How to Stop a Street Car.

If you wish to ride on the street cars make some motion to indicate the same in order that the conductor or motorman may know.-Times.

Yes, many people forget, and the cars go by. There are several ways of stopping the car. The proper thing to do, at first is to stand out in the mud, just ahead of the crossing, lay your umbrella and bundles down and placing your left thumb to your nose and your right to the little finger of your left hand, give your fingers a wriggling movement. If the blind motorneer don't see you, shake your fist at him and address him biblically; then if you haven't secured his attention, spring on with him as the car goes by and knock him off. CHAPTER XIII.

After all, it is true that the unexpected always happens. In my unraveling of the Fen inn mystery I never for a moment expected to find that Francis was alive. I was even ignorant that Felix had been to the inn on that night. He had ridden round the back way of the house, and as my room was over the front door I had not heard his arrival. Under these circumstances it was easy for me to make the mistake and think the dead man was Francis, particularly as I was misled by the marvelous resemblance between the brothers, and, moreover, saw the pearl ring on the finger of the corpse. My mistake was a perfectly excusable one, and I had been confirmed in such erreonous belief by the adroit fashion in ed, shaking it heartily. "I won't rest which Francis, for his own safety, kept till you are safe and the murderer of up the deception. Now I knew the truth-that Francis was alive and Felix dead—yet as regards the name of the man who had committed the crime I was still quite in the dark. Rose Gernon knew, but it was questionable whether she would confess. even to save her own skin. Either she noon, Rose Gernon, true to her appointor Strent was the guilty person, as none other was in the inn at that time. Strent had vanished, but no doubt she knew his whereabouts. The question was whether she would tell.

"Oh. she'll tell where he is, right enough," said Merrick, to whom I put this view of the matter, "especially if she is guilty herself."

"You don't think she is the criminal, Merrick?"

"There is no reason why she should not be," he replied argumentatively. "She had every reason to hate Felix Briarfield. He had promised to marry her and was engaged to Olivia. Quite enough reason there for a jealous woman such as she seems to be.'

"But she wanted Felix to kill his brother, so that she might force him to marry her.'

"Yes, but that little arrangement did not come off. My idea is that she saw Felix when he arrived at the inn and asked him straight out if he had arranged to marry Olivia. She would hear of the engagement while passing through Marshminster on her way to the lone inn. No doubt Felix lied about the matter, and she lost her temper. It may be that she did not intend to kill him, but having the poisoned arrowhead in her hand had forgot how dangerous it was and threw herself on him. He put out his hand to keep her off, and so was wounded. Then he died, and, terrified at what the consequences might be, she and Strent left the inn. "But what about her blackmailing Francis?"

"She guessed what Francis had done and saw a chance of securing her aims by putting the murder on to him. He had so compromised himself by his foolish actions that of course he was afraid to denounce her." why did

"I haven't the least idea." "Then we'll make Rose tell today or have her arrested "

"There is not sufficient evidence against her," objected Francis.

"Yes there is. I'll take the risk of all that. Before Rose Gernon leaves this room she has to confess the truth. It's your only chance of safety.

"But you don't believe I killed Felix?"

"I don't, but the police may. You forget how highly suspicious all your actions have been. Rose knows you have been passing as your brother and will be sure to make capital out of it." "You'll see me through, Denham?"

he said, taking my hand "You can be sure of that," I answeryour brother is in jail."

'Who killed hfm, do you think?'' "I don't know, but Rose does, and we'll make her tell."

We discussed the matter extensively, but neither of us could come to any conclusion. When the clock struck ment, walked into the room. Without waiting for an invitation she sat down in a chair and scowled at me.

"That man of yours is outside," she said savagely. "He's been following me about everywhere and watching my house all night. Perhaps you'll ask him to go away."

"That depends on the result of this conversation. You're not out of danger yet, Miss. Gernon."

"I am not aware that I was ever in danger, Mr. Denham. Are you going to accuse me of killing Felix?"

"I might even do that unless you tell the truth.'

"Oh!" said she with a sneer, "is that your game, sir? Then suppose I do tell the truth and say you killed Felix?" "You're quite capable of doing so, but no one would believe so wild a tale. I had no reason to kill Felix Briar-field. "Then what motive had I for so doing?" "That's best known to yourself," I answered tartly, weary of all this fencing. "It is waste of time talking like this," interrupted Francis. "You must be aware, Miss Gernon, that you stand in a very dangerous position.

'Not more so than you do yourself," she replied, with superb insolence.

"Pardon me, I think otherwise. By your own confession you went down to the Fen inn to assist my brother in getting me out of the way. You said that last night before two witnesses-Miss Bellin and Mr. Denham." "I talked at random," she muttered.

"I did not intend that any crime should be committed."

"Perhaps not. Nevertheless my brother is dead, and you know how he died."

"I know the cause of his death, but ing she paused. "Well, I never saw Felix again till he was dead.'

"In the morning?" "No. An hour after I left him. Strent knocked at my bedroom door and asked me to come down. I guessed by his voice he was afraid, so dressed hurriedly and came down stairs. Felix was lying dead by the table. I could not see Strent and went to look for him. He was out at the back door mounting Francis' horse. I asked him where he was going, and he said Felix was dead, and he did not want to stay in order to be accused of the crime.

"Did he say he had killed him?"

"No, nor had I time to ask him. He went off at a gallop and left me alone with the body. I was horribly afraid, as I thought you or Francis would wake up and accuse me of the crime. Besides I could not account for my presence in that house without suspicion, so I put on my hat and cloak and fied to Marshminster.'

"How did you fly?"

"There were a trap and horse in which Strent and I had brought provisions to the inn. I harnessed the horse and drove back to Marshminster. There J returned it to the owners and went back to London by the early train." What became of Strent?"

"I don't know. I have never set eyes on him since. 'Do you think he killed Felix?''

"Yes. I believe they had a row, and he killed him. But he did not admit it.

"Yes," she answered quickly. "It was your conversation which put the idea into my head. I saw that Felix had passed himself off as Francis, and afterward Francis acted the part of Felix.'

"You wished to marry me?" said Francis, whereat Rose laughed.

"No. I tried that game on to get the whole truth out of you. I wished you to admit you were Felix, for he had promised to marry me. However, you did not fall into the trap. And now," she added, standing up, "I have told you all. May I go?

I consulted Francis with a look. He consented mutely.

"Yes," I said, also rising, "you may go, but my detective will still watch you.'

"Why Is He So Irritable?"

This question is often heard and nearly as often unanswered. It is not always remembered, as it should be, that the occasion of illtemper and irritability is often to be found in the physical condition of the persons affected. What is the use of trying to "harmonize" a man whose liver has gone back on him? If a man is tortured with rheumatism, how can he be expected to be affable and agreeable? Can a confirmed dyspeptic be expected to be cheerful and always ready to tell a funny story? The only way to remove the difficulty is to get at the cause. Dyspepsia, rheumatism, impure blood and liver troubles yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla; this is why it is an effective tranquilizer, a peaceful messenger, and a preventive of domestic quarrels.

him? She loved Felix, not Francis."

"It's my opinion she loved neither of them," said Merrick dryly, "and simply wanted to marry for respectability.'

"Do you think she will denounce Strent?

"She'll denounce any one to save herself. '

"Won't you come and hear her confession, Merrick?"

"Not I. A respectable practitioner like myself has no business to be mixed up in such criminality. Hitherto I have been the sleeping partner in this affair, and you have carried through my ideas excellently well. Continue to do so and then come and tell me all about it."

"Very pleasant for you," I grumbled, "but I have all the hard work." Merrick laughed and pushed me out of the door. He had a dozen patients waiting and could spare no more time. He said one last word before I left.

"Oh, by the way, Denham," said he, lifting a warning forefinger, "don't you trust that Rose Gernon in the least. I've been making inquiries about her, and she has a black record-about the worst in London, I should say.'

On my way to Jermyn street I wondered how he had gained this information. A specialist of Merrick's standing does not go round making inquiries about loose characters. Yet I knew he spoke the truth. His faculty for learning things was marvelous. Decidedly, Merrick should have been a detective. His opinion about Rose Gernon coincided with mine. One had only to look in her face to see what she was.

At Jermyn street I found Francis eagerly waiting my arrival.

"I've sent down to the Marshminster police," said he quickly, "and instructed them to drag the pool near the Fen inn.

"I am afraid you'll get into trouble over that, Briarfield.'

"I don't care," said Francis dogged-"I have been a coward too long. Had I trusted you and told all there would not have been this trouble. If the police arrest me, they can just do so, and I'll leave it to you to see me through.'

"I hope we'll learn the truth from Rose today.'

"It's possible, but not probable. She'll lie like the devil, whose daughter she angrily. "I did not throw it into the fireplace. I never even had it in my hand. The idea that it was poisoned frightened me.'

"Pray go on with your story, Miss Gernon.

"I see you don't believe me," she flashed out defiantly, "but I am telling exactly what took place. Felix said he was going to kill his brother with the poisoned arrowhead. I told him I would have none of that sort of thing; that I only consented to play the part of a waiting maid in order to deceive his brother into a meeting. I said Francis could marry Miss Bellin, and he was to marry me.

"And after that?"

"He jeered and said he intended to marry Miss Bellin. Then I grew angry and struck him.

She was in real earnest, for her mouth was set, and her hands were clinched, not a pretty sight by any means. I remembered Merrick's idea and conceived that it might be possible the woman before me had killed the man who flouted her-not intentionally, but in a fit of blind rage.

"You struck him with the arrowhead?" I hinted.

"No, I didn't. He had laid that down on the table. I struck him with open palm and said if he killed his brother I would denounce him to the authorities as a murderer. Then he would go to the scaffold instead of the altar with Miss Bellin.

"What did he say?"

"Nothing at first. Then I saw a look pass between him and Strent, and they seemed to understand one another. Felix said he would return to Marshminster and let his brother marry Miss Bellin. I did not then know he had been passing himself off as you," she added, turning to Francis. "If I had, I would have guessed that he was lying. As it was, I thought he spoke the truth and kissed him. Then I went to bed.

"And afterward?" said Francis, see- gling artist.-New York Sun.

'For how long? "Till Strent is found."

"You think I know," she said, toss-ing her head. "You are wrong. Till I met Strent at Marshminster I never saw him before, nor do I know where he now is. Take off your bloodhound.' "When Strent is found," I persisted, "not till then."

She looked wrathfully at me and rushed out of the room.

Drew on the Sultan, and, Thanks to the Rothschilds, Got $10,000.

A large operator and speculator of St. Louis, whose account with one friendly bank had been often temporarily overdrawn, wanted $10,000 once for a certain deal, his balance in bank at the time being less than $100. The cashier suggested that he should draw upon some party not too near St. Louis. Smith said he did not know whom to draw upon. "Oh, any one," said the obliging cashier, "as long as the party is far enough away—that will give time to turn around." Smith drew at sight for $10,000 on the sultan of Turkey.

The draft was duly forwarded by the bank, reaching New York, whence it was sent to a London correspondent. It then came into the hands of the Rothschilds, who forwarded it to their Constantinople branch, where it was duly presented for payment to the sultan's chamberlain, the latter bringing it to his highness. "Who is this John Smith?" said the sultan. "Don't know,' replied the chamberlain. "Do we owe him anything?" "No," replied the other. "Then I'll not pay it," replied his mightiness. "One moment, if I might advise," said the astute counsel-"This draft comes through the or. Rothschilds, with whom we are seeking a $2,000,000 loan. Would it be safe, under the circumstances, to dishonor it?" "Pay it," said the sultan, and it was paid, and no one was more astonished than John Smith of St. Louis and the quick witted cashier.-San Francisco Argonaut.

"The vote in '91-'92, in my judgment," continued Mr. Butterworth, "meant this. It was a protest against extremes. Only the beneficiaries of a very high tariff rate can be reconciled to duties that are extremes. And right in that connection I may say Tom Reed, in his reported interview, gave expression to the wisest and most popular thing he has said in three years. It is since reported that he is inclined to qualify his statement, and in that he is foolish."

"Honest" John Sherman also repudiates McKinleyism and gets over on pretty good democratic ground in the following:

At the Clinton woolen mills he was offered fifteen cents for the tags. - Asked if they would not give more in trade, they replied he could take cash or goods as he chose. He took the woolen cloth, as it was needed in the family. He was surprised again to find the price of the woolen cloth largely reduced. Mr. Clough is convinced that democratic tariff legislation has levied for protection that are not been advantageous to him at least. Now let the calamity howler trot

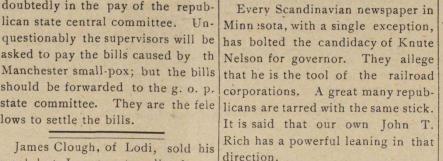

> Hon. Edwin F. Uhl is proving a very popular man in his canvass for Inited States senator. His meet ings at Detroit, Muskegon, Ludington, Manistee and Bay City were immense affairs and very enthusiastic. Mr. Uhl is not only personally stands for a popular idea, the election of senators by popular vote. While this may not be accomplished directly, it can be in substance, and when this is done, the senate will have to respond to the commands of the people with greater promptness

Besides, the democrats saved to the treasury the $13,000,000 annually paid

That's it; tax the people forty millions to save the thirteen, and the Argus calls that good democratic finance. We call it saving at the spigot and losng at the bung.-Ypsilantian.

Had to have the revenue, didn't put monopoly's eye out for seven- dustries.

Now concerning Barkworth and 'curve.' ''

The democrats say that it was the McKinley bill that brought on the hard times, but that is not so.-Gen. Spaulding. Then why, in the name of McKinley's tin god, are the republican leaders, headed by Tom Reed, lambasting the McKinley tariff law. General, wake up!

and the sugar trust tends to bust. The treasury receives $40,000,000 in revenue in place of the $40,000,-000 given the trust and planters by McKinley, and there is no extra cost to the people. Do you "moind" that now, Mr. Courier?

The Argus desires to notify Gen. Spalding that whenever he tries to secure votes by resurrecting the ghost of sectional prejudice, he will lose instead of getting them. The sooner the general comes off that perch the better for his chances.

The present tariff bill is a foundling whose parentage none will admit.-Gen. Spalding. The republican tariff breeders would to high heaven they could successfully disown the dead brat called the Mc Kinley tariff law.

Really, Mr. Barkworth is a very pleasant speaker, and a gentleman. Personally, he is all right, but yoked up with the democrat party the combination is simply grotesque.-Ypsilantian. Take the witness.

Proceedings of the Board of Public Works. |OFFICIAL.]

Oct. 24th, Ann Arbor, Mich. Regular session. Called to order by President Clark. Roll called; present, Messrs. Clark and Bullis; absent, Mr. Schuh. By Mr. Clark :--

Resolved, That the City Attorney be in-structed to investigate the reported encroach-ments or occupancy of streets by Messrs, Mack & Schmid on West Liberty street, Louis Rhode on westend of Ann street, Prof. Paynes-corner of State and Ann streets, also the north-east corner of Main and Madison streets, a flat iron piece of land along the T. & A. A. Railway tracks.

Adopted as follows:

Yeas-Messrs.Clark and Bullis.

Sewer Inspector E. W. Groves subnitted a report of the condition of the sewer in District Number 2, as far as onstructed. .

On motion of Mr. Bullis the report was received and order placed on file. By Mr. Bullis:

By Mr. Bullis: Whereas, A difference has arisen between the Board of Public Works and the Sewer Con-tractors as to the true meaning of Sections 8, 55 and 99 of the specifications under which the sewers are being built, now, therefore, to have the true meanings of said sections deter-mined as provided in Section 100 of said spec-fibeation, the said Contractors are hereby re-quested to meet with the Board of Public Works and City Engineer. at the office of the Board of Public Works, in the City Building, of the City of Ann Arbor, at 9 o'clock A. M. on the 25th day of October, 1894.

FIGHT FOR THE SANTA FE.

A Struggle That Interests a Vast Number at Home and Abroad.

TOPEKA, Kas., Oct. 25.-The fight for the possession of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad looks decidedly uncertain. No one, not even the representatives of the opposing factions, can positively tell which side will win at the meeting to day. This is not a fight for immedicontrol, but for the ultimate ate possession of the property when it comes out of the hands of the receivers. The case is of paramount interest in Kansas where thousands of people depend for emfnsely decorated with flags and bunting. ployment on this system of railway. Th The eqercises of the day began with a men who win today will be the ones who grand civic and military pageant, unwill reorganize the system. But Kansas is not watching the struggle alone. Many people in London, Am-sterdam, New York, and Philadelphia, in Boston and all New England are interested in this fight. They have given proxies for the shares of stock they hold to rep resentatives of one side or the other, with the privileges of a recall any time before 10 o'clock last night, and if some big stock The windows and roofs along the line of holder should be won over from one side march were crowded with spectators, and to the other it might change the whole the parade passed between a continuous course of events at the meeting today.

> Pullman Co-Operative Company Goes. HIAWATHA, Kas., Oct. 25.-The difficulties of the Pullman Co-Operative company have been adjusted and a charter has been applied for. Four persons surrendered their stock and it was taken by others. The citizens elected Charles Knabb, J. D. Blair, B. S. Foster, M. G. Hall and C. H. Adams for their directors, and the Pullman club selected Louis Moyer, C. O. Allen, William D. Cochran and William F. Hylop to represent them The capital stock is $75,000. The work-men take $25,000 of the stock and pay for it in work. Eighteen families and thirty two men will be here at once from the Pullman works. The new works will not now manufacture cars, but will make furniture and coffins and anything there is a demand for.

[OFFICIAL.) ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 25, 1894. } 10 o'clock a. m. Special session. Called to order by President Clark.

Roll called. Present-Messrs. Clark and Bullis.

Meeting called for the purpose of re-Thereupon on motion the Board took ceiving a report of the City Engineer as to the true meaning of specification numbers 8, 55 and 99. City Engineer Geo. F. Key submitted the following re-mined to erect a monument, but after port on the subject: the Honorable Board of Public Works:

Gentlemen-At hearing held before me on Oct. 25, 1894, at 9 o'clock a. m., to consider the question of what was the true meaning of sections 55 and 99 of the specifications and to whether or not the contractor should put in the house size, and was cast by the Ames Manufac-connections as a part of the main conconnections as a part of the main contract and without extra pay therefor. Messrs. Stevenson, Reid & Co. by Mr.

Reid, also Herman Hutzel, the contractors, also the Board of Public Works in the person of A. M. Clark, chairman, and Geo. W. Bullis, appeared before me and was heard on the above question.

After the consideration of the matter, 1.55 I, Geo. F. Key, hereby decide on the following, to-wit:

I take it that the sections 55 and 99 of the specifications which form a part of the contract have their foundation on section 2 of the Sewer Ordinance, and therefore my decision is that the true meaning of specifications is that the completed sewer under the contract and specifications is the central sewer pipe and the extensions thereof to a point just within the curb-line, and that it is my further decision that the house branches must be put in under the lump bid and without extra pay, till the amount of such branches shall reach at least one on each side of the central pipe in each 66 feet.

GEO. F. KEY, City Engineer.

On motion the report was received and placed on file. On motion the board adjourned. W. J. MILLER, Clerk.

General William F. Smith, president of the McClellan Memorial association, presided over the unveiling ceremonies and the oration of the day was delivered by General W. B. Franklin, of Hartford, Conn., who commanded one of the grand divisions of the Army of the Potomac under General McClellan. Major Moses Veale made the presentation speech, to which response was made on behalf of the ity by Mayor Stuart. As the stars and stripes were pulled from the statue, showing the life-like representation of Little Mac seated upon a spirited charger, a deafening shout burst from the assembled veterans. As a grand finale the military oands present played "The Star Spangled Banner.

How the Money Was Raised.

It is nearly nine years since the project to erect a monument to General McClellan was started. The day after his death, on Oct. 29, 1885, ex-Mayor Smith appointed a raising a few hundred dollars they concluded that sufficient funds could not be secured. In the meantime a number of clubs formed the McClellan Memorial association, and the funds on hand were was cast in some dozen pieces, weighing 8,000 pounds. The total cost, including the pedestal, is $19,000.

PULLMAN ASKS CHANGE OF VENUE. He Doesn't Like a Book Published by Judge Gibbons.

Judge Gibbons, introduced an interesting feature to the litigation by asking for a change of venue, alleging that the court before whom all the business so far transacted in the case has been conducted is prejudiced against the interests of the defense. The request is based on a book written by the judge in 1888, called "Land and Tenure," in which he very vigorously criticises the whole Pullman enterprise as and Tendre, in which he very rigorously lady it. I have, of anisotry, which he very rigorously well as Pullman himself. The judge said there was nothing in the book against "any proper corporation," but the matter was not decided.
