Had to Pay in Advance.

The Lansing Republican tells the following on the state treasurer:

A gentleman from Ann Arbor, who was here the other day, tells this good one on State Treasurer J. F. Hambitzer. He had occasion to visit the bitzer. He had occasion to visit the university city the other day, and registered at the Cook house as plain "J. F. Hambitzer, Hancock." The clerk at the hotel, who possibly does not know that Michigan ever has such an officer as state treasurer, looked his guest over, and when asked by the genfal "Joe" if he had a room, said the house was pretty full, but he might squeeze him in on the top floor. Being somewhat tired and anxious to get somewhat tired and anxious to get Jurors Drawn.

Paying the Liquor Tax.

The following saloonkeepers have paid a $500 liquor tax to County Treasurer Suekey since our report last week:
Ann Arbor — Charles Binder, Wm.
Walsh, Keck & Walker, Mast & Stiegelmaier.

Somewhat tired and anxious to get away on an early morning train, he asked to be shown up, and was asked by the suspicious clerk if he had any baggage. "Baggage? No, I haven't," was Joe's reply; "just down on a flying visit, you know." "Well, you'll have to put up in advance, then. We don't keep strangers here unless they put up or make a showing of baggage of some kind."

Mr. Hambitzer was about paralyzed by this time, but not a soul was in sight he knew, so he accepted the situsight he knew, so he accepted the situation, put up his stuff, and went to bed. When he came down in the morning he politely handed the officious clerk his card, on which was printed "State treasurer and cashier of the Hancock first national bank," and walked out.

In all probability the next time he goes to Ann Arbor he will get the bridal chamber and the best the house affords, and no questions asked.

By and by he seated himself to raise bonanza oats on paper. When he got through, he found his chicken had hatched prematurely, that some of Uncle Sam's choice seeds, which generally go to the wrong place any way, were spoiled. His better half, however, is going to make up for his expensive experiments by saving on curtain lectures over notorious absent mindedness. It is time for the regents of our dear U. of M. to establish two new easy chairs, one for agriculture, the other for poultry, just like those Cornell fellows have done some

The Week in the Circuit Court.

The jury in the case of Louis Winans vs. Sarah R. Cole, in Friday last, rendered a verdict of $150 for the plaintiff. As mentioned last week, this Amount Apport was a Chelsea appeal case, in which Mr. Winans sued for the expense of carring for a little daughter of Mrs. 80 Cole.

On Saturday, another Chelsea case was put on trial, the case of Gottlieb Ahnenmiller vs. Frank Staffan. This was a suit for trespass brought to determine the ownership of fifteen acres the School of Music. A meeting of the of huckleberry marsh, including the subscribers to the guarantee fund was huckleberry crop of this year. The land in dispute is said to be worth evening, which was presided over by for fees in attending to a case in a northern court. The estate put in an about $75, and both parties claimed to A. L. Noble. have been in possession and to be the rightful owners of the land. The jury port that the school had come within on Monday brought in a verdict of six $150 of paying its expenses the first cents for the plaintiff, showing that year, so that the guarantee fund was they believed him to be the owner of practically yet intact. was denied. The motion gave rise to a lively set-to between the court and the counsel for the defendant, in which the court was reminded that "anger was not courage," and the counsel was admonished to be seated with a hint that a repetition of the insinuation would be cause for his taking his seat outside the bar.

The case of Comstock F. Hill vs. Hiram Briggs was put on trial Tuesday. The suit was on a promisory note, the question at issue being whether or not a claimed payment of $100 had been made. The jury, after being out some time, brought in verdict of no cause of action.

Judge Kinne decided the chancery case of Jane Lamb, et al., vs. the Township of Ann Arbor, Tuesday. This, it will be remembered, was a suit over the building of a sluice across the Dixboro road, which was claimed to flood the lands of the complainants. The judge decided in favor of the township, dismissing the bill with costs not exceeding $50. The complainants were also directed to remove so much of the stone wall as they had build in front of the sluice as prevented the natural flow of the water.

To Kitty.

The following lines were hastily indited to Kitty Carew, of the Evening News, who criticised the works of our now famous poet, E. F. Johnstone, in the columns of the News, last Saturday evening. If this poem is not enough for the correspondent we warn her that we have one or two other productions on file on the same subject from the prolific pen of the poet:

Fair Kit Carew, I sing of you, The beautiful and wise; Though you my verse, In language terse Have sought to criticise. I know you Kit. I like your wit, You've taught me how to spell; Pray teach me more, Of simple lore,

That I fain praise may tell. Enlighten me, That I may see, The errors of my rhyme; And write as you, Your comments do, In sentences sublime O! if your art

You could impart, How at your feet I'd sue; For you to teach Me how to reach The glory of Carew. Your thoughts profound The world astound,

The people all. Both great and small, Your Rhetoric applaud Oh! what a mind! I'm half inclined

To deem you half divine What mortal here Shall 'ere appear, To write with pen like thine. O! peerless lass, Your lines surpass, In eloquence and grace,

From Angels into space Philosophy Shall learn of thee, A point it never knew, And sages yearn. Of thee to learn, Adorable Carew.

The sweetest note,

That zeyphrs float

O! gifted maid, 'Ere this decade Shall have prepared its shroud: Your peerless worth O'er all the earth Shall be proclaimed aloud

Authors shall write, By day and night, And simple poets dream; Without a plot, With but one thought, And you shall be their theme What things are there, Of knowledge rare, That you cannot reveal; Suggest would I. Carew you try, To break the Seventh Seal.

The case of Nancy Conklin vs. the dichigan Central was discontinued precive increase of attendance, the present quarters will be entirely increase. A motion for a continuance in the case of the People vs. Francis Gonld and more clear that a building expressly adapted to its need will have to be provided. It is estimated that the sum of $15,000 would suffice for the purchase of a convenient site and the erection and furnishing of a building containing the needed teaching rooms, together with a hall for recitals and for faculty and chamber concerts. If this sum can be secured, there is little or no doubt that the School of Music can, from the beginning, will pay a small return, and, ultimately, a satisfactory rate of interest on the outlay.

It was proposed to organize a stock company with $25.000 capital stock to erect and furnish a building for the School of Music.

Col. Dean, President Angell, G. F. Allmendinger, Mayor Thompson, and others spoke very encouragingly and enthusiastically of the project. The chair was authorized to appoint a committee to draft articles of incorpora-

Eleven Antcliffe Law Suits.

The cases arising out of the settlement of the estate of John Antcliffe, late of Manchester township, bid fair to make the estate a memorable one, especially to the lawyers lucky enough to get a hand in the case, as residuary legatees, as one put it. There are at present one case in the probate court, nine in the circuit court, and one in the supreme court, a total of eleven cases. There are six lawyers employed in the settlement.

John Antcliffe, it will be remembered, late in life secured a widow for a wife, some years younger than himself. He was sued by Randy June, of Jackson county, for a marriage brokers' commission for securing him a wife. This suit came near causing the disbarment of Reed Crowell, a lawyer of Brooklyn, Jackson county.

Antcliffe was an Englishman, pretty well heeled, and when he died, he left an estate which inventoried at $25,000. Two executors were appointed, James Kelly and Mrs. Antcliffe, who gave seperate bonds. There was some trouble between the executors which occupied the attention of the probate court. Later, Mrs. Antcliffe died, having in her possession at the time of her death about $9,000 of personal property of the John Antcliffe estate. When her executors came into court to account, the court ordered them to pay over to Mr. Kelly the moneys and property of the John Antcliffe estate. They paid over the notes and mortgages, but retained about $2.300 in money. In January last the probate court ordered the payment of 50 per cent. of all the claims of the Antcliffe estate allowed by the commissioners which had not been appealed. A. J. Waters, executor of the Mrs. Antcliffe estate, held about $3,000 of these claims. He tendered Kelly receipts for 50 per cent., which Kelly refused to take, and paid $700 or $800 into the probate court. Kelly applied for leave to sue on Mrs. Antcliffe's bond to recover the $2,300. This motion was heard in the probate court this week, the lawyers citing about a hundred different law books.

In the meantime various other cases had arisen. The principal claimants against the estate of John Antcliffe were seven of his brothers and sisters, who claimed that when their father came over from England, in 1863 or '64. he brought over 500 English sovereigns which, as gold was then very high, were worth $10 each in currency. He let John have these sovereigns as being the oldest of the family and the only real estate owner among them, the money to be divided, after his and his wife's death, among the children. The seven heirs pat in claims of $3,500 each which were allowed by the commissioners at $2,023 each. Mr. Case, the son of Mrs, Antcliffe by a former marriage, and consequently the heir of her estate, appealed six of these cases to the circuit court, where these six cases are now pending. The lawyers for the claimant moved the court to dismiss one of these cases, on the ground that Mr. Case had no right under the statute to appeal, and this motion being denied, have appealed to the supreme court for a mandamus to compell the dismissal of the case.

But this is not all the litigation arising from the estate. Before the commissioners in the John Antcliffe estate, offset of $100, and the commissioners allowed the offset. Waters appealed to the circuit court.

Executor Kelly made his annual accounting in the probate court last January, and executor Waters, of the Mrs. Anteliffe estate, appealed from its allowance.

On January 24, the probate court ordered Mr. Kelly to pay fifty per cent. of the claims against the estate, which had been allowed but not appealed

As will be noticed the litigation has just fairly commenced.

NEVER A FAILURE.

The Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota never had a failure of crops. It produced 30,000,000 bushels of wheat besides other cereals in 1890. Farms can be had on the crop plan, or long time cash payments.

It is not an uncommon thing to pay for a farm from the proceeds of one crop.

It has all of the advantages of an old country in the shape of school, church, market, postal & railway facilities and all the chances of a new country in the way of President Clarkson, of the league of republican clubs, in his address to the league last Wednesday said: "The democracy made up of old men never could defeat republicanism, but the danger republicans have to face now is a democrat party made up of young men." That is the danger. The wide awake young men of today are democrats. They are democrats, because the democan party is living in its past, its voters are voting that ticket largely from habit. It is hard for old men to realize that the past has settled old issues, that the present brings forward new ones. But the young voter is not to be deluded by past victories, what he wants to know is what party best represents his views on the issues of the present.

A Brother and Sister Drowned in the Detroit River.

A Young Lady Meets a Similar Fate in a River at Grand Rapids-Her Companion Rescued, But He May Possibly Die.

TWO SAD CASES OF DROWNING.

DETROIT, May 8.—Willoughby Compton, aged 19, and his sister Florence, aged 22, were drowned in the Detroit river Sunday afternoon. While in a rowboat they tried to cross the towline of a barge, which capsized their craft and threw them into the water.

GRAND RAPIDS, May 8.—Emma Rottman and Cornelius Smallengange took a boat at North park Sunday afternoon for a row on the river. Shortly after leaving the float Miss Rottman insisted upon rowing. The swift current carried the boat against the crib and Smallengange stuck out his foot to push the boat off and capsized it instead. He grasped off and capsized it instead. He grasped said, bought up all the land within Miss Rottman by the hair, but the several miles of Menominee. woman's struggles wore him out and both disappeared beneath the waters. Other boaters seeing the accident rowed to the spot and several men dived for the victims. Smallengange was brought to the shore just alive, but his recovery is doubtful.

THE LANSING BANKS.

The Ingham County Savings Institution to Resume - Receiver Appointed for the Central Michigan.

LANSING, May 7 .- The Ingham county savings bank, which closed a couple of weeks ago under pressure from a run caused by the failure of the Lansing iron and engine works and the Lansing Lumber company, will resume business at once. Fifty thousand dollars additional capital has been subscribed which, with a surplus of $50,000, gives a working capital of $150,000. The closing was the result of a panic among the directors, as the bank was entirely solvent, having ample cash and gilt-edged securities in the vaults at the time.

LANSING, May 9.—Ex-Auditor General George W. Stone, who now resides in this city, has been appointed receiver for the Central Michigan savings bank. He will be required to give bonds in the sum of $100,000.

▲ Life Sentence Awarded George Taylor,

Who Murdered Miss Comely at Niles. BERRIEN SPRINGS, Mich., May 6 .-George Taylor, alias Hultz, has been found guilty of the murder of Miss Mary Comely at Niles last December and sentenced to life imprisonment.

[In 1890 Taylor was sent to Jackson prison for two years for larceny, the principal witness against him at that time being Miss Comely. He swore that he would be revenged when his time was up. On December 1 last he was released from prison, and subsequent developments showed that he started west. Early in the evening of December 7 Miss Mary Conely was found dead in her house at Niles with her throat cut from ear to ear and her head badly crushed. Suspicion was at once directed at Taylor, but he could not be found. Finally at Taylor, but he could not be found. Finally he was captured at Goshen, Ind., on January 15. He endeavored to prove an alibi, but failed.]

Special session. Called to order by Pres. Watts. Ald. Prettyman was elected clerk pro tem.

Roll called. Full board present. Mayor's Office. May 3rd, 1893.

Wm. J. Miller, City Clerk.

Sir :- Please call a special meeting of the common council to be held Friday May 5th at 7.30 p. m., to consider the question of amending the city charter so as to confer upon the mayor the power to appoint or remove the city attorney, marshal and patrolmen-without the consent of the common council.

Yours &c., B. M. THOMPSON,

Mayor.

The call for special meeting having been read by the clerk, the following communication from the mayor was

To the Honorable Common Council. Gentlemen :- The charter of this city confers upon the mayor, the power to appoint certain city officers and upon the council, the power to confirm or reject such appointments. The power to confirm implies to examine into the character and ability of the persons appointed prior to the exercise of the right of confirmation. Your action, therefore, in referring all appointments sent in, to a special committee was such as you had an unquestioned legal right to take. Nor can the inference be drawn from that fact alone, that there is on your part any purpose to oppose the confirmation of any particular person, much less that you intend to violate your duty, as members of the city government, to aid and assist the mayor in enforcing the law, and that on the contrary, you intend to obstruct and embarrass him in his efforts to preserve peace and good order. But the fact must not be overlooked or belittled, that your action has been regarded by the public as indicating very clearly that the mayor will not receive, either your sympathy or support, in the performance of his official duties, but that he will encounter, certainly, your passive and perhaps your active opposition. This public opinion is due perhaps partly to the circumstance that your action was unusual, indeed without precedent, in this city and in part to the fact that no explanation was made at the time and none has been offered since. It is to be deplored that your action has produced the impression that you are ready and willing to uphold any one in violating any ordinance of this city or any law of this state. And the fact that such impression may be wrong, unjust and wholly unfounded does not mitigate its evil effects. I regret it personally, because it surrounds my position with new difficulties. In a former communication to your honorable body, the course that would be pursued in regard to the enforcement of the liquor tax law was plainly stated. But neither the plain language of my message nor your approval, has had the effect to enforce that law. There are several persons in this city who openly, boldly and continually violate some of the plain provisions of that statute. They apparently court a prosecution and as the time approaches in which their desires will be gratified, and I trust, forever satisfied, I am confronted with this public sentiment that, if any one is prosecuted it will be done in opposition to the wish and desire of the common council. The question is, how can we relieve ourselves from this embarrassing situation? How can you relieve yourselves from this imputation upon your official honesty and integrity? How may the public generally and especially those who are violating the law, be made to understand that every department of the city government, including the common council, is unmistakably in favor of a wise, judicious and vigorous enforcement of the law? I assume that since you had a legal right to refer my appointments you were, in doing so, actuated by proper motives and I have given no ear to the rumor that some member of your body has stated as a reason, for your action, that all the appointments were not made at once; nor to that other, that my recommendation to the council to employ some suitable person as city physician, coupled with the suggestion of a particular name, was offensive, encroaching wpon the perogatives of the council. I can understand that if you consulted your own feelings you might perhaps prefer one general execution of officials to two or more, but I am given no credence to those rumors. They probably originated with some malicious enemy of the council. I have been informed however, through reports of your proceedings, that one of your number gave as a reason for his action a fact that commands consideration. He said the council had been censured for confirming appointments when the appointee did not possess the requisite character and ability. It certainly does not seem just or reasonable that the council should be called upon to share the opprobrium due to an unfit appointment when the appointee is not under the control of the council and his duties do not pertain to your department of the city government. To this class belong the marshal and patrolmen. If the mayor appoints a member of the police force who proves a failure, why should not the mayor be held solely responsible? But he cannot be held responsible, unless he is given the power of an unlimited selection in the first instance, and also the power to correct a mistake of this kind instantly. In other words, unless he is given the power to appoint and remove at pleasure. In my judgment the mayor should be clothed with this authority. He is at the head of the executive department of the city charged with the enforcement of the ordinances of the city and of certain state statutes, and he should have confered upon him all the necessary powers to enable him to perform those duties promptly and efficiently. He should not expect that the council will share with him the odium of his mistakes, his blunders, his inefficiency or his cowardice. The council should be relieved from all responsibility whatever in regard to the executive department of the city. Experience has proved the wisdom of this policy. There is no city of any considerable size in this state that has not given to the mayor, or to a board of police commissioners, absolute control over the police force. The new charter of Detroit, prepared by a committee composed of the leading jurists, Tawyers and taxpayers of that city, takes away from the council all administrative power. At the present time the mayor of Detroit appoints the city attorney and the police are, and have been for years, under the sole control of a board. It does not seem necessary to state the reasons why the police should be under the control of the mayor, and consequently that he should possess the power to appoint and to remove at pleasure. While the same reasons do not exist in reference to the city attorney, still the reasons are practically the same. He has charge of all her worthy of your-consideration. I assure you, therefore, that I have

I recommend therefore, that you request the legislature to so amend the city charter as to confer upon the mayor the power to appoint and to remove the city attorney, marshal and policemen at pleasure. And I. trust that whatever may be your views upon this recommendation that you will at the first oppoetunity take such action as will thoroughly disabuse the public mind of the impression it has received that you sympathize with any class of violators of the law or that you intend under any circumstances to hinder or delay in any manner the due execution of the law. For the Inter-Class Games.

The Athletic Board has adopted a very important and much needed rule, which will tend to do away somewhat with the feeling of uncertainty in regard to class supremacy, which has heretofore often been felt, even after the championship banner has been awarded. By this rule the captains of class teams are required to hand to the 'Varsity manager for posting, a list of the players expected to take part in each game, and all protests from the opposing team must also be filed at least two days previous to the game. No protests will be received after the game has been played.
