INTERESTING TO TOURISTS AND STUDENTS.

The late Alexander Winchell, Professor of Geo ogy and Pabe intology in the University of Michigan, shortly before his death took a trip to Montana, and was so delighted with what be experienced that he wrote F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., of the Great Northern Railway, St. Paul, Minn., a lengthy letter from Ann Arbor, in which he testified his pleasure, and from which we quote:

"I have just returned from the magnificent tour devised and conducted under your auspices, and I wish first to thank you for the courtes es extended to me personally, and then to transmit an acclamation of thanks from the entire party. Nothing more delightful, more impressive or more memorable, could be planned—this was the oft repeated exclamation which I heard on every day of the tour.

I shall make much use of the observations and exceriences of the trip, both in my lectures and in print, and I shall be very happy to increase interest in the regions traversed by your lines. No new part of America offers so much to students, artists, health-seeders and tourisrs.

It was the intention of Prof. Winchell to have made another visit to Montana, having become much interested in the marvelous opportunities for geological study offered by the upheavals in the Belt Mountains and other outlying ranges in the vicinity of Great Falls, which ranges also reveal abundant remains of ancient animal life.

Following the visit of Prof. Winchell, Prof. Scott and a party from Princeton College went out and found the bones, in many cases well preserved, of noless than forty different sorts of huge and grotesque animals that existed in the o'den ages of life on the globe. Muny varieties of fishes and other forms of early marine life w re also found buried in the cliffs. It was a picnic for the scientific men who a tonly learned much more than they expected, but who enjoyed with keen relish the splendid mountain scenery and exhilerating air, and managed also to catch fine strings of fish, common now in the rivers and streams, and bag, too, not a little game. ag, too, not a little game.

After a careful review of all the testimony taken in the case of the death of Jack Butler, Prosecuting Attorney Kearney, Saturday morning discharged Andrew Schiappacassee from jail, nothing being discovered on which to hinge a prosecution for manslaughter. Indeed it does not appear from the testimony which of the two men struck the first blow. Butler, however, was shown to have used insulting lanand members of his family, whereupon Andrew rose from his seat, the two came together and both delivered blows; they clinched, both fell and Butler never rose again. He left the last of his fortune at Monte Carlo. Mr. Warner went to Europe about two months ago. He was supposed at that time to be nearly bankrupt. He had made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors and his beautiful house and observatory had been sold to help meet his indebtedness. His fall had been swift. He began to lose money with the earliest indications of the business depression, and his fortune was soon sliding away from him. Creditors got judgments, and being unable to realize on some of his investments he was helpless to avert the avalanche. When this was nearly over he took a European trip at the advice of his friends. It was his intention to try to float abroad the stock of a company organized for the manufacture of beet sugar. In this scheme he associated with him William Cannard, who, in Mr. War-Julia Kirchhofer, K. M. Brown, ner's days of prosperity, had drawn Chas. S. Stark, Effie M. Mr. Brook's first reason, practicable solution of the difficulty belt, what would have been the result of the blow?-on the fall election, of course.

The old dame, city of Detroit should at once invest in a spanking machine. Bad boys Pingree and Goodfellow need to be taken across the parental knee and vigorously "paddled," They are large enough and should know better to engage in such unseemly scraps as that of last Friday.

It is reported that the question was last Thursday put to Henry O. Havemeyer, president of the notorious sugar trust, as to what schedule the trust really preferred and he unhesitatingly replied "McKinley's." This indicates pretty conclusively which party is regarded as the better friend of the sweet monopoly, the republican organs to the contrary notwithstanding. No one understands better than Mr. Havemayer that the continuance of the government bounty to the trust is dependent soley upon the scantiness of the democratic majority in the senate. The great majority of the democratic senators are opposed to the infamy but being under duress, are forced to yield.

Unable to budge the senate from its firm stand, the house has at last passed the tariff bill as it came from the other house. It is better than the McKinley bill. It is not all that the house wanted. The house is democratic. It represents the people. It promptly passed a sweep ing relief bill. The republicans in the senate, aided by three or four democrats, have largely thwarted the will of the people. The house has done all that it could. On the republican party and on the heads of those democratic senators who acted with that party, rests the suppression of the people's will. They will renew the struggle and never rest till the glorious hour that shall witness the triumph of tariff reform. It will come. It will be a fight to a finish, and the people will win it. Let no democrat lose heart.

In so far as the low prices of agricultural products result from the great law of supply and demand there is no remedy in sight, but to the extent to which the relatively high prices of manufactures result from discriminating legislation, there is a remedy see that it is applied.

There is no doubt but that the ecent introduction of labor-saving machinery into Argentine, Russia, the prices of certain staples below the profit point. How are they to meet this competition, for meet it they must, so long as they produce tariff cannot aid them, as it has been tried and prices of farm staples iff cannot protect an export anyway. A protective tariff in general results in enhanced prices only when competition. This is done by shut ting out foreign competitors wholly and combines at home for the purpose of crushing [out competition among home producers and restricting production and thereby raising and keeping up prices. prices are available with the farmers, however, on account of the enormous surplus of their products; their great numbers and wide separation and consequent inability to combine; and their comparative poverty rendering it impracticable for them to hold their products with the view of securing enhanced prices. It is impossible also for the farmers to reduce their product to the home requirements alone. A After a prolonged but convenient large surplus must constantly be

ACTION TAKEN BY THE CAUCUS.

Adoption of Crisp's Resolution Instructing the House to Recede from the Disagreement to the Senate Amendments and Instruct Ways and Means Committee to Bring in Separate Bills for Free Sugar, Free Iron Ore and Free Coal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 .- An hour before 10 o'clock, the time set for the house cauens on the tariff, members began to arrive at the Capitol and hasty consultations were held on the course to be pursued. Chairman Holman called the caucus to order promptly and the call for the meeting was read. The roll call which followed took some time and members shifted uneasily for the decisive action ahead, Chairman Wilson took the floor immediately after the roll call and the general statement of the situation. He spoke calmly and dispassionately and received the closest attention. Members left their seats and crowded eagerly about him seldom that such eager interest has been shown at a caucus.

Rumors from the Speaker's Room.

While Wilson was speaking the word was passed around among members that the conference in the speaker's room had resulted in decisive action and that Speaker Crisp himself would move that the house would recede and accept the senate bill. At first the information was so startling that it was doubted, but as member after member heard it and made inquiry the opinion became general among the best informed men in the house that Wilson closed at the report was correct. 11:05 o'clock, having talked just an hour. It was understood, however, that Wilson had not yielded the floor permanently, but would resume later, after his conference associates, Montgomery, McMillin and Turner, had corroborated his statements as to dates. Montgomery then took the floor and substantiated what Wilson had said as to the details of the confer-

Crisp's Resolution Introduced.

Speaker Crisp followed Montgomery. He said that as long as there was a des perate chance of securing concessions the house demanded he was in favor of standing out, but he was now satisfied that the time had come when further insistence by the house was useless. He closed his remarks by offering a resolution instructing the house conferrees to recede from ments and instruct the ways and means committee to bring in separate free sugar, free iron and free coal bills. A great burst of applause greeted the reading of the resolution, but half a dozen irate Democrats were on their feet demanding recognition, prominent among them being Burke Cockran of New York. DOINGS IN THE HOUSE.

Report Providing for Passage of Tariff Bill Presented.

WASHINGTON, Aug. .4.-When the house met five minutes after the caucus adjourned there were more members on the floor than at any time since the tariff bill was passed. The anxious public who thronged the corridors before the doors were thrown open crowded into the galleries in anticipation of the final scene in the long tariff battle. The rules committee had prepared a report for immediate consideration of the senate tariff bill to

The rules committee report also provides for passing the other bills named in the caucus Reed made a parliamentary objection to the proceedure, claiming the tariff bill was not before the house and indicated the Republican intention to fight the bill and report in every proper way. The speaker rapped him to order with his gavel and the roll call proceeded. The house order was adopted—176 to 97—not voting, 11. Most of the letters are from religious bodies and organizations of colored peo-ple. The colored people both north and south seem to be greatly interested in the proposition and resolutions have come from meetings held at New York and New Orleans and many cities between those two. SHANHAI, Aug. 13. - A dispatch received here from Chee Foo says that the Japanese attacked Port Hamilton (Port Arthur) and were repulsed. A special dispatch from Chee Foo confirms the report that the Japanese fleet attacked the Chinese fleet at Wei-Hai Wei and the former were repulsed at one entrance of the harbor and subsequently attacked the other entrance. The dispatch says that the Japanese made a daring attempt to capture the forts and arsenal at Wei-Hai-Wei. The Japanese attack in force, four cruisers and several smaller vessels heading the advance. The first shots were exchanged at daylight, but the Chinese were on the alert, and their gunners turned a vigorous fire from the forts.

Chinese Were Alert. The Japanese, apparently, expected to take the Chinese by surprise while the latter's warships were away, the Chinese squadron, with the exception of some small gunboats and a torpedo vessel hav-ing sailed for another port. But the gun-boats and forts kept up such a well directed fire that the Japanese were unable to enter the harbor. The Chinese torpedo boats were then ordered to advance and when they did so the Japanese fleet retired. Another dispatch says that the Pei-Yang fleet is engaged with a Japanese fought. Twenty-one ships are taking part in this fight.

It was not possible to engage a steamer in time for the service required, and rather than take any chances it was deemed best to charter a sailing vessel. The ship is stanch in every way, and is well adapted for the work that it will have to perform. It has been provisioned for a long voyage, and in addition to its own supplies large quantities of clothing and other necessaries have been put aboard for use of the Wellman party. It will proceed to Dane island and beyond if possible, and there await the return of the explorers on the ice.
