The Tax Rate for Next Year-The County Expenditures for the Past Two Years The December Jurors.

Our Taxes This Year.

The tax rate in Ann Arbor city this year will be $14.30 on the thous and dol'ars or eighty cents on a thousand dollars higher than last year. The county tax to be paid this year is higher than last year, being nearly double. The tax for building the bridge over the Huron is also an addition. The city tax is five mills, the same as last year, with the tax for the hospital bonds and the bridge tax additional. The rates on $1,000 assessment are, state $1.30; county, $1.10; city, $6.50; school, $5.40. The total amount of taxes to be raised this year is $88,400.87, of which $14, 859.82 is state and county; $40,-361.05, city; and $33,180, school.

Broke into a Store.

Burglars cut a hole in the glass in the back door of F. T. Stimson's grocery store, Monday night, and reaching through turned the key and opened the door. Once inside, they pocketed what change was in the drawer, $6.02, and filling their pockets with cigars, left the same way that they hangers-on about Ann Arbor who never work and yet always have money enough to keep drunk, and the officers are suspicious of these parties as being the ones who are responsible for the numerous petty burglaries and sneak thieving jobs which have occurred in this city and the authorities are now keeping them under surveillance.

Accidentally Killed His Son.

One of the saddest accidents we have this country. chronicled in a long time occurred in Salem, Wednesday forenoon. The Salem correspondent of the Detroit Tribune in a dispatch dated Wednesday afternoon, thus briefly describes the Samuel Wilkinson, a farmer living two miles northwest of Salem, accidentally shot and killed his oldest son, aged fourteen, this forenoon. They were in the woods counting ties, when Mr. Wilkinson, who had a gun in his hand, caught the hammer on a tie, accidentally discharging it, the contents striking his son in the head, blowing the top of his head off and killing him instantly. The father is nearly crazed by the terrible accident.

Killed at Ypsilanti.

The first accident in constructing the Ypsilanti sewers occurred last Saturday afternoon, shortly after four o'clock and proved fatal. James Sloan, a young unmarried man from Milan, who was at work shoveling in the ditch on South Huron street, was the victim of the accident. While he and a companion were covering the pipes which had been placed in the ditch about fifteen feet below the surface, the bank caved in and the sheeting on the west side of the ditch gave way. Sloan's companion jumped but Sloan was caught, the sheeting pressing against him and the dirt falling upon it. The sheeting crushed in his lung near the heart and he was killed instantly. The coroner's jury decided that no blame for the accident attached to anyone. Sloan was 21 years old.

The Burglar Will be given at the Grand opera house, Monday evening, Nov. 16. This famous play, originally produced at the Madison Square theatre, New York, and for the past two seasons entour throughout the country, is one of those uniquely touching comedy dramas whose theme is drawn from ordinary daily occurrences, and hightened by the discovery that a reputed member of society is a famous burglar. Suspected and accused, he disappears for a while; but after an interval during which he is supposed to have died, he reappears and is eventually caught robbing his own wife's residence, although at the time its occupants are unknown to the burglar. The remarkable midnight interview between the precocious child and the robber has no counterpart in the annals of dramatic history.

The auditor's every scene is wrought to a high tension while every emotion alternately played upon, make the scene one of absorbing interest. This play has been received with great favor, and has drawn large houses wherever produced.

The following jurors were drawn, yesterday, to serve during the De cember term of the circuit court, and ordered to appear on December 8: D. F. Schairer, John Haarer, Simon Meyers, John Kress, S.G. Hossack, and John Ferdon; G. G. Luick, Ann Arbor town; J. F. Fowler, Augusta; Christian Saley and C. Ernst, Bridgewater; Godfrey Lutzer and Patrick Rabbitt, Dexter; Frank Koebbe, Freedom; F. Widemeyer, Lima; M. Grosshans, Lodi; Daniel McLaughlin, Lyndon; Frank Stantz, Manchester; E. Brokaw, Northfield; Fred Hutzel, Pittsfield; Geo. Nelson, Salem; B. W. Forbes, Saline; William Cunningham, Scio; F. J. Gillette, Sharon; Fred Smith, Superior; M. B. Millspaugh, Sylvan; J. C. Bleicher, Webster; S. V. Hitchcock, York; F. Hiscock, Ypsilanti town; S. B. A Well Desrved Compliment.

The Boston Musical Herald for November pays Prof. Stanley's work in this community a well deserved compliment, which is of all the more value because of the very high standard of the Musical Herald in musical criticism, which is recognized in all musieal circles. The notice is also extremely complimentary to Ann Arbor. It is as follows: There is a fine enthusiasm in college circles at Ann Arbor towards music. The University has established a most thorough course in musical science, history and aesthetics, and the zeal of Albert Stanley is making it popular. There is connected with the University a Choral Union, which stands sponser for a varied course of concerts, all of a high character, upon which the whole community relies. Each year under Mr. Stanley, the standard of taste and execution at Ann Arbor University has advanced until it is possible to announce awork like Berlioz's "Faust" without fear of an inadequate performance. While it is true that Ann Arbor is the Uni versity of Michigan and the Univer sity of Michigan is Ann Arbor, the fact remains that so far as public achievement, is concerned the situation there is without a parallel in last Monday evening, in the Unity club course, was very instructive and was delivered to a large audience. Mrs. Stone visited Egypt three times. She selected as the greatest points of interest in her lecture, Alexandria, Cairo, the pyramids, Suez canal and the Nile to the first Cataract. To know Egypt rightly, she said, was a study of years. The approach to Alexandria fills the mind with grand conceptions of its ancient glory. In fact it is a new birth into the past. In speaking of the tropical climate she remarked that the nights were of short duration but the sunshine of the morning was beyond description. She graphically described the oriental marts, where all kinds of trades were carried on and the streets were filled with heavily laden camels, with burdens so oppressive that the camels actually shed tears. Cairo is far more Egyptian than Alexandria. It has a mosque university with 12,000 students in attendance. The professors stand leaning against a pillar while lecturing and a number of them are lecturing at the same time in the same audience room. Mrs. Stone, with her young lady students, went to the top of the great pyramid and while there had the extreme pleasure of meeting Emperor Dom Pedro and his amiable The emperor expressed himself as highly pleased with the American co-educational system and said he expected to visit this country.

Phil. Whitman read a very interesting paper on his sojourn in the desolate regions of Sonora, Mexico. The audi nee were also greatly delighted by violin and piano selections by Mr. Bilbie and Miss Gwinner.

Light Infantry Reception.

Wednesday evening, the handsome new reception parlors and club rooms of The Ann Arbor Light Infantry were thrown open, the occasion being an informal reception given to the honorary corps and their ladies by the company. The rooms and the armory are large and spacious and it is fortunate that they are, for the rooms were taxed by the nearly five hundred guests who were present. The gallery in the armory was filled as were 250 chairs lining the sides of the armory, while a number were unable to obtain seats during that part of the evening's program, which took place in the armory.

Col. Dean, S. W. Beakes and Z. Roath, of the company board of control, together with the officers and a detail of ten men, received the guests and escorted them through the various rooms, from whence they passed to the armory above.

At 8:30 the Infantry presented itself for inspection, 37 men being in line, besides: the five sergeants and the three commissioned officers. Every particle of dust had been brushed from the old uniforms and every button and other metal part of the uniform sented his company to Major Millard, of the 1st. Infantry, for inspection, that official with Adjutant Baxter, of the 4th. Infantry, then making a thorough inspection of the members, their uniforms and arms, finding them without blemish. This ceremony occupied about half an hour, after which Capt. Hiscock attempted to give a short exhibition drill, but owing to the large number of men in line and the small space reserved for drilling, was able to make but few movements. Later, however, Lieut. Armstrong chose seventeen men, none of whom with the exception of four, had ever handled a gun until the organization of the present company, and gave the assemblage a sample of what proficiency in drill can be attained in a short space of time, with men who take an interest in it. The men drilled in very quick time in manual as well as step, and the exhibition was without an error, meeting with much applause from the spectators, and with favorable comment from the military critics present. Following the inspection came the most pleasing part of the evening's entertainment, the rendition of a complimentary concert of six numbers, tendered to the Infantry by the Chequamegon orchestra. This organization was never in better form and the program, Wednesday evening, was one of their best, the highest compliment possible to a musician-that of close attention and perfect silence during the rendition of the pieces-being paid to them by their audience. Their program of numbers was as follows:

1. Overture-Entfuhrung aus dem Serail,

2. Flirtation Waltz..... For String Orchestra. 3. La Tourturelle...... Eilenberg

1,3781 beautiful rooms and furnishings. The young members remained in the armory, and enjoyed an informal hop until midnight, a pleasure to them which 5,355 90 was not on the program and which was entirely unexpected.

THE ROOMS.

The arrangement of the rooms for the uses for which they are intended are as good as could have been made had a building been erected for the 2,850 36 purpose. From the main hall, an entrance is made into another hall running in an opposite direction, this hall being decorated in scratch work and tile in colors which blend nicely. On the right, two doors enter into the reception parlors, probably the finest in decoration and furnishings of any in the state. The room is 20 by 35 feet, in size, a casing in the center making a break in the room and partially divides it. The decorations, draperies and pictures have been kept by the committee having the rooms in charge, in the most delicate of colors, white and gilt. The fine Brussels carpet is also delicate in colors, as well as texture, but was covered on the opening night by a new, white canvass. The furniture is heavy and massive, all of antique oak finish, upholstered in maroon colored leather, harmonizing well with the finish of the room. Draped in the center of the room were two pairs of heavy chenile portieres, in cream and old gold. Library tables, a fine new piano and easels upon which stood large pictures of Capt. C. E. Hiscock and one of the Light Infantry, completed the furnishings. The decorations of this room are something entirely new in this vicinity. being entirely in relief work. The ceiling is the most conspicuous, hundreds of stalactites of cream white, varying from half an inch to five inches in length, hanging down, each tipped with gold. A heavy relief frieze in gold is the only relief to the side walls which are in cream colored stripple. The contract for decorating was let to Geo. L. Moore, the decorating being done under the charge of Chas. Major. Some idea of the amount of labor on this room can be gained from the fact that it took two men an entire month to do it, and that over six hundred pounds of alabastine were

In the rear of the parlors are three card rooms, perfect models in their The first is decorated in bluegray ingrain paper, the second in terra cotta, and the third in delicate green. The rooms are furnished with antique oak tables and chairs. Between the rooms, bamboo curtains are hung. The heating of these rooms is by small jewelled gas stoves, each not much larger than a gallon meas-An elevator runs from one of the rooms to the armory above, to be used when refreshments are served

On the opposite side of the hall from the reception rooms is the reading and smoking room, complete in all its furnishings with large tables and easy chairs. Here, when arrangements are completed, will be found copies of all the daily and weekly papers and many of the leading magazines and journals. Opening off of this room is a large coat room, well supplied with hooks. All the rooms are well lighted with electric lights, arranged so that the lights in each room can be turned on or off by a switch at the side of the

The members of the Infantry are feeling very proud-proud of their organization, proud of their new rooms. proud of their opening reception, and prouder still of their honorary corps.

The mail carriers had a contest, last week, as to which one should carry out the greatest number of pounds of mail. Carrier O'Kane won, carrying not twenty puonds than any of the others.-Ann Arbor Argus.

How strange they act at Ann Arbor. In Adrian the carrier who can get out with the least mail, is met with a baleful glare of envy from the others.

Miss Mary White, aged 23 years, now at Stockbridge village, has been sleeping, steadily, except when awakened for food, for nearly 140 days, She was taken ill on the 4th of August, and has slept away fifty pounds of flesh. She is said to be now gaining flesh again, and the physician attending her believes she will yet conquer sleep and recover. Should she do so, she should be a pretty wideawake girl for a while, to make up the time lost .

The old organ in the Ann Arbor Presbyterian church, has been turned out doors, to make room for a new $4,000 instrument with high collar and checked clothes. The lungs, larynx, pharynx, glottis and epiglottis of old organ has become so impaired that it couldn't gasp the doxology, without catching its breath between syllables. The new one is a gift from Mrs. H. Sackett, and not a member of the church but believes her calling and election sure.

A Denver editor has just made a war prize of an estimable Ann Arbor young lady; and a Universty law student, named Reed, maddened with a shot from cupid's bow has eloped with his chum's sister, whose father is a wealthy quarryman at Grindstone City. This leads to the conclusion that the student was after the old man's "rocks" but as said old man had warned Reed to keep away from his girl, the Blackstonian may yet find his own nose on the grindstone.

There is yet a good deal of corn husking to do. Corn is but a moderate crop this season, though the amount planted was rather greater than usual.

On Monday of last week, Nov. 2d, Mr. Oliver Lester Warner, a very highly respected citizen of Pittsfield, departed this life. His widow and four children survive him. He had always been a very active man through his whole life, but of late which resulted in heart trouble. He was bron in Phelps, Ontario county, N. Y., and was seventy-seven years of age. Another wreck on the T. & A. A. R. R. occurred at this place, Friday morning. A freight train going north about 9:30 a. m., was wrecked at the south end of the switch. Two cars, one loaded with salt and the other with lumber, and one pair of trucks under a gondolla car were thrown from the rails. The train was running very fast and the wrecked cars were drawn over the ties nearly 80 rods before the train was stopped. Too fast running from the switch onto the main track caused the wreck. The track was cleared about five o'clock so that trains could pass. The wreck was all cleared away about 10 p. m. This makes the second wreck at this place in less than one week. The wrecks were only about one mile apart and were very lucky ones as no one was hurt.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1891.

SEWERAGE.

Light begins to appear in the sewerage discussion. The position taken by the Argus, which is and always has been a true friend of sewerage, has provoked much discussion, and the selfconstituted champions of sewerage, who took the position that no criticisms should be made of the plans proposed, are changing their point of view and are rapidly verging towards the position taken by the Argus. Fortunately, or unfortunately, they, however, continue to misrepresent the position of the Argus, which has compelled them to think twice and which bids fair to aid in the evolution of a system of sewerage which stands a much better chance of being carried at the polls. The Argus is able to stand these misrepresentations if it aids in bringing about a better understanding on the question. But that the public may rightly comprehend our exact position, we desire to say a word in reply to our critics.

One adopts the nonsensical tittle sewerless outlets, and charges the Argus with being in favor of bonding the city. This is untrue. If he had turned to our editorial of August 21, in which we claimed that sewerage was not dead, as the Times, the Courier and the Register at that time claimed it was, because the council had seen fit to lay the report of the sewerage comfound these words:

"Ann Arbor will have sewerage, and good. To her credit be it said, she does would, with her progressive business men and manufacturing industries, be in population and wealth.'

paid by a rental by the city. If our be perfectly legal. critics stand on this platform with us, well and good.

A great deal of fun has been made based on the ridiculous assumption that the Argus favored sewerage with no outlet. And the changes have been rung on the subject with such tiresome reiteration that some well-meaning people, who are accostomed to having their thinking done for them, have come to believe it true. It is too bad to spoil some really witty things which have been said concerning it, but the mere statement of the assumption proves its supreme ridiculousness.

The Argus has alwas said and repeats now that for a short season each year, the hot, dry season, the Huron river will not carry off crude sewage, but it will remain a festering mass where deposited. But this does not mean and never has meant that some point on the Huron river is not the proper outlet for sewerage. In our second editorial written on this subject this year," July 31, we quoted from a work by Staley and Pierson on the separate system of sewerage, and from the commission sent by the city of Providence to Europe, passages which pointed out how crude sewage could be treated so that it could pass off through the water courses without damage to the public health. This fact entirely destroys the ridiculous assumption of our interested critics.

When the question was first agitated this year, and some of the advocates of sewerage favored rushing the city headlong into sewerage building, the Argus raised the objection as to the out- day. While here he enjoyed a couple let for crude sewage, because until that of rides on the Masonic goat. is settled, no proposed sewerage system can get votes enough in this city to be carried into effect. The common council properly saw fit to investigate this question to some extent as has previously appeared in our columns, and secured a valuable letter from Mr. L. E. Cooley, of Chicago, one of the best sanitary engineers in the country. As we have before pointed out, Mr. Cooley's letter gives ample reason to lead us to believe that the Huron, for a short season each year, will not carry off the coude sewage. He was furnish- urday. He was making arrange ed the power at Swift's mill during the | ments to supply our local dealers with dry season, and from this he figures | Whitmore Lake ice for next season.

that the minimum flow of water in the Huron would care for a population of managing editor of the Toledo Comabout 16,000. When the fact, which mercial, is spending a couple of weeks Engineer Cooley would not be expected with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John to know, but which nevertheless every Moore, of S. Division street. one must admit to be true, is considered that Swift's mill does not run all the time during the dry season, that it shuts down on Sunday and stores the water in its dam for use during the coming week, it should at once be seen southern points, much improved in that the probabilities are that the health. He says that Velasco is a Huron will not at all times carry off the crude sewage. When complaints ago not a sign of a house could be are now made concerning the slaughter seen. houses and even occasionally concerning the little university sewer, what tents. Land values are on the rise would be the complaints if the entire every day, a lot that was offered for sewage of the city should be emptied into the Huron, if the water should fail to carry it off?

To show the different spirit in which suggestions on the sewerage question are now being taken, it is only necessary to call attention to the way in which Mr. Sheehan's suggestion is being received. Although several committees have said that the proposed main sewer will cost $20,000 and Prof. Greene has estimated that it will not cost to exceed $20,600, Mr. Sheehan suggested that bids be asked to see what it would actually cost before it is voted upon. This suggestion is received in good spirit.

If the advocates of sewerage wish to carry a sewerage proposition they must treat them in this way and not denounce those who make them as enemies of sewerage.

The main sewer should be carried to a point, where, if necessary, arrangements might be made to precipitate the solid matter in the sewage after which the effluent should pass into the river. This point should be such that tanks could be constructed with the least expense and the effluent could be run off into the river channel. If possible, the expense of pumping should be avoided. We admit that on this point we are in need of the opinions of engineers. The council should inmittee on the table, he would have struct its committee to find out at how low a cost works for precipitation could be erected, if after the sewage that at no distant day. But when it comes, it will come as the best system. of the city is emptied into the river they should be found necessary for the of the city is emptied into the river She will not load up with a system which requires a large expense to make and the people then having knowledge not rush headlong into debt, as does a of what they might be called upon to sister city, who, if it were not for the expend, we believe in putting in the of what they might be called upon to high taxes engendered by that habit, sewerage system and trying the river. If it will not carry off the crude sewrunning a neck and neck race with us erage, the precipitation works could then be erected. If it will carry it off, If our critic had been a consistent well and good. We imagine that the reader of the Argus, he would know proper tanks if the outlet is properly that the Argus could not advocate go- located will be less than some have

At the risk of repeating but in order The position of the Argus covers no to be perfectly plain, we would not in private schemes. As we said July 17, the first place set about arranging pre-"Sewers should be under the direct cipitation works, but we would know and absolute control of the city, and a what it would cost if the proved necesprivate company has no such interest sary, as we suspect they will for three in preserving the good health of the months of the year, and we would arcity as the city itself," This indicates range the outlet so as to make that that we would never favor the scheme cost as small as possible. This we which we know has been talked of by some of our critics of organizing a private company to sewer the city, to be be taken in February, when it would

Fred C. Huson will hold an auction sale on his premises one and one-half miles west, of the court house, on the north Dexter road, on Thursday, November 19, at ten o'clock, at which four horses, seven milch cows, seven acres of corn fodder, and a very large quantity of farming impliments and household goods will be sold. Fred Krause is auctioneer. Lunch will be served at noon.

The Rev. Dr. Duncan MacGregor, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who lectures in the Baptist church, next Tuesday evening on "Grip and Grapple of Great Men and Great Nations," is an orator of more than ordinary reputation. The New York World says "he fired, filled and enraptured everybody." The New York Times says he is "one of the most kingly masters of rhetoric and elocution on the American rostrum." The Brooklyn Eagle says he is "a brilliant and finished orator."

There will be a total eclipse of the moon on Sunday evening, November 15, visible in this city. Mr. W. J. Hussey, the instructor in astronomy in the University, has issued a circular of directions for amateur astronomers, who desire to observe occultations of stars, giving a map of the moon's apparent path and the positions of the stars, a catalogue of the stars near the path and the time of the disappearance and reappearance of the stars. The moon enters penumbra at 59 seconds after 4 o' clock, Ann Arbor local time. It enters shadow at 5 seconds after 5 o'clock. The total eclipse begins at seconds after 6 o'clock and ends at 7:25 and 49 seconds.

It is pretty hard work to kill a tramp. On Tuesday evening, as the North Shore Limited train going east got about a mile from the station, the conductor discovered a tramp on one of the platforms. He started towards him, when the tramp made a jump from the train, which was then going at the rate of at least thirty miles an hour. Arriving at Ypsilanti, he conductor telegraphed fact to the station agent here, nad he sent out men on a hand-car to Mrs. C. D. Coleby and a cornet solo bring in the tramp's remains. But the remains were not there. All that the men could discover was a hole in the gravel where the tramp Laura Richmond, Manchester. had struck, and a deep furrow which Wm. J. One Pure Baking Powder.

Like Telling a Secret.

A story is told and it is a true story that over seventy per cent, of all the baking powders sold contain either alum or ammonia, and many of these powders contain both. The ill effects upon the system of food raised by alum or ammonia powders are the more dangerous because of their insidious character. It would be less dangerous for the people were it fatal at once, for then such food would be avoided, but their baneful action because imperceptible at first and slow in its advances, is no less certain.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is declared by all authorities as free from alum, ammonia or any other adulterant. Its purity has never been questioned, and while it does finer and better work, it costs no more at retail than many of the adulterated powders.

THE WART KING.

On a certain street in Baltimore one afternoon the throng of pedestrians upon the thoroughfare was immense. A reporter for the Herald was thoughtfully wending his way amid the sea of hurrying faces when his gaze rested upon the figure of a man standing motionless before a bakery window, gaz-ing with wistful look at the enticing display of viands within. His attitude was dejected, but a look of defiance leaped from his eyes as his nostrils were greeted with the savory odor of cheese-cakes and lady-fingers. The individual concluded his revery, and, turning round, confronted the reporter.

The action was so sudden that the scribe's progress was impeded, and in the moment of hesitation he noticed that the figure before him was incased in a most dilapidated wardrobe. A week growth of beard bristled upon his chin. and a dickey, once white, was suspended around his neck by a blue ribbon; below his coat sleeves peeped the wristbands of a red flannel shirt but his voice was low and musical as with averted eyes he asked the scribe for a loan of a dime.

"Don't think I am begging." continued the man. "If you will give me your card I will send the money to your address to-morrow, or just as soon as business picks up. I am a professional man."

The scribe slowly withdrew his hand from his pocket. "What profession?" he asked, as he brought to view a

The man bit the coin before replying. He balanced himself, snapped his fingers and while adjusting his dickey answered that he charmed away warts, that he had performed some marvelous cures upon bunions, and as for hard and soft corns they positively stood no show with him at

"Now, you see that wart on your left hand," said the magician, pointing to a large seed wart on the index finger of the reporter's left hand that had been there for years; "well, sir, I can charm that away," and he uttered an incoherent word and thanking the scribe for his assistance went his way.

A few days after the occurrence the same reporter was hurrying down Madison street when he was accosted with: "Hi, there! How's your wart?" He looked up, and there, standing before him, was the wart king. He quickly glanced down at his handthe wart was gone!

EXERCISE.

A Few Points Concerning Its Usefulness for Elderly People.

While the elderly man has less capacity for some forms of exercise than the younger adult, he has no less need than the other of the general and local effects of exercise. A Little Story. Many of the older residents of this section remember the lete Dr. Warner, of New Milford, and will appreciate this little story, says the Danbury News. When Dr. Warner was a student at Yale he used to come home Saturday nights and return to New Haven Mondays. That was before the days of railways, and, as stage coaches did not leave New Milford Monday mornings for New Haven, young Warner used to mount his father's horse and ride to Yale on horseback. There were several toll ner would pay the return toll for his affix to the bridle a card bearing these words: "Please not stop this horse." homeward, invariably reaching his stall at New Milford all right. The toll takers got to know the horse and he never was interrupted. On Fridays the horse would be started alone to New Haven with a small pouch attached to his saddle, in which was the exact change for the tolls. Each toltaker would take his toll and the horse would trot along, reaching Yale in the evening. This practice was kept up until the young doctor was graduated.

Mystery of Mysteries.

There are mysteries of the toilet may be met without even going beyond names. These are generally said to be in the French language and include such terms as "groseille were satisfied. ecrasee" and "crapaud mort d'amour. The last is interpreted by the learned "toad that died of love," and is, or was, a very washy shade of green. When it comes to materials, what can beat 'peau de soie" for poetic suggestiveness-after one has studied it out? With the aid of a French dictionary it will be found to stand for "silk skin

MISTAKES OF IDENTITY.

Instances of Cases Which are Humoro u and Others that are Far From It-Men, who in the fulfillment of their profession, or for some special reason, have assumed a role not really their own, are often taken to be really as they seem. Sometimes the error proves to be sufficiently ludicrous. It is related, says the Sat. Evening Post, that Baron James De Rothschild, who established the Paris branch of the great financial house, was eccentric in his outward appearance, and occasionally in his conduct. He was fond of art, and a patron of painters. He once consented to pose for Eugene Delacroix, as a beggar. While thus occupied a pupil of the painter passed by. So touched was he by the seeming poverty and wretchedness of the ragged beggar that he surreptitiously slipped a coin into the old man's hand -literally bestowing alms on a Rothschild. The financier kept the money. inquired about the giver, and shortly afterward paid back the charity with a princely present.

A number of young Indian gentlemen were studying law in London some few years since. Dr. Vaughn, the Master of the Temple, invited them to spend a pleasant evening at his house. They accepted in nearly every instance. But, though the host waited at the hour fixed, nobody arrived. At last the maid was called in. She was a new servant, fresh to her duties in the house. The puzzled inquiry was made: "Have none of the gentlemen come?" "No, please," said the girl, "but a lot of impudent Christy Minstrels have been a-ringing the bell, and I've been driving them away."

A capital story is told of the ready. wit of a man of Midalesex, traveling in Germany. He was called upon, before being allowed to pass through the gates of a petty town, to describe himself. This was the red-tape rule for all strangers in the land. "I am an elector of Middlesex." said the adroit John Bull. In Germany an elector is a person of importance; so word went forth, out came the guards, and not only was the visitor permitted to enter, but he was received with military honors.

But sometimes the foreign blunder a out character of identity is of a different description. The merriment has been mixed. Humor is blended with inconvenience, and, perhaps, risk, in misadventures of arrest. number of these awkward incidents are reported concerning notable men. Charles Kingsley was thrown into a German prison, when his only offense was a rather too reckless love of angling. He was misconstrued in dress, character, and conduct by over-suspicious natives. His fishing rod was taken for some new fangled deadly weapon, and, to the stolid rural mind, the wide-awake Italian hat he wore pointed him out as a follower of Mazzini, the troublesome southern revolutionist.

An Old Land Title.

Land titles run back a long way on the peninsula of Delaware and Maryland. One Aldrich, a farmer in Northern Delaware, sold a farm not many years ago, and the title deeds that he passed were dated well back into the seventeenth century, and they bore the signature of the Indian chief from whom the land was originally bought. The property up to the recent sale had descended in the family by inheritance. DIFFERENT KINDS OF BUFFALO. One Species That Emits a Pleasant Odor

-The Gentle Yak. The buffalo is evidently a wholesouled creature, for many hunters have seen the common domesticated calves of the frontier farms standing patiently waiting for a buffalo to dig a place in the snow and when he had accomplished his task the calves would eat the grass fearlessly, sharing, as by right, the fruits of their huge companion's toil. Hunters have often been saved by buffaloes from a terrible death from thirst, says the Illustrated American. The buffalo. like the camel and the elephant, has the power of taking a large amount of water into his body, and depositing it in the reticulum, or cells of the honeycomb department of the stomach, until needed. The hunters, therefore, when their vessels are empty, and they see no signs of a stream within day's travel, promptly slay the first buffalo that comes in view, the sake of the water which they know will be found in the usual situation. The bonasus, or zubr buffalo, found in the Russian forest of Bialowikza, has a very peculiar trait. It gives forth a powerful and very pleasant odor, which partakes equally of musk and violet. This really delicious perfume is found to penetrate the whole of the body, to a certain extent, but is exhaled most powerfully from the skin and hair which cover the upper part of the forehead. The zubr in appearance is very much like our American buffalo, but the hair on the head and shoulders is more tightly curled and not so rough or long. To preserve this really magnificent animal in perfection it is protected by the most rigid forest laws.

The vak, a curious species of buffalo. which is found in western Thibet, has not only the long mane reaching to the ground, but the flanks are covered with hair which reaches the ground in long, thick, silky masses. The hair of the tail is white, and the Chinese take these tails to dve red and blue. and then make tassels of them. When domesticated it needs very little care, foraging for itself and coming to be milked when called by the milkmaids as a pet cow might do.

AN ECCENTRIC ARTIST.

His Molel: Must Feel the Emotions His Characters Would.

Of J. R. Herbert, the eccentric artist, many amusing stories are told. He insists that his models should feel the emotions that animated the characters they were to represent, and once, in explaining this necessity to a somewhat stolid model, became himself affected to tears at the mere thought of what the other should feel. He had, moreover, a sense of humor and a calm way of displaying it.

One day he was with Landseer at the Athenæum, after an Academy meeting, and the latter called for refreshments.

"Some of zat also to me," said Herbert to the waiter, in the broken English he affected. When it was brought he continued: "Ah, I shall have no money. Pay for me, Land-

SHORT-LIVED ATHLETES.

They Seem to Wear Out Much Sconer Than Less Active Men.

Interview with a Boston trainer: Did it ever occur to you that athletes are rarely long lived? By athletes I mean the folks who are training themselves continually for special feats of muscular power, and I leave out the dilettante amateur, who exercises slightly, comparatively speaking, and then with only the object of physical development. It is my opinion that, as a rule, the professional athlete is not a very good risk for the life insurance people. And this aside from any risks of physical injury of a sudden nature to which the athlete in the course of his performance may be subject. I think it would seriously stump you if I asked you to name dozen cases of extreme longevity among men who have been famous for their muscular power and skill. But anybody can name a dozen people who have led sedentary lives from boyhood and attained extreme old age. Very strange as it may appear, consumption is a disease to which the swimmer, the oarsman, the runner and the fighter have all, on numerous occasions, fallen victims. Rheumatism is another common disorder; all of which sometimes makes me think that nature never intended the development of the human physical energies to the point at which they are often observed. The athlete who lives the longest is the man who used to be an athlete and gave up his athletic fancies and plans before he had reached middle life. - Saturday Evening Post.

What Is It?

Prof. Holden, of the Lick Observatory, draws especial attention to a white spot on the top of one of a range of mountains on the moon. Speculations as to whether it is snow or not are rife among astronomers who have had an opportunity of examining the photographs. Should it prove to be snow the existence of an atmosphere on the moon will have been proved.

BY A SECRET PROCESS, The Way in Which Lead is Turned into

The manufacture of shot is an interesting and instructive process, and it is safe to say that not one of the thousands who use it, from the sportsman who fires the little leaden pellets to bring down his game, to the thrifty housewife who uses it to clean her bottles, knows of the ingenious methods employed in turning the pig lead into the shot of commerce. The oldest shot tower in America is in this city, says the Philadelphia Times, in the vicinity of Second and Carpenter streets, it having been opened for business July 4, 1808, and here shot is manufactured at the rate of from twenty-five to thirty millions an hour-from four hundred thousand to five hundred thousand every minute.

Entering the low building surrounding the shot tower one encounters first the weighers, who are putting the shot up into bags of different sizes. It will be interesting to examine one of these bags containing about twenty pounds. The largest size drop shot weighs twenty-two pellets to the ounce. A bag holding twenty pounds would therefore contain 5,910 pellets, white in a bag of the smallest size shot the number of pellets would be 1,061,120.

Suddenly the guide opens the door leading to the tower proper and there is heard constant rushing noise as of falling water. Into a large tank, in which there is six feet of water, a steady shower of lead is falling, which is being dropped from the heights above. It is impossible to look up to see whence this shower originates, and, after a climb of 150 feet by means of a circular stairway, the secret of shotmaking is revealed.

Here a man is standing at a boiler containing the molten lead and which being continually fed by helpers. He is pouring the liquid metal into a perforated pan or colander in front of him, and it drops down in avilvery rain into the tank of water beneath. One thing is essential, however, before the lead is dropped. When the pig lead is thoroughly heated a scum forms on it, caused by the antimony and arsenic with which the pigs are prepared. This is called dross and is carefully skimmed off and preserved. Some of this dross is placed in the pan before the lead is poured into it. The lead makes its way through the dross and escapes through the holes in the pan into space. The process looks simple enough from here, but the degrees of heat, the amount of dross, the quantity of lead have all to be carefully considered. An inexperienced hand could do incalculable damage here, simple as the process

There are several stories afloat as to the origin of this method of shot-making. They are both pretty stories, and should be taken cum grano salis. One account says the discovery was an accident, as was the discovery of gravitation and the steam engine. Some time during the last century an English mechanic named Watts, who was employed in cutting up lead for the purpose of moulding into shot, is said to have imbibed too freely of the cup that cheers and inebriates-got shot, in fact. He dreamed of the last thing he would be likely to dream of under the circumstances—namely, water. He saw it rain heavily and suddenly the rain became lead and the ground was covered with shot. Watts awoke with the idea that there was something in his dream, and is said to have proved the correctness of his idea by making an experiment in a neighboring tower. The great unreconcilable point in the Watts story is that no reference is anywhere made to the essential pool of water in which the pellets are dropped to cool. Certainly, if the hot lead fell upon the hard earth the pellets would be flattened out and ruined. The other account gives the indispensible water into which the hot metal must fall if it does very little else. The story goes that in one of the old-time wars, when a host was preparing to storm a castle, and while the besiegers were scaling the walls the defenders poured hot lead over them. This lead, broken up into hundreds of pieces by the fall, dropped into the moat. Visitors are very rarely allowed to thoroughly view the process of manufacture. He may look at the lead dropping into the water without opposition, but when with pardonable curiosity he expresses a wish to see whence this shower originates the guide shakes his head and says: "Oh, it's a powerful big climb up there, and you wouldn't understand it after you get up." This means that you don't go up even if you think your mind could grasp this intricate probthe heavy set man proudly.

"Good!" And you," to the little thin dys-

"Good again!" exclaimed the tall man. "I've got an old press and a font of type, and that's all we need. We'll set to work now, and next Sunday afternoon we'll get out an extra Howler or Bazoo or some-thing similar with a full account of the triple murder, the death of Queen Victoria, and the shooting of the czar of Russia. An imagination to concoct the story, a press to print it and lungs to sell it! Gentlemen, the combination can't be beaten." -Chicago Tribune.

The traveler stood looking at the glories of Yosemite for the first time. He had journeyed 3,000 miles to see the wonderful valley. Before him in solemn grandeur rose the Cathedral Rock, the Three Brothers and the Sentinel Dome. The Bridal Veil falls, dissolving in a feathery mist as the waters descended the tremendous precipice, lit up with varied tints the somber majesty of the scene, while El Capitan, mighty, overpowering, unapproachable, seemed to frown sternly over all. The traveler became conscious he was not alone. At his side, apparently lost in wonder, stood a stranger looking at the marvelous

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Strongest, Purest, Most Economical.

Certain baking powder makers are publishing falsified extracts from the Government reports, with pretended analyses and certificates, wherein an attempt is made to compare their baking powders with the "Royal," or making bogus tests from house to house, their obvious purpose being to counteract the recent exposures of the inferiority of their own goods arising from their impurity, low strength, and lack of keeping qualities as shown by the Government chemists and others.

As to whether any of these baking powders are equal to the "Royal," the official tests clearly determine. When samples of various baking powders were purchased from the grocers, and analyzed by the United States Government Chemists and the Chemists of State and City Boards of Health, the reports revealed the fact that the "Royal" contained from 28 per cent. to 60 per cent. more leavening strength than any other cream of tartar baking powder, and also that it was more perfectly made, of purer ingredients, and altogether wholesome.

As these powders are sold to consumers at the same price, by the use of the Royal Baking Powder there is an average saving of over one third, besides the advantage of assured purity and wholesomeness of food, and of bread, biscuit, and cake made perfectly light, sweet, and palatable-advantages not to be had in the use of the low-grade, cheaply made baking powders that contain lime, alum, and other impurities.

Death of John H. Warner.

John H. Warner's sad and unexpected death, which came at an early hour last Saturday morning, was preceded by but a few hours of painful suffering. On Tuesday he was about as usual; Wednesday found him not feeling very well, as is so common with us all; Thursday he was compelled to remain in bed, where he rapidly grew worse until two o'clock Saturday morning when the hand of death called him home.

He was born in York township September 15, 1854, since which time he hasbeen a constant resident of Washtenaw county, most of his latter years having been spent in Saline, a portion of which time he was more or less connected with the Saline Exchange. At the age of 20 he sought a home of his own and on May 26, 1874, was married to Miss Alice L. Reeves, who has since been a most efficient and faithful companion. Two sons was eighteen months.

Mr. Warner, who was a firm believer healthy and agreeable substances, its in the Universalist faith, had expressed a desire that his funeral be conducted to all and have made it the most according to that faith and agreeably to his wishes, the obsequies were held at the home of his parents, Sunday afternoon. Rev. Case, of Manchester, conducted the services in a very able and pleasing manner, after which the remains were buried in the Mooreville cemetery. A wife and one son survive him .- Saline Observer.

Imitation The Sincerest Flattery.

Some two weeks ago this subject was broached among a few of the adjes of St. John's Catholic church, in this city, and when the financial result of the Ann Arbor fair was known, it was decided Ypsilanti must also hold one in December. According to agreement a meeting was held Sunday afternoon in the school hall and committees appointed. Rev. Fr. DeBever willingly donated his horse and our merchants have been very liberal with contributions. It was decided to hold the fair at Light Guard hall from December 8 to 16 inclusive, seven stands have been taken, including the refreshment booth. Prizes will be offered to the most handsome young lady and gentleman, and also to the most popular man in the city. The object of the fair is to remove a debt of $750 from the school, and also to have steam heating in the church and school. The Catholics have asked nothing of the business men for many years and it is but right that they should be liberally responded to now .-Ypsilanti Commercial.

Then, and only then, delightful treat as was in store for included two quartets, opening tablished a quarter of a century ago Representing the following first-class with Haydn's quartet in D minor, minor, op. 41, No. 1. These two numbers served admirably to show the artistic qualities of the players in two widely differing styles of composition. A group of selections in the middle of the program included Rubinstein's "Music of the Spheres," an arrangement of Schubert's Moment Musical (a la Hongroise) in F minor, and a scherzo by Mendelssohn. The Rubinstein number was for muted strings, and was played with a delicacy and refinement that was truly astonishing. At the close the dimuendo was so perfect that it was next to impossiment Musical was played with almost equal finish, and after the Mendelssohn scherzo, which closed the group, the players were recalled. The reading of the quartets showed musical intelligence of a high order and the mechanical mechanical intelligence of a high order. and the mechanical side of the performance proved that the study had reached a point where each player was enabled to assert his artistic individuality and independence without the least detriment to the effect comfort, they "skedaddle" through the pores, of the skin, leaving the sysof the ensemble, which was in fact only heightened thereby. In fact no such thoroughly, finished and artistic string playing has been heard in chamber music in this city for many years-if ever.-Chicago Tribune.-U. of M. Daily.

Chronic Catarrh-Twenty Years-Settled on Lungs-Could Get No Relief-Permanent Cure at Last.

NEW VIENNA, CLINTON CO., O. Dr. S. B. Hartman & Co.-Gents: I take pleasure in testifying to your medicines. I have used about one bottle and a half, and can say I am about twenty years. Before I knew what it was it had settled on my lungs and breast, but can now say I am well. Was in the army, could get no medicine that would relieve

Yours truly, W. D. WILLIAMS, Probate Judge for Clinton County.

While it is a fact that Pe-ru-na can be relied on to cure chronic catarrh in all stages and varieties, yet it is not often that it will so quickly cure Hence it is that so many patients fail in finding a cure because of their unwillingness to continue treatment long enough. Many people who have had chronic catarrh for five, ten, and even fifteen years, will follow treatment for a few weeks, and then, because they are not cured, give up in despair and try something else. These patients never follow any one treatment long enough to test its merits. and consequently never find a cure It is a well-known law of disease that the longer it has run the more tenaciously it becomes fastened to its victim.

The difficulty with which catarrh is cured has led to the invention of a host of remedies which produce temporary relief only. The unthinking masses expect to find some remedy which will cure them in a few days. and to take advantage of this false hope mnay compounds which have instant but transient effect have been devised. The people try these catarrh cures one after another, but disappointment is the invariable result. until very many sincerely believe that no cure is possible.

and therefore requires persistent internal treatment, sometimes for many months, before a permanent cure is effected. The mucous lining of the cavities of the head, throat, lungs, etc., are made up of a network of minute blood vessels called capillaries. The capillaries are very small elastic tubes, which, in all cases of chronic catarrh, are congested or bulged out with blood so long that the elasticity of the tubes is entirely destroyed. The nerves which supply these capillaries with vitality are called the "vasomotor" nerves. Mr. W. J. Hussey, instructor in The Red River Valley of astronomy, has prepared a six page circular of instructions and suggestions for those amateur astronomers who wish to make observations of value during the coming total eclipse of the moon. The eclipse will begin at 6:00 o'clock and end at 7:26 It o'clock, Ann Arbor local time, on the evening of November 16. The circular has been sent to those stu- Farms can be had dents of the University who have new man. They may be converted into central standard time by subtracting 25 minutes and 5 seconds. Mr. Hussey has compiled and tabulated the elements of the eclipse, the times of the phases, and also a catalogue of stars along the moon's apparent path, and the times of the occultations of these stars visible at Ann Arbor. The last page of the circular is a map showing the positions of the stars along the path of

Many who live in the interior towns and villages have the notion that to buy railroad tickets to far distant points, it is necessary to go to the larger cities. Others, that by some chance or design they may, by going off from home somewhere and first paying local fare to this somewhere or other, they will be able to save something in the price. Now in all other business matters yuo will rather deal with those at home and with whom you have acquaintance and in whom you have confidence. Buying railroad tickets is business. The trip may be pleasure—full of pleasure—but the pur-chase is business. It is more than likely, therefore, if you will only try, that you can buy just as satisfactorily and certainly as economically at your nearest station. The agent may not have the particular ticket you want but if you will allow him a day or so he will get it, reading from your station through to where you are going. This is the method on the Chicago & West Michigan and also on the Detroit, Lansing & Northern. If it so happens that you who read this find it inconvenient to reach the agent drop him a note of inquiry; or, write stating yuor proposed trip, to

CHINESE POSTOFFICES.

Independent Estab ishments.

It is not to be imagined that a ver table nation of shop-keepers like the Chinese would remain, owing to the refusal of their government to convey their correspondence, destitute of a postal service. They have, indeed, a very complete system of their own entirely independent of the state, says Cornhill magazine. In every town of any size may be seen ten or a dozen shops with the sign "Hsin Chii," letter office or postal establishment, suspended outside. Their business is to carry not letters only, but small parcels, packets of silver and the like, n ually to other towns in the same province, but also on occasion to other provinces. They are, in fact, general carriers, or, perhaps it would be fairer to say, they occupy much the same position in China now as did the agents' at Harwich and Dover of the postmaster general at the beginning of the eighteenth century-so miscellaneous are the packages committed to their charge.

They have no fixed tariff varying according to weight, and there appears to be no limit, within reason, to the size of letters or parcels they will man-" carry. The charge for letters is fairly constant, but in estimating the cost of conveyance of parcels the size and shape alone seem to be taken into account. A rough calculation is then made, which the sender is at libertyif he can-to abate. In fact, the transmission of parcels is regarded as being quite as much a matter of bargaining as the purchase of a pig. As there is no monopoly, each postoffice tries to underbid its rivals, and competition sometimes verges on the ludicrous. Since the institution of female post-office clerks in England. how many complaints (doubtless quite groundless) have there not been from would-be purchasers of stamps who have been kept waiting at the counter while the postmistress and her assistant compared notes on last Sunday's fashions? In China this deplorable state of things is reversed. There each post-office has its touts, who go rounds at very short intervals to each place of business to beg for the privilege of torwarding their letters. The bankers are the best customers, and as post time draws near, (post time is fixed at the open ports by the departure of the local steamer), you will see a tout enter a bank and interrupt the clerks with an entreaty to be allowed to convey the letters they have not yet copied. He is dismissed for half an hour, and meanwhile two or three rivals will appear with the same request. The lucky man is he who happens to come in as the letters are sealed. HERE'S A NEW DEVICE.

Teeth May Be So Manufactured as to Prevent Hollow Cheeks,

·Did you ever hear of a woman wearing cotton balls in her mouth to prevent her cheeks from appearing sunken?" asked a State street dentist of a Chicago Herald reporter. "I have such a customer," he continued. She came to see me recently. She is rather handsome, very stylish, and her home is a Prairie avenue palace. She said she wore cotton balls in her mouth to even out her cheeks, which showed a slight tendency to depression; that though she had used them for four years her husband had not discovered them; that she carried them especially for his benefit. The she gave me an order for two teeth, one on either side of the upper jaw, and asked me to build a bulge on each to take the place of those cotton balls as cheek-swellers. She had only one tooth missing, so she had me pull a sound tooth opposite out this cheek bulger. I took the impression for the teeth and the measure for the swellers on the side. The cheek-distenders I made of the same material as the frame in which the teeth were set.

When she came in to get her teeth cheeks were so sunken that even a thin-featured.

teeth she became full faced and the dimples when she smiled. I was aswas almost great enough to be called a disguise. I am proud of that work. I begin to think that I am the restorer of sharp-toed Time and the reinstater of beauty once admired, though no it had been built. one but a woman would have ever thought of thus changing a sunken cheek into a swelling tenting ground for dimples.

The rapidity with which a new metal is applied to purposes hitherto undreamed of is peculiarly characteristic of our times. Among the latest enidences of its progress is the use of aluminum in the construction of soundboards for stringed musical instruments. It has been found to possess a latent quality, so it is asserted. which makes it highly valuable for this purpose, the "metallic" tones produced by the use of other metals being conspicuously absat, and it possesses an elasticity capable of sympathetic vibration uniformly through a wide range of tone pitch, which renders it in this respect superior to wood. The young man sat down, rested his arms on the table, and said: ·Well, I'll submit the case to you.

"Wait a minute." interrupted the young man. "I'll leave it to you, but you must hear the case. This little woman is alone in the flat. The baby is in bed, and she is sitting there reading or sewing and listening to the steps of those passing the house. I left home at 9 o'clock this morning and since then she has been alone with the baby. Now she hasn't even the baby to occupy her time."

He paused a moment to give them an opportunity to speak, but no one said a word. Then he said:

"Boys, if you think you want my company to-night more than she does Ill stay.

There was another pause, then one of the party took a sip of champagne and said:

A FAMOUS STONE WALL.

It Was Built With Peaceful Intent, and Figure i in a Great Battle.

The Rev. Benjamin L. Agnew, pastor of the Bethlehem Presbyterian church, corner Broad and Diamond streets, recently mentioned a fact which may be known to few, and will be of interest to many, says the New

"Fifty years before the war," he said, 'my father, Smith Agnew, lived with his stepfather, the Rev. Dr. Dobbins, in the stone house on the Baltimore pike, a short distance below Gettysburg. At that time he was a lad of seventeen years. He took entire charge of the farm, which in some sections was very stony. One day the thought struck him that these loose cotton balls became annoying at wall. He enlisted the services of a the goods. nego who resided in the vicinity, together they hauled the stone to the place selected and built the celebrated stone wall whose name will exist while history lasts."

Young Agnew built his wall with great care, using large flat stones as it to make a place from which to build | binders and fitting in with smaller ones, little dreaming at that time what an important place that wall would occupy in the greatest battle of modern times. It was here that General Pickett's division, headed by his valiant Virginians, made its memorable charge, and although it was thrown she removed the cotton balls and her into confusion by the flanking fire of Standard's Vermonters and Doublecasual observer would have called her day's division, still pressed forward and at last succeeded in planting a "When she put in the amended Confederate flag on this wall, only however, to be driven back with the former sunken cheeks showed pretty loss of nearly three-quarters of its number by the Sixty-ninth, Seventytounded at the marvelous change. Fruit Growing in Washtenaw

Hon. J. Austin Scott presided over the November meeting. Mr. B. J. Conrad, chairman of the committee on transportation, recommended that the bills presented by Mr. J. C. Schenk at the last meeting be paid. He had returned crates for the shippers at the cheap rate of a penny apiece, which is by far the cheapest way, and did not succeed in collecting these dues and would rather pay them out of his own pocket. If his time was worth anything, the expense would be considerable. Mr. Schenk stated that he had lost eight bushels of peaches in Detroit and very likely many others. He was in favor of an agent at Detroit who would see to the distribution of the fruit from the Ann Arbor fruit car. Without such an agency anybody could help himself to fruit from our car. A resolution was passed to collect one centi per bushel of berries shipped by the Ann Arbor fruit car, and Mr. L. Gruner, 8 S. Main St., was unanimously requested to receive these dues by the shippers, who are respectfully requested to attend to the payment of this small tax at once, at Mr. Gruner's shoe store.

Our best market for fruit was discussed. For berries Detroit was mentioned as good enough with the exception of the return of berry boxes. Detroit commission men should instruct their customers to return the crates with the boxes not nested. Mr. J. Parshall and Wm. McCreery, principal peach and apple growers, did better by shipping fruit to northern cities. The Detroit market was considered the poorest for peaches and pears.

The employment of an agent for the sale of Ann Arbor fruit had as many advocates as opponents. Mr. A. A. Crozier was in favor of an advisory agent. Mr. S . Mills, the veteran fruit grower, stated that he did: better by shipping berries to Saginaw and Bay City. Every basket was promptly returned, while from Detroit he hardly got any baskets returned. Those returned from there were nested when wet, and consequently worthless. Detroit was the meanest place to return baskets. The question of markets was referred to report at next meeting.

A recess of ten minutes was taken to examine the large exhibit of fruits and flowers.

The question: "Is fruit and vegetable growing overdone in this county," was considerably discussed. No vegetable growers being present, the fruit growers generally were of the opinion that the growing of choice fruit was not overdone. Some very intelligent strangers of striking physiognomies were present. We could only learn the name of Mr. Clough, of Lake Superior, who, if he should choose our city as his place of residence, would be most welcome by this society.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Florist Toms, who exhibited 16 varieties of Chrysanthemums. He has at his greenhouse, 67 varieties of his favorite flower of the Mikado. Mr. J. Austin Scott had the finest exhibit of apples:Jonathan, Baldwin, Greening, King, Austin, Spafford, Russet, Swar, Bellflower, Belmont, Ladies' Sweeting, Ben Davis, Talman Sweeting, Hubbardston, Vivar and White Dogenne pears. The Austin apple was pronounced the finest of This play comes well recommended and is the season. It is a sub-acid, late fall and early winter variety of the finest flavor. Mr. Scott, the originator of form and color, i sworthy of the name of a benefactor. The apple was named after him by the president of the American Pomological & Society, Marshall P. Wilder. Mr. W. F. Bird had the largest and finest exhibit of grapes: the Niagara, Brighton, Concord, Agawam, Lindley Amber Queen, Mills, Merrimac, Ulster, Duchess; nine varieties of pears, and one of apples. E. Baur had nine varieties of pears, six of apples and two
