The End of the Sugar Case.—Colored Women at War.—The Choral Union and the Press.—Decoration Day.

A Sensation in Social Circles. Samuel Pickwick, esq., G. C. M. P. C., our distinguished English predecessor, will entertain the elite public of Ann Arbor on the evening of June 10, 1892. Mr. Pickwick is accompanied by the Pickwick club and nearly 100 lady and gentlemen creations of Charles Dickens, and has secured the use of the parlors of the Congregational church. Do not wait for a formal invitation. Mr. Pickwick is a public man and wishes to meet the American public without formality.

Honoring the Heroes. Decoration day was properly observed Monday under the auspices of Welch Post, G. A. R. In the morning committees from the post decorated the graves of their dead comrades with flowers. In the afternoon exercises were held at University Hall. The program there given consisted of patriotic songs by the S. C. A. quartette, accompanied by Emil Baur, jr.; reading of scriptures and invocation by Rev. Rev. J. T. Sunderland; a recitation, "The Frontier Veteran to His Grandson," by Miss Clara Kenyon, and an address by Capt. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, pronounced by all who heard it the best that he had ever delivered.

Mrs. Sager Passes Away. Sarah Dwight Sager, widow of the late Dr. Abram Sager, died at her residence on S. State street on Monday, from the effects of a stroke of paralysis which she suffered four years ago. The deceased was born at Thompson, Conn., in 1818. She was married in 1838 to Dr. Sager, who became a member of the university faculty in 1842 and continued in the service of the university until his death in 1877. During the first four years of his professorship, the family of Dr. Sager lived in Detroit and Jackson but removed to this city in 1846. During her long residence here, Mrs. Sager endeared herself to a large circle of friends.

The deceased was the mother of eight children, four of whom survive her—Edward J. Sager, of Dexter, Ia.; Alfred B. Sager, of Los Vegas, N. M.; Miss Cynthia Sager and Mrs. Susan Hardy, of this city.

Another Saline Pioneer Gone. Marcia Sumner Mills died at the family residence at five o'clock on the morning of the 24th inst., after an illness of four weeks.

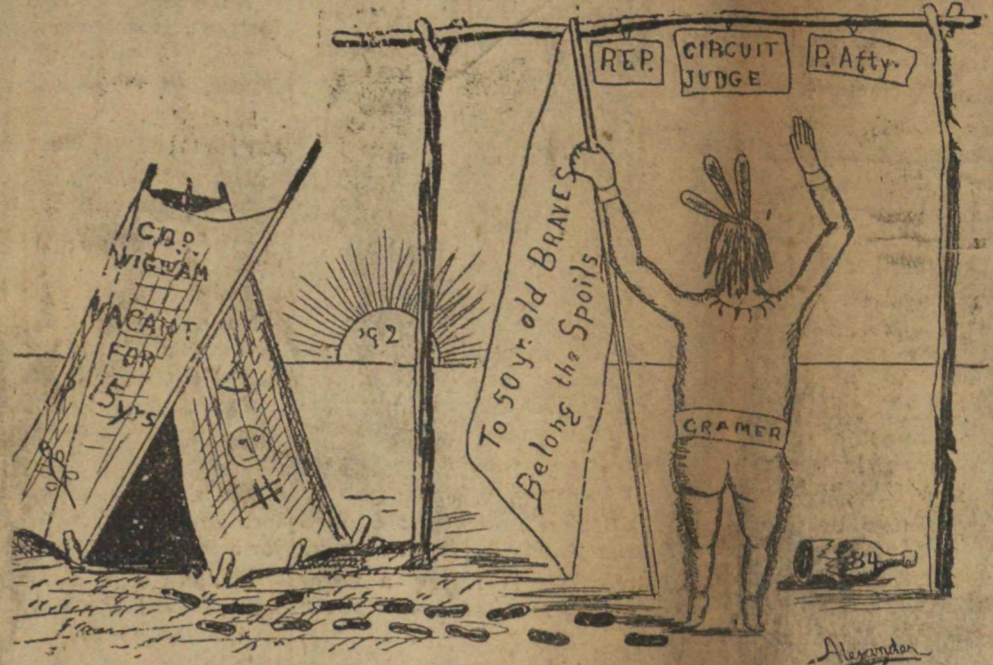

Mrs. Mills was born at Franklin, Delaware Co., N. Y., on the 22nd day of November, 1817, and hence was closely approaching 75 years of age. At an early date she came to this village with her parents and was married to Russell Mills October 14, 1834. She was next to the youngest of a large family, all of whom are gathered on the other side, except her younger sister, Mrs. R. W. Parsons, of Wayne.

Her husband, now over 84 years of age, and four children, Dr. H. R. Mills, of Port Huron; Mrs. H. H. Humphrey, of Detroit; R. W. Mills and Miss M. Lillian Mills, of Saline, survive her and deeply feel her loss. The oldest daughter, Harriett Newell Mills, died in 1868 after several years of impaired mental and physical health. The sickness and death of this daughter was a very great trial upon the health and spirits of the fond mother, who lived only for her family and could ill bear to witness pain or suffering on the part of any of her household. She was ever a devoted wife and a mother who idolized her children. Their joys were her greatest satisfaction and their sorrows caused her untold anguish. She knew no such thing as a limit to her exertions when the comfort and happiness of her children were concerned.

She was a devout member of the Methodist Episcopal church into which she had been born and brought up.

Her father, Jacob Sumner, was a man of unusual education and intelligence for the time in which he lived and he with his noble wife reared a family of which he might well be proud.

Michigan was a wilderness when he and his children first settled here and log cabins stood where now we find productive farms and beautiful homes, the result of the sturdy effort and civilizing influences of his and other pioneer families throughout this great and beautiful state.—Observer.

Fun For the Spectators.

There was trouble among a couple of colored women in the fifth ward, Monday, that furnished considerable amusement for the neighbors. A girl named Zebb had been stopping with Mrs. Amella Taylor. Monday she put on a sacque which Mrs. Taylor's little girl claimed belonged to her, and the Zebb girl slapped her. About that time the fun began. Mrs. Taylor swooped down upon the girl who had slapped her daughter, with the intention of giving her a thrashing in return. But the Zebb girl saw her antagonist coming and prepared herself. There were no referees, judges or timers, but all the other incidents to a prize fight were there. They pummeled each other, knocked each other down and tore each other's clothes, and when the smoke cleared away from the battle field both were satisfied, honors being about even.

No arrests were made but the Zebb girl's things were hustled out into the street by Mrs. Taylor, and the women do not speak now as they pass each other.

People's Convention.

A mass convention of the independent voters of Washtenaw county will be held at the court house in Ann Arbor at 10 o'clock a. m., June 11, 1892, for the purpose of organizing a People's party in this county, also to elect eight delegates to represent this county in the state convention of the People's party to be held at Lansing, June 16, 1892, and to do such other business as may properly come before the convention. All voters that believe in financial, taxation and transportation reforms are cordially invited to attend this convention. Farmers, mechanics, and laboring men that are in favor of receiving better pay for their labor or products are invited to meet with them and work together in this grand reform movement.

As all the independent voters of this county are subscribers and readers of our county newspapers, we most respectfully ask all the editors of Washtenaw to print this notice once in their several issues and by doing so oblige their many readers.

Good speakers are expected to be present and address the convention. Called by request of many voters. ANN ARBOR, May 24, 1892. Exchanges please copy.

Dr. A. Conklin's Death.

On Wednesday of last week, Dr. Amariah Conklin died at his residence in Manchester after several months of suffering. His funeral was held Friday afternoon.

The deceased was the oldest son of Dr. Ebenezer H. Conklin and was born at Amenia, Dutchess county, N. Y., Jan. 20th, 1822. In 1831 he came with his parents to Sharon township, where the family settled upon a farm of nearly 500 acres. During his boyhood and early manhood he worked upon the farm and helped to clear up the land. He concluded to follow his father's profession and in 1849 graduated from the Medical University of New York. He located in Manchester in practice and on June 7th, 1853, was married to Miss Lavina A. Carpenter. Since first coming to Manchester he has lived alternately in that village and on his farm in Sharon, continuing the practice of medicine all the time. He has two sons, who are practicing physicians, and two daughters.

Dr. Conklin has been successful in practice and has accumulated a considerable estate. He was a public spirited man and interested in education and free schools. He served several terms as president of Manchester and held numerous other positions of trust. He was a prominent and enthusiastic member of the I. O. O. F.

"Listen to the Fifty?"

"Out of Politics. Will attend strictly to law business hereafter." Such was the legend upon the door of an attorney of this city some years ago, just after the returns came in showing that he was not to represent this district in the Senate by—well not by a big majority. Time rolls on. This week the public was treated to the spectacle of an attorney distributing bills, bearing a different legend from that quoted above. There was no "out of politics" connected with it, but "we believe in the division of the spoils, without regard to age, creed, nationality, or original party predilections." Will someone inform us what the circular signed by fifty names and reading as follows, means:

"The undersigned, Democrats over fifty years of age, who have stood by Democratic principles at least fifteen years, and who believe in the doctrines of Jefferson and Jackson, and who are determined to stand by the nominee of the Democratic National Convention for the year 1892, and who believe in the division of spoils without regard to age, creed, nationality, or original party predilections, and who have borne their share in the expenses and labors necessary to sustain the Democratic party in years past; and who adhere to the one principle upon which all Democrats ought to agree, to wit, Tariff Reform; and who believe that the impulsiveness of youth often needs the deliberation of old age, do hereby sign our names as Democrats and agree to work for the interests of the Democratic party in the coming campaign as the deliberate judgment of men of mature years shall dictate; restraining youth, and giving vigor to age in all necessary acts of the Democratic party in the pending campaign."

Misfit Courtesies.

How little the general public appreciate the many courtesies which the newspapers extend to them. They ask favor after favor of the papers and it is very seldom they are refused. This is especially so in Ann Arbor where there are so many societies and organizations with different aims, and hardly a week passes but each of the papers are asked to open their columns to boom some local entertainment which is to be given. Usually the papers are well-treated and receive a few complimentary tickets and what little job printing is needed in part payment. But even this is sometimes forgotten, as was instanced on Friday evening.

The Courier, the Register, the Argus, all have complete job departments in connection with their offices, representing a good many thousands of dollars in investment. During the past winter these three papers have been very liberal with the Choral Union in the way of notices. Not one of the entertainments has been passed with a few lines, but more often the advance notices and descriptions of what the public might expect have amounted to several columns for each concert. "The Damnation of Faust" was no exception and for several weeks past the papers have kept the expected production before their readers. The cost of these notices if the organization had been obliged to pay the same rates as charged would have been considerable, but instead they were given gratis. Instead of giving what little job printing was necessary to any one of the three above mentioned, or to any of the offices in the city, the management saw fit to have the printing done in Detroit, at a job office with no paper attached where the proprietors could not possibly have done for the Choral Union what the local offices had done. The Argus does not complain because the printing was not done here. It would have been as satisfactory had the Register of the Courier been given a chance to make a dollar on this work as the Argus itself. But the Argus does complain that the management of the Choral Union by this one act showed a lack of appreciation of the many courtesies which have been extended to that organization by the local press.

Drawing to a Close.

The testimony in the case of the Electric Sugar Refining Co. vs. Olive E. Friend is now all in and C. R. Whitman opened the arguments yesterday afternoon. The case will be given to the jury this afternoon and as it has been before the court and jury for ten long days they will be glad to see the end.

The case of the defense improved considerably as the various witnesses were placed on the stand. A. J. Sawyer in opening made the claim that there is a secret process, not of refining raw sugar but of taking the impurities out of inferior grades of sugar.

George Halsstead, the first witness for the defense, swore that he was hired by Cotterill and about the first work he did was to break open a box which he supposed contained machinery, but which had sugar in it. He wondered at this and asked Howard and Cotterill if Mrs. Friend knew about this. Howard said, "This is none of Mrs. Friend's business. This is Cotterill's business. He hires you and will pay you," and Cotterill added, "You do as Howard says and I'll take care of you." A demonstration was held. The witness received $90 for eleven days work and then went home to Milan, but went back in response to a letter from Cotterill. He aided in several demonstrations this time. He swore that Cotterill went into the various rooms of the factory and knew well that the raw sugar was not used, at one time telling witness that he must take in more raw sugar as they were going to run out more of the white sugar than he had taken in raw, and "they would think something was wrong."

Mrs. Friend was an excellent witness on the stand and told a straight-forward story which the other side failed to shake upon cross examination. She explained what she knew about the sugar business with one exception, that she claiming as her secret. She swore that at the first demonstrations her husband used inferior white sugar and that Cotterill brought the fine sugar himself. Cotterill drew all the contracts that were signed and knew that they did not claim to refine raw sugar as they had refused to sign several contracts with "raw sugar" in. Relating to the various contracts and receipts signed by her, she said that she knew very little about them but signed them at the request of her husband. She identified the various contracts which had been signed and many drafts of contracts which Cotterill had drawn that she and her husband had refused to sign.

Prof. Corhart and Dr. Vaughan were sworn by the plaintiff in rebuttal to straighten out some points in regard to the effect of electricity on sugar.

Mr. Whitman closed his argument yesterday afternoon. It was a strong plea of his side of the case and had considerable effect.

Every precaution is being used to prevent the spread of the disease.

The board of review for the assessment of this township was in session the first of this week. The banks and money shavers are going to dodge taxation almost entirely on their bonds and mortgages under the new tax law, which will increase the taxes very much on real estate. This is just the opposite of what the legislature intended to do in changing the former law, but it has been perverted by the mortgagees. The purpose was to relieve the debtor class from paying taxes on more property than they owned, but as now applied it is worse in that direction than it was before the change.

One of the axioms of the Washtenaw Times is, "Ann Arbor Needs Street Signs." The Times, no doubt, has been pressed by strangers to locate certain streets for them and had to acknowledge his doubts as to their whereabouts. Just the reason why signs are not provided is hard to find, unless it lurks in the thought that strangers, when once within the city limits, will not be able to get out until after the census is taken.—Ypsilanti.

A society for the prevention of cruelty to animals is what Manchester wants, and we venture to remark that if such an organization existed here our citizens would not be subjected to such sights of cruelty and inhuman treatment of dumb animals as was witnessed on our streets last Wednesday and Thursday. One horse stood hitched in a shed from about 7 a. m., Wednesday, without food or water, until after 7 p. m., and then had to be driven several miles before reaching home. His owner was in town drunk all day. On Thursday another poor animal stood on the street from 10:30 a. m. until after 8 o'clock in the evening, without care, while its sportive master played cards and drank beer. Vigorous protests were made by several citizens, but before an officer arrived to take care of the animal some one quietly untied the animal and started it for home. Such cruelty on our streets is all too frequent, and we hope that if it is repeated the authorities will take the matter in hand and make an example of the offenders.—Manchester Enterprise.

In Ypsilanti a few evenings ago, a respectable lady was assaulted by a short, shambling, shabby, bow-legged snaggle-toothed son of Zanzibar, described as having a very flat nose, kinky hair and wobbling gait, and named Jake Griffin, who made his escape. Such occurrences are growing too frequent in Ypsilanti.

One of the most difficult jobs—and one that struck him fairly in the face almost at the threshold of his administration—was thrust upon Postmaster P. He wanted to know of the postmaster if that was the way to pronounce Y-p-s-i-l-a-n-t-i. None now but his most intimate friends are allowed by his physicians to see Mr. Carpenter, but they say they will bring him around again shortly.

The removal of the Northville Keeley drunkard cure, to Ypsilanti, June 1st, is heralded as something that "will spread the name and fame" of that town "far and wide." Guess not any farther and wider than it was already spread. What the name itself lacked, as a fact-maker, was supplied to all the world that could smell, when the drill uncapped her mineral water.

The Ann Arbor Courier's cartoonist brought forth another last week. It is said to represent Gen. Winans, grip in hand, fleeing to the woods, after the recent Democratic state convention. That which at sight impresses the beholder as the raciest thing about the cartoon, is the great length of the governor's left leg; or, mayhap it is the right leg. It is impossible to be certain from the picture which is the right and which the left; but at all events it is the leg in the air that is the longest, by several inches. If it be the left leg, then the other is going to "get left" before the race is half over. There is nothing like the clever cartoon to concisely convey conviction.

It pays to be honest even in politics. Hill stole the legislature of New York for his party, and what has it availed him. His name has been hissed in every Democratic convention held in the east this year. He has been kicked for his dishonesty.—Ann Arbor Courier.

Granting that the statement of the Courier is true, that paper has struck upon the difference between the Republicans and Democrats. Who ever heard of a Republican kicked by his party for his dishonesty?

The editor of the Ypsilantian took a run through the pearl button factory, at Detroit, lately and was overwhelmed with the benefits of the McKinley bill which made it possible to give employment to so many girls there, and enable the money to be kept at home. The editor didn't investigate the wages paid those girls, but he might learn how labor is aided by tariff if he would go and look over the pay roll. A strike has been inaugurated by girls whom they wish to make rich by paying 1 1/4 cents a gross for drilling the holes in the buttons. The girls get 34 cents per day for 10 1/2 hours. This is the statement of the labor leader, Mr. Ogg. He says there is not a healthy looking lady in the entire lot of overworked humanity, with the McKinley protection to make their purses fat, and their cheeks bloom with health. Thirty-four cents a day, and then want to cut down at that. Fine protected industry indeed.—Adrian Press.

The Republicans have been laughing for several months over the controversy in the Democratic ranks between the friends of Cleveland and Hill, but all of a sudden they have quit laughing. They find that they have a row of large sized dimensions on hand to settle at their national convention on Tuesday and have no time to laugh at the Democrats until their own melee is disposed of. And it is doubtful whether a settlement will be effected there or indeed whether the Republicans will have time to laugh again before election, and by that time their hilarity will be turned to sorrow.

The difference between the contests in the two parties is that Cleveland and Hill have been open opponents, while the battle waged against Harrison by Blaine has been in secret. Even Hill never went so far as to write a letter declining to be a candidate and then issue secret instructions to "burn this" or that he didn't mean it. No matter whether Harrison or Blaine is nominated by the Republicans, the successful candidate will have all that he can do to swing the supporters for his rival into line.

THE ELECTORAL VOTE IN 1892.

Now is the time to make figures on the electoral vote of 1892. It is a great deal easier for partisans of both sides to figure out the success of their candidate now than it will be after the votes are cast. The Argus gives the following figures so that the pivotal points of the campaign may be seen. The following states may be regarded as surely Republican: California, 9; Idaho, 3; Maine, 6; Massachusetts, 15; Michigan, 5; Minnesota, 9; Nebraska, 8; Nevada, 3; New Hampshire, 4; North Dakota, 3; Ohio, 23; Oregon, 4; Pennsylvania, 32; Rhode Island, 4; South Dakota, 4; Vermont, 4; Washington, 4; Wyoming, 3. Total, 143. The following states may be classed as surely Democratic: Alabama, 11; Arkansas, 8; Delaware, 3; Florida, 4; Georgia, 13; Kentucky, 13; Louisiana, 8; Maryland, 8; Michigan, 3; Mississippi, 9; Missouri, 17; New Jersey, 10; North Carolina, 11; Tennessee, 12; Texas, 15; Virginia, 12. Total, 157. The probable Republican states in addition to these named above are Colorado, 4; Illinois, 24;

Iowa, 13; Kansas, 10; Michigan, 2. Total, 53. This brings the Republican strength up to 196, or 27 less than required to elect. The probable Democratic states in addition to the above are, Connecticut, 6; Indiana, 15; Michigan, 3; South Carolina, 9; West Virginia, 6. This brings the Democratic strength up to 196, and leaves the battle to be fought out in the very doubtful states, New York, 36; Wisconsin, 12; Michigan, 1, and Montana, 3; or a total of 52 votes. It takes 223 votes to elect a president.

If the Republicans nominate Harrison the party leaders in Colorado threaten to desert him. If Cleveland is the Democratic nominee, he will, in our opinion, without doubt, carry Wisconsin, and run Harrison a close race in Illinois and Iowa. If Cleveland is the nominee and the same work was put in by the Democrats in Illinois that they have been putting in in New York, Wisconsin and Illinois would cast their votes for him and this would elect him. Cleveland is the strongest man in these states. That is why the west so strongly demands his nomination.

A DEMOCRAT WHO NEEDS NO LABEL.

In a letter written from New York city to his paper, the Louisville Courier-Journal, Henry Watterson says:

Mr. Cleveland is now seriously considering whether the party can afford to place him in nomination and whether, in case it does so, he can afford to make the race. We can say that nothing is more likely than Mr. Cleveland will have a letter of renunciation at Chicago, such as in 1880 Mr. Tilden had at Cincinnati.

It is apparent that what Mr. Watterson says concerning the probable action of Mr. Cleveland regarding the presidential nomination is based rather on his confidence in the unselfish party patriotism and good judgment of the ex-President than on anything he has learned directly from Mr. Cleveland's own lips. There is but little doubt, however, that Mr. Cleveland is anxiously considering the advisability of forbidding, at the proper time, the further use of his name as a candidate for the Democratic nomination. With that chivalric indifference to his own political fortunes which has characterized his entire career, and which constitutes his strongest claim to the affection and loyalty of his party, he is prepared to do that thing which shall tell most decisively for Democratic success next November. It is to the eternal credit of Mr. Cleveland that he has done nothing up to the present time that could by any possibility be tortured into the appearance even of trying to force himself upon the party. Whatever strength his candidacy has attained, is due entirely to the spontaneous rallying of the Democratic masses to his support. They implicitly believe in him as the embodiment and exponent of all that is best in Democracy. They see in him the realization of their highest ideal of patriotic political leadership. They like his pluck; they admire his faith in himself and his cause; and they reverence his unyielding devotion to his convictions of right. More than any other public man of his day, he has walked according to the lights of his conscience and understanding, turning neither to the right hand nor to the left. It is this heroic habit that has given him such a unique hold upon the minds and imaginations of his political followers. While the Journal has been an earnest advocate of his nomination, it has never believed that Cleveland himself would consent to accept the leadership of his party in the pending contest if the opposition to him within the Democratic ranks should prove to be as irreconcilable as it is unreasoning and despicable. We are therefore not surprised to learn that he is deliberating on the expediency of voluntarily relinquishing the position of leadership to which he has been called by the voice of the Democratic masses—not of the caucus-packers. He is too great a man and too sincere a Democrat to permit any considerations of self to stand between him and the fearless doing of his highest duty to Democracy. He will not accept the nomination unless he is convinced that he can command the united and enthusiastic support of the Democracy in all the pivotal states of the Union.

The character of Mr. Cleveland's Democracy is such that he does not need to be labeled to prove his political identity. He is a Democrat from the ground up. The author of the Declaration of Independence was not a better exemplar of Jeffersonianism.—Lansing Journal.

THE SUGAR TRUST.

IT HAS DISGUSTED EVEN THE MCKINLEYITES BY ITS GREED.

The Combination Has Forced Down the Price of Raw Sugar and Raised the Price of Refined, Thus Adding About $16,000,000 to Its Yearly Profits.

The Philadelphia Press, the high tariff organ of the Manufacturers' club, thus scores the sugar trust:

"Congress has provided that many millions of revenue heretofore obtained from sugar duties shall be diverted from the public treasury and be given to the people. The trust, under the shelter given to it by congress for a wise and fair purpose, proposes in turn to divert a portion of this money from the pockets of the people to the pockets of the members of the trust.

"Brethren, we say to you that if the protective system is to be employed for such purposes as this, the game is up. No champion of that system can succeed, even if he were willing to try, in commending to the people at one and the same time the protective system and the sugar trust. It is quite impossible to expect the nation to regard with enthusiasm, because it proposed to reduce the price of sugar, a law which enables the sugar trust to defeat that intention. What the purpose of the act is consumers do not so much care.

"The thing that appeals most strongly to them is the actual fact that sugar prices have fallen. Now, if sugar prices shall again advance under the manipulation of a protected conspiracy against the people, it will be useless to commend consumers to the purpose of Mr. McKinley. They will conclude, and rightly conclude, that if the whole benefit of the lower duties is not to come to them, it should go once again into the treasury of the United States. The opponents of the protective system will have placed in their hands, at the most critical moment in the history of American protection, a potent weapon with which to assail the protective theory, and we venture to say that there is small reason to doubt that the result will be overwhelming defeat for the protective system.

"Openly, in view of every man in the nation, there will be unanswerable demonstration that the free traders do not lack justification for their often repeated allegation that the protective tariff is used by manufacturers for the purpose of enriching themselves at the cost of their fellow citizens. The formation of the trust is indeed a challenge issued to the people. The latter, through their representatives in congress, have decreed that sugar shall be cheapened. The trust, on the contrary, declares that it shall not be cheapened. There can be no doubt of the conclusion of this conflict of interests if the people shall be thoroughly roused, but there is some reason for fearing that the consequences may involve other than the offending parties. The sugar trust places the entire manufacturing interest of the country in jeopardy by its action, and in behalf of that interest we enter protest against the course that it is pursuing.

"Protesting, however, is likely to be of small service in averting the peril in which protected industry has been placed by this combination. There can be no safety but in action, and it may be conjectured that there would be few expressions of grief from protectionists if a Republican senate should join with a Democratic house in sending to a Republican president, just as soon as the sugar trust has made its monopoly complete, a bill placing all grades of refined sugar upon the free list. The protectionists who defend protection upon grounds of public interest have no concern to apologize for it when it is perverted to the interest of a few private individuals. In truth, such abuse of the system ought to encounter prompt resistance from the sincere friends of home industry, for the man who misuses the tariff in such a manner is a more dangerous enemy of the system than the most active of the apostles of free trade. The question for consideration would appear to be, Shall the sugar trust be permitted to use protection for the overthrow of protection?"

Protected by the tariff on refined sugar, the sugar trust is now making profits at the rate of 73.08 per cent. on the actual value of its properties. The work required of the men employed in the sugar house is the hardest kind of work possible, and a considerable number of the men are forced to work in intense heat. The low rate of wages, $1.50 per day of ten hours, which the trust is willing to pay is so low that no American workman will work in the sugar houses—even Italians prefer to work on the streets, pick rags and sell fruit. The greater part of the men employed are Poles and Hungarians, who have been brought over under contract. This is a true picture of a tariff protected industry; where are the benefits to the workingman?

How It Looks to Outsiders.

The State of Michigan with all its printing establishments has this year found it necessary (?) to go to Boston, (which is in Massachusetts,) for the printing of the Calendar of the state's great University. And the printing establishments of the state help pay the bill, while the job itself is no credit to the state, the University or the printing house that turned it out. It is well enough printed, so far as ink, type and paper go, but is printed with back margins narrower than front margins even before binding and then the sheets are hammered together in a "book" of over 260 pages—half an inch thick—with the abominable wire staples and covered with paper, making a "book" which one must fight with every moment he reads it in order to keep it far enough open to give opportunity for an angling view of the pages. Lay the book down, or let go your grasp of it and it closes instantly like a steel trap, unless you lay it on the table face down, when its back sticks up like that of a cat going to war. It is to be read only when muscle and patience are in good order.—Midland Republican.

The Greatest Living American.

An instance of the esteem in which Grover Cleveland is held by the people of the entire United States is shown by the recent remarks of the great Republican orator, Chauncey M. Depew, a more than possible rival candidate for the presidency. He said:

"If I am to name the typical American, the man who loves and believes in his country beyond everything else, the man who, determining once in what direction his duty leads, cannot be swerved from the path, the man who is doggedly persistent in what he believes to be right, the man who thinks not of self, but of his country, and its needs, I would name Grover Cleveland. What he has accomplished is the very highest tribute to the possibilities of American citizenship. A country lawyer in the city of Buffalo, he shed lustre upon the high profession he had chosen. As the mayor of his native city he presented as his record a clean and economical administration. Coming into the highest position in the land, without previous experience, and with scarcely a precedent to guide him in the conditions which surrounded him, he won the affection of his party, and commanded the respect and admiration of his opponents. I find myself in one of the proudest positions of my life in being permitted to present to you Grover Cleveland as the typical American."

SPRING MANAGEMENT OF BEES.
A Talk by the President of the Ohio
Beekeepers' Association.
President Charles F. Muth, of Cincinnati, in his address before the Ohio state convention, had the following to say on the subject of spring management of bees:
Every beekeeper must decide for himself whether he shall produce comb or extracted honey, or both. The main question is how to produce the largest crop. He may have the most prolific queens, he may have a successful wintering, and his colonies be in fine condition four or five weeks previous to the beginning of the honey harvest, but, misled by fine weather and the lively flight of his bees, he forgets that flowers generally yield no honey just at that period, and that the consumption of their stores is greatest when brood rearing is at its best. Everything may seem prosperous until he sees dead larvae at the alighting board.
Upon examination he finds the hives full of bees, no stores and little or no larvae in the cells. The bees, being short of food and moved by a sense of self preservation, had sacrificed their young. They had pulled their larvae out of the cells and out of the hives in order to make their stores hold out as long as possible.
The bees ought to have been fed a month previous to this time, and now they must be fed without delay, and plentifully, so as to induce them to breed up again. But as it requires three weeks before the first young bees will hatch out after the eggs are laid and two weeks more before they will become foragers, and as the honey harvests hardly ever last longer than four or five weeks, the colonies will be in good condition again just in time to be too late for that season. The beekeeper has lost the earning of his year's labor, while by a timely feeding he would have secured a good crop of honey. It is just there where most beekeepers make their mistake.
The bees' consumption of their united stores begins with brood rearing, and in the same ratio that the brood increases the stores decrease. The question whether more honey is consumed by outdoor or indoor wintering is therefore immaterial. The difference is small. The old bees only are foragers, while their young stay at home taking care of the brood, preparing the cells for the reception of eggs and honey, ripen the honey and close the cells when filled. It is therefore of great importance to have the colonies strong in old and young bees and ready for the harvest at the time the season begins, which is, in southern Ohio, the latter part of May, the time when the white clover comes into bloom.

Raising Turkeys.
Of the many varieties the bronze is at present a favorite, writes a Kentucky farmer's daughter in The Country Gentleman. She says:
Have pure bred stock by all means to begin with, as their early maturity renders them more desirable for home use, as well as for market purposes; and if the strain be brought to anything like perfection there is always a demand for young stock as well as for eggs. Many make the mistake of trying to keep turkeys in the same yard with chickens. They are most aristocratic fowls, abhorring all uncleanness and disdaining to associate with what they consider the lower classes. In fact, their well being demands a clean, dry run, well drained and sunny, and an extensive range, where they may gather for themselves the food their wild nature suggests. And although in all pleasant weather their best roosting place is an airy perch in the tree tops, yet a shelter at night from the severe cold, the snow, and even from chilling spring rains would be of great advantage.
Unlike chickens, turkeys will not eat any and everything; mine were always healthier when allowed no meat or rich food of any kind, dry grain of good quality being preferred. Their drinking vessels and feeding pans must be kept very clean and wholesome, or they will refuse to touch anything. At and just previous to laying time the hens are very fastidious, and all the variety procurable should be offered them, taking care to feed them lightly on those grains at all fattening in tendency, as Indian corn in its various preparations, allowing instead a generous proportion of those grains said to contain a preponderance of egg producing elements, as wheat, oats and the like. Mine were very fond of sorghum seed and of grass seed from the floor of the hay loft, while of ground foods wheat bran was their favorite, especially if it was slightly moistened with sweet milk. Milk, either sweet or sour, buttermilk or clabber, is highly appreciated, and as this is said to be an excellent egg food the hens should have all they will drink at this time, care being taken to allow none to remain in the trough over night, and so become rancid and unwholesome. Some green food they must have, and until grass comes again this may be supplied either in the shape of raw garden vegetables, ensilage or sweet clover hay, cut in half-inch lengths and steamed.

THE GREAT BANKRUPT SALE.
Clothing Way Below Manufacturers' Cost.
It will pay you to come a hundred miles to visit this great sale. If you value money, don't miss it. To save money is to make it, and probably the whole history of clothing fails to disclose greater bargains than are now being offered at the Great Bankrupt Sale of men's, boys' and children's clothing, at 197 Woodward Avenue, Detroit. This mammoth stock was bought of a prominent New York concern that became bankrupt, and bought, too, at prices that enables us to sell it at 40 and 50 cents on the dollar of manufacturers' cost. The prices asked by us, as may be judged, are far and away down from usual retail figures. Every garment in this stock was made up this season, of materials equal to those of custom tailors, and cut in latest styles. As to prices, for example, we can sell you a man's good all wool suit, worth $18 for $6.50; a boy's all wool suit, long pants, ages 14 to 19, well worth $10 at $5. We have 125 different styles of children's suits, ages from 4 to 14 years, and sold by other dealers at $6, $7 and $8, of which we offer you your choice for $2.95. The sale will continue until the entire stock amounting to $85,000 is disposed of. First comers will have the pick of selections. We guarantee everything as represented, or money refunded.

MARKET GARDENING.
American Agriculturist Tells How Competition Affects It.
Since the establishment of extensive truck farms in the south, and the great celery fields in Michigan and Ohio, the market gardens of the north have in some respects been injuriously affected by the competition. However, the greater supply of fresh vegetables, through a greater period of the year, has materially increased consumption, especially in the smaller towns and cities. The occasional oversupply and consequent low price give even the very poorest people an opportunity to purchase vegetables other than potatoes and cabbage, and so in the end the local market gardener's trade is increased, although he must accept lower prices than he has received in former years.
His profits must come through a better knowledge of his business that will enable him to produce larger and better crops at less cost, yet, as the greatest yield can only come from land heavily enriched and thoroughly prepared, there must be a considerable investment at the outset. Gardeners within access of a city water supply avail themselves of this means for irrigation as occasion may require, while others use windmills and tanks, but are seldom able to irrigate as fully as required in a hot, dry time when water is most needed. In some of the larger gardens, where extreme drought for two or three weeks might mean the loss of thousands of dollars, steam pumps and full irrigation plants have been constructed at great expense. Thus the most complete crops are assured and these gardens are turning out products far beyond anything ever thought of by our gardeners of former generations.

NEVER A FAILURE.
The Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota has never had a failure of crops.
It produced 30,000,000 bushels of wheat besides other cereals in 1890.
Farms can be had on the crop plan, or long time cash payments.
It is not an uncommon thing to pay for a farm from the proceeds of one crop.
It has all of the advantages of an old country in the shape of school, church, market, postal & railway facilities and all the chances of a new country in the way of cheap lands, rich soil, and increase in value.
It is one of the most fertile and promising regions in America not yet fully occupied.
In the rush to the far west, however, this rich valley has been overlooked.
It has room for a million more people.

Alumni Association of that place.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

Commencement is three weeks from next Thursday.

The U. of M. team returned home Monday evening from their eastern trip.

E. R. Sutton leaves tomorrow for Minneapolis, where he will act as one of the clerks of the Republican National Convention.

A "fine" cut and sketch of P. W. Ross, president of the senior literary class, appeared in the Detroit Journal, Saturday evening.

The Choral Union went to Detroit by special train, Saturday afternoon, and in the evening gave "The Damnation of Faust" to a crowded house for the benefit of the Woman's Annex.

The closing concert of the Choral Union, "The Damnation of Faust," at University Hall, Friday evening, was a big success. The hall was crowded and the chorus did better than at any previous concert.

The remaining officers of the S. L. A. were elected Saturday, as follows: Recording secretary, U. F. Bickley, '93 law; vice-president, C. L. Thomas, '93 lit; corresponding secretary, C. W. Ricketts, '94 lit; treasurer, J. E. Roberts, '92 law; assist.-treasurer, H. N. Goddard, '93 lit; directors, Miss Scirus, '93 lit, Miss Textor, '94 lit, and H. H. Loveland, '94 medic.

Harvard beat the U. of M. team at Cambridge, Mass., last Friday, by a score of 4 to 2. On Saturday the U. of M. team defeated Brown University 2 to 1, at Providence, R. I. The 'Varsity team left the grounds at the end of the sixth inning claiming that the Brown umpire was not giving them a fair show.

The game Saturday with the Toronto team promises to be close, and a good game. In the game with Cornell, Tuesday, Toronto played great ball, holding Cornell down to four runs, while the Canadian team knocked out three scores. This is the last scheduled game at the U. of M. and all who desire to see the team play again this year, will have to go to Saturday's game.

An instance of Republican peace and harmony was given at the meeting of the University Republican Club, Saturday evening. There has been a split in the ranks for some time divided between the supporters of Burke and his opponents. Burke being about to leave the city presented his resignation, and his opponents being in the majority "heartily" accepted. They then started in to elect his successor and after a prolonged struggle in which many harsh things were said, H. H. Parsons, a strong anti-Burke man, was elected president.

FIELD DAY.

THE '92 CASTALIAN.

An arrangement has been made by the '92 Castalian board, whereby all the Castalians issued this year will pass over into the hands of the newly elected board of the class of '93. Consequently there will be no reduction in the price. The reason for this action is, that the sale of the Castalians this year has been very materially injured by the reduction in price of the '91 Castalian, and if the present board should continue this practice, the incoming board would suffer a similar loss. Moreover it is believed that class discrimination should be entirely blotted out in the case of college annuals and that each board should do all it can to put the succeeding board upon a sure basis.

It must be borne in mind that the Castalian costs $1.10 per copy and 75c. means a loss of 35c. per copy, the deficiency being made up by advertising. If a further reduction is made it becomes well nigh impossible to make the publication a financial success.

We ask those who intend to purchase a Castalian to do so at once, as it will cost no more now than at some future time, and this will enable the present board to close up their business more readily.
