Importance of the Hay Crop. The importance of the hay crop to th whole country at large and the individual farmer as well can scarcely be overestimated. For hay of the best quality in all respects, that made from timothy grass stands highest in mation. Consequently this is the variety to cultivate when the highest price that can be obtained from critical buyers is the object aimed at. Other varieties often do better on certain soils, and clover makes excellent hay when successfully cured. Besides, clover has a value other than for hay, as a renovator of exhausted soils, that does not belong in an equal degree to timothy or other grasses that may be preferred for the rack and manger. In these days of improved farm implements it goes without saying that a meadow should be smooth and free from sticks, stones and other obstacles of every kind that would interfere with the running and operation of a machine. The seed sown should be free from those of weeds or of other varieties, unless a mixture of grasses is intended, as is sometimes the case. For most purposes the value of timothy hay is increased by deferring the cutting until the seed is ripe enough to grow. Curing without exposure to rain is important with all varieties if the hay is to be of the best. To secure this condition beyond any peradventure every farmer should have a sufficient number of hay caps ready for an emergency. Caps made from heavy unoiled muslin, if smoothly drawn down over well formed haycocks, will be sufficiently protecting, and such are cheap and easily handled.

IS CATARRH INCURABLE?

Answer No, and for the Following Reasons.

The various kinds and modes of local applications for catarrh, such as sprays, atomizers, douches, inhalants, fumigations, creams, ointments, lotions, gargles, etc., etc., have in many cases a soothing effect on the inflamed surfaces, and are sometimes useful to assist a cure; but neither of them nor all of them together ever did or ever will cure a case of catarrh. These things may give temporary relief, but it is useless to expect a cure of them. Cacannot be cured by a local treatment. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Smith, of The only hope of success in the permanent cure of a case of chronic catarrh is to devise some remedy that will stimulate the nerves which There is but one remedy that has the most desirable effect, and that remedy is Pe-ru-na. This remedy strikes at once at the root of catarrh by re-L. K. Taylor, of Detroit, was here he first of the week to attend the temporary palliative, but a radical No. 2. Mail Passenger. No. 4. > The reason that there are any failures is either because the catarrh is complicated by some organic disease or the patient does not take the medicine long enough. The majority of people expect to be cured in a week or two of catarrh that has run for ten or fifteen years. Such people are nearly always disappointed. Pe-ru-na will cure a recent case of acute catarrh in a few days or weeks, but when the disease becomes chronic it takes longer. Oats as Compared with Wheat.

The Rothamsted reports make it appear that, contrary to the popular belief, an average crop of oats takes more fertility from the land than an equivalent yield of wheat. Farmers, as a rule, consider wheat the most exacting of all the grains on the soil and believe that oats may be grown on much less fertile land than wheat. The result, says Henry Stewart in the New York Times, is that one very rarely finds a really good crop of oats, and the quantity as well as the quality of this grain produced per acre is rarely of any profit to the grower. And yet some growers do secure excellent and most profitable crops of this grain by the best method of culture, based on the requirements of the plant. We read of or sometimes see a yield of seventy-five or eighty bushels to the acre of grain weighing nearly twice the average of the ordinary crops, and there are a good many cases in which oats are really the most paying crop grown on the farm. The reason why this is uncommon is, first, that its character as an exhaustive crop is not generally known; second, that manure is very rarely given to it, and third, that the procuring of the best kinds of seed is commonly neglected.

"That's the new building of the Mail and Express," remarked the Gothamite to the sojourner, as they passed down Broadway, at Fulton street.

The Ann Arbor Argns. the Republicans of Michigan, when S. W. BEAKES, EDITOR AND PROP. TERMS .- $1.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY. Entered at the Post-Office, in Ann Arbor, Mich. as second-class matter.

FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1892.

Tom Platt, the Republican boss of New York state, says that Harrison cannot possibly carry New York. For once, Mr. Platt is quite correct. The man who will carry New York this year is Grover Cleveland.

THE Jackson Patriot says: "Mr. O'Donnell's gubernatorial fences being down all along the line his kite is up for the Republican nomination for congress in the second district." Mr. O'Donnell is one of those men, evidently, who love to live in public office.

Some of the Washington dispatches hint at Hill's withdrawal from the presidental contest in favor of Flowers. Hill would make a much better candidate than Flower, for Hill has brains, while Flower has only money. The president of the United States must be a brainy man. But neither Hill nor Flowers have the ghost of a show of a nomination.

popularity with the politicians of the Republican party. His son Russell is continually repeating rumors of Blaine's ill health. In New York last week he said: "Mr. Blaine is completely broken down, both mentally and physically." Mr. Blaine is said to bitterly, resent such remarks emanating from the Harrisons. All is not lovely in the Republican camp.

Of the delegates already elected to the Democratic National Convention, Cleveland has about three fourths. This computation includes New York where the snap convention instructed for Hill. The delegates already elected stand: Cleveland 326, Hill 78, Boies 26, doubtful 18. There are over 400 delegates yet to be elected and Cleveland needs but little over half of them to secure the necessary two third required to president next March.

gates who are marched up to the polls by bosses and deputy bosses, who hand them their tickets, and stand by to see that they vote the right one, or by delegates who have been picked out by state machinists and office-holders because they can be relied upon to obey instructions, and to refrain from thinking for themselves, is a worthless thing. It has no significance. It does not mean that those who gave it really believed that the man they nominated was the best man, but simply that he was the one they were ordered to vote for. Is it not time to call a halt? And for the good people to say to the Bosses and office-holders, "Hands off?"

THE YOUNG MEN.

Hon. J. S. Clarkson, the chairman of the Republican national committee, has made a couple of very important admissions within the past two years. His first admission came in the form of a complaint that the papers of the country with the largest circulation were Democratic or independent with advanced tariff reform views. This meant that the intelligence of the country was on the side of the fundamental principle advocated by the Democratic party. It is the same con-Harrison evidently fears Blaine's dition which existed at the breaking out of the war, when the papers with the largest circulation were Republican. The second and even more important admission was made in a letter to J. E. Beal, dated May 3, 1892, and published in the Ann Arbor Courier this week. Mr. Clarkson says: "We have not been getwill admit the truth of this state- ceased. ment. But what a commentary it is upon the doctrines of the Republican party. The young men of today live in the present. The reasons which impelled the young men of 1861 to enter the Republican party have passed away. On Saturday, April 23rd, 1892, Miss Jennie M. Davison, of the Literary Class of '94, died at her home in this city. It is the second time that the class of '94 has been called to mourn the decide that some one else is the first choice of the Republican party, it will mean something. A nomination tendered by dele-ther fellow students. Her Christian her fellow students. Her Christian faith and works are at the same time a warning and a comfort to us who are left behind. It is especially fitting that her classmates should pause a moment to weep over her grave, that they may learn the double lesson of her life and death.

We desire that this expression of our sorrow and sympathy be published in the college and city papers, and be forwarded to the family of the deceased. '94 CLASS COMMITTEE.

Death of Mrs. J. C. Schmid.

The death of Mrs. J. C. Schmid occurred at the family residence on First street, Wednesday morning, at about 1 o'clock. The finger of time had just turned from the midnight hour toward the dawning of another day, when the hand of death threw open the gates of heaven to the weary sufferer, and she passed through into the golden sunlight of immortality. All suffering was at last over, and the grief of the living was relieved of the burden of a sympathetic realization of that agony of pain for which there was no remedy. She was kind and affectionate, and all who knew her were drawn towards her with the kindest feelings. But all is changed now. They stand apart, some upon the stormy shores of time, the other upon the sunlit mountains of the GOLD DUST FLOUR. infinite. But still the distance may not be great, and this should cheer the sorrowing hearts of those left behind, and assuage the grief of the souls of those who in the shadow of death are apt to forget the nearness of infinite to the finite. The funeral services will be held at the family residence, No. 41 South First street, on Friday, at 2 p.m. * * * * *

Advantages Gained by an Intelligent Employment of This Practice. The two chief and general reasons why rotation of crops is necessary, according to L. H. Bonham, secretary of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, are: 1. For the conservation of the soil. 2. For the sake of economy. Removal of crops takes from the farm nitrogen, phosphoric acid and petash. Reckless farming in time depletes the an eye enucleated. pounds; potash, 12,000 pounds. Commercial fertilizers are a poor de pendence for keeping up fertility. They can only feed the crop in part, and are too costly to be used in storing up ferfrom scattering hand bills on the tility for future crops. Fertility is constantly being unlocked by chemical action, by frost and moisture.

Nitrification is the most important chemical operation in nature, without which we cannot conceive of continued fertility. The conditions favoring nitrification are: 1. A porous soil. Warmth, as nitrification is dormant at 42 degs. and most active when warm Ann Arbor, want to snatch him from enough to decay meat and vegetables. 3. Moisture in regular and moderate supvly. Clover and grasses shade the soil, re-tain moisture, render it porous and favor while filling in vegetable nitrification while filling in vegetable matter.

Nature rotates crops. When the for-ests of oak and hickory have been removed a thick growth of evergreens appears. In New England, where white pine forests have been removed, the maple, chestnut and oak have sprung up. A similar rotation is found in timothy meadows, followed by blue grass.

Besides a general there is a special depletion by each variety of crops. As 'favoritism," then avaunt, favorit- we increase crops by a change, but sm! Ann Arbor was asking to be chemistry has not been able to tell us Plants vary in power to appropriate food. Clover, we say, has a high power to gather nitrogen, while wheat has a Hoosier supreme court, crept upon well. Wheat grows mostly in cool weather, when nitrification is slow or dormant; hence the soil for wheat must be rich in nitrogen. On the other hand, corn grows wholly in warm weather; hence it needs less nitrogen to make a crop

Plants have favorites in plant food. Wheat, for example, takes $1\frac{1}{4}$ pounds of potash to every $3\frac{1}{4}$ pounds of phosphoric acid. Potatoes take 31/4 pounds of potash to one pound of phosphoric or gaseous form. It is a wise arrangement that soil does not dissolve as freewould ruin us. Stirring the soil favors disintegration; hence plowed or hoed crops should follow grasse

Grasses are conserves of soil and prevent washing and leaching. Rotation checks some kinds of insect ravages and fungi. The corn root worm does not feed on clover roots. The clover root borer does not bore corn roots or roots of wheat, oats, etc. The smut of wheat

WASHTENAW POMOLOGY.

A Highly Interesting and Profitable Meeting-The Fertilization of Orchards.

The May meeting of the Washtenaw Horticultural society was held on Saturday last, Hon. J.Austin Scott presiding. The discussion of the topic,"Fer tilizing the Orchard," was opened by. the corresponding secretary. The theory and experience of Hon. J. J Robison, that natural trees or seedlings furnished the pollen for the grafted or budded trees and in that way were a help in increasing the fertility of the orchard was confirmed. The secretary further stated that it was necessary to feed the trees liberally. His orchard was seeded down in orchard grass, and it was his experience that the apples on grass land ripened later and were better keepers than apples on cultivated lands. In order to keep up the fertility of the orchard, he fed them very liberally with liquid manure from a cistern in the barnyard. If the cistern water, collected by the rains and leachings of the manure pile, was not strong enough, he added hen manure. This would help both the grass and the trees. He also kept his pear orchard in grass, but mulched the trees heavily. It is easier to gather fruit in grass land than on cultivated ground.

President Scott said; "There is something in the pollenization of grafted trees by natural fruit trees. Grafted trees come into bearing sooner than seedlings, but the seedlings would hold out longer. The practice of some nurserymen to raise trees from root grafts or from sprouts he did not approve. Trees should start from seedlings. Fertilization of the orchard has not been brought before the public as it should have been. When young do not feed your trees too high to stimulate unnatural growth; when bearing, feed your trees liberally but not near the trunk but away around the tree as far as the branches grow. The feeding roots are way out there. Roots grow as far as the branches extend. I had an ashery near my orchard in the Maumee Valley and applied it very liberally to my orchard of sixty acres. This orhard frequently brought me $4,000 per annum clear of all expenses. Leached ashes are a very fine fertilizer. My grandfather planted an orchard for everyone of his children." (Such a man deserves a monument.-Editor.)

The secretary thought that farmers and horticulturists should burn wood instead of coal. It creates a more pleasant heat, is cleaner and furnishes an invaluable fertilizer for most plants.

J. J. Robison: "The farmers in Freedom have more natural fruit among their grafted trees. Their grafted trees are better loaded with fruit. They make better cider from natural fruit."

ing and cultivation of the orchard."

culture. In his very able lecture he considered scil, fertilizers, preparation wound, which it makes just under the bark. A strong knife and sometimes a hoe to remove the surface soil are all the tools needed for its extermination. The only known remedy against peach yellows is to root out and burn every tree which shows the disease and plant a healthy one in its place. Black knot, which disfigures and ultimately destroys trees of the plum and in some cases of the cherry, is caused by a well known fungus which lives in the interior of the wood and bark and is therefore out of reach of ordinary remedies. The simplest and safest remedy, therefore, is to cut away and burn all limbs that show the disease and thus prevent its pronagation in other trees. The remedy for grape rot known as the Bordeaux mixture is best known and has been applied with uniform success. To prepare this procure a barrel holding forty-five gallons and dissolve in it six pounds of powdered copper sulphate, using eight or ten gallons of water, or sufficient for the purpose. In another receptacle shake four pounds of fresh receptacle shake four pounds of fresh lime, to which then add sufficient water to make a creamy white wash, strain this through a coarse sack into the barrel containing the copper sulphate, then fill up the barrel with water, when the mixture is ready for use. This formula is given in the latest bulletins of the U.S. department of agriculture and is only one half of the strength of that heretofore used. All pruning, old berries, leaves, etc., should first be removed and burned to destroy the spores. The first application of the mixture should be made as soon as the buds begin to swell, to be EARS. followed by a second, when the leaves are one-third grown and a third application at the time of blossoming. This should be repeated at intervals of ten or twelve days until the fruit is fully grown, but should then cease in order that no lime remain to disfigure the berries. If long droughts occur fewer applications are needed. A comparatively new remedy worthy of trial, is an animoniacal solution of precipitated IN copper carbonate, or copperdine, as it is called by one manufacturer. This has the advantage of being a perfectly clear RED solution which never disfigures the fruit and is also useful as a remedy for apple scab and several other fungus diseases.

In conclusion, I desire to again call attention to the suggestion made at our last meeting that some one in each neighborhood take up spraying as a business. It requires considerable study to learn the best remedies and how to apply them and in the hurry of spring work it is apt to be neglected.

The twelve tooth planet junior cultivator, or rather harrow, on exhibit was very much admired. For fine cultivation, either deep or shallow, especially among small plants, where even culti-E.
