LITTLE STARTS A FUSS.

Homemaking and Homekeeping Built on Trivialities.

Men and women don't need to swing clubs to break up home concord. A sneer and a waspish tongue will be quite as effective. Sarcasm and nagging are to the atmosphere of love what sand flies and fleas are to summer. Who would not prefer an occasional brush with a flea you can't catch?

Unjudged, accepted, trusted to the end. A man must hold his friend.

There is more than one virtue that pumps and tallow candles. There is the old fashioned trick of loyalty to one's friends. There are plenty of friendships which, like costumes, are put on and off to suit circumstances, but the custom of "sticking up" for a friend, as our grandmothers called it, through all trouble and calumny, whether deserved or not, went out with calashes and knee buckles. How many understand the deep and delicate meaning of the words Ruth South American Republics All Interested. spoke so long ago to Naomi, "Thy are ready to traduce, unchallenged by us, the names of others for whom we vow an equal regard. It should be as impossible for us to listen to a word of retive plant do when rude touch approaches its blossoms? Just what we should do when the breath of scandal touches our friends.

If loyalty is out of date, so is modesty. I do not allude to the modesty that would interfere with a woman's plan to go half dressed into a theater That Seem to Indicate the Existence of a box or to a public reception I pass that by and take up the question only of is enough sap left in his soul to flutter a green leaf late in the season. of the United States will be greatly astonished some day by the receipt of a letter from General U. S. Grant. Mr. Hinkley and Colonel Fred Grant were cadets together at West Point. General Grant and his son Fred were both graduates of West Point, and the general was very anxious that his grandson should also be educated at that institution. Before he died he wrote a personal letter to the man who should be president of the United States at the time when his grandson should reach a suitable age asking him to appoint the young man to a cadetship at West Point. This letter is now in Colonel Fred Grant's possession.

OPINION EXPRESSED BY JOHN BULL.

Willing to Argue the Question with Bayard, but Not to Admit That Uncle Sam Has Any Interest Therein_Latin American Diplomats Watching the Game Closely and Why They Do So_Some Financial Factors Complicate the Problem.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—There is reason to believe that the British government has given our Ambassador Bayard to understand, in response to his representations in the Venezuelan boundary matter, on his suggestion that it be submitted to arbitration, that it must persist in regardcourse the idea was set out very diplomatically and courteously, so as to avoid giving offense as far as possible while still making it plain that the United States could not be regarded as having any proper interest in the matter. So, as qualifications. it stands, the British government still insists upon its absolute title and right to occupy all of the territory to the eastward of the Schomberg line while professing a willingness to submit to arbitration its claims to the lands lying west of that line.

Suggestion of a Protectorate.

This was the offer made to Venezuela years ago and it has not been modified in any respect since, notwithstanding Bayard's efforts. It has been intimated that the United States might acquire a right to intervene in behalf of Venezuela by declaring a protectorate over that country with the assent of its people, and behind this suggestion is at least one of the great European powers, which would be glad to have its relations with the disturbed countries of South and Central America placed on a stable basis so that it might look to some thoroughly responsible, highly civilized government to insure the permanence of trade and prevent frequent revolutions.

Monroe Doctrine in the Way.

But to concede the necessity for such a roaring June bug to the torment of a protectorate as a prerequisite to interfering to prevent the acquisition of American territory by any European power would amount to a renunciation of the Monroe Doctrine by the United States, has gone out of date along with town and this cannot be contemplated by the administration. There are indications that the British foreign office officials are willing to discuss this feature of the case with Bayard at length, and so the negotiations may drag along for many months unless a collision occurs between the British and Venezuelan forces in the disputed territory, or the new Minnesota company forces an issue by beginning operations under the large concession it has obtained from Venezuela of lands in that section.

WASHINGTON, April 4 .-- The subject of the practice of medicine in the United States by Canadian medical students who have failed to pass the examinations required to admit them to practice in the province of Ontario is brought to the attention of the state department by a report from Consul Twitchell, at Kingston, Canada. The consul says that during the year 1894 100 students were graduated from the Ontario medical college. Of these fifty-three passed the examination government before allowed to practice in

The other forty-seven the consul thinks probably went to the United States, where graduation from a medical college permits them to practice in most of the states without further examination. DRIVEN AWAY TO DEATH.

Tragedy of a Manitoba Rancher Who Was Thrown off a Train. LIVINGSTONE, Mont., April 4. - The badly decomposed body of a man was found in the Yellowstone river fifteen miles east. Papers showed that the dead man's name was Alex. Sanderson, a rancher of Griswold, Manitoba. A railroad ticket from Brandon, Manitoba, to LaGrange, Oregon, had been punched on every division as far west as Helena. Not a cent was found on the body.

Last November a stranger with a bloody face appeared at a ranch near where the body was found and said he had been thrown from a train. He acted in a wild manner and attacked the rancher, but was driven off at the point of a gun. ran to the river, jumped in and disappeared. He is believed to have been Sanderson, and that he had been robbed on the train, thrown off and so badly injured as to dethrone reason.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., April 4.-Harry St. John, son of ex-Governor St. John, of Kansas, and a member of the last Oklahoma legislature, shot and killed his wife yesterday afternoon at his home, two miles west of this city. By some means he had become possessed of a letter addressed to her and demanded to know the writer. Securing a gun he confronted his wife with the letter, threatening to kill her if she did not disclose the author.

She refused and, as he claimed, the gun was discharged accidentally, shooting her through the breast. She died without uttering a word. Mrs. St. John was a Miss May Felbon. She leaves two small children. She was about 28 years of age and her husband is about 35, a lawyer by pro-fession, who has lived in Oklahoma since John is under arrest, but refuses to talk.

In writing a story there are authors who do not plan the course of events in advance because they do not know them, but they write on, certain that some ingenious complication will suggest itself-in short, the story is to write itself. I confess I believe in and rather follow this system, for the reason that the incidents seem more like real life where the unexpected so often happens, and where events turn up in a capricious way. However this may be, I have always found that everything depends required by the medical council of the on getting well started—that is, started with such eagerness and enthusiasm that you could sit down then and there and write on and on to the end.

Others deliberate and potter, as it were, hover on the brink, hesitating to make the plange. Dr. de Koven's Letter.

At a recent exhibition of dolls in Chicago a doll was shown which once had a letter addressed to it by the late Dr. de Koven, the great Episcopal high church leader. It was as follows:

My DEAR Wax-1 am glad to hear of your birth, and that you were named for me, and that you are of wax. You could not be of bet that you are of wax. You could not be of bet ter stuff for a minister. You will look sweet This will please the young. You cannot talk too much. This will please the old. You can wink at things, which you will have to do. You will eat little; you will need but small pay. When you are bruised, you can be put on a shelf without a word, and a doll, new, fresh, and with red cheeks, will take your place. If you have to be a marthy by fire, you will med you have to be a martyr by fire, you will melt easy and save pain to those who have to put you in, but if you do good to even one little girl like C—your life will be worth a great deal. So goodby, from your affectionate friend.

The Sausage Machine.

The Chicago girl had been unusually manifest. She had told them all about the Auditorium-not mentioning its external dirtiness-and the waterworks building, which Oscar Wilde describes as looking like a choice collection of pepper pots, and she had naively and easually referred to one World's fair. When the New York girl said something about a municipality upon the island of Manhattan, the Chicagoan assumed a blank expression and remarked: "Oh, yes, I remember; we had to pass through it on our way to Europe.

Then she began to boast of one of Chi cago's proudest works of art, not wholly unknown to the others, as, indeed, what is there belonging to Chicago that is permitted to remain unknown? It was a sansage machine of some sort, and it was remarkable for its celerity. "Why, you put the live pig in at the top, bragged the Chicago girl, "and in less than ten minutes the loveliest link sausages that you ever saw come dropping out below.

Even the placid soul of the Philadelphia maiden was stirred at this. "Indeed," she said calmly, "Well, our quiet Quaker City methods go ahead of that. We have a machine in Philadel. Silencing a Nuisance.

Speaking of the young man who talks in public places. I heard a retort made to him last Thursday night which was so good I was surprised never to have heard it before. It was at the theater. and the young man had seen the play before. He let everybody for four seats around know that, and he kept telling just what was coming and just how funny it would be when it did come He had a pretty girl with him, and he was trying to amuse her. At length he "Did you ever try listening to a play with your eyes shut? You've no idea how queer it seems.'

A middle aged man with a red face sat just in front. He twisted himself passed both houses of the legislature by about in his seat and glared at the young man.

Young man," said he, "did you ever try listening to a play with your mouth shut?

THE FORUM will take up for discussion, during 1895, an unusually wide range of timely and important topics by the most eminent writers in the fields of Politics, Finance, Sociology, Literature, Religion, Art, and Science.

To read The Forum is to keep in touch with the best thought of the day.

To be without the Forum is to miss the best help to clear thinking.

A catalogue of the writers who have contributed articles to THE FORUM in the past would embrace practically every man of eminence in America, and most of those in Europe. A list of subjects treated would cover in the widest degree all topics of contemporaneous interest. THE FORUM is therefore of inestimable value to any one who desires to keep closely in touch with the best of current thought.

SWEET MEMORIES.

THE MELODY GRANDMOTHER SANG FIFTY YEARS AGO.

"As I Lay My Heart on Your Dead Heart, Douglas, Douglas, Tender and True." When Old Age Recalls the Dreams of the Past as Visions, There Is Tragedy.

of the deep crimson lamp shade that mellowed everything in the little parlor. There was one daughter seated at the piano, singing sweet and low. She most of all was glorified by the ruddy rays from the translucent paper that fell over her. There was the mother, and beside her sat the mother's mother. near the circumference of the halo, the one listening with a glow of pride, the other, to whom the girl's voice was new -the grandmother was a visitor at the house-listening as one who hears a voice calling in a lonesome place. She sat there thinking, thinking, thinking, did this dear old soul, of a day when she, too, had sat at the piano herself, so proudly, and had sung the tender ballads of that bygone day with a voice full of passion, a deep contralto voice, one that touched the heart in its most sacred depths, when the strong, clear notes were struck and then broke into a pleading tremolo in the upper register. Fifty years ago that grandam's voice had thrilled hearts now dust, or worse than dust-hearts that were numb to tender things-and there was borne in the burden of her songs one message. that of love-even before her heart had known its meaning her voice had spoken love. The voice of the girl sitting at the piano was like her grandmother's had been. It hunted chords in the hearts of those who heard her and set them pulsing in echo to her own sweet longing that could find no words. God only knows what long, silent, rusted chords she touched with her resonant voice, did this child, in her grandmother's soul. She sang the simple ballads of the day—"Last Night," "The Clang of the Wooden Shoon," "Marguerite"—and as she sang her mother, to whom the singing was an old story, slipped out of the room-taking all her years with her perhaps-and left them together, together even in youth that sees visions. The young shall see visions, and the old shall dream dreams, saith the prophet. But when, by some magic of a voice or some alchemy of the soul, old age, which has dreamed dreams, sees in one vivid flash of light the dreams of the past as visions—there is tragedy.

The girl under the crimson lamp shade turned idly from leaf to leaf in her portfolio and sang by piecemeal. The elder woman only asked that she keep on singing. She only asked to hear that voice, her own voice, to the very quaver on C. And her dreams were all but visions, and life was all but youth again. There had been a wild song, one that the hearer did not know, and the chorus sobbed out:

> Oh, is it forever, Love, that we must sever, O love, will you never Come back again?

And the story that the song told of was of two lovers who had met under the roses and had known "the love of a day, the love of a life." What a swirl of fancies the singing of the child sent eddying through the aged brain! The music did not cease. The girl recalled a sweet old song, a peaceful, sorrowful ditty our grandmothers sang:

Could ve come back to me. Douglas. Douglas. In the old likeness I knew, I'd be so faithful, so loving, Douglas, Douglas,

The girl sang on until she thought she had tired her grandmother, and then whirling around on the stool she said

'Well, grandma, how do you like it? Haven't I improved in ten years?"

She rose as she said this, and without even waiting for a reply, as is the way of careless, thoughtless youth, she left the room humming:

Now all men beside are to me like shadows,

Douglas, Douglas, tender and true. The girl went to her mother, who, she knew, was attending to some duties of the household. The words "all men like shadows' ran through the aged woman's head when the girl left the room, and she was thankful for the child's thoughtlessness which had left her alone for a moment. The spell of the pleading song was upon her. Her life was turned backward.

Young faces smiled at her. She seemed as bold as youth, this shy old woman, who two hours before had been afraid to protest against the overcharge of a cabman. She heard her daughter's steps and the child's in the room above her, and, thrilled with the mesmeric enchantment of the song, she became wrapped in a consuming longing to try if she could not sing the old song again.

She tiptoed about the room, and closing the doors and looking ever behind her, she circled to the piano.

She wished to sing out loud something words and let it come from her lips. She believed that to say the aching words would ease a throbbing in her heart. She could not at first bring herself to begin the song, so she fumbled among the keys, pretending to hunt for the air, and said the words of the first ment; then, as her hands upon the keys led her to the second bar, she moaned:

Douglas, Douglas, tender and true. And when she heard the horrid croak of her own voice she remembered-everything. God pitied her and sent her

The late Moses Kimball of Boston, who made his money as a theatrical manager in that city, was an interesting character. ATTORNEY AT LAW.

Does a general law collection and conveyancing business. A moderate share of your parronage respectfully solicited. Office, 16 E Huron Street, upstairs.

Last year we commenced an elaborate plan of advertising, but before were half through, OUR ADVERTISEMENTS BISAPPEARED. Why? Because WE WERE OVERWHELIMED WITH BUSINESS. There was but one thing to do: withdraw the advertising and devote every energy to filling the orders with which we were flooded. This we did, and handled with with which we were flooded. This we did, and handled with reasonable promptness a most unprecedented year's business. WITH ENLARGED FACTORIES, INCREASED FACILITIES, AND TWENTY BRANCH HOUSES FROM WHICH TO JUSTERISHTE OUR GOODS, WE CAN NOW CARE FOR ALL WHO COME. Last year we could not reduce prices because we were compelled in some way to limit the demand for Aermotor goods. We would have been satisfied with lower prices, but why create a demand which we could not supply? We have made the heaviest purchases of steel and material bought in America this year, and at unprecedented prices, and have made terms to dealers which enable them to make unprecedented prices. In quality, character, variety, finish, and accessibility to full stock of goods and repairs, we are without competitors. In our plan of adversking last year, we proposed to furnish a feed cutter under certain conditions for $15. For reasons stated above we did not complete the advertising, and the feed cutter was not put out. We now propose to make amends in the following manner: We will announce in this paper our

HER STRANGE PRISON.

Where a Cincinnati Man Found His Wife After a Burglary.

Tae construction of city flats is such that it seems as if flat thieves ought to be able to obtain almost unlimited plunder with impunity. But they are forever getting caught, and most of them are the lowest grades of sneak thieves.

Anything like originality in their methods is rare, so the experience of the head of a modest west side flat is remarkable. He arrived home from business about 6 'clock and at once observed indications that something unusual had been going on.

It was evident that a thief had been around, and that he had gone away without taking much, if anything, with him unless it was the resident's wife, for she was nowhere to be found. The husband presumed that she had gone to notify the police, so he sat down and waited, but after an hour or two he became anxious and inquired of the neigh-

They had heard or seen nothing either of thief or wife. Then there was trouble. The husband hurried to the nearest police station. His wife hadn't been there, and a general alarm was sent out for patrolmen to watch for her, while two detectives returned to the house and helped push inquiries.

The kitchen and dining room looked as if the wife had been interrupted in her work, but there was no other sign of her. The detectives looked very wise, asked many questions that seemed impudent to the distracted husband, made some notes and went away.

The husband was in a bad state of mind, but not so upset that he didn't presently realize that he needed food. Rather than go to a restaurant he went to his refrigerator to see what there might be to eat. He opened the door, and there, curled up in the ice chamber, was his wife. She wasn't hurt. She hadn't even fainted.

She was simply asleep, somewhat stupefied with the close air and cramped in every joint, but otherwise in good condition and glad to get out. She explained that she caught a thief at work, and that he clapped her into the refrigerator before she could scream. Once in she could do nothing. There was no inner handle to the door. She cried aloud, and finding no response just waited to be discovered, dreading all the while that her wedding spoons had been taken. They were not, though. They had been placed, with other valuables, in the center of the dining room table for carrying off, and the incident ended happily. - Cincinnati Enquirer.

AN EXPENSIVE CURL.

The Origin of a Story Attributed to Twenty Handsome Women.

Lady Harriet D'Orsay was really, according to Mr. Sala, in his reminiscences published recently, the heroine of a story which has been told in at least 20 forms of 20 different ladies of fashion. She was presiding at a stall at a vente de charite, or bazaar, held in aid of the fund of some asylum or another, when there came up the Duke of Orleans, son and heir of King Louis Philippe. The duke, after some polite small talk, began to extol the beauty of ber hair, and indeed her Henrietta Maria coiffure had never looked glossier or softer than it did this day.

"Oh," said his royal highness, "if I could only possess one of those enchanting ringlets!

'How much would monseigneur give for one," asked Lady Harriet gravely, 5,000 francs

"Five thousand francs!" repeated the duke. "A mere bagatelle!"

"Six thousand francs?" "Anything so charming a lady chose to ask. "I will not be extortionate," pursued Lady Harriet. "We will say 5,000."

And then she very composedly produced a dainty little pair of scissors, snipped off the adorable Henrietta Maria ringlet, wrapped it in silver paper and handed it with dignity to the duke. His royal highness looked very straight down his nose, and returning Lady Harriet's salute stalked some what gloomily away. But his privy purse duly forwarded the money next

A Valuable Coin.

A well known bishop tells a story of a clerk at a village church who deliberately took half a crown out of the plate as he brought it up to the communion table and slipped it into his pocket.

"I saw him take it," said the bishop, and intended to charge him with it at the end of the service, but carried away by the sublimity of the service I forgot all about it. Next day I remembered and spoke about it.

" 'Oh, sir,' said the old clerk, 'never you worry about that. That half crown has done good service for many years. I keep it to put down first, and then the gentry, seeing a poor man like me put 2s. 6d. in the plate, can't for shame the following manner: We will announce in this paper our give less. "-London Tit-Bits.

The Prize Mean Man.

The meanest man on record is said to live in Center county, Pa. He sold his son-in-law one-half interest in a cow and then refused to divide the milk, maintaining that he sold only the front half. The buyer was also required to provide the feed the cow consumed and was compelled to carry water to her three times a day. Recently the cow hooked the old man, and he is suing the son-in-law for damages. -Oil City Blizzard.

The bridal veil is a survival of the cloth borne by four maidens over the bride at a Saxon marriage to conceal the blushes of the poor girl at the coarse jests that were always bandied about on such occasions.

"TOOK THE WRONG MEDICINE."

Why This Headline So Often Appears In the Daly Newspapers.

It is an odd trait in human nature that a man who has been ordered by his physician to take paregoric will never take it if there is any carbolic acid or prussic acid in the house that he can absorb in preference.

Statisticians who have studied the thing declare that an invalid will search the whole house for a poisonous drug and drink it rather than the medicine ordered by the doctor. The death notices in the newspapers in cases of that kind are generally headed, "Took the Wrong Medicine.

A man arrived at his home the other evening, and glancing on the bureau saw a bottle of liquid that he had been ordered by the doctor to take.

"That looks like the straff," said he, "but I'm not sure. As I was locking up the cellar I saw behind an old shelf a blue bottle that looked as if it hadn't been touched for years. It said on it, 'Sulphuric Acid.' Now that bottle on the table looks exactly like the one I drank out of last night, but still I have an idea that the stuff down in the cellar is what the doctor means for me. I don't know how the dickens it got down there when it's meant for me to take, or how this bottle that isn't meant for me to take got on this bureau. But I'm not going to take any chances. I'll just go down into the ceilar and make sure, and I'll throw this stuff out of the win-

Then he cautiously went down stairs and took the sulphuric acid, and he was buried in due form after an ambulance surgeon had done his best and the coroner's physician had made a complete investigation and autopsy.

It isn't only children who make these blunders. Doctors will tell you that they have only to label a bottle "Lotion, For External Application Only," to make sure of its being drunk. If a patient gets a bottle of corrosive sublimate to put on a felon on his great toe and doesn't use it all, he will carefully save it. Ten years afterward a doctor gives some cough mixture to him, and then he goes and hunts up the corrosive sublimate bottle, plays three card monte with it and the cough mixture, gets them thoroughly mixed up so that he can't tell one from the other, and then when he feels that tightness across the chest that the doctor told him about he swallows a part of the corrosive sublimate and leaves his widow to collect the life insurance. By no accident is the cough mixture ever taken-it is always the corrosive sublimate.—New York Her-among the foreign population of north- 27 South Main Street. ANN ARBOR, MICH. ern Michigan, especially in social matters. When a French couple get married, a carriage or a sleigh ride is inevitable, according to the season of the year. The couples are not packed together in one wagon or sleigh, but each fellow and his girl have an individual rig, the bride and groom taking the lead and the others following like a funeral procession, but there is nothing funerea! about it, especially the pace set. After the procession has been riding for hours, a dance ends the festivities.

CURIOUS WEDDING CUSTOMS.

Some Odd Phases of Social Life In Northern Michigan.

The Polanders have a curious wedding custom that is very ingenious as a money getter, and takes the place of wedding presents. After the wedding feast follows a dance that sometimes lasts 12 to 14 hours, and even longer. The chief honor is to dance with the bride, and this is decided in a curious manner. The mother of the bride takes her place in one corner with a plate in her lap, which she takes very good care shall be built after the plan of an eating house coffee cup. The gallant who wants to dance with the bride, and all are in honor bound to do so at least once, must pull out a piece of silver and endeavor to chip or break the plate by throwing their money upon it, and only those who succeed in chipping or breaking the plate are allowed the coveted honor. Let those who think it easy to break an ironstone plate try it. Few succeed in doing it for less than 50 cents, and it is not an unusual thing for the bride's money to amount up to $75 or $100, even where the crowd is apparently as poor as a church mouse, and it may go even higher when the bride is pretty and popular. All the money goes to the bride, and in a backwoods country $50 to $75 will start a happy couple nicely in housekeeping. - Detroit Free

A Japanese Test For the Aspiring Bride. In Japan it appears that one factor entering into the choice of a daughterin-law is her skill in raising silkworms. There is more to this than appears on the surface of the statement, for it seems that the thread spun by a silkworm is regular and even in proportion as the worm has been regularly and carefully fed. The prospective mother-in-law carefully and minutely examines the garments of the aspiring bride, judging of her qualifications by their condition. This seems even more absurd than the woman who said her son should never marry a woman who could not keep her top bureau drawer in order. - New York

Great Increase In Public Libraries. The New Hampshire law providing for the establishment of free public libraries through the agency of a board of library commissioners was passed in 1891. At that time there were 60 towns and cities in the state maintaining free libraries, and 173 were without any. The present record shows these figures exactly reversed. There are now only 60 towns which have no free public library, while 173 are provided with them. The libraries recently established reach a population of 100,000. - Boston

Mabley, Marvey & Co. Opening.

Their Magnificent Store, corner State and Woodward Avenue, Detroit, crowded from morning till night. Beautiful floral offerings were received from many of the leading wholesale merchants throughout the country, together with kindly letters wishing them every success. Congratulatory telegrams have been pouring in all day from their friends throughout the country. A superb floral horseshoe, a gift from the employees, reading in letters of flowers, "We are you with to succeed," occupies a conspicuous place near the front entrance. The whole exterior of the high building was beautifully decorated with flags and the interior with flowers. A band discoursed sweet music on the second floor during the afternoon and evening. The firm gave away a beautiful souvenir picture finely mounted, representing a couple of comical little darkies. Mr. Mabley, who by the way is a nephew of the late C. R. Mabley, and Mr. Harvey, the proprietors, were kept busy all day shaking hands with their friends and Mr. Mabley announces that he will always be found on the floor of the store showing goods and waiting on customers. Mr. Quintus Hummel, of 118 Michigan Ave., Detroit, tells a War Story of his own Experience, and the Result. (From Detroit News.)

Our representative called at 118 Michigan Avenue, the residence of Mr. Quintus Hummel. Mr. Hummel is a veteran of the late war, and received, in the campaign, an injury which has given him much pain and suffering since. He belonged to a Michigan cavalry regiment and his horse becoming frightened one day reared up, throwing him backward. In falling he struck his spine on a sharp stone, inflicting a deep cut over five inches long. The ing a deep day injury affected the kidneys. About two injury affected the kidney started to bleed, years ago the left kidney started to bleed, and has been doing so ever since. Mr. Hummel, in a few pointed sentences, gave our representative the following account

The accident of my 'war days' left me in bad shape; pain in my back and spine rendered me almost useless, and I was compelled to give up work entirely. I could not turn over in bed without assist-I have spent hundreds of dollars in various ways trying to find relief. Physicians have told me my spine was honey-combed for 13 inches. I had given up in despair, never hoping for relief, when a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have done me a world of good The pains have disappeared from my back, and the bleeding of my kidney has almost entirely stopped. I know I can never be entirely cured, as I would have to be 'a new man,' but Doan's Kidney Pills have done more to make me feel like 'a new man' than all the other things I have tried during past years. I have not had any recurrence of the pain or bleeding since

AN IRISHMAN AND A JEW. A Eusiness Partnership That Has Been Eutirely Satisfactory.

There is an up town business firm one of the members of which is an Irishman and the other a Jew. The Irishman was born in Cork and the Jew in Cracow. They have been in partnership for several years, during which they have built up a flourishing business. The Irishman is beardless; the Jew has a flowing black beard. The Irishman is of the type of Rory O'Moore; the Jew is of the type of Moses.

They are a mutual admiration pair, and each has a solid respect for the other. The Irishman is a rare wit; the Jew is solemn as the Talmud. The Irishman has a fine Corkonian brogue; the native speech of the Jew is the Polish jargon, which he mixes with his Eng-

The Irishman looks after the firm's finances; the Jew attends to the buying and selling. The Irishman is a strict Cathoric and goes to church on Sunday; the Jew is rigorously orthodox and goes to synagogue on Saturday.

The Irishman is "pudgy;" the Jew is lean. They agreed never to talk upon religion, about which they disagree; but, as the one is a bimetallic Democrat and the other a Democratic monometallist, they can always find a subject for friendly argument.

The Irishman is older than the Jew, but the Jew is taller than the Irishman. Both the Irishman and the Jew have large families, and the children of both attend the same school. Most of the offspring of the Irishman are girls, and most of those of the Jew are boys.

The favorite tipple of the Irishman is ale, and that of the Jew is wine. The Irishman is quick tempered; the Jew is slow to wrath. These two business partners, one of them from Cork and the other from Cracow, have carried on their establishment successfully for years in this city, have divided the profits evenly every quarter, have never had a quarrel that lasted more than a minute and have made enough money to raise them above the cares of life. Surely they deserve to grow rich. - New York Sun.

Possibilities of Cuba. The sugar production of Cuba, enormous as now is, can be increased tenfold. And by the aid of modern improvements in the method of manufacture sugar can be produced so cheaply there that no other country in the world can fairly compete with it. Only a tithe of the lands adapted to sugar is now under cultivation. Coffee growing, which was once in the front rank of its industries, has now fallen to a matter of small importance. With capital, and confidence in the honesty and good will of the government, this industry could again be put upon a profitable footing. So near as it is to us, and with the rapid improvement in means of transportation, it is the natural winter garden for the United States. There is no question about the "frost line," that bugbear of the fruit and vegetable growers in our own south, and with cheap lands and cheap labor and the encouragement that steamboat lines are now giving we could be supplied unfailingly with tropical products from this source. Bananas, cocoanuts, oranges, lemons, pineapples, would all pay well for careful and systematic cultivation.—Lippincott's.

HASHEESH SMOKING.

A PREVAILING HABIT AMONG THE TURKS AND PERSIANS.

Dangerous-Illicitly Sold In the Bazaars

Among my purchases at the drugs bazaar at Constantinople was hasheesh. It is strictly illegal to buy or sell this, and the vender made a great show of mystery about the transaction, besides charging me ten times the right price. Brussels still holds his place. It is a soft black stick or cotl, made with indian hemp and sundry sweet eswater, eaten as it is, smoked in hubble hubbles or smoked in little terra cotta who take it. Their dreams are extraorhave a kind of fit, which does not sound reason or other is evidently popular. ment takes it down again. These at least are said to be the commonest effects of the drug, but it affects so some get no further than a bad head-

It has been used by magicians ever ing the esoteric Buddhism craze some years ago a friend of mine who was bitten by it got hold of some hasheesh and ate it, in the expectation of being able to project his soul across the garden. The hasheesh was badly mixed, and a heavy dose of it had no effect what-bold and helped himself to another lump, in which all the strength of the hemp happened to be concentrated. The result was that two doctors had to walk him up and down the garden all night to prevent his falling into a sleep that would know no waking.

Though its use is forbidden in Constantinople, hasheesh is said to be extensively smoked there, especially among the Persians. I told my guide that I must see this sight, and after a great deal of trouble I managed to get taken to a real hasheesh den. It was a fairly large square room, with a divan running all around it. The walls were whitewashed, and the carpets on the floor were cheap and shabby. One common oil lamp hung from the ceiling, with a big green shade. The center of the room was empty, and there were no tables or looking glasses in it. Two men were squatting Turkish fashion on the divan.

For a long time they seemed to be in a kind of trance, slabbering at the corners of their lips and muttering like madmen. After a short time one of them became livelier and more excited. He burst into a wild laugh which shook his whole body. He placed his hand to his nose, and beginning to stroke it at the top passed his hand down into the air as if his nose had reached an inordi-

His reason gradually seemed to get the upper hand, and he proceeded to express his wonder that he could have fancied that his nose had grown so long. Then, putting his hand up to it, he remarked, "All the same, it is hurting me confoundedly—just as if some one had twisted it roughly." And, sure enough, the nose was unnaturally red.

It is said that under the influence of hasheesh you know neither time nor place, and that if you fix your thoughts on some place, however distant, that you have never seen you obtain a clear and accurate image of it. I was told a story of a man who had taken hasheesh with the determination to penetrate beyond the grave and find out all about the future life.

He soon exclaimed that he was feelto die. He grew very pale, his feet became numb, and the cold began to get complete possession of him. His sense of hearing became indistinct. Everything seemed to grow dark around him, and he called for light. Then he stretched immovable. A cold thick sweat was all time to come to the rescue, and he rub- American. bed his face and nostrils with lemon juice and made him sit up. The man presently opened his eyes and absently sipped a cup of coffee that was brought to him. When he recovered his senses completely, he was very angry with the attendant for interfering with him just as he had been on the point of penetrating the unknown. It may be mentioned that the word "assassin" is derived from "hasheeshian," a taker of hasheesh.

English Will Soon Be Universal. Gladstone computes that the habitual speakers of the English language have increased from 15,000,000 to 105,000, 000 during the last 100 years, and that they will number 120,000,000 by the end of the year 1900. At that rate of increase, which is sevenfold each century. such speakers will include not less than 840,000,000 by the end of the year 2000. —St. Louis Republic.

DRESSING LIKE WOMEN.

A Time When Feminine Styles Were Preferred by Men.

In point of fact, the early mediæval man and woman looked as much alike as the fin de siecle wheelman and his bicycle girl. Take the king and queen in a pack of cards. They are early mediæval. Notice the surprising similarity in their costumes—the same wide robes and angular folds, the same stained glass stiffness. Novices at cards may be excused for being at a loss sometimes, at least until they have learned to look for the king's beard.

With the wane of the age of chivalry there came a singular exaggeration in the toilet of men. They deliberately imitated the women. They allowed their hair to grow long, cultivated curls by the hot irons and ointments and actually wore chaplets, like diadems, to curb their flowing locks. In the texture and color of their garments they showed the same effeminacy, for they began to affect brilliant reds and blues and to wear costly trimmings and jewelry.

This, too, was the age of the sighing, wailing lover, fainting at his mistress' frown. Every knight who could write or sing posed as a minstrel and rehearsed his love affairs. At every gathering of the nobility there was a childish prattle of love, cloying and monotonons for very sweetness. The sexes seemed to have changed places. It was the lover who was a shy wallflower, who blushed and went about woeful and woe worn from his secret passion. As we look over the poeins of the minnesingers, those bards of love, the lady seems always unapproachable, listening with contemptuous mien to the gentleman's gentle advances. While he succumbs to nervous exhaustion she goes about her business perfectly healthy, either indifferent or cruelly conscious of her power. - W. D. McCracken in Lippincott's.

People Who Vanish.

Among the periodic waves which strike our great centers there is none so strange as that of mysterious disappearances. Such a wave selects its victims from all classes, ages. Men, women and children are impartially its prey. Sometimes the absentees return in a dazed condition unable to tell of their whereabouts. Others present a mystery darking very cold, then that he was going er still, for they never return and are no more heard of. Tracked by Bits of Dog.

A woman novelist told a funny story the other day about the numerous letters she received from ambitious young writers, asking her to put their works on the market. They would "gladly give her a percentage of the sale if she only would." Among such letters was one from a young lady who had chosen a highly dramatic plot for her story, in developing which the good young heroine is carried off by the wicked villain. They are pursued by the good young man. The good young heroine had a pet dog that followed her and snapped at the villain's heels. The villain became enraged and shot the faithful brute. Fragments of the little animal are found scattered all along the road by the good young man, who by the assorted bits of dog by the wayside runs down the villain.-Philadelphia Press.

HALTED BY A MOUNTAIN LION.

A Night Adventure of Three Girls on a California Road.

We were driving from Oakland over the ridge that divides Alameda and Contra Costa counties, three girls bound for a country dance at Moraga valley, a little settlement on the Contra Costa side. It was late in January, and the night was pitch dark, but as the young rancher who drove knew every inch of the way we were not afraid.

We had made the ascent of the mountain and were driving down at a good pace when suddenly the horses stopped, reared and then swerved to one side, overturning the rockaway and landing us all in the mud on the side of the road. No one was hurt, and as we picked ourselves up, wondering in a dazed way what the trouble was about, something leaped out of the bushes, over the backs of the prostrate horses and lit in the brush on the lower side of the road. There was a fearful roar, and then we saw two great, green eyes glaring out of the darkness.

The driver had succeeded in pulling the frightened horses to their feet and righting the wagon. He ordered us to get into our seats, and handing the lines to the girl on the front seat he told her to hang on for dear life. "It is a lion, and he'll jump in another minute," said the man. Then, as we sat speechless from fright, the rancher drew his revolver. There was a scream unlike and more dreadful than anything I had ever heard. Then the great beast rolled a few feet in the brush and was still.

After the horses were quieted and we had regained our composure sufficiently, we jumped out of the rockaway, and, with the aid of matches, examined our game. It was a splendid young California mountain lion, measuring about four feet in length. We three girls were all very brave when we found the beast was really dead, so we helped the driver lift the carcass into the back of the wagon and then continued our trip, creating a great sensation among the young rustics at the dance when we told of our adventure. To be sure, we gave the driver credit for the actual killing, but weren't we there when it happened, and didn't we keep quiet, instead of screaming as lots of girls would have done?—New York Sun.

In Want of Milk.

A good story is told of two young Englishmen traveling in Europe. They had never thoroughly mastered any of the languages commonly spoken on the continent and were particularly weak in their French, knowing that language well enough by sight, but not having a speaking acquaintance with it.

Finding themselves in a small French town one evening, they were desirous of obtaining a good cup of coffee. Knowing that cafe was coffee, and that lait was milk, they endeavored to call for a judicious mixture of the two, but their articulation was of so remarkable an order that they succeeded only in getting the coffee. Cafe an late they tried without success. Then du lay-it was attempted unavailingly. The suggestion that lait might be pronounced "light" was adopted equally in vain.

Finally in despair one of the struggling youths exclaimed: "Well, it's mighty queer we don't know enough to get a little drop of "Do you want milk?" asked the waitress, opening her mouth for the first

"Y-yes," stammered the travelers, overwhelmed with surprise.

"Then why didn't you say so at first?" queried the girl as she flounced off. And again the young men didn't know. -London Tit-Bits.

QUEER ADVERTISEMENTS.

Some of the Remarkable Announcements That Appear In Austrian Papers.

Austrian matrimonial advertisements, according to a contemporary's correspondent at Vienna, are marked by an accaptable humorous audacity. Here, for instance, is one that ran for six or seven days: "Wanted .- A rich lady, no matter how old, who will finance a student of medicine until such time as he obtains his degree, when he engages to marry his benefactress.'

And another is quoted wherein a young prince seeks a handsome girl with a dowry of not less than £250,000.

When the desired mate is obtained, all one's needs are apparently satisfied, judging from this advertisement for a purchaser for "a well trained monkey, a talkative parrot and a beautiful sympathetic cat, ' which belongs to a lady, who, owing to her approaching marriage, has no further use for them

The most amusing of the advertisements quoted by our contemporary is, however, that of the very Irish peruquier, who makes wigs for "men of intellect, philosophers, scholars and politicians, whose severe mental labor in the cause of humanity has filled their brains with genial ideas, while depriving their heads of their natural capil lary envelopes." These "artistically finished wigs, "the advertiser continues, 'while extremely useful and highly ornamental to the wearer, are guaranteed absolutely invisible to the spectator. They can be seen any day in my private showrooms."

A Fraudulent Banker.

The other evening a stylish and gentlemanly looking individual stepped into one of the leading restaurants in Paris, took his seat at a table and ordered a dinner tres recherche. When it was served up, he tackled the dishes with the placid delight of a genuine epicure. When he was half way through the dessert, a closed cab drew up at the door of the establishment, and a very grave looking gentleman requested permission to look through the premises, as he expected to find there a fradulent banker, whom he as a detective was instructed to take into custody. Of course his demand was complied with, and no sooner had he entered the dining room than he pointed to the luxurious reveler and whispered in the landlord's ear:

"You see, our information was correct. There he is. But for your own sake we prefer to avoid a row. Please tell the gentleman that his friend Baron L. is outside and wishes to speak to him for half a minute.

On receiving the message our gastronomist immediately rose from the table and went out on the boulevard, where he was taken possession of by the detective, who put him into the cab and drove off with him Next day the restaurant keeper went to the nearest police office to recover payment for the 'fraudulent banker's' dinner, amounting to about 60 francs. But neither the commissary nor his subordinates knew anything of the supposed capture. In the end it turned out to be nothing more or less than a clever bit of comedy got up for the purpose of enabling one of the actors to have "a good blowout."-

Astonishing an Oriental.

Mohammed Abn Said, "Chief Spoon and Ladle Maker to the Commander of the Faithful," came to know what Owen thought about the phenix and whether the bowl of a ladle which he brought with him for examination was not made from the beak of that bird. It was identified as coming from a more authentic source—the helmeted hornhill of Ceylon, of which there was fortunately a specimen in the museum.

"The head and beak were brought into my study and handed to the oriental. He examined it very deftly, comparing | York Sun. the beak with the bowl, and then exclaimed, with astonishment and reverence: 'God is great. That surely is the bird! "-Academy.

Frozen Milk,

The French industry of icing milk is an original departure in tinned commodities. The milk is frozen and placed in block form in tins and on the part of the purchaser requires to be melted previous to use. Being hermetically sealed, the commodity thus iced preserves its form until it is required, when a minnte's exposure to the sun's rays or to the heat of the fire is all that is necessary to reduce it to a liquid condition .-Baltimore Sun.

To Remove Ink Stains.

Ink stains on carpets or woolen goods can be removed while they are fresh by taking common baking soda or saleratus, rubbing it well into the spots and then rinsing with warm water. The same process will remove dried ink spots from cotton goods if the spot has not been wet with water before the saleratus is applied. - Jewelers' Circular.

ABOUT HEARTBREAK.

Diseases of Slight Importance Become Patai When Patients Suffer Grief.

Grief does not kill, and it is indeed ery sellom that heavy sorrow causes death to any one when in a healthy contition. It is, however, very often the oug disease to a climax or by rendering the sufferer more liable to its attack. If a man is convinced that his grief is more than he can bear, those who have commons, made a speech in favor of a studied the matter agree that, through the force of his own imagination, the man will actually die from a "broken

The great Napoleon was killed by an internal disease, but it is supposed that it would not have been fatal had not his spirits been so depressed through exile and defeat. William Pitt, the orator, is said to have died from a "broken heart," caused by his great grief at the failure of his cherished hopes and plans. And there have been many other such instances in this country When plagues are raging in a town, statistics show that as many die from fright and imaginary causes as from the real epidemic, so great a hold has the fear of death on some people.

If a man is condemned to be shot, it has often occurred that on the word 'fire' he has dropped lifeless, although, through accident or design, no bullet has in reality left the gun.

There is a queer case on record concerning the daughter of a celebrated novelist, who was deeply interested in one of her father's stories. It appeared in installments, and the heroine was suffering from consumption. As the girl brooded over the sad fate of the heroine, she, too, suddenly manifested the same symptoms. A physician recommended her father to restore her to health, which he did a few chapters on, and at the same time as the girl in the novel recovered so also did his too sentimental daughter. - New York Dispatch.

DETAILS OF SCHWENINGERISM.

The Authority on Fat Reducing Enlarges His Directions.

Professor Schweninger recently gave this elaborated summary of his treatment to a correspondent of The St. James Gazette: "Eat as much as you please as often as you like, but not too much at a meal. Drink no liquid at any meal. When thirsty, drink a little good aerated water, with a few drops of lemon or orange juice squeezed into it, but only an hour before or an hour after meals. You may also take a little white wine or cider that is not sweet or now and then a cup of tea, but never coffee. Smoke a little and indulge with moderation in the other little luxuries to which you have been accustomed.

Bathe often, but do not wet the entire surface of the body at once. Exercise should be regular. Change your position as often as possible. Do not remain standing or sitting or lying too long at a time nor pass too many hours hours, but whenever you are hungry, and, if it be not too soon before or after a meal, drink whenever you are thirsty. Better eat a dozen times a day than overload your stomach at two or three heavy meals at long intervals. Do not eat the same article of food too often.

Practicing a Fit.

Crossing City Hall park one day a reporter saw an Italian boy suddenly fall flat on his back on the payement. Several companions instantly knelt by his side, some slapping the palms of his bands, some rubbing his face. They were all laughing very much, and after a minute or two of this work the boy rose and in two or three more minutes repeated the game, this time all being serious, especially so when they noticed that the same man was watching them.

The boys who were doing the slapping and rubbing looked out from under their tangle of hair and grinned at the reporter a little at first, and then became serious again.

What is the game?" the reporter asked a newsboy who was also watching. 'Dem kids is pract'ein a fake,' he

BALFOUR ON SILVER

British Bimetallists Hold a Con- WASHINGTON, April 4-Assistant Secference at London.

By the Conservative Leader in the House of Commons-Silver Sentiment Growing in Great Britain and All Over the World He says-Arguments in Favor of the Rehabilitation of the White Metal_A Mixed Currency Situation.

of the Bimetallic league was held at the Mansion House, the official residence of the lord mayor of London. Sir Joseph Dimedale presided. Among those present were Lord George Hamilton, the duke indirect cause of death, either by bring. of Fife and Sir Donald H. McFarlane and Charles H. Vincent, members of the house of commons. Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, Conservative leader in the house of double standard. He said that the belief in bimetallism was growing, not only in London and elsewhere in Great Britain, but throughout the civilized world. One great change was noticeable. It was sel- tary duty. dom now asserted that bimetallism was intrinsically impossible. Formerly a bimetallist was regarded as a dangerous Her Captivity Is Made Tolerably Pleasant

An Alleged Irrefutable Fact.

Economists who placed value on the lessons of experience had before them the irrefutable fact that while the Latin nations maintained the bimetallic system the par of exchange of gold and silver was preserved for the whole world, despite wars, industrial revolutions, and discoveries of the precious metals. Some persons admitted that monometallism in a large portion of the world had depreciated prices and put a bound on imports. Thus, for instance, Great Britain bought from India and other countries wheat at a price below its legitimate value, and these persons deciared that this was an advantage to the consumers and therefore benefited the mass of the community.

Supremacy of London Safe. Balfour declared, however, that he was convinced that nobody in the city was so foolish as to suppose that the interests of Great Britain benefitted generally by an unlimited fall of prices, nor that any large body of city men was so unscrupulous as to desire that the debts owed them by foreign nations should be artificially augmented by a change in the value of the currency in which they were paid. [Cheers.] Another argument was that the banking supremacy of London would be threatened with a currency change, but no mono-metallist was ever able to explan how. He contended that London. as the financial centre of the world, would gain rather than lose by anything plac ing the currency of the world on a sounder basis.

Third Argument Declared Absurd. The third argument was very absurd. This was that a change would depreciate gold, and therefore persons having deposts in banks payable in gold would withdraw them instantly. The change threatened thus to cause such a commercial crisis as the world had never seen. This argument was supported by Gladstone and Harcourt. There appeared to Balfour no grounds to suppose that the people would do anything so inordinately silly as to withdraw their deposits because t he world's currency was going to be put on a stable basis.

Insists That It Is Not "Well Enough." The fourth and strongest argument was "let well enough alone," but bimetallists asked was it well enough? People talked about the excellence of the British system, but they find that although the silver is the currency of Hong Kong and ed home. in bed. Take your meals at a different the straits settlements, while in India are paid in something whi neither silver nor gold, but the strangest forced paper currency and as expensive as any metallic currency the world had ever Change of System Imperatively Required.

Some alteration of this system was imperatively required. If Britons turned to the world at large they would find the case much stronger. To consider home interests alone in framing a currency, while Great Britain was connected with foreign countries by every commercial tie, was a violation of the common sense of every practicable business man. When the country depended for its very bread on foreign nations, and if it were cut off could not live a day, it was the height of folly to attempt isolation respecting the currency medium.

by Her Attendants.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 4.-A letter has been received in this city from Q. C. Wharton, an Indianapolis man who is a member of the national guard doing guard duty over ex-Queen Liliuokalani at Honolulu. Wharton, among other things, says: "The queen is a prisoner up-stairs over our barracks and we are al-ways on guard over her. She is allowed a woman to attend her all the time, and as the natives are all musicians they seem to enjoy themselves up-stairs. The time is spent in singing and dancing. This is the way the ex-queen is expected to pass the next five years, which is her time of sentence."

Wharton says the islands are at present a poor place for capital seeking investment, as the opinion is general that another rebellion may break out any time. In this event, Wharton says, the Japanese will take a hand. The Japanese, the letter continues, are by far the more numerous there and are getting very bold over their victory over the Chinese. The sheriff proceeded to Pierre, S. D., for the purpose of bringing back John Armstrong, who is wanted in Jefferson on a charge of obtaining money underfalse pretences. He had previously obtained a requisition upon the governor of South Dakota from Governor Upham.

The governor of South Dakota issued the papers, but later determined that there no ground for the issuance of the document and sent a latter to the sheriff revoking the order for the removal of Armstrong. ENGLISH STATE TELEGRAPHS.

Messages Cost 12 1-2 Cents Fach, and All Must Be Prepaid.

The te egraph service of Great Britain s undoubtedly quicker, more reliable and cheaper than that of the United States. I make this statement after proper allowance of the differences in distances. It costs 12 5 cents for 12 words and I cent for every additional word. This for Cheat Britain and Ireland-a uniform rate

It works admirably, as nearly all the postoffices are also telegraph offices. As a rule, the property ere civil and obliging. and the delivery of messages more prompt than with us.

These posto Rees, which include, as a rule, news stands and stationers' shops, are scattered all over the city, especially in London, and one has no such trouble in getting posterilee orders, postal notes, stumps, etc., as is too often the case in New York. Another great advantage of the Brit-prepay an answer to a telegram, and the boy brings up a blank with the telegram | do it. when an answer has been paid for. Again, if you write to any one and want a telegraphic reply, merely inclose a blank with sixpenny postage stamps affixed. This saves the trouble of transmitting money or imposing on a friend At one of the big city dinners a few weeks ago I sat opposite W. H. Preece, C. B., the engineer in chief and electrician of British Telegraphic Wonderland. He was greafly interested in the fact that we counted the population by the means of electricity, and of course knew exactly how it was done.

The increase in 25 years of messages alone from 6,500,000, when three private companies controlled the business, to 70,000,000 messages in 1894, tells its own story. That the number of offices has increased threefold, now numbering 9,000, and the miles of wire have increased from 60,000 to 200,000-surely this indicates that the public are well and cheaply served.

Financially the telegraph department is today paying expenses, but not the interest on the money invested. It is claimed, however, that the division of expenses between the postoffice branch and the telegraph branch was of such an artificial character that the two services should be looked at together financially. This would show a net annual surplus of from $13,750,000 to $15,000,-000-a very handsome addition to the public revenues.

A uniform telegraph service, say, of 25 cents per message, is no more, in this advanced day of electrical appliances, than a uniform 2 cent letter rate was when adopted. - Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE CHIMNEY

With More Especial Reference to Drain Pipe and Tomato Can Chimneys.

"Speaking of chimneys," said an old soldier, "the chimney such as one not infrequently sees made of glazed drain pipe always interests me greatly. We've seen such chimneys run up outside of shanties, and we've seen them carried from the tops of chimneys over to the side wall of some much higher building erected next door and thence on upway. A above the top of it. There is one thing about these drain pipe chimneys that a ways surprises me very much, and to is that they stack em up with the flange end of the sections up I never saw one built the other way. I never could understand this. I suppose the pipe is usually set up with cement or mortar in the joints, but I should think those upturned flanges would catch all the rain, and that it would work down the pipes, and that frost would get in there in winter and all that I should ish system is that there is no such thing think it would be immensely better to as sending messages "collect." You can stack em up with the smooth end at the top, and I don't know why they don't

> "Perhaps my great interest in this simple form of cylindrical chimney is due to a more intimate acquaintance with and a great affection for another kind of cylindrical chimney; one more simple in form and construction. I refer to the tomato can chimney. Emblem of domestic peace and comfort as the chimney undoubtedly is, it is not always so, and the tomato can chimney, perhaps more than any other, characterizes the livelier vicissitudes of life. I know that my own first acquaintance with the tomato can chimney was in the army in time of war. And yet even there it has some flavor of peace about it, for we never had one except at times when we were more or less settled in camp and were within reach of a settler.

"And the tomato can chimney is by no means confined to army life. It is built by hunters and campers out, by squatters and pioneers and by early settlers in new regions, pending the build. ing of a more substantial chimney, and so I suppose it may be said of the chimney, after all, that wherever it may be set up and of whatever it may be constructed it has about the same savor of the hearthstone."-New York Sun.

The Life Plant.

There is a plant in Jamaica called the life plant because it is almost impossible to kill it or any portion of it. When a leaf is cut off and hung up by a string, t sends out white, threadlike roots, gathers moisture from the air and begins to grow new leaves. Even when pressed and packed away in a botanist's herbarium it has been known to outgrow the leaves of the book in which it was placed. The only way to kill it is by the heat of a hot iron or of boiling water.
