set comprises vestments for twelve priests besides the archbishop. It is valued at $20,000, and was imported from Lyons. Archbishop Corrigan wears these vest-ments occasionally.—New York Herald.

Judge of Probate, William G. Potty, Probate Register.

On the sist day of March, A. D. 1883, John Lynn mortgaged to Abner P. Wilcox all that certain piece, or parcel of land situate in the township of Augusta in the county of Washtenaw and State of Michigan, described as follows to wit: "The south half of the east half of the north-east quarter of section thirty-six," to secure the purchase money of said described lands. Said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county on the 29th day of May, 1885, in liber 65 of mortgages on page 497. Default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage by the non-payment of the moneys due thereon by which the power of sale therein contained has become operative. There is now claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of eight hundred and eighty-six and 90-100 dollars and no proceedings at law or in chancery have been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof. Notice is therefore hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and of the statute in such case made and provided. I shall sell the said premises above and in said mortgage described at public auction to the highest bidder on Saturday the 15th day of August, 1891, at one o'clock in the afterneon at the south front door of the Court House, in the city of Ann Arbor in said county, to make and satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, the cost and charges of this foreclosure and sale and twenty-five dollars attorney fee as provided for in said mortgage.

"New York has a big standing army, Fred Wildt, of Detroit, son of fruit standing army, I mean," said a neelate Emanuel Wildt, was here woman the other day, "and I know of be procured at one corner, anyway, of almost every block of buildings in the town, and at all seasons of the year. These open air fruit stands do an immense trade in the aggregate, I am sure, and paying low rents as their owners do. they are able to sell fruit more cheaply than people who keep regular fruit stores and pay proportionate rents.

'Such a merchant, when he thinks of his landlord's bill, must often envy the poor man who sells just as good fruit Agricultural Company, has gone to across the way under the cover of an Pennsylvania and the East on busi- awning or an umbrella, and is able to set a cheaper price on his commodities, because his expenses are so small.

"I have often thought, however, that merchants who keep fruit stores might would provide tables and seats where their customers could sit and devour the fresh fruit when they buy it. Many people are attracted by the sight of purple grapes, rosy cheeked peaches or mellow pears as they pass by the windows where the fruits are displayed, who long to sink their teeth in the luscious things, and yet do not like to do so in the street and cannot be bothered carrying the fruit home. Moreover, they do not feel B. F. Watts has been recreating like buying enough to make it worth while sending it home, so they pass on

"If one goes into a restaurant and orders fruit, one pays a big price for it, too big; but if I, for one, could buy luscious ripe fruit at all seasons of the year in this way at the ordinary rates, I would be only too glad to eat it on the spot, standing up at a plain, unvarnished luncheon counter if need be."—New York Tribune.

A Pickle That Was Not Eaten. "My most embarrassing experience," repeated the young lady thoughtfully. "Well, as nearly as I can remember, it was connected with a pickle. Wycliffe could not go to the original texts, so he translated from the Vulgate, or accepted Latin version. It was not a perfect performance; but the reformer was prevented by death from revising it, as he doubtless intended to do.

The revision, therefore, was undertaken by John Purvey, and completed in 1388. It is curious that the whole of Wycliffe's Bible was not printed as one

From a Pennsylvania factory has been procured a peculiar description of wire webbing made of interlocking steel spirals which is remarkably flexible and strong. It bears some resemblance to old fashioned chain armor, and it is proposed to use curtains of this material to protect gun-ners behind shields from fragments of exploding shells. The resisting quality of the netting is believed to be equal to a solid plate of steel an inch thick.—Ex-
