Hon. Thomas E. Barkworth will address the voters of Freedom in the afternoon of the 25th, and in the evening will speak at Manchester; on the 26th, at Whittaker in the afternoon, and at Milan in the evening. September 27th, in the evening, at Saline.

A Taylor's Suicide.

Thomas Campbell, a tailor, who for some time and until the middle of July was a tailor, in the employ of Mr. Burchfield of Huron street, committed suicide in Detroit last Friday, making use of that serene, soothing agent of transportation, Paris green. In Detroit, he had been out of work and his wife had taken in washing to support herself and him. Being a hard drinker his chances of steady employment were very bad, and having finally had a little trouble with his wife he resorted to the last virtue he possessed and made way with himself.

Meeting of the W. C. T. U.

The "Womans' Christian Temperance Union" meeting held last Thursday afternoon was largely attended and of unusual interest. Monthly reports of the officers and superintendents of departments were read, and Mrs. Boise, State Superintendent of Evangelistic Work, who has recently moved to Ann Arbor, gave a fine address on approved methods of temperance work. All women interested in this work were urged to identify themselves with this society, especially those who have been members of the W. C. T. U. in other localities. The next meeting will be held Sept. 27, at 59 E. Washington street, at three o'clock.

The University Campaign.

Fathers and mothers and even older brothers and guardians of intending University students are of some little value. They are useful to send out as skirmishers for rooms and other needs of the freshmen. Having accomplished the work their usefulness is practically ended. The student comes and takes possession and 'lows he will get on swimmingly if the old man does not get stupid and neglect to send him the wretched to cut a figure. During the past week many "forerunners" have been in the city and the prospect is that opening day of the University will see the usual, if not a greater attendance than ever. The campus improvements are well on the way toward completion. The tall chimney looms up like an obelisk and the underground works are in a forward state. Activity at the seat of knowledge is the order of its time.

Brown's Business Bump is Bulged.

Fred C. Brown, of the Daily Times, publishes a quarter of a column warning to law breaking cyclists that they will do well to heed. Our usually modest and ministerial brother has ascended his auricular and gives human and divine notice that he will prosecute the next fellow he sees riding a bicycle on the Packard street sidewalk, whether he be a man or a woman. The article is not signed "Taxpayer" or "Iconoclast" or Little-Man-Afraid-of-his-Name, but FRED C. BROWN, in capital letters and it will be a capital thing if the 'cyclist who fancies that the earth is his and the fullness thereof, arrives at the conclusion that Brown and others own a few privileges in it. Brother Brown is a little choleric in his epistle, but he 'hath his cause just" and the Argus is disposed to sustain him.

It appears that several little children have been run over and others had narrow escapes on Packard street. The cyclists' ordinance should be enforced.

A Voice from the S. C. A.

BYRON, Ills., Sept. 13, 1894.

To the Women of Ann Arbor:

From time to time the general secretary and other officers of the Students' Christian Association have received letters from young people who wish to take a course of study in the University and earn a part of their expenses. Such students have frequently been helped to work, but the number of such is frequently greater than the number of places for them to work. This fact has caused a desire to put the whole matter on a well-organized basis. It is much easier for men than for women to find employment.

Just at this time, when you are getting your homes ready to receive a large number of students who will soon return to the University, will you not, as many as can, make a place in your home for a college girl, and give her a chance to do housework to pay for her room? I shall be in Ann Arbor Sept. 22, and can be found after that at Newberry Hall, where I expect to meet many of the new girls. Please call on me or any of the officers of the S. C. A. I trust that this is only the beginning of what may become a great help to college women in Ann Arbor.

Romantic Railroad Adventure.

Two young ladies in great peril on a high railroad bridge; sudden approach of the iron snorter; young ladies nearly dead with fright; remarkable forethought of the engineer and heroic rescue from death, last Sunday furnished the skeleton for a stage play of the "Limited Mail" order. The "maidens fair and mild" had the temerity to attempt walking the high Toledo bridge over the Huron. When they were half way across, a train from the north let loose a shriek that made the knot of back hair stand on top of their heads. After a moment's hesitation the young women parted, one running back towards the south and the other towards the train. The engineer of the freight train, with great presence of mind, gave a low whistle, and checking his engine, stepped off, bowing with the politeness of a born courtier and assisted the tottering feet of the distressed maiden past the train. He appears to have had some knowledge of the nervous sensibilities of ladies, and it is most probable that his mother was one of "the gentler sex." Had the usual mad shriek of warning been given, a scream, a fall, a splash in the river, and the last sad rites to a young lady drowned, might have followed as matter for newspaper record. This account of a romantic adventure and heroic rescue, is not printed to encourage other young ladies to an experience, but as a matter of news.

Another Rose War.

This refers to the colored rose, or neg-roses, and the occurrences pertaining thereto, took place Saturday night. It seems that at the Fifth avenue colored restaurant, sometime during the evening, high words were heard by a young colored man, who called in to ascertain what was the cause of the row and was informed that it was none of his business. The visitor was persuaded that it was, until the restauranter drew a "caving knife" about two feet long, when he altered his mind and concluded that it wasn't. The restauranter viceroy told the comer to get out "d—d quick." He got out in the time specified. As he had no "razzer" in his boot, nor other weapons of offense or defense he said he would go home and arm himself, as he had been called by him of the "caving knife" "the molasses colored progeny of a mother who was not a gentleman," or words of similar import. These facts coming to the mother's ears, she locked her son in the house and went herself to seek satisfaction. That she obtained some of it seems likely as she is reported to have knocked down the head waiter with a rolling pin and chased the proprietor out of the room. Others took sides in the affair and the fight was general. The restauranter-keeper now carries a cannon in each hip pocket, a musket in either hand and a bowie-knife in his teeth and calls on his adversaries to "lay on McDuff, and —."

Barkworth's Battle-front.

The future democratic congressman, Thomas E. Barkworth of Jackson, paid Ann Arbor a visit last Friday, and remained over night, making the Cook house his headquarters. He made many calls about the city, and was also very generally called upon at the hotel, by both democrats and republicans. If there were any in either party who harbored a doubt of Mr. Barkworth's mettle, either as a man or a statesman, or felt misgivings as to the fight he would be able to put up, all uncertainty was dispelled in the brief conversation of a few minutes. Mr. Barkworth is by profession a lawyer, and comparatively a young man. He is in the pink of physical health, armed with facts, primed with argument, and quite ready to meet opposition, from whatever quarter. The opposition debater who foils with Tom Barkworth will find to his cost that the little Jacksonian is loaded. His physique is somewhat below medium, his hat a Derby, his eyes pale blue and unflinching; his mouth expressive of determination, his countenance an argument before he speaks, and his general appearance that of one who regards himself as merely one of the people, but one, also, who can be found at the front in fierce fight, if need be, for the rights of the commonality.

Such is the man whom the democratic cause have selected to be their congressional standard bearer for the second district. He will be elected.

Hayes and Meiklejohn.

Many of Ann Arbor's citizens who recollect the notorious Col. Hayes, of Detroit, when he attended the University will be interested in the following letter clipped from the New York Sun. Col. Hayes and wife occupied when in the city the residence of Col. Wilcox, on North Division st. At that time he was evidently looking up financial matters by having every young attorney in the city working to get good loans for his vast capital. He always had much to say about his Salt Lake city mortgages which paid him two per cent. a month:

To the Editor of the Sun.

I notice that among those who urged the pardon of Col. William B. Hayes was Congressman Meiklejohn, of Nebraska. In this Mr. Meiklejohn was paying a debt of gratitude which is not at all to his discredit. In the winter of 1879-80 Congressman Meiklejohn and Col. Hayes were fellow student in the law department of the University of Michigan.

Mr. Meiklejohn was a hard student and close application to his studies brought on a fever which developed into typhoid. He was far from home and dependent upon the care of his fellow students and the tender mercies of a student boarding-house keeper. His condition was very serious, when Col. Hayes, who, with his devoted wife, was occupying a commodious dwelling in Ann Arbor, learned of his plight. Col. Hayes immediately had Mr. Meiklejohn removed to his own home, gave him every advantage of good nursing and the best medical attention, and undoubtedly saved his life.

I mention this incident to show that Mr. Meiklejohn would have proved himself an ingrate had he not interested himself for Col. Hayes, and also to show that vile and criminal as the latter undoubtedly is, he is at least not without some redeeming qualities. CLASSMATE.

New Brunswick, Aug. 30."

Just the Man We Said He Was.

Minister Sill is no "mudsill," but a true born minister plenipotentiary of the greatest government on earth, fully capable of keeping the dignity of the United States on its legs and disposed to do so. Frank G. Carpenter, a writer of interesting Korean sketches, in the course of a half-page letter in the Free Press of last Sunday, relates among other things, how Minister Sill struck his gait soon after reaching the royal capital. It appears that the Korean officials, in order to impress foreigners with the tremendous importance and consequence of Asia's little vermiform appendix, and to diminish their rank in the eyes of the people, constructed a back entrance to the palace, through which they proposed to shove the representatives of other nations, instead of marching them through the king's highway. But it so fell out when the gaudily appareled under-strapers of his weasel-eyed majesty, attempted to poke the gentleman from Ypsilanti into the palace through the cow-lane, that he got up in his chariot and kicked; kicked like a Pittsfield steer on the way to a county fair. He informed the gilded gillies of a gimcrack royalty that he was no back-door, kitchen consul, to come around by way of the hog-yard and crawl in at the cat-hole, but a representative of one of the most bang-up governments on the face of the earth, and by all the powers of Washtenaw and the great Grover, he would come in at the front door, through the king's gate, or not at all; and he bade the chief lackey to go and tell His Royal Nibs to put that in his opium pipe and smoke it. Then he sat down and crossed his legs on the dashboard of his divan and waited in state for the effect of his message. It worked like a galvanic shock on a corpse, and very soon a number of the king's servants, with the sovereign's special chair, came galloping toward the American minister with their elegantly tattooed silk shirts worn outside their pantaloons, and he was immediately transferred to the sovereign's equipage, and with erect posture and silk hat tilted back at the regulation Ypsilanti slant, came spinning through the front gate into the presence of his majesty, who accorded him the highest honors. America was there, with both feet.

It is with no small pride that we record this information. But it was just as we expected. Minister Sill is the kind of man we took him for. The Coreans should have understood by the looks of the minister that he was not the kind of tongs to pick his way into the palace by the woodshed route, lined with sloop buckets and coal scuttles. Hurrah for Minister Sill!

"Democrat ruin of our industries," bewails the Grand Rapids Herald in its editorial columns, and on the adjoining page, with big display heading, tells its readers that Philadelphia capitalists contemplate a new factory in the Valley City, to employ 1,000 men! How consistent the radical sheets are.—Big Rapids Herald.

There was a partial eclipse of the moon on the night of the 14th. There will be a total eclipse of the moon on the night of the 27th, visible whether cloudy or not, to those who sit up late enough to get the election returns. It will be one of the grandest displays ever seen in this latitude.

Republican papers continue to denounce the favors shown to the Sugar Trust in the new tariff law. But the country does not forget that four republican votes cast with the great majority of democrats in the senate would have prevented any such favors. With the whole body of republican senators voting with a very few recreant democrats, the occasion for denunciation came.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

At the democratic congressional convention, held at Adrian, yesterday, Hon. Thomas E. Barkworth was chosen as our leader. That this result is pleasing to the Sentinel, its readers will not need be told; for, while studiously avoiding the discussion of the names spoken of for the honor, this paper has indicated the kind of a man it would prefer to support by steadily upholding principles which are personified in the candidate the convention has given us.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

The republican senatorial convention in the third district of Michigan, which lies in the city of Detroit, developed a fine old row, Saturday, which resulted in a split and the naming of two candidates. It was an outgrowth of the bitterness existing between the McMillan and Pingree factions, and is a fac-simile of what is liable to happen at any time in various quarters, resulting from the wide-spread opposition to the machine and its methods. The fight in the third will result in the election of a democrat.

So the Wilson tariff is a sectional measure in favor of the South, is it? Let us see. The McKinley law gave a bonus of $11,200,000 to sugar planters last year. The treasury report shows that this was distributed among less than 600 persons, making an average gift of some $20,000 to each planter. One Louisiana planter received some $200,000. The Wilson bill wipes out every vestige of the sugar bounty, and now the Louisiana sugar planters are pronouncing in favor of the McKinley bill. That's the way the Wilson bill favors the South.—Pontiac Post.

The income tax seems to be studiously avoided by all republican stump speakers. Why is this thus? The party is known to be "agin" any other method of taxation that does not discriminate in favor of the dear plutocrats upon whom they are wont to lean so heavily in their fat frying campaigns. Is it not a sin to be laid at the door of democrats in this campaign? Evidently they fear it has too many friends within their own party to permit of its being made an issue with safety. It was the only thing done by the democrats in the late session that was not attacked by Reed in his Maine canvass.

The tin industry would be ruined declared the McKinley parasites and high protection organs generally, if the wicked democrats "tinkered" with the tin duty. The Wilson bill reduced the duty nearly one half, and yet here is a bit of news from Anderson, Indiana, that gives the lie to the calamity howlers. It is as follows:

"The new tin plate plant at Middletown, owned by the Irondale Rolling Mill company, will be put in operation tomorrow for the first time. The opening will be attended by a gathering of all the tin plate manufacturers of the state, in honor of whom the company will serve a banquet in the afternoon. The plant will, when in full operation, employ 400 skilled workmen at good salaries. It is very complete in every department and the only plant in Indiana that makes tin plate from the billet."

The honor of the calamity prophets is waning. Franklin McVeagh, democratic candidate for United States senator in Illinois, said in a recent speech that the only objection he had to the income tax was that he would be obliged to help pay it. He said farther, that that was probably the real reason of most of the opposition thereto. The millionaires and men of great wealth generally, have been so accustomed to government favoritism, that they cannot appreciate the equity and justice of such a measure. They will have an opportunity to study it in the time to come, however, and it is to be hoped that they will become so reconciled to it that the government will not be obliged to rest under the imputation of having placed a temptation in their way which caused them to commit perjury, as some of their friends fear. What a calamity that would be!

The primary elections in the famous Ashland district of Kentucky, Saturday, for the purpose of determining who should be the democratic candidate for congress, resulted in the defeat of Breckenridge. This is right. Breckenridge ought to have had sufficient sense of the eternal fitness of things to cause him to withdraw from the public gaze, after the publication of the scandals connected with his name, without this reminder from the people. The result shows that the people desire in those who would represent them, not only ability and close attention to their interests, but high moral character and private worth as well. This is as it should be. The idea which sometimes obtains that a man may legitimately do in his public capacity what would disgrace him as a private individual, or vice versa, is falacious and wrong. The result in Mr. Breckenridge's case shows how the people regard this question. They were unwilling, notwithstanding the recognized ability and faithful public service of their representative, to condone his gross private faults and bear the odium of returning such a man to congress to represent them.

BARKWORTH FOR CONGRESS.

The democratic convention Tuesday decided to endorse the candidacy of Hon. T. E. Barkworth, of Jackson, for congress, and the action of the majority binds the party. Mr. Barkworth is one of the ablest lawyers in Jackson, a graceful, logical and eloquent speaker and brilliant orator, and during the two terms he served in the lower branch of the legislature, proved one of the most alert, vigilant members on the democratic side. He was the recognized leader of the house, and every republican who faced him in debate had to go down before him in his discussion. He is a free silver man, and an opponent of monopoly. He was nominated by the populists, but without his solicitation, and he has not accepted their nomination.

Mr. Barkworth will soon open his campaign, and if Gen. Spalding desires any debate, he can be accommodated. The fight will now be on and the fur will fly in every direction, unless the republican animals keep out of the way.

Mr. Barkworth, if elected (as he will be) will take prominence as a leader of democrats, and his influence will be felt and recognized, as a vigorous, able, brainy defender of democratic principles. He will be in his place. He will vote for free silver. He will stand by tariff reform. He will be independent.—Adrian Press.

FREE WOOL AND WOOL PRICES.

These are times when the real wool grower should keep his eagle eye on the wool market instead of the "political wool grower" and his calamity cry. Let him forget theories for a time, and give his attention to facts.

The McKinley bill went into operation in 1890, and largely increased duties on wool for the purpose of raising prices. The schedules were arranged in accordance with the wishes of the National Wool Growers' association. Political speakers assured the wool grower that he would receive enhanced prices for his wool—some going so far as to assure the farmer that he would receive forty and fifty cents a pound. What was the fact? Prices declined, never more rapidly than during the four years the McKinley act was in force. The decline was steady, except for a few months after the election of 1892, and during the last month or two, when there has been an advance. Nor can this decline be honestly charged to Cleveland's election, for as great a decline occurred from the enactment of the McKinley law to the election of 1892 as has occurred since. "Fear of free wool" does not explain the decline that occurred at once after the passage of the law. The decline during the life of the McKinley act was from 35 to 60 per cent. A high tariff on wool did not raise or keep up prices as republican prophets predicted. Let that error be noted. These same discredited prophets were sure free wool would greatly reduce the prices of the domestic clip and meant practical outlawry for the poor American sheep and ruin to the industry. Duties were taken off, and for the first time since 1816 all wools are free. What has followed?

The law making wool free went into effect Aug. 28th, and for weeks before free wool had been assured. The following prices of domestic and foreign wools are quoted from the American Wool and Cotton Reporter:

Table of wool prices for Domestic and Foreign wools, listing grades and prices per 100 lbs.

From the above table it will be seen that prices of domestic wools, during the last two months, have increased about 10 per cent., while the prices of foreign wools have declined about 40 per cent. Let wool growers note that fact also.

According to the Reporter of Aug. 30th the chief feature of the Boston wool market was "the purchase of a Million and a half pounds of Montana by a manufacturer," and concludes that "it has been, on the whole, a fair week for trade, and wools in general have been sold at as high a price as at any time during the month, medium wools are especially firm. The feeling in general is hopeful."

Under New York, the Reporter says:

"Despite the uncertainty surrounding the markets there is no quotable change in prices. There are a good many arguments favoring a steadiness in prices of domestic for some time to come."

The prophets of evil have been again discredited, therefore. There has been no slump in wool prices, as they predicted, and there are no indications that there will be. It would be well for all concerned, now, if these false prophets would confess the errors of their ways and go out of the business. At least no one should be deceived by their prophecies in future.

The Seven Hells.

The Moslems believe in the existence of "seven great hot hells" bearing the names of Jahannam, Latha, Hutamah, Sa'ir, Sakar, Jehim and Al-Kariah. The first is to be the endless abode of the Dahriyah, a sect which denies the creation; the second for Manichees and Arabs, the third for Brahmans, the fourth for the Jews, the fifth for Christians and the sixth for the Magians. The seventh, the "great, great, hot, hot hell," is to be reserved for liars and hypocrites.—St. Louis Republic.

WASHTENAWISMS.

Alfred E. Phelps, of Dexter, was a short-horn judge at the state fair. Sam Heselochwerdt, while thrashing in Sharon last week, had a pair of fingers nibbled off by a hungry cylinder. The Detroit Athletics hadn't the "spunk" to meet the Atlantis last week and the game was given the latter, 9 to zero.

The Light Guard of Ypsilanti want to locate a rifle range at the rear of the waterworks, to extend out upon the Hog's Back. "Shout right and the mayor shouldn't allow it. It wouldn't be according to "law and order."

At a recent gathering at the home of Miss Nellie Hall, of Chelsea, for the sole and eye-single purpose of eating pumpkin pie, (and criticize the new fall bonnets), the dining room and table were decorated in the colors of the clothes-line pie. The decorator was "some pumpkins."

James Labadie, champion checker player of British North America, the United States and Milan, Monroe county, was in Chelsea last week playing everything that sat against him. The Standard said of him: "Up to Wednesday night a total of forty-one games had been played, of which Labadie won twenty-seven, lost four, drawn ten."

Prof. B. L. Murray, chemist of the New York Experimental Farm, returned Monday and will pursue post-graduate work at the U. of M. The Argus man will take notice.—Ypsilanti.

The Ypsilantian is undergoing an acute attack of scroterooticks, on account of the manner in which the county nominations were distributed. Evidently the democracy blundered in omitting to be guided by the wise and unimpeachable counsel of the Ypsilantian.

The Ypsilantian opposes the income tax. Don't blame Osband a bit. One of the most humiliating things we country editors have to endure as the result of a venal democratic government is the income tax, which makes us all stand up and swear by the Holy Smoke that our net incomes are not over $4,000 apiece. Snoutrage!

An alderman, on a wheel, and a dray also on wheels, struggled for the championship of Ypsilanti last week. It was during this performance that the city at the other end of the link first learned that its suple city ordinance maker could turn a double somersault and take a chew of tobacco from his hip pocket, while in the ambient atmosphere. The dray escaped unhurt.

A. F. Graves, of Ypsilanti, awoke the other night under the supposition that the sky had split open, the judgment set and himself was about to be herded with the goats. While ransacking the bureau drawer for the record of his good deeds, intending to plead the general issue and give notice of a set off, he came to himself and found that lightning had torn a tree to pieces near the house.

Twenty Milan Odd Fellows last week marched to Dexter to the sound of the sackbut and hewgag, and filled with confidence, enthusiasm and other nox-intoxicating solids, proceeded to play ball with the Dexter brethren, whose dexterity did them up. And the Milanese spake one unto another, saying: "This is odd, fellows!" The set-to, however, increased rather than breached the brotherly feeling of the two lodges.

T. S. James was one of the contestants in the ten mile road race of the Wolverine Cyclers' Club of Ann Arbor last Thursday, and his share of the plunder consists of a leather medal which can be seen in the show window of the Cash Shoe Store.—Dexter Leader. There may be a little vanity in this; but ah! how few of us are proof against the infirmity of self glorification. We love to let the world know that we are on top.

Our friend John J. Robison of Sharon, is so modest that he does not wish us to mention that he left a peck of splendid yellow plums at our residence, and for which we are very thankful.—Manchester Enterprise. If the heart of John J. Robison is bursting with yellow plums he can leave a peck or two at this office, and not a blessed word will be said about it. The Argus will never betray the confidence of a friend, as long as there is a single plum left.

Sylvan township was bestrewed by a furious windstorm last week, which flattened fences upped over windmills and brought a number of sinful republicans down on their rusty knee hinges with promises to vote the democratic ticket, if let off alive this time. It remains now to be seen whether they will keep their promises or sell the Lord out at the polls in November. In any event the democracy will win.

The Chelsea fair falls due on the 9th of October. Visible till the evening of the 12th.

Mrs. Mary A. Pearson, of Ypsilanti, died Wednesday evening last week, aged 60 years.

Rev. J. R. Masterson has been assigned to the pastorate of the Ypsilanti A. M. E. church.

The people of Chelsea are delighted with another row of telegraph poles along Main street, planted there by the Postal Telegraph company. Chelsea is beginning to look like a navy yard.

The Normal football team has gone into commission. The Normal News is abnormally late owing to delay of advertisers. It will "come out" Sept. 29th.

Hull & Nissly are in the fruit evaporating business at Saline.

Ancil Morgan, of Saline, has dug and marketed over 1,000 bushels of green cucumbers this season, and the dry weather stunted the crop, also.

Lightning burned a straw stack in the barn yard of J. H. Barr, of Saline, last week. The rain storm, the fire department, many citizens and 1000 small boys saved the barn.

When lightning struck George Lyman, of Dexter, last week, it first "pasted him one in the eye, bad luck to him," and then singed a streak down across his face, neck and chest. Hereafter he will wear a lightning rod.

Dr. E. Conklin went to Cassopolis, Monday night, to again assist in the search for his brother. He returned Wednesday morning with the information that the mystery in regard to his brother's disappearance is yet unsolved.—Manchester Enterprise.

Miss May E. Westfall, of Grand Rapids, daughter of Mrs. Katner, of Bridgewater, recently, while deranged, swallowed a fatal dose of carbolic acid. She had spent some months in the Kalamazoo insane asylum, and had recently labored under the fear that she would be placed there again.

The Normal opened this year with an attendance much larger than that of the opening day of the previous year. Dr. Boone is under indictment for having brought about a still higher standing of the institution, not only in Michigan, but in other states. There is no fungus on the doctor's back.

A three year old colt, owned by Jas. Hipp, of Dexter, was recently struck by lightning and killed. That is, it is alleged to have been so struck, but it's no sure thing that a meteor didn't drop into him. Meteors do fall into horses around Ypsilanti, the Times says.

Mrs. W. B. Tomlinson-White, one of the wives of bigamist White, was in Ypsilanti last week, endeavoring to trail White to his den. But the track was cold and Mrs. White was unable to discover his lurking place. My! but she would have made dog-days weather for him!

The Methodist minister of Waterloo being absent at conference, his flock put in a couple of days cleaning up the church, and made it so slick and shiny that a fly that alighted on the side of the pulpit, slipped up and broke its neck.

C. A. Hendrick, a Detroit milliner at Ypsilanti, felt a bee in his bonnet last week when Prof. George attached the stock for rent. He was about to ship it to Detroit, but, by George, the trick was frustrated, "as slick as a ribbon."

Prof. Pease arrived home from the north last week. His hair, eyebrows and mustache are extremely short and have a singed smell. You see his train ran through a blazing tract of country and it would have taken four men to hold his whiskers on. But he is all right.

The wild ass of Wyoming passed through Ypsilanti the other day, bound for Detroit and the State fair. He was as unshorn as a populist senator, and one could discover whetstones in his hair. He is writing a book and relies on the atrocity of his appearance to give it a sale.

Are you a member of the Young Women's Christian association?—Ypsilantian. We are not. We have often felt a yearning to join, but owing to circumstances not within our control we are ineligible. That it is through no fault of ours is our only consolation.

The training school of the Normal gathers an increase of 40 over the spring attendance of last year. The grades are well filled and a full complement of intellectual and whaling apparatus is reported by Prof. George.

Dr. King, of Ypsilanti, on the allegation of Mrs. Wise that he had slandered her, was before Justice Beach, last week. The slander, estimated by the squire at the value of $9.00, which the medicine man discovered in his pocket book, and call it "Dr. King's New Discovery."

F. F. Skidmore, formerly of Grass Lake, is cashier of the bank at Tescott, Kan., which was robbed of $1,000 recently by four masked men. We bet when those burglars put in their appearance Mr. Skidmore wished he was back on the shore of Grass Lake's frog pond, where burglars wouldn't think of stopping.—Ugly jab by the Chelsea Herald.

Justice Childs, of Ypsilanti, was in the city today. He said: "I know about 10 of the prominent democrats of Ypsilanti who will cut the county ticket this fall on account of the dissatisfaction at what occurred at the convention, everything going to Ann Arbor.—Times, Friday. If Justice Childs were no better informed on other subjects than he appears to be on county politics, he would need a guide-board on him to go to bed. The squire is not so leather headed as he pretends.

J. D. Forsythe has a hill of corn on exhibit at E. B. Ford's store, well eared and ten feet high, grown in 90 days.—Mooreville Cor. of Saline Observer. That's nothing. Old man Tassetop, of Ann Arbor town, raised this year, a field of corn so tall that his dog treed a coon up a stalk. The old gent reached the lower leaves with a step ladder, and climbing to the top, shook the coon down, but lost his own hold and would have been killed had he not struck astride an ear of corn after falling about forty feet, and thus saved himself. Now we expect some carper to rise up and declare that this is not a lie; but it is.

The Manchester Enterprise had grown to be 27 years old last week. It is still the good southeast journalistic leg of the county.

Woodchuck scalps and crow heads will be paid for by the Webster township clerk, on the last two Saturdays of this month. Politicians' scalps will not be received till November.

An Argus "Washtenawism" recently started a fire in the wrong school building. Substitute Milan for Saline and the rest pretty nearly describes what happened.

During a recent social at Saline, the hoodlum element took a hand in, and having covered the front stoop with hay rakes, grain drills, forks, shovels, etc., plastered the stoop floor and front of the house with mud. Still, God lets such things live, probably for some wise but unseen purpose.

THEORIES ABOUT BALDNESS.

Why Does the Hair Fall Out on the Top of the Head and Not Elsewhere?

A question that often arises and is seldom answered twice in the same way is as to why the hair falls out on the top of the head and not at the back and on the sides. The old fashioned theory is that baldness occurs within the lines marked by a man's hat, and as nobody has ever offered conclusive proof to the contrary that explanation may be the correct one.

The case was stated the other day to two very intelligent barbers. One of them thought that the reason why baldness occurred at the top of the head was that the brain came closest to the surface there, and this being an age in which many brains are kept going at high tension the abnormal amount of blood thus carried to the cranium produced a kind of fever in the upper scalp. Fevers, as is well known, often result in the falling out of the hair.

The second barber gave variety to the discussion by enlarging upon the notion that he had formed from the observation and reflection of many years.

"You will notice," said he, "that the first hair a baby has comes in on the top of the head and falls out before the child is many weeks old. The hair that comes to stay grows thicker and stronger on the sides and at the back, and I have an idea that the growth on the top of the head is always the weakest from infancy on to old age."

"But how do you account for the fact that women do not grow bald as men do?" queried a skeptical listener.

"Account for it? I don't have to account for it," replied the ready witted second barber. "It isn't so. Why, I used to work in an establishment where they had nine chairs in the men's department and 11 in the women's, and I want to tell you that I learned some things there that the average man and the average barber, too, for that matter, doesn't know. If you could appreciate as I do the number of women who have false hair so artistically arranged that nobody can tell it from their own natural tresses, you wouldn't ask why men grow bald and the other sex doesn't."

Hairdressers have their pet theories on this subject as well as barbers, and some of them are very plausible. But if you should ask a doctor who was not ashamed to confess his ignorance the chances are that he would tell you he didn't know much about it.—Washington Star.

Blood Stains.

To the present day the superstition is rife that blood stains cannot be washed out. During the French revolution 80 priests were massacred in the Carmelite chapel at Paris, and the stains, so called, of their blood are pointed out today.

Sir Walter Scott, in his "Tales of a Grandfather," declares that the blood stains of David Rizzio, the Italian private secretary of Mary, queen of Scots, who was stabbed at Holyrood palace by certain Protestant leaders of her court, aided by her husband, Darnley, are still to be seen.

In Lancashire the natives show a stone called the "bloody stone," which was so marked to show heaven's displeasure at some of Cromwell's soldiers' atrocities at Gallows Croft. In "Macbeth," act 5, scene 1, Shakespeare alludes to the idea, "Yet here's a spot."

The truth is blood cannot be easily expunged. In the first place, if that of a murdered person, it is not attempted. In the next place, blood contains oxide of iron, which sinks deep into the fiber of wood and proves indelible to ordinary washing. Thus it is true that stones of a porous nature and wood not of the hardest kind are susceptible to the stain of blood produced by the oxide of iron which the blood contains. But the blood of a pig is as good as that of a murdered man.—Pearson's Weekly.

W. K. Childs, in a card to the Daily Times, winds in the string attached to his county clerkship boom and is out of the canvas. This leaves Mr. Pond, of the Courier, a clear field so far as the city is concerned. There will be a squabble in the county convention between the Pond delegates and those who are for Ferguson for sheriff, as both cannot very well be nominated.

An immense salt water turtle, fresh from Baltimore, "alive and kicking," and weighing 75 pounds, is watching for the heels of the small boy in front of Glaser's place on Huron street. After exchanging courtesies with such of the people of Ann Arbor as choose to call on him, he will be converted into soup, by the "secretary of the interior."

A lady chiropodist was in the city the other day, pecking at the corns of the afflicted. The following in Saturday's Times indicates that sin has been masquerading in the robes of righteousness, and gained a point or two: "The authorized canvass for rooms by the Students' Christian Association began Sept. 14. The parties canvassing several days ago, who claimed to be working for the Christian association misrepresented matters. They were engaged in a private enterprise. D. F. MERTZ, Gen. Sec."

Concerning the bicycle races at Manchester last week, the Enterprise says: "E. M. Stofflet, S. J. Richards and F. R. Dodsley, of Ann Arbor, and Chauncey Ogden, of Clinton, entered for this race, which was for the best two in three. The start and finish were both on exchange place so the people had a fine opportunity of seeing the race. Stofflet took first prize, $4; Richards second, $3; and Dodsley third, a silver cup."

Prof. Gibbs Talks of Cancer.

In a column and a half interview, Dr. Heneage Gibbs, Professor of Pathology, of the University of Michigan, gives the special correspondent of the Detroit News-Tribune a general description of the various forms of cancer, together with an account of experiments made by him, as also his investigation and disproof of Prof. Leuckhart's theory of the parasitic origin of cancerous growths. The interesting interview closes as follows:

"It would seem that a cancer consists of a mass of cells growing from cells already existing, but having the peculiar properties described. The only way in which cancer can be cured, then, is by stopping this growth of cells, and to this end my recent experiments have been made. The great difficulty, however, is to procure suitable cases. The results obtained so far, however, are very promising, but are not sufficiently determined to enable me to give any definite information regarding them. It must not be imagined that every small tumor or swelling is a cancer, as there are numbers found which are perfectly innocent in their nature, unless they grow to such a size as to interfere mechanically. In every case a skilled surgeon should be consulted, as a small innocent tumor may develop into a cancer, and ought to be removed at an early stage.

"In order to understand the nature of the growth, it is necessary to remove a minute portion to make a microscopical examination. This is done by first hardening the portion and then cutting it into very thin slices. These are colored with a dye which shows the different elements of which the slice is composed. These colored slices are then placed between two very thin glasses, when they are ready for the microscope. The slices are cut so thin that a portion of tissue not larger than a pin head will make about twenty slices. For the last fourteen years or more every cancer that I have received, or every portion sent me for diagnosis, has been treated in this way. Every available coloring matter has been tried in different combinations to stain the slices, so as to find out something that is different in the elements of which the slices are composed, and their relation to the disease. In this way thousands and thousands of slices have been examined, stained in every conceivable manner, so that some cells of which they are composed will take one color and others another, until a picture is produced under the microscope which is really beautiful from the variety of coloring.

"In this way I have gained a thorough insight into the structure of the different forms of cancer, and the cells of which they are composed. The microscope has hitherto failed to reveal to me anything which is the cause of the disease.

"Some years ago I made experiments on animals by inoculating them with fluid taken from a cancer of the human body, and also by inserting portions of a human cancer into different parts of the animal's body, but these experiments gave me no definite results, no cancer being communicated by them. From my experience, I do not believe cancer can be communicated from one human being to another. I have a series of experiments laid out for the coming winter, which I hope will give good results. I am sanguine that I am on the right track, and hope before very long to have something tangible to report."

OWENS IS THE MAN.

Old Ashland, Ky., District Vindicates Its Honor

AND RETIRES A SOILED STATESMAN.

The District Has a Close Call, However, and the Plurality Against Breckinridge Will Hardly Reach 400—Intense Excitement During the Election, Which Is Won by the Women, Who Could Only Plead and Pray—Talk of a Contest.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 17.—The most remarkable political campaign on record is closed. The result is in the ballot boxes of the primaries, but at this hour the only thing that is known is that Breckinridge is a beaten man, so far as the votes go. The Owens men claim his election by 410 plurality now instead of the 1,200 to 1,500 they were sure of twenty-four hours ago; while the Breckinridge men, admitting defeat, will not concede over 170. There is talk of a contested election, but Breckinridge declines to talk, although he is reported to have said when it began to be evident that he was beaten that Owens would have no more loyal supporter than himself (Breckinridge.)

The Suggestion of Contest. Breckinridge men at Frankfort still claim the nomination of Breckinridge by a small plurality. There is some talk, however, everywhere, of a contest before the district committee, and they base their hope of success on the fact that the Owens county vote fell off 500 from last fall. Chairman Gaines, of the Breckinridge committee here, came to Lexington to consult with the party leaders here. The official count is going on at Frankfort today and as a majority of the election committee favors Breckinridge it is expected that advantage will be taken of every contested vote to seal the column.

Harrison in the Campaign. CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Some weeks ago Chairman Tanner, of the Republican state committee, wrote to ex-President Harrison asking him to make one or more speeches in Illinois this fall. He received a reply, which in brief is that while appreciating the honor General Harrison declines the invitation and states distinctly that he will not speak outside the limits of his own state during the coming campaign.

Captain of the Baltimore Dead. TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 17.—The death of Captain William R. Bridgeman, of the U. S. S. Baltimore, which occurred here, was the result of Asiatic fever, not cholera, as reported, contracted in Corea. He arrived here from Japan some days ago, on leave of absence, and was then very ill.

Rosewater's Fight Against Majors. OMAHA, Sept. 17.—The revolt led by Editor Rosewater against the head of the Republican ticket, Thomas Majors, opens its campaign this week. Rosewater will stump the state against Majors.

Bishop Duncan in a prayer before the Methodist conference here thanked God that the right had been upheld in putting down bad men who aspired to public office.

How the Counties Were Carried. The returns to the present hour show that the counties were carried as follows: Owens—Scott, Woodford, Franklin, Oldham; Breckinridge—Bourbon, Fayette, Henry; Settle—Owen, his own county. W. C. Owens, the winning candidate, is a prominent man in his party, and a native of Scott county, where he has lived all his life. He is 44 years old and unmarried. He is a graduate of Columbia college law school, of 1872. Two years later he began his political career in a successful race for county attorney of Scott county. He resigned this office, and was sent to the legislature for five consecutive terms. He was one of the most influential members of the house and was speaker at the session of 1881-1882. He was Democratic elector for his district in 1880, and a delegate from the state at large to the Democratic convention at Chicago in 1892, being chosen temporary chairman of that body. He first ran for congress against Joseph C. S. Blackburn in 1882.

Goods Donning Owens Badges.

The talk of a contest has received a setback, and one notable indication thereof is the doffing of Breckinridge badges and donning of Owens badges by the most ardent young bloods who supported Breckinridge throughout the campaign with their money and their personal services. These men say that they went to the election believing that every voter at the primaries was morally bound to support the nominee. Now that their favorite, for whom they fought so valiantly, seems to have suffered defeat they feel in honor bound to support his opponent. They seem to acquiesce in the inevitable.

Desha Doesn't Give It Up Yet.

At 10 o'clock last night Desha Breckinridge said he was content of his father's election. Said he: "I cannot give out a statement by counties, but our latest reports reduce Owens' plurality to 141. I am sure the count will be given us by the district committee when it meets. If it does not I am not prepared to say what will follow; maybe a contest."

WOMAN THE CAUSE OF HIS FALL.

Ladies All Over the District Prayed and Worked for Willie's Defeat.

No election or other occasion ever caused such a general suspension of business and daily duties as this contest. The district in the Seventh, but is better known as the "Ashland." For months it has been alive with the most bitter personal agitation. It was not a political, not even a factional, fight. It was a moral contest, and during the last few days it became intensely personal, so much so that the nomination was not the only issue. Colonel Breckinridge was fighting for life, and he never before made such speeches or displayed such executive ability in organization. He marshaled every man he could command, but he could not command the women. They had no votes, but they were the controlling element in the fight.

At the Owens headquarters they say in their rejoicing: "The ladies did it." The ladies could not get ward workers to their prayer or other meetings, but their organization of committees of one generally got promises at home out of voters who needed no watching on entering the booths. With the saloons closed, the women praying and the best influences all aroused there was a tolerably quiet election, with excitement and bitter feeling at their highest pitch. The greatest surprise of the day was the good order everywhere. There were some personal encounters, but not as many as usual at closely contested elections. There was, however, great precautions taken to prevent trouble.

Old friend and neighbors had been having their inning and they wanted only the voting. If the Breckinridge men had enforced their challenge rule strictly as they had expected there would have been trouble. So closely had the canvassing and polling been done that the challengers knew how almost all the Democrats stood, and they could have kept many from voting. But the Owens men procured an injunction from court restraining the enforcement of the rule, and little attempt was made to carry out the instructions of the district committee.

The absence of serious trouble was the result probably of the fact that every one knew that if trouble did begin it would be very serious; therefore everybody was on guard to prevent a beginning. But there were a few outbreaks in some of which deadly weapons were used. During the afternoon of the election Desha Breckinridge, the colonel's son, was passing precinct D voting booth when he saw J. Walker Peak, a strong Owens worker, inside the booth preparing an affidavit. Desha spoke to him through the window and told him that he had no business in there and that he had better come out. Peak replied that he would not come out and Breckinridge went into the booth after him. The two men clinched, but were separated. Peak soon afterward came out, when Breckinridge met him the second time, and a lively fight followed, both men had their faces scratched, several blows being passed. Both men had pistols, but they were separated before they had a chance to draw.

It is only fair to state that Peake was violating the law in going into the voting booth. At Centerville, W. A. Gaines, a Breckinridge man, ordered the Breckinridge men to pay no attention to the injunction against the rule passed by the committee requiring voters to swear that they would support the nominee, in cases of challenge. Colonel R. G. Stoner, an Owens man, owner of Oakland stock farm, and Gaines had some words on the street later over Gaines' action. Stoner slapped Gaines and knocked him down. Colonel Stoner is the gentleman who slapped Breckinridge during the war.

The Store

A GREAT PURCHASE OF DRY GOODS.

Large importing merchantile houses on account of the short time the McKinley Tariff Bill remains in operation forced to make great sacrifices in Dress Goods. An immense purchase of Dress Goods, Silk and Woolen Goods by a Syndicate of which The Store is a member.

Another of those Fortunate Trade Happenings which will Shape ❀ The Store's Price Policy of the Fall of 1894. ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀

Tomorrow we will open the fall season with the greatest stroke of merchandising we have ever attempted. An event that will add a new epoch to the history of our firm and that will totally eclipse any and all sales we ever run.—This is a broad statement but is literally true as a personal investigation will speedily convince you.

When the Wilson Tariff Bill passed both houses of Congress and lay in the President's hands for his approval or veto, the merchants of the entire country flocked to New York to reap the first benefits of its passage. As a consequence millions of goods were sold during the first days it was in effect and the merchants returned home laden with their fall purchases.

Now, as a matter of fact, this tariff bill as regards dress goods does not go into effect until January 1st, '95, and did not effect the price of imported dress goods while the great rush for goods continued, consequently early purchasers have bought their goods at practically the old prices. When the rush was over and merchants had deserted New York a radical change took place. Great Stocks of Dress Goods and woolens were left on importer's hands entirely neglected.

It was at this time our buyer went east as prearranged with 5 of the largest buyers of Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio forming a syndicate for the purchase of any quantity of Dry Goods that could be bought at a price for spot cash and never was the condition of the market so favorable for buying. Three or four large importers were found with enormous stocks of Dress Goods on their hands with the inevitable staring them in the face.—To keep them until the new tariff bill went into effect was to sell them at free tariff prices besides losing the use of the money tied up in them which they could not afford to do. Under these circumstances an offer was accepted from the syndicate for the entire importation of these concerns, which gives them the latest, the most desirable, the most exclusive variety of high-class novelties as well as plain Dress Goods ever purchased at one time at prices 20 to 50 per cent. less than early purchasers were obliged to pay.

As The Store's portion of this great purchase.
