as a jury lawyer is too finely established to make it necessary to remind anyone of it. But it may not be so widely known that he is also peculiarly happy in making after dinner speeches. In Detroit, Wednesday evening, at the Masonic banquet, he responded to the toast "The Ladies" and made one of the the brightest and wittiest speeches of the evening. It was greeted with much food for thought.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24. - The executive board of district assembly 75, K, of P., waited on President Norton with an offer te arbitrate. Norton refused point blank. The executive committee thereupon issued the following manifesto "To Whom It May Concern:" "Our representatives, agreeable to instructions, called upon Benjamin Norton, Esq., president of the Atlantic Avenue Railway company, and presented or offered to accept Mr. William J Hichardson, a director in the Atlantic Railway company, and secretary-treasurer of the American and New York State Street Railway union, of twenty seven years' experience in railroad affairs, as a peron to whom we would unconditionally submit our grievances for adjustment, in accordance with the announced resolution, but Mr. Norton declined to treat with our representatives in any way."

Confidence of the Public Increasing. There is a greater public confidence in the maintenance of public order now than at any time since the strike commenced. The city is about free from the vague terrorism which kept the public mind at a high tension and served to increase the danger of serious collisions and outbreaks. The mere rowdyism which is looking for trouble and wants to destroy property from; wantonness has been pretty well suppressed.

Companies Confident of Winning.

The refusal of President Norton to arbitrate indicates that the companies feel ne abatement of confidence that they will win the fight. The success which the Atlantic Avenue company has met with in its efforts to operate its lines undoubtedly had its influence upon President Norton in declining the proposition to arbitrate. When it was found that the linemen were at work as usual repairing the camage done during the night Master Workman Connelly denied that he had ordered the men to strike

Says the Linemen Will Yet Go Out.

Later in the day, after the opisode at Odd Fellows' hall, he declared again that the linemen were on strike and would all be out by this morning. There were no indications of the linemen quitting work. They are under contract with the companies for from thirty to ninety days. In isolated cases crews have refused to take orders to repair wires which have been cut by the strikers or their friends. As a class they remain loyal to their employers

Regiment Relieved from Duty.

The fact that the Thirteenth regiment was last evening retired from active duty is believed to be indicative of the begin ning of the end. The evening passed without sensational incident of any kind. There was some trouble feared at the Myrtle avenue car shops, but up to midnight none had been reported.

A CASE OF HABEAS CORPUS.

Men Locked Up in a Hall Apply to a Supreme Court Judge.

During a charge of the troops yesterday strikers were driven into Odd Fellows' hall and locked in. When the charge was over the men demanded to be released, but the doors of the building were kept locked and the men kept in confinement for several hours. A writ of habeas corpus was immediately applied for and rnable at

WILL FIGHT IT OUT. Wendling, P. J. Mackey, J. Martin and Frederick Krieg, special policemen, walked into the Bushwick avenue company's office and surrendering their shields refused to work any longer.

THE CENTER OF DISTURBANCE.

Stelkers Roused by an Attempt to Operate Another Line of Cars.

From early morning until past noon was to be operated aroused the strikers and their friends from the state of quiesence in which they had been. A Halsey street car reached the depot at 11 a.m. filled with fifty non-union men, who were at once lodged in the depot. Every corner on the east side of the avenue was thronged by the strikers and their sympathizers, while in front of the stables were drawn 100 men of the Twenty-third regiment under Captain Thorne.

The strikers contented themselves with hooting and jeering the militia, but committed no act which warranted their dis persion. Some hours previous to the running of the first car the repair wagon of the Brooklyn Heights company went down Third avenue to clear the track between Fifty-first and Fifty-second streets. The block between these two streets was filled with bricks, stones, lumber and trunks of trees which had been cut in the vicinity, so as to render the running of cars an impossibility. The repair wagon was manned by twelve men and escorted by troop A

When they reached the Pequod clubthe strikers' headquarters at Fifty-fifth street- ome 300 men who had assembled there jeered and denounced the escort and hurled several volleys of stones at the men who were removing the obstacles. Lieutenant Badgley, who was in charge of the troop, called on them to disperse. The strikers replied by another avalanche of stones. Lieutenant Bagley then ordered his men to charge and strike the rioters with the flat of their sabres. On this being done the strikers ran away.

When the railroad employes finished their work the strikers reassembled and followed up the escort and renewed the stone throwing, when the cavalry again charged them with naked blades. Some of the strikers received sword thrusts, but managed to escape. No further disturbance occurred during the day. Car No. 925 left the depot at 11:45. Sharpshooters were posted on the roof of the depot and on the platform of the elevated railway covering the streets at each side of the stables on the east and west sides of the avenue. There was no demonstration of violence Mounted policemen enclosed the car and the signal was given to start. The motorman made the pace a hot one and the run to Fulton ferry was made in thirty minutes. Not a single stone was thrown during the trip. At the paper factory of Robert Graves at Thirty-fifth street a girl dropped a piece of paper from an upper window, but the presentation of a rifle by a militiaman on the sidewalk accompanied by the order, "Close every window or I'll fire," caused every window to be at once shut.

Twelve cars continued running during the day, but no passengers were carried until 3 o'clock. At the strikers' headquarters the men were still confident and said that if it took 800 men to run one car the company would not continue to do so long. They also averred that the number of "scabs" secured for employment was far below that required.

ANN ARDON MINGOS

A Dentist Says the Nerves In Them Are Killed by Nicotine Poisoning.

'There is one bad result of constant cigarette smoking that very few people know anything about, " said a Brooklyn dentist. "The result itself has been apparent to me and to all dentists for a long time, but the cause has been a mystery until very recently. For years the nerves of teeth in every other way perfect have been found dead. A careful examination of a dead nerve found in an unexposed tooth recently revealed the fact that it had been poisoned by nicotine, and thereby the mystery referred to was solved. Nicotine poisoning from cigarette smoking is killing the nerves in the teeth of smokers. It is a most serious state of affairs, although most people will not understand. They think a dead tooth is as good as a live one. They will find their mistake some day. "A young woman whom I have known for some time came here the other day and wanted a tooth attended to. I worked on the tooth some time, and some of the instruments I used should have made her scream a little bit. But she never made a sound, and I naturally concluded that the nerve of the tooth was dead. It surprised me because the tooth was a good one and the nerve unexposed. Well, I extracted the nerve, and the minute I saw it I knew what was the trouble.

" 'Do you want a live nerve left in your head?' I asked.

" 'Why, of course,' she replied. " 'Then stop smoking cigarettes, ' I said. " 'Why, doctor, what do you mean? she began. Then she put on a great show of indignation.

"''My dear young lady,' I said, 'what's the use of talking so? I'm a dental surgeon and know a thing when I see it. You have been smoking cigarettes for a long time, and my advice was given in a perfectly friendly spirit. Well, she collapsed then, acknowledged the truth of what I had said, and that ended it. I don't think that cigarette smokers figure this result of nicotine poisoning in with the many other injurious effects of the weed, but to my mind it is the most dangerous of all. -New York Sun.

THE NUMBER THREE.

Some Curious Superstitions Regarding It In the Popular Mind.

There is a superstitious regard for the number three in the popular mind, and the third repetition of anything is generally looked upon as a crisis. Thus an article may twice be lost and recovered, but the third time that it is lost it is gone for good. Twice a man may pass through some great danger in safety, but the third time he loses his life. If, however, the mystic third can be successfully passed, all is well. Three was called by Pythagoras the perfect number, and we frequently find its use symbolical of Deity. Thus we might mention the trident of Neptune, the three forked lightning of Jove and three headed dog of Pluto. The idea of trinity is not confined to Christianity, but occurs in several religions. In mythology also we find three fates, three furies and three graces, and, coming nearer to our own times, Shakespeare introduces his three witches. In public house signs three seems to play an important part, for we frequently meet with "Three Cups," "Three Jolly Sailors," "Three Bells, ""Three Tuns," "Three Feathers"-in fact, the number of almost anything of which a fertile imagination can conceive a trio. In nursery rhymes and tales this number is not unknown, and if we look back to the days of our childhood most of us will call to mind the three wise men of Gotham who took a sea voyage in a bowl, not to mention the three blind mice that had their tails cut off by the farmer's wife. Perhaps there is some occult power in the number which governs the division of novels into three volumes and induces doctors to order their medicine to be taken thrice daily It is said that some tribes of savage cannot count beyond three. But, although they may have no words to express higher numbers, perhaps we should be scarcely justified in assuming that they are incapable of appreciating the value of the latter.-New York Advertiser. Budding Creatures.

Sea anemones and some other marine creatures of low degree increase their species by budding. A small knot or wart appears on the body of the animal, and by and by develops into a perfect, cies, separates from its parent and sets up in business for itself. A Tragic Complication.

time arrived when General McLeer was to make an answer in the supreme court be fore Judge Gaynor the men were released, and the writ was rendered inoperative by this manœuvre.

When the case was called at 4 o'clock a statement was read on behalf of General McLeer in which a denial was made of the allegation that he had locked up the 300 men or had ordered that they be locked up; further it was said upon learning of the imprisonment of the men he had ordered their immediate release, which or der had been complied with, and that the men had thereupon departed to their several homes. Upon this explanation Judge Gaynor dismissed the proceedings.

The man (not boy) Ahnes who was shot by the troops Tuesday is dead. His wife called at the hospital only to find his corpse. Another man was shot yesterday so badly that his life is in danger. As a company of the Twenty-third regiment was escorting a Hicks street car Thomas Kearney is said to have thrown a number of bricks at it from a roof. Some of the soldiers were hit by the missiles and one of their number took deliberate aim and shot Kearney in the side. Kearney was at work on the rool at the time and was attracted to the edge by the excitement of the crowd below in consequence of the passage of the first car through Hicks street. Kearney denies throwing anything.

There were a larger number of alleged rioters arrested than probably on any previous day of the strike, and the soldiers were becoming more vigorous in the use of their arms, the result being quite a list of people who have been clubbed with muskets and bayonetted for refusing to "move when ordered. There were also a number of accidents on the lines resulting either from inexperience or nervousness on the part of the new motormen. Fifty-nine cars in all were run out of the East New York depot, thirty on the Fulton street and twenty-nine on the Broadway rontes. At 6 o'clock in the evening as the cars began to come in they were held in the depot for the night. Quietness prevailed at Ridgewood at 7 p. m. The cars had at that time stopped running.

About 7 o'clock last evening men of the Seventy-first regiment had a breeze with a mob of 150 men who had smashed the windows of cars of the Ralph Avenue line at Ralph avenue and Sumpter street. Colonel Green, of the Seventy-first, hearing the rumpus, telephoned to Captain Keck, who was stationed near the disturbance, and the latter with twenty men hurried to the spot and jabbed and butted the crowd away, so that the cars resumed their way, accompanied by the troops. On the return trip a crowd was at the place of the previous trouble but another detachment cleared the way. At Ridgewood last night William

SOME BELLIGERENT CHRISTIANS.

Horse Whipping in Church Participated in by Two Ministers' Wives.

PERRY, O. T., Jan. 24.-A horse whip ping in church, participated in by ministers' wives, in thethe middle of services, is the sensation of a country church and almost led to a riot. Some months ago Rev. Dr. Johnson, of Kansas, succeeded the Rev. Tully, being called by a faction antagonistic to the latter. Rev. Tully continued with the church in the capacity of deacon. A few Sundays ago the deacons were severely criticised by the new pastor. Tully felt the sting and declared he would avenge it. He wrote, it is said, to the old home of Dr. Johnson, and re ceived some information that reflected on the minister, and especially his wife.

At the close of the doctor's sermon on the night of the row Tully read the letter, and great commotion followed. Mrs. Johnson slipped from the church unno ticed, and soon returned with a buggy whip in her hand. Rushing at the Rev. Tully she administered a severe lashing before the astonished parishioners. Tully was badly beaten up. In the general row that followed his wife secured the whip and began to apply it to her husband's assailant. When finally pulled off Mrs. Johnson was unconscious. The two women and several of the brethern were arrested and have since been fined.

Standard to Ignore Quotations.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 24.-The Standard Oil company has created a sensation by declaring that hereafter it will fix the daily price of petroleum regardless of quota-tions on the oil exchanges. Joseph Seep, the principal buyer for the National Transit company and Standard Oil com-pany, says that the quotations are no onger a reliable indication of value and the price hereafter will be as great as the markets of the world will justify, but will not necessarily be the same prices bid on the exchanges for certificate oil.

Western Base Ball Association.

JACKSONVILLE, Ills., Jan. 24.-W W Kent, president of the Western association, states that the report of a propo ed reorganization of the association was untrue, and that no move was contemplated which would oust Jacksonville and Quincy. He stated, however, that a meeting would be held in February for the purpose of considering the application of Rock Island for readmission, and it might be possible that Omaha would have to go.

"Q" Robbers Got $5,400.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Jan. 24 .- The preliminary trial of Frank Bateman developed the fact that $3,400 in cash and $2,000 in checks and drafts were taken by the robbers Jan. 12, who held up the "Q" No. 4.

Do Not Sleep on the Left Side.

There is little doubt that an immense number of persons habitually sleep on the left side, and those who do so can never, it is said, be strictly healthy. It is the most prolific cause of nightmare, and also of the unpleasant taste in the month on arising in the morning. All food enters and leaves the stomach on the right side, and hence sleeping on the left side soon after eating involves a sort of pumping operation which is any thing but conducive to sound repose The action of the heart is also seriously interfered with and the lungs unduly compressed. Hence it is best to cultivate the habit of always sleeping on the right side, although Sandow and other strong men are said to invariably sleep on their backs.-Philadelphia Times.

Animals Respect One Another's Rights.

Truth forces the observer of nature to admit that birds and other creatures apportion the earth among themselves just about as man does. A bear has his boundaries beyond which his fellow bear does not trespass with impunity-the wild rabbit you see on your lawn in the moonlight is the same innocent little creature you have been seeing every night all the summer time-and even the robin that gathers the early worm for his breakfast from your garden will show fight when another comes marauding on his preserve. Nor does this last a year only, for there is good evidence that the same bird will come back to the claim it staked off the year previous .-Meehan's Monthly.

One of the Features Is the Retirement of the Greenbacks and Another an Issue of Bonds-Provision for the Coinage of Silver Dollars-Smith of New Jersey Proposes a "Monetary Commission" to Formulate a System.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 .- The currency bill promised a week or ten days ago by Senator Jones, of Arkansas, has been put into shape and its first feature is a bond issue. Authority is given to the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds of the United States to the amount of $500,000,-000, payable in coin of the present standard value and bearing interest at the rate of 3 per cent., not to be sold at less than par. Bonds to mature thirty years from late and be redeemable at the option of the government after twenty years, The secretary is authorized to use the proceeds of the sale of the bonds to defray the current expenses of the government and for the redemption of United States legal tender and treasury notes issued under the act of July 14, 1890. The bonds are to be free from all taxes, they are intended for general subscription-popular loan-and to be paid for in gold, the secretary being allowed, however, to accept greenbacks and the treasury notes of the acts of 1890.

As to the National Banks,

National bank associations are permitted to issue circulating notes to the par value of United States bonds deposited value of United States bonds deposited to accommodate all the pupils, hence with the secretary of the treasury, and the Prof. Webster has been compelled to tax on such circulation is reduced to onefourth of 1 per cent. Hereafter no national banking association shall retire its circulation without written authority from the secretary of the treasury. So much of section 12 of the act of 1882 as directs the secretary of the treasury to receive deposits of gold coin and to issue certificates therefor is also repealed. Must Deposit Gold to Retire Notes.

National banking associations desiring to retire the whole or any part of their circulating notes are required to deposit gold coin equal to the amount of notes to be retired and at all times to keep on deposit with the treasurer of the United States in gold coin a sum equal to five per cent, of their outstanding circulating notes, to be used for the redemption of such notes. Not exceeding one-half of the lawful reserves on account of deposits to be kept by national banking associations may consist of United States bonds issued under this act.

Greenbacks To Be Cancelled.

All national bank and treasury notes of iess than $10 denomination are to be replaced by silver certificates, it being the purpose that small notes shall all be silver certificates. The secretary of the treasury is directed to redeem and cancel and not reissue the United states and many things that are between the cov-treasury notes as fast as the aggregate of ers of the book. circulation of United States and legal tender notes, treasury notes, silver certificates and national bank notes shall be in excess of the aggregate amount of at the date of the passage of the act.

PLAN FOR COINAGE OF SILVER.

By Which Uncle Sam Is to Get the Seigniorage_Smith's Measure.

The secretary of the treasury is directed to receive at any United States mint from any citizen of the United States silver bullion of standard fineness and coin it into silver dollars of 4121/2 grains each. The seigniorage on the bullion is to belong to Michigan Free Masonry. It was the Central American countries are back the Unite1 States and it is to be the difference between the coinage value and occasion of the laying of the corner of Guatamala. If war is declared it the price of the bullion in London on the required to deliver to the depositors of such bullion standard silver dollars equal in amount to the price of the builion, and whenever these coins shall be received into the treasury certificates in denominations of less than \$10 may be issued on them as now provided. The important changes made in the bill since it was first formulated are those making the bonds payable in coin instead of gold, increasing the rate of interest from  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to 3 per cent., and providing for the displacement of national bank and treasury and United States notes of less than \$10 by silver certificates instead of \$20, as at first proposed. The first concession was made to the silver men, and the two others to the bond advocates and those who wish to restrict the use of silver. Senator Smith also presents a silver bill which does not provide a system of currency, but authorizes an issue of bonds. It provides that the president shall appoint four commissioners from civil life, no more than two of whom shall be of the same political party; the president of the senate shall appoint four senators, no more than two of whom shall be members of the same party; the speakbers under the same conditions. The senators and members chosen are to be members of the Fifty-fourth congress. These are to be known as the "Mone-tary Commission." It is made the duty of the commission to take into considera tion and to investigate thoroughly all the various questions relating to the currency, so far as may be necessary to the establishment of a judicious system of currency on a permanent basis. The commission is empowered to visit different portions of the country and make to congress a final report of the re-It is allegeged that there are 6,136 such recommendations as it may doem to United izes the issue of \$500,000,000 of 3 per cent. bonds, redeemable in gold coin at the ex-

THE SUNSET LEDGE.

FORNIA MINER.

The Two Contractors Who Refused to Heed a Timely Warning-Fifteen Years After a Blast Released a Pair of Grinning Skeletons.

In Butte county there is a quartz mine which has been abandoned for many years. Only the oldest residents of the vicinity remember the names of the incators, and scarcely a trace of the shaft and buildings remains. The ledge was discovered away back in the early days, when quartz first attracted the notice of prospectors; when many worthless ledges were worked because the miners had not yet learned how to read the value of such ore by the minerals in it, its location, dip and contact with other formations. The Sunset ledge was small, flinty and absolutely worthless, but the men who discovered it thought it worth development. They put down a shaft 100 feet in depth in wet and treacherous ground, and they used no timbers. Then they let a contract to two men-a Cornish man and an Irish man-to construct a tunnel 100 feet in length from the bottom. Sometimes untimbered ground will stand apparently firm and safe for a cause, suddenly get shaky and fall or close in. This was just what occurred To date there are three candidates at the Sunset mine. The two men in for the republican nomination for the tunnel had almost finished their contract and were "squaring up the face" of the tunnel when one of the men employed on the surface was lowered rapidly, ran to them and told them to leave the mine instantly because the shaft was closing in. Why the men refused, in the face of a certain horrible death, to heed the warning is a mystery. The messenger begged and threatened, but they were obdurate. They laughed at him, told him to sit down and smoke a pipe with them and said they would leave the tunnel only when they had "finished her up in shape." Perhaps they imagined the man was playing a joke upon them or that it was a scheme to get them to leave the mine before their contract was fulfilled. At any rate, they refused to leave the mine, and the man who warned them returned to the surface only just in time to escape the fate of the men below. The shaft, with a roar, closed in, and they were entombed. No effort was made to rescue the bur-them if they were not killed by the cave, and it was supposed that the tunnel had also collapsed. To sink a shaft 100 feet through treacherous ground first of next week to buy goods. would take a long time even in these days, when all the "modern appliances" for such work were at our disposal.

The mine was abandoned. Fifteen years went by. The story of the mine and the buried men became an old one. Their names were forgotten. They were like men who go down to the sea in ships and perish in sight of their homes. Their friends know that somewhere in the sea their bones are bleaching, somewhere in a great sepulcher upon which they may look, but into which they cannot see.

Fifteen years after the caving in of the mine some prospectors overran the locality. They were told the story of cle fellow arrived yesterday morn- the Sunset ledge, and they went to its

A Notable Lecture on the Sense of Hear-

During the course of one of Dr. Hartman's latest lectures at the Sur gical hotel, he said: "Good hearing is essential to health and safety. A continual roaring, cracking and buz zing in the head, which is always produced by partial loss of hearing, is a constant nervous irritation which will gradually undermine the strength. Besides this even a slight loss renders' any one more liable to accident, many persons being killed every year because of partial deafness. Many people think that a loss of the sense of hearing is inevitable, and that everyone must submit to it sooner or later. Hence they make no attempt to find a cure. This is a great mistake. Catarrhal deafness is due to catarrh of the throat passing up through the Eustachian tubes to the middle ear. The catarrh in rare cases originates in and remains confined to the middle ear. The symptoms are: Roaring, cracking, buzzing in the ear, with gradually increasing difficulty in hearing. If not cured the hearing will be entirely destroyed. When the case has not already gone too far before the treatment is begun Pe-ru-na will cure every case. It is only after catarrh has destroyed portions of the middle ear that Peru-na fails to cure. ### ANN ARBOR ARGUS. JANUARY 25, 1895

Th

To the Honorable the Common Council

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS. OFFICIAL.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 21, 1895. Regular session.

Called to order by President Wines Roll called. Full board present. The journal of the last session approved as corrected.

PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS.

To the Common Council:

The Board of Public Works herewith sub-mit the sewer specification as amended by the board, also a set of the sewer and plumb ing rules for your approval or disapproval. By order of the Board of Public Works. W. J. MILLER, Clerk.

Referred to the Committee on Sewers. A petition signed by Frances M. De Puy, of the City of Ann Arbor, setting forth that on the 16th day of November, 1894, she sustained a very severe injury to her entire person, by falling into the sewer trench at the intersection of Liberty and Thompson streets, there being no danger signal lights or barriers at said locality, and that she has been damaged in consequence to the extent of at least $5,000. Referred to the Committee on Sewers and the city attorney.

A petition signed by Catherine Stoll, of the city of Ann Arbor, asking to be remitted from a sidewalk tax, which has been assessed against her property, as the said sidewalk was built by the petitioner, except furnishing the lumber.

Referred to the Committee on Finances and sidewalks.

The Engineer's estimate of the Fifth ward branch of main sewer was again reported to the Council, and the same was referred to the Sewer Committee. REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

Chairman Brown, of the Water Committee, submitted a report of a bacteriological examination of the drinking water that is furnished by the Ann Arbor Water Co., report shows that the water in its present condition is very good, was received and filed.

REPORTS OF SPECIAL COMMITTEES.

To the Common Council:

To the Common Council: Your special committee, to whom was re-ferred the matter of procuring some suitable person to take charge of the heating apparatus in the city offices, would report that your committee have secured the services of Kenny & Quinlan to take charge of the heating at $10 per month, and your committee recommend that the offer be accepted and a contract be closed with said parties for such services. Respectfully submitted, FRANK WOOD, C. H. MANLX, H. G. PEETTYMAN. Accented and recommendations comtic as the foremost Review in the En-the men and women who know most Accepted, and recommendations concurred in, as follows : .

REPORT FROM THE ORDINANCE COMMITTEE.

Chairman Prettyman, of the Ordinance Committee, made a verbal report what the committee was doing with the ordinances of this city. First was made a record of the passage, amendment, and repeal or continuance in force of every ordinance ever passed by the Common Council of this city since the establishment of a city government under the first charter.

President Wines stated that the hour of 8:30 o'clock having arrived, as the Brown, Manly, Taylor, Kitson, Pretty-

To the Honorable the Common Council: I have the pleasure of submitting to you a business propesition for your consideration, that the Fireman's Hall now occupied by the Fire department be so enlarged and im-proved that it may provide convenient room for the fire department, city offices and a 'lock up.' When the Common Council pro-vided offices for the various branches of the city government, they without doubt expected the time to come when it would not only be a matter of economy, but a necessity for the city to own a building where provisions would be made for office room and other use. The matter of economy, but a necessity for the city to own a building where provisions would be made for office room and other use. The part to year makes it impossible to seeure low rates and the emergency might arise, whereby we might be compelled to seek new quarters, a change which might involve considerable expense without improvement. The city offices should be permenantly for all of the valuable maps and papers be-inging to the city. Ald. Prettyman moved that the communication be referred to a special committee of three of which the president of this council be made a member of the committee. Adopted.

President Wines appointed Ald. Wood and Ald. Taylor as the other two members of said committee.

By Ald. Manly:

Resolved. That the city attorney be and he is hereby directed to prepare and present to this council an ordinance relative to the regu-lations and control of club-rooms, situated in the city of Ann Arbor.

Adopted as follows :

Yeas-Alds. Wagner, Bodmer, Martin, Allmendinger, Snyder, Ferguson, Brown, Manly, Taylor, Kitson, Prettyman, Wood, Pres. Wines-13.

Nays-None.

By Ald. Brown :

Resolved, That the Water Co. be, and are hereby ordered, to make the necessary con-nections with the flush-tanks on the lateral sewers, now constructed or in course of con-struction, in accordance with the proposition of the said Water Co. to the Board of Public Works.

Adopted as follows :

Yeas-Alds. Wagner, Bodmer, Martin, Allmendinger, Snyder, Ferguson, Brown, Manly, Taylor, Kitson, Prettyman, Wood, Pres. Wines-13. Nays-None.

By Ald. Martin :

BY And, Martin: Resolved. That the matter of title of land, where the city built a walk along the north side of Felch street, west of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan Railway Co.'s lands and assessed against John Molkenthin, be re-ferred to the city attorney for a report on the matter, where said title lays, by the next meeting of this Council.

Ald. Manly moved an amendment that the city attorney procure an abstract of title, if necessary, which amendment prevailed, as follows :

WHO WAS ALICIA?

Young Mrs. Waterhouse finished the writing of a dutiful letter to her mother. The letter assured the anxious old lady that the writer was quite happy; that there was really no necessity for worry, and that mamma might make herself quite content at Biarritz. Geoffrey was the best of husbands, and although, of course, much engaged at South Kensington with his fearfully abtruse experiments and his new book on steel fibers he was extremely attentive and kind. And she was, with much love, mamma's affectionate daughter, Helen Waterhouse,

"Mamma won't believe it," said young Mrs. Waterhouse, with a kind of comic despair. "She is always wanting to know about the skeleton. Thank goodness there isn't one!"

On the clean blotting pad was an impress of some of her husband's writing. A palette shaped mirror stood on the table, and half unconsciously she turned the pad toward it.

"Wonder to whom he has been writing?"

It was quite easy to see. Mrs. Waterhouse glanced at it casually at first, then, her face fiercely pink, with much attention:

"I want you, my dearest, to believe that I am quite true to you. I am bound by certain ties to others, but to you, my sweetheart, my own dearest Alicia'

"Alicia!" cried Mrs. Waterhouse aloud as she panted and sat back in her chair. "Alicia! Alicia who, I wonder?" She knew his writing so well that she could scarce be deceived on that point. The whole thing in a moment was clear. Her dear mother, with a less cramped experience of the world, had been right, after all.

"There is a skeleton," said the trem-bling Mrs. Waterhouse. She tore her letter to Biarritz into many pieces. As the last fragment went into the ferns in the fireplace she felt a kiss upon her neck

"Don't do that, please," she cried. "Beg pardon," said her husband. "Did I frighten you?"

went up stairs to her room and hurriedly, very hurriedly, packed a portmanteau. There was time to catch the mail at Charing Cross, and she meant to get away to Biarritz, away from the stifling atmosphere of this house, away from London. She rang for her maid. "Parker."

"Yes, ma'am."

"The mail goes at 8 from Charing Cross, I think?'

"It used to go at 8, ma'am," said Parker canticusly. "When we went away, if you remember"-"Yes, ya, of course. I want you to pack a bag for yourself, and we will catch the mail tonight." "Catch the mail, ma'am, tonight?"

"Yes, yes. Lose no time, please, and send out for a cab."

"Well, I never!" murmured Parker. Mrs. Waterhouse had some intention of having one fine, big, square scene with her husband before she left, but there was little time to spare. Moreover, it occurred to her that she could be quite as bitter in a well composed letter to be dispatched from Biarritz as in a hasty interview.

"Come along, Parker," she called. "It's all very well to say come along," muttered Parker discontentedly, "but this is a rum sort of a game, and I don't 'alf cotton to it."

"We've got 20 minutes. Tell the man to drive carefully, but to drive very fast."

The most galling thing about the whole deplorable affair was the certainty that her mother would meet her at the station with an I-told-you-so-mypoor-lamb expression. Still there was no one else to whom she could go, and at any rate she could always control mamma. She always had done so. Charing Cross.

"The mail, lidy?" said the porter civilly. "The mail goes at ite fifteen. It's later'n it use to be."

"Parker, will you get some papers? Get one or two for yourself, you know."

Parker, still rather inclined to be cross, went to the bookstall. It half restored the excellent maid to complacent submission to what she termed all this ramping about to find the new number of "The Lady's Own Chatterbox" on sale. It was her own particular favorite journal. "We'll get in now, Parker," said Mrs. Waterhouse. "There's 20 minutes to wait, but we may as well take our seats. Seconds, please, porter."

They found comfortable corner seats. For awhile they watched the stout, perspiring ladies and the slim daughters and the pet dogs. The usually demure Parker sniggered so much when she saw two Frenchmen kiss each other that she dropped "The Lady's Own Chatterbox." Mrs. Waterhouse took it up and held it in her hand.

"I must read," she whispered to herself. "I must do something to keep myself from thinking. I shall faint if I don't divert my thoughts."

The "Lady's Own Chatterbox" lay on her lap. She put one small foot against the seat opposite and leaned forward to get the steady glare of the electric light on the page.

"Any more going on?" cried the inspector on the platform aggressively. "We commence this week a story by a new writer, Walter House, entitled 'Alicia's Only Love.' It will be replete with romantic interest, and, in ort, a wonderful picture of high "My love, I admire yours. I mcant life of the present day, with all its faults and foibles."

Ald. Wagner, chairman of the Special Committee on Amending the Charter, reported the different amendments that the committee had under consideration, and asked for further time to make a a final report in full to this Council.-

Ald. Manly stated as a member of the Special Charter Committee, he would have a minority report to submit to the Council.

On motion of Ald. Manly the Council agreed to meet in an adjourned session, Friday evening, Jan. 25, and the hour of 8 o'clock be fixed for receiving reports from the Charter Amending Committee.

President Wines stated that if there were no objections the ordinances reported by the Ordinance Committee will be considered read, and it was so ordered.

ORDINANCES.

Ald. Prettyman, leave having been granted, introduced an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Relative to the Licensing of Plumbers;" to amend an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Relative to Licenses," passed July 6, 1891 by inserting three new sections therein. Ald. Manly moved that the rules be suspended and the ordinance be given its second reading by sections. Adopted.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS, ANN ARBOR, Jan. 16, 1895.

Regular session.

Called to order by President Clark. Roll called. Full Board present. Minutes of the last regular and special meetings were read and approved. The Clerk reported that he had received the following bills: Ann Arbor Gas Company, for tar used by the city, amount $9.63, and a bill from J. C. Watts against the sewer contractors of lateral sewer in District No. 1, for building 18 ft. house branch sewer Of course it seems to you a very foolish from the Liberty street sewer to curb line in front of Mr. Watts' property. Mr. Bullis moved that the bill of the Ann Arbor Gas Company be approved, and the bill of Mr. Watts against the sewer contractors be received and filed.

Adopted as follows :

Scedless Fruits and Vegetables.

Writers often express wonder that any fruit or vegetable should be found without seeds, the acme of surprise seeming to be with respect to the seedless orange. The fact of the case is that such examples are met with in almost every variety of fruits and in several kinds of vegetables. An instance which can be cited in the apple is Mennecher's Nocore, so named because of both "core" and seed pits being entirely absent.

The Rutter pear is a so called seedless variety of that species of fruit, but I believe that abortive seeds are occasionally found in isolated specimens. The "zante," or seedless currant of the grocery stores, is not a currant at all, but a small species of seedless grape,-St. Louis Republic.

SUNSET IN THE WOODS.

Here as I lie 'neath shady trees In rustling woodland sweet and green, The sun's last rays are creeping through And lighting up the shadowy scene

The voices of the wood sing songs That cheer the sad and gloomy mind. The wind comes softly through the tre And leaves them whisp'ring far behind.

A placid stream runs purling by, And at its murmuring edges near The grand old oaks stand close and sway While gazing in its bosom clear.

Through all the wood the glowing lights And colors of the setting sun

Are touching leaf and sprig and trunk As o'er the quiet stream they run.

A yellow leaf comes flutt'ring down Into its gently flowing tide. A cricket's chirping in the grass Is softly echoing far and wide.

The golden tints on forest leaves Have slowly faded with the day. The shadows in the evening light Grow long and blend and die away. --Charles N. Myers in Detroit Free Press

"JACOB AND ME."

"Me" was Rupert, and it was early in the summer that he begged to have his hair cut.

"It's so hot and tickly and tangly and boversome, and I'm old enough to look like a boy," he said, which was true. His mother put her arms around him-they were sitting in the big wicker chair by the parlor window-and held him as if she would never let him g0.

"I want my baby as he is," she said, which was also true. There was a little silence.

It was a low, little room, full of quiet and half darkness. There were some well filled bookshelves, well chosen pictures, just enough pretty and more or less worn rugs and cushions and a bowl of garden roses on a low table. The child leaned his head against his mother's shoulder, the despised hair a bright tangle against her dark gown and gazed adoringly into her face, but she was looking out of the window across the meadow, where the black trees and the slender spire of St. Michael and All Angels' were clearly defined against the cool twilight sky. There was a churchyard around St. Michael's, but it was in the shadow. The twilight deepened. A cowbell tinkled in the distance, and a young man and two girls with pretty shirt waists and tennis racquets went chattering laughingly by.

"That's the boy that plays the organ at St. Michael's," said Rupert. "I go in sometimes to hear him do it. He likes it. When he isn't playing, he is talking to those three nice girls in the little house down the road. They each have a scrapbook, and the litlte boy has a scrapbook, and they put everyfing in"-

He stopped suddenly, his gaze followed his mother's across the meadow, and he slipped one soft arm around her neck, while she took possession of the little brown hand and kissed it gently. An old woman came slowly down the road-an old woman, with straight, white hair, blue calico gown and red handkerchief twisted around her neck. She was driving a flock of clamoring ducks and geese, and Rupert's interest was at once awakened.

"Buy me one, mamma, one of the big white ones. It would be such good company, and I'll never say another word about the hair." It was an odd fancy and odder bargain, but it ended in Mrs. Cardell's most promising gander, very much surprised and named Jacob, being shut up in Mrs. Ware's shicken house for the night. He did prove "good company." With a string around his leg for safety, he followed Rupert hither and yon. Together they planted a garden and dug it up from time to time to see 'how it grew;" together they hunted for frogs in the meadow, and together they waded in the brook below the hill; together they sat on the steps when it was time for "mamma" to come home, holding a long and rather one sided conversation.

dark lashes, and her cheeks were the color of wild roses. Beyond this her beauty censed. Her mouth was very wide; her waist was very big; she herself was very long, and her fingers were bent quite crooked with rheumatism. Rupert tried to straighten them out as she went on talking. "It's a cake you're wantin, and apple sauce and daisies-them's easy gotand candles. There's a plenty left from Christmas, but a goose'd be a big item on the bill, an it as small as it has to be, an a bit of steak here, an a handful of mutton for a stew there, an a lilliputian roast of a Sunday. There's Jacob now.'

Rupert stood up suddenly and gathered Jacob into his arms. He was growing very heavy.

'We're going to find the boy that plays the organ," he said with dignity He found him on the piazza of the little house down the road, deep in scrapbooks and newspaper clippings, with two of the girls, while the other girl was making lemonade and putting in a word now and then. They were all enthusiastically discussing theatricals for the benefit of a local charity, but looked up and smiled as "Jacob and me' came up the path.

"I want to talk to the boy that plays the organ," he said. They all laughed, which was very embarrassing and made Rupert's little face very red in its tangle of golden hair. He put down Jacob and hauled in on the string until Jacob lost his equilibrium entirely, and then he let it out again. They persuaded him to have some of the lemonade, which he liked immensely, but "the boy" took him unceremoniously up on his knee and asked how old he was, which is a blow to would be dignity. Rupert said "Five," wriggled away and sat on the steps and told his story. General interest was aroused.

"Let's all help, and you make the prettiest dinner cards you can." "I will," said the boy.

"I'm very much obliged," said Rnpert, gathering up Jacob, "and you all come. You look so pretty it will be like a party. Julia won't mind." They all accepted. Friday afternoon Rupert gathered daisies in the meadow, and Jacob helped-at least he looked out for stray frogs and was "good company." They took them home and rested and had their supper of bread and milk on the back porch-Mrs. Ware was away antil evening on Fridays-and then disappeared down the road to the village. By and by Rupert went back to the meadow and gathered the rest of the daisies alone.

The sky behind St. Michael's spire slender silver moon shone over the tops of the trees. When he had carried the daisies across the meadow, the sunset had faded to a silver gray, the moon had gone, one big star was reflected in the brook below the hill, and it was growing very cold. Rupert sat down by the stone wall, and two tears rolled down his cheeks. The windows of the little church glowed with soft light.

The sexton was preparing for Friday evensong. Suddenly the world seemed very big and wide, and the child lay picking him up carried him and the to sleep in a tub in the cellarway. Then | confidence. he had to race across the meadow to be

THE COLISEUM.

D Coliseum! rain vast and strong,

Defant still, spite power of time and fate, Thou holdest well thy solitary state Amid new worlds that idly round thee throng. And through the centuries thou dost prolong The majesty of Rome, her mighty weight Of will, upraised above the little greats And quick to punish all who did her wrong.

But I behold, cold and indifferent, Unmoved by awful sternness of thy face, Heedless of all the memories which have lent To thy unyielding form a tender grace, For thou art but the shameless monument Of the fierce strength of an unloving race. -Rev. J. L. Spalding in Catholic World.

SCHOOL DIPLOMACY.

On a morning in the early part of December, in the year 1876, 25 or 30 pupils, comprising boys and girls of different ages, were standing in front of a country schoolhouse in central Illinois. They were awaiting their new teacher, who was on this day to open the winter term of school.

The young people were all engaged in conversation. There were many specalations as to the appearance of the person who had been intrusted with the tutorship of the rising generation in district No. 6. Numerous opinions were expressed as to the success or failure of the forthcoming term.

A short distance from the main body of pupils five big boys were congregated These talked in earnest tones. The oldest as well as the largest of the group was Sam Gaines, a coarse boned, robust looking fellow of 20 years. He was the center of attraction and did most of the speaking. It was evident that his comrades looked upon him as a sort of leader.

"The d'rectors of this deestrict can't hev much of an eye for bizness," said

Sam. "Las' winter we cleaned out three strappin schoolmasters. The year before we licked one man and sent him away with scars and bruises, while three women left a-bawlin. Now they hev hired a city belle, and I s'pose she is badly stuck up, but I reckon we'll soon show her the ways of deestrict No. 6."

You just bet your life," said John Sanders, who was in size ranked next to Sam. "If the purty girl doesn't know the history of No. 6, she will be treated to a fine s'prise party."

Suddenly a girl made her appearance in the yard and walked briskly toward the schoolhouse. She was perhaps not more than 18 years of age, slight of stature and handsome. One could perceive at a glance that she was endowed with a keen intellect.

The pupils graned their necks to catch a glimpse of the newcomer, who was was rose color and gold, and a most Miss Laura Thomas, the teacher. The young lady bowed graciously to all and smiled sweetly. Then she hastened into the schoolhouse.

Having arrived in the schoolroom, Miss Thomas seated herself in the armchair behind the teacher's desk and looked around with the greatest composure. She knew full well the unsavory reputation of the school which she was about to manage. She had learned ere she signed her contract with the directors how her predecessors had fled from their duties in confusion. Indeed she face down in the grass and cried and had been warned by the very men who cried. There the boy found him, and employed her to consider carefully the step she was taking. But this caused daisies home and told Julia to put him her little concern. She apprehended no to bed, while he himself put the daisies difficulty. Her heart was filled with

The pupils came into the house and eyed the instructress. The big boys especially regarded the schoolma'am with the dinner cards—even Rupert was satis- | expressions of mingled curiosity and dis-

But Sam did not notice them. He gave constant attention to his books. During the whole day there was perfect order in the schoolroom.

In the evening Sam, who, to reach his home, was obliged to pass the house in which the teacher boarded, walked by the side of the latter and carried her books and dinner pail. Never before had he paid such polite attention to a tutoress.

The next morning he went to school in a costume which differed wonderfully from the one which he wore on the previous day. He wore his best clothes. his face was smoothly shaved, and a bright polish was visible on his boots.

"Hello! Here comes our dude!" cried John Sanders when Sam arrived in the yard. "Just look at him, boys. Say, Sam, what's the mattter with you anyhow? What do you mean by layin us poor fellows in the shade like this?"

"Oh, I just want to look respectable, tnat's all, " said Sam. "You see we've got a teacher who knows something now for once, and I consider under these vircumstances that I should appear decent in the schoolroom."

Sam's four big schoolmates laughed heartily at these words. They accepted them as having been uttered in the spirit of a jest.

"But, leavin all jokes aside, when do we begin operations?" queried John. "I don't understand you," said Sam, feigning ignorance.

"Why, when are we to take charge of this school and run it to suit ourselves?" explained John.

"Boys, I'm not with you this term," replied Sam.

"What! You're not goin back on us, are you?" anxiously inquired John. 'You certainly don't propose to forsake us in this way. Sam, this is a capital joke you're tryin to play on us." "But I am serious, boys," said Sam. "I'm old enough to know how valuable is an education. Miss Thomas is a good teacher, and I spect to learn somethin this term."

The school had been in session less than 15 minutes when John sent a paper wad flying across the room. An outbreak of laughter followed, in which nearly all the pupils participated.

Emboldened by this applause, John threw several other balls. The teacher detected him.

"Have you been throwing these paper balls?" she asked, looking straight at the perpetrator of the mischief.

"Yep," coolly replied John.

"You may come forward with your book and stand on the floor," firmly demanded the teacher.

"I reckon not," said John.

"You must obey my command, or 1 will be compelled to send you home," said Miss Thomas.

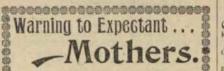

"I refuse to do either," was the answer. "I'll not stand on the floor, nor will I leave school. I'll stay right here and do as I please."

The teacher became alarmed. Her face grew as pale as death, and her frame trembled. She bent her head, looked to the floor and reflected on what course to pursue.

Sam Gaines sat silent in his seat during this brief dialogue. When the sound of John's last words had died away, he arose, took off his coat and advanced toward the disobedient pupil. His eyes flashed, and his brawny arm was uplifted.

"Go and stand on the floor or take your books and be off," he shouted in a commanding voice. "Do you hear what I say?"

The teacher was aroused from her

"The Old Time Singing School.

In the out communicative when the great and the great-great-grandmothers were young the amoung school was a well established instruction, writes Mary E. Estes in a very accurate article telling exactly how "the old time concert" may be reproduced at a church entertainment in Ladies' Home Journal. It was usually held in the village schoolhouse, the schoolmaster often figuring as the singing muster. Thither at regular intervals through the long winter months tripped the grandmas with their escorts. Little did they imagine as they lifted up their sweet voices in unison with the strong tenors and bassos that those same airs, even the very gowns they wore, would at some distant day be reproduced for the benefit of an appreciative andience. Yet it may be safely asserted that with the exception of the colonial tea the old folks' concert is the most popular of the old time entertainments.

The success of an undertaking of this sort depends largely upon the adaptability for her office of the person having the affair in hand. She must of necessity have an accurate conception of the manner in which these entertainments were conducted in our grandmothers' day. She must also become thoroughly imbued with the spirit of hat olden time.

The Polite British Waiter.

The extreme politeness of the average English waiter is a continual source of merriment.

He thanks you when he brings your soup, again when he brings your napkin, when he takes away your plate, when he happens to find you looking at him-in fact, he says, "Thank you," at every turn, and says it in such a jerky, mechanical fashion that you cannot repress a smile. His example is followed by the bus conductor, who thanks you for your fare and thanks you again when he hands you your ticket, and by the theater usher when he seats you, and by every servant you meet, in the most inappropriate manner. They overdo the 'thank you'' business, and always employ the same jerky manner and mechanical tone.-Chicago Record.

In September a plan began to grow in Rupert's little head, and he told Jacob all about it.

Mamma had begun to teach in town now and was away all day. Julia, the maid, could be very good when she chose, but the day Rupert came tumbling into the kitchen, his feet very muddy, dragging after him poor bewildered Jacob by the length of his string, trying to explain all in a moment, she said:

"Did I ever see the like of such a bothersome child, and the pesky beast' -and nicked them up unceremoniously by the left wing and the right arm and put them down on the doorstep. Rupert cried a little, and Jacob went to sleep on one leg, and presently Julia repented, spread a nice slice of graham bread with apple sance and presented it as a peace offering, explaining that she had just scrubbed the kitchen and was ill tempered into the bargain "along of reasons you can't comprehend. And tell me about the plan, darlin."

Rupert sniffed, ate some of the bread and fed the rest to Jacob, talking all the time.

"Mamma's birthday and St. Michael and All Angels' day come just the same -next Saturday-and papa used to buy a goose and apple sauce and a cake with candies. Twenty-eight it was last year. This year makes 29, and the big punch bowl full of Michaelmas daisies -papa used to go way into the country when we were in the flat in town, but here the meadow is full of them. Jacob and me found them-and candles in the silver candlesticks and dinner Could you paint dinner cards, cards. Julia? The boy that plays the organ could do them, I think," but Julia was thinking of something else, her forehead wrinkled up, her pale blue eyes gazing into indefinite distance.

Rupert wondered suddenly why Julia "didn't go on and finish being pretty." Her hair was soft and wavy and brown, and though she twisted it up tightly twice a day it generally rippled loosely above a broad white forehead. Her eyes were very light, but shaded by long

There was an odd little silence after this until "the boy" began to play Chopin's impromptu in A flat.

The next day Rupert had his hair cut quite close, "like a boy." Mrs. Ware gathered it up as it fell, took it home and laid it tenderly in a little drawer. She was smiling, and yet there were tears in her eyes. She was think-ing of "Jacob and me."-Churchman.

The Violet.

The violet does best in a moderately rich, moisture looking loamy compost, with no rank manure within reach of the roots. The planting should be firmly done, crowding of the plants not allowed and but little space between the lights and the plants permitted. Therefore the foundation of the bed must not be of a yielding character, and for this purpose nothing is worse than manure

Miss Thomas studiously inspected the pink candles on the birthday cake and latter, as if attempting to single out a talking quietly and sensibly all the particular one in the group. Finally she

"Mr. Gaines, will you be so kind as

The manner and wording of this speech completely amazed the big boy. He nodded assent, and grasping the buckhis four companions, who snickered "You stop your laughin," said Sam, displaying considerable embarrassment. 'This girl understands eterquette. There's nothin funny about that, as I can see.

When Sam returned to the room, the teacher heartily thanked him. At the same time she seized the opportunity to inform the young man that she desired to converse with him alone for a moment. Waving all the other pupils "It is quite an undertaking to teach this school," she said. "There is much hard work before me, and I would like to do it well. I have taught school for two years, and my efforts have always been crowned with success. This will regret making a failure. It would be a terrible humiliation. There is one way by which I can succeed. It is by your aid. With your help it will be an easy task to teach this school. I take you to be a gentleman, Mr. Gaines. May I not hope to have your unqualified co-operation?"

Sam Gaines looked admiringly into the beautiful face before him, and his eyes met the girl's, which imploringly rested upon him. He was deeply moved by the eloquent plea. He began to feel a genuine pity for the teacher, and when he gazed at the frail form his compassion was emphasized. The marked consideration which Miss Thomas had shown him also took effect in another direction. It produced in Sam a sentiment of profound respect for the young lady.

"I have always been unruly in school," he said, "and many is the teachers as hev feared me. But you appear like a lady, and as far as I am concerned you shall hev no trouble. And mebbe I can even assist you in keepin others quiet. At any rate, you need not be afraid that you will be rudely treated while I am around."

Scarcely had the pupils been seated when the big boys glanced at Sam for a or tree leaves. -St. Louis Post-Dispatch. signal to begin creating a disturbance meditations and looked up. Then she saw that John Sanders quailed beneath the stern and angry gaze of the one time disturber of the peace. Without saying a word the offender quietly walked forward and took his position on the floor.

From that day Laura Thomas encountered no further difficulties. The big boys respected the will of Sam, and instead of racking their brains to invent schemes with which to harass the teacher they applied themselves vigorously to their studies. The children made remarkable progress, and at the close of the term folks declared that Miss Thomas was the best teacher who ever taught in district No. 6.

After adjournment on the last day of school Sam lingered at the door. He was waiting for the schoolma'am in order that he might walk home with her. Soon a fashionably dressed gentleman, wearing a silk hat, drove into the yard in a buggy drawn by a span of handsome black horses. The teacher seemed to expect him, for she immediately gathered together her books, and after thanking Sam for his many acts of kindness left the room and got into the buggy.

Sam watched the vehicle with a look of dejection until it had entirely disappeared from view.

"Who is the young man who took the teacher away?" he inquired of one of the older girls.

"Why, that is her beau, Charlie Layton," was the response. "They are to be married in two weeks."

Sam ground his teeth, and a shadow passed over his face.

"Ef I had knowed that," he said bitterly, "Miss Laura Thomas' last term of school would ha' been broke up long 'fore this."-Chicago News.

A Lucky Purchase.

The Manchester Courier says that just before the Zulu war there was in Mauritius a stamp collector who was a friend of the local postmaster. One day he learned that there was to be a clearance of old stock and obtained permistion to buy it all as waste. It occurred to him that he might do the same at other small colonial postoffices and acquire stamps without difficulty. One of his Mauritius stamps he sold not long ago for $4,250, and, according to the Manchester Courier, he has already made between $100,000 and $159,000 by his investment.

OF REMEMBRANCE.

I do remember every note And each sweet letter that she wrote From where, afar the palm blest isles Are lovelier for her spiendid smiles. the flower She sent me in a lonely hour.

And sometimes, when my lonely soul Reareth in dark God's thunders roll, I wonder—her sweet worshiper— If God's dark storms break over her. And if they do I know my breast Would bear them all to give her rest.

But, no; the fragrant orange blossoms Watt through her life their sweet perfumes; And the tall ships, with wind blown sails, Bring to her songs of nightingales. Yet, do they still, where'er they be, Sing to her one last song of me! -Exchange.

THE WHITE HORSE.

"This canyon ought to have a history, Pablo," I said to the guide as, supper finished, I leaned back on my blankets and dreamily gazed at the scene before

It was a summer night-a night in the southwest, where nights are perfect. The moon was at the full, and not a cloud was in the sky to obscure her radiance or the light of the myriad air was cool and bracing, yet balmy, and there was just enough breeze to lull one's spirits and cause him to forget the world and indulge in fanciful reveries such as only southern breezes in-

We had pitched our camp on one of the sloping hills on the south side of the canyon, where a little stream of clear, sweet water rippled from a spring Gustave Brehm, Herman Hutzel in a ravine down into the canyon below. Above us was the sighing, odorous forest of juniper and pinon. Below was a little stretch of velvety grass extending clear to the floor of the canyon Hicks and W. H. Butler were among on both sides of the little stream. Right and left stretched the canyon itself, its walls, precipitous for the most part, rising grandly hundreds of feet high on

> "It is beautiful, Pablo," I continued. 'It must have a history of some kind or a story-no?"

"Si, senor, that it has-aye, that it has," answered the Mexican, lighting a fresh cigarette and puffing at it re-flectively a moment. "Would the senor

"By all means, Pablo. Go ahead." And here is Pablo's story as nearly as I can translate it, for he spoke in

"Does the senor see the cliff on the other side, how high it is? That is the cliff of the White Horse. It is many hundred feet high and straight up and Vednesday, and will begin his work down. And at the top when the moon is a little higher the senor will see the white horse. It is a great white rock on light it looks like a white horse. It has not alway been there, and now, they say, on the anniversaries of a certain day the ghost of old Don Fernando Mr. Geo. J. Haeussler being on comes and rides it along the edge of the canyon.

"Don Fernando? Oh, aye. May the blessed saints have mercy upon him!" ejaculated Pablo, crossing himself.

"Many years ago Don Fernando Cortez-he was a grandson or something of the great Cortez-lived over above beyoud the canyon several miles. Don Fernando was rich and lived in a grand house and had many servants and slaves. He was a great entertainer, was Don Fernando, and people used to come many miles-hundreds, thousands, yes, -to his grand dinners and balls. "He was not a good man. No. He was a cruel master and hard with all his people and made them all hate him. Miss Cash, of Brooklyn, were the He was kind to only two living creatures. One of these was his beautiful daughter, the Lady Ysabel; the other was his great white stallion, the largest and fleetest horse in all the country. last Saturday, to spend a few weeks These two the old don loved as his two visiting her friends, the Misses eyes, and well he might. Yes. The Lady Ysabel was not only beautiful, but she was kind and good, and all the people loved her as much as they hated the don, which was a great deal. She had ing for Walter C. Mack the past golden hair and eyes like the sky, and it is said the birds listened when she sang. And the horse-aye, he was wonderful. He was as big as three ordinary horses, and his tread shook the ground. He had a long, white mane and eyes Arbor, drove over on Sunday to that flashed fire and was almost as much feared as the old don, who alone dared go near him. "The Lady Ysabel had many suitors. The wealthiest and most aristocratic men in all the country came to sue for her hand, many of them from faroff California, and some, it is said, came even from Spain. But the Lady Ysabel would have none of them. She loved her pony and her dogs and birds and her people, but a man, no. One after another came, but she turned them all "shadow social" at the home of away. So after a few years the old don became tired of what he called her foolishness and swore she should marry, and at once, a man whom he had selected for her. "This grieved the Lady Ysabel very much, for not only did she not love any of those who had offered themselves to her, but her heart was already givengiven to one of her father's peons, a world, with verbal description, last young man named Jose, whom she had helped to nurse through a terrible illness. Him she used to meet by stealth nearly every night unknown to any but themselves. But one night when the Lady Ysabel's wedding day was near at hand she and her lover were seen together, and the story came to the ears of the old don. "He started to find them, swearing to kill them both, but they had been warned and had taken two of the fleetest horses in the stables and fled. With literary and musical program was mad haste the don saddled his white stallion and pursued them. They had taken their way over the hills blindly, but some instinct led the don to follow the direction they had taken, and in a day, after a two weeks' illness. The short time he had them in sight riding over the plateau beyond the canyon there.

but soon they found it was too late, and as the old don, with terrible curses, pressed them closely they leaped to the ground, ran to the edge of the cliff, and clasped in each other's arms sprang into eternity together.

"And the don? For days he raved like a nadman and seemed to know no one. Then he became quieter, and they thought he would be himself again. But one moonlight night they missed him, and several set out to seek him. He was riding up and down the edge of the cliff yonder, raving and blaspheming terribly, and none of those who had come to find him dared approach. For hours he raved. Then, just as the moon came from behind a cloud, they saw him ride back from the cliff a little distance. Then he wheeled sharply and shonting, 'Now, my friend, both together!' he rode full speed at the precipice. But at the edge the white stallion halted suddenly, and the don went over alone. In midair he shook his fist and hurled a curse at the friend who had deserted him at the last minute, and then and there the great white stallion turned to stone. There he stands, senor -you can see him plainly now-still looking over the precipice. It is from him that the cliff and the canyon get their name.

"And it is said by the superstitious, senor, " continued Pablo, drawing closer to the fire and shuddering slightly "that on the anniversary of old Don Fernando's death and on Lady Ysabel's saint's day the ghosts of Lady Ysabel and Jose ride forth on the plateau, and that of the old don pursues them riding the white stallion, which leaves its station at such times. And-oh, senor, for the love of God, look!"

Startled, I looked quickly across the canyon. The rock which appeared so very little like a white horse seemed to vanish as though in mist. Then there was a series of blood curdling shrieks and curses, and flying along the edge of the cliff rode three persons on horseback, and one, behind the others, rode a great white horse.

It was only a moment, and then the drunken cowboys passed out of sight, and the tiny fleck of vapor which had for those few seconds kept the moonlight from the white horse rock moved on, leaving the rock standing out in the clear light, just as before. Still shivering with the sudden fright I had had, I turned to Pablo. He had fallen in a fit and was lying rigid, with flecks of foam on his lips. I brought him round soon, and he sat up, his eyes staring wildly

"Well, Pablo," I said in as steady a voice as I could command, "you must have had a dream. You've been plunging around and yelling for a full five minutes.

"What, senor, I? A dream? Then it was not'

"I think it was the bread, Pablo. You ate a big supper, and that hot sour bread would kill an Indian."

Pablo concluded not to run away, as he might have done if I hadn't been able to convince him it was only a dream.-R. L. Ketchum in Romance.

Possibilities of the Indian.

The Indian has within him the capabilities upon which to base a better manhood and citizenship despite the barbarous instincts attributed to him. With no incentive to work and with encouragement to vice and idleness on every hand there are today upon the reservations many excellent and worthy Indian men and women. Though stolid and sphinxlike in deme nor, the India has the feelings and affections common to human beings. With no educational advantages they are men of remarkable sense, often approaching a high order of ability. The old chief of the Sioux nation, Spotted Tail, was a striking figure, whether taken physically or intellectually. The late Mrs. Elizabeth Winans, a Sioux woman, during a life of Christian service for her people was actuated by a purpose as pure and noble as that shown by any philanthropist of the country. Among the Indians are fine natural orators and statesmen equaled by few educated white men. Under education they have shown themselves quick and ready learners, competing easily with white pupils of the same age. I have observed them at thier studies and am convinced that they are as capable as white children of grasping the ordinary branches taught in the common schools. It has been my pleasure to hear addresses from full blooded Indian college students which would do credit to undergraduates of Yale or Harvard. -Senator Kyle in North American Review.

NOT A BRIDAL PARTY. But the Massachusetts Man Wanted to Know All About It.

They were wandering up and down the waiting room of the Grand Central station, and neither seemed inclined to talk much, although from the glances they occasionally bestowed upon one another it was plain that there was a degree of relationship existing between then. Suddenly the young man left the young woman's side and crossed to the newsstand, where he purchased a paper. Returning, he conducted his companion to a seat.

Hardly were they seated before one of those inquiring individuals who must talk to somebody placed himself in the next seat and eyed them inquisitively, to their visible annovance. He could not curb his propensity to talk, and thus be-

Meant For the Minister.

A popular minister in Fifeshire, in the good old times, used at Christmas to be inundated with hampers filled with good things. On one occasion an enormous turkey was sent to him by the thoughtful kindness of a neighboring farmer, but as the minister's family had already provided for the Christmas dinner the bird was sent to the market and sold.

A passerby, seeing this fine specimen of poultry, said. "What a splendid turkey! Just the thing for the minister's Christmas ( inner!" To the minister it was again sent.

the market and sold it again for a handsome sum

Another friend, similarly struck with the splendid proportions of the turkey, purchased it and sent it to the minister. The good woman, not wishing to fly in the face of Providence, said at last: "It is clear that the Lord means us to have this turkey. ' and with the appro-
