Mrs. Frank Leslie Evidently Does Not Believe the Aesthete Guilty. NEW YORK, April 8.—Mrs. Frank Leslie,

once the wife of William Wilde, has known Oscar Wilde and his family fifteen years. When the libel suit began Mrs. Leslie predicted that Wilde would win his case. "I suppose I am to be classed as a false prophet," Mrs. Leslie said. "But I must judge Mr. Wilde only as I know him; that is, as a dignified, high-minded gentleman, a perfect son, a kind. considerate husband, and a doting, affectionate parent. "He once said that abuse is better than not to be noticed at all. Poor man, I fear that he is now realizing the falsity of this saying. One of the most charming phases of Mr. Wilde's character is his love and devotion to his mother, who is 75 years old. I fear the news of her son's distress will kill her. He leaves nothing undone to add to her comfort. When he called upon me last summer at my London house his eyes swelled with tears as he told of his mother's lliness."

London, April 8.—Oscar Wild was arraigned in court on charges of immoral conduct and the first witness testified so terribly against him that his counsel asked that the cross-examination be post poned, as he was surprised at the testimony. The friendliness of France and Germany to bimetallism in some form, even though the plan adopted inratio, affords reasonable assurance that the coming congress will not, like that of Brussels, end in talk and nothing else. Now that the election is over, the inquiry may be proper as to how much of a figure the free silver platform of the Michigan democracy cut in that scrimmage. The members of the convention which adopted that one plank platform tumbled over each other in their efforts to get on the silver band wagon. The sweeping democratic victory to result from the adoption of the principle has not materialized, however, nor does the vote indicate that it had weight with the voters. ### Weren't the Mothers Surprised?

Some time ago there was a dance in a Canadian settlement for the benefit of the settlers and their wives. Most of the married ladies had babies with the full swing of their souls' pleasure present gallantly volunteered to watch over the refractory infants, so that their mothers could indulge without let or hindrance in the sweets of the "light arm and made for his pistol. The gallant offer was readily and confidingly accepted, but no sooner had the women left their dear charges to the care of those mischievous young rascals than they commenced stuffing the infants, changing the clothing and giving one the apparel of another, till all were transmogrified.

The dance and the music continued into the "we sma' hours," and then it was time to go home. The lights were lowered, and each mother hurriedly took a baby, in the dress of her own, and started for home, which, in many instances, was 10 or 15 miles away.

The following morning there was a prodigious row in the settlement. Mothers discovered what had occurred, and then commenced some of the tallest female pedestrianism on record. Living as they did miles apart, it required two full days to unmix the babies and as many months to restore the mothers to their naturally sweet dispositions. Those young men never venture into that settlement now. It wouldn't be safe. - Montreal Star.

EXCHANGE OF A DEADLY INSULT

Between the Governor of Arkansas and Legislator-Each Spits in the Other's Face at the Close of an Angry Dispute-Governor Pulls a Gun, but Is Prevented from Using It_Sensational Charges of Bribery_statement Made by One of the LITTLE ROCK, April 8.—The spectacle of an honorable member of the Arkansas legislature, livid with rage, spitting in antagonist on account of this affair the face of the governor of this commonwealth, as the instant reply to a violent emission of executive saliva upon the angered features of the lawmaker, and a flourish of firearms in the hands of the governor, was witnessed in the lobby of Gleason's hotel here yesterday afternoon, and was the result of the sensational charges of bribery in connection with the railroad commission bill sprung in the house of representatives by Yancey, of Phillips county. Jones, of Union county, one of the principals in the altercation of yesterday afternoon, had in the course of a speech on a point of personal privilege Saturday, denounced Governor Clark as being at the bottom of the charges. He said that Governor Clark was a demagogue, and was going around like the assassin in the night with a knife stabbing in the back men who were his peers.

Governor Is Quick on the Draw Yesterday afternoon Governor Clark met Jones in the lobby at Gleasons and requested a private interview with him. Jones replied that he would accompany the governor nowhere, and that if the followed and in a fit of anger the governor spat in Jones' face. Jones trembling with anger, returned the insult and as quick as a flash Clark had drawn his revolver, and the difficulty might quick action of bystanders, who disarmed Governor Clark. The governor was later arrested by a constable and released on his own recognizance. He will, he says plead guilty to the charge of assault. Further trouble may ensue.

The Scene in the Legislature. The bribery charges in the legislature which led up to this scene were made olely by Yancey, although he said he had taken Wagner into his confidence. The briber was alleged to be T. L. Cox. Yaney read a type-written document to the effect that he had been paid $100 to vote against the railway commission bill. produced the money, flourishing it above his head in a dramatic manner. He charged that the money had been paid nim by Cox, and that other members whom he named had also been bribed. Yancey set a trap and caught them all he said. A scene of confusion followed. Yancey said: "Cox told me to pay my bill where I was boarding, move to the Gleason hotel, a le would pay my board and furnish me money to drink with the boys. Representative Jones, of Madison county, told me he had a room at Gleason's and was living like a king."

What the Alleged Briber Says. T. L Cox, the man who was reported o have bribed Yancey, says that he paid Yancey out of money which had been him in defeating the Monroe-Phillips county bill, in which Yancey was also interested. He claims that he is not and never ha sbeen a railroad lobbyist. The investigation committee met behind closed doors and examined two witnesses. The members of the committee refuse to divulge any part of the proceedings. The excitement created by the incident is intense and it freely predicted that serious trouble will ensue

JONES MAKES A STATEMENT

Describing the Scene with the Governor in the Hotel Office.

Representative Jones made a statement in which he said that as soon as he saw Governor Clark come into the hotel office he knew he meant trouble. The governor tried to force him to go back to the rear with him, but Jones refused, declaring that what the governor had to say too much attention to allow the ladies must be said in front. The governor caught Jones by the arm and tried to lead him back, but again Jones refused. Jones then proceeds:

"He then deliberately spit in my face. I returned the insult by spitting in his face. When I did this he let go of my that my only chance was to knock him down, and struck with all my might at his face with my left hand. He sprang back towards the door and my blow failed to reach him. He was reaching for his pistol. I sprang and grappled with nim and caught him around the waist, pressing both arms to his side, but leaving his arms free to act from the elbow down.

By this time he had his pistol drawn. Just then Representative Roberts sprang in and grabbed the weapon and immediately Representative Pope also got hold of the pistol. He struggled to free the gun, while the governor said: "Turn that pistol loose." Roberts declined, when the governor said: 'D-n you, Roberts, turn that pistol loose.' About this time some one grabbed me around the waist.'

Jones then asked that the pistol be taken from Clark, but Roberts and Pope declined. Then Jones asked that a pistol be given him and the governor turned loose, but just here the governor, finding that he could do nothing, promised not to kill Jones, the latter was requested to let go of Clark, and go to his room, which he did, remaining there ten seconds and returning to the office to find that Clark was gone.

Governor Clark said he did not care to discuss the trouble through the public go to the hotel with the view of making trouble, but only to tell Jones that he must desist from lugging his name into controversies existing between members of the house. The trouble which followed was not of his making.

THE CHILDREN GET THE GRAVY. But the Father of the Family Gets the Fun of Giving It to Them.

"You know," said the father of a family, "it makes me laugh whenever I think of the children's absolute nerve about the gravy. What I mean is that when we have a steak, or roast beef, or anything that has gravy with it, the children take it all, down to the last drop, without leaving a speck for their father and mother. And they're perfect ly sound hearted, wholesome children, too, who would do anything they could for their parents. But about some things they haved a selfishers that appears to be perfectly natural to children, and that I suppose is bred in indulgence They have all their lives been accustomed to having everything that their parents could give them, and so they come to expect it. "But I smile again as I recall the fact that when I was a boy I got all the gravy. Time and again I have seen my father tip the dish so that he might get for me the last drop, while he had none for himself. He was very fond of gravy, too, but he never said so. With grave courtesy he gave it all to me, as though I were entitled to it. When I grew a little older, I reproached myself sometimes for having taken it all. When I grew older still and came to know how gentle and affectionate and forbearing and generous he was, I came to know that he wouldn't for the world have marred my pleasure by so much as a word-that the simple fact was that it was a far greater pleasure to him to give me the gravy than it would have been to eat it himself.

"And now when the children pass their plates I gravely dish out the gravy down to the last drop, and I say nothing for fear that they will rob me of the selfish pleasure of giving it all to them. But I smile to myself once more as I think of what will happen when they come to have children of their own. I know what they'll do then. They'll give it all to the children, down to the last, last drop. "-New York Sun.

Custom Now In Vogue on First Nights In London Playhouses.

"By the way," said a gentleman who arrived here from England a few days ago, "have you heard of the London theatrical managers' latest scheme to attract a crowd on first nights? Well, it's rather odd, and I wouldn't be surprised if the New Yorkers copied it before long, although the circumstances are somewhat different here.

"You know, the little tea and coffee rooms in London that correspond to the New York coffee and cake saloon are much more numerous than here, and there is sure to be one near every thea-

"It is the custom there for great crowds to come to the pit and gallery entrances of the theaters long before the time of opening the doors. The pit is one of the best parts of the theater for seeing and hearing, and it costs only 60 cents, but there are no reserved seats, so those who come early get the good

"It is common, in the case of important first nights, for a long line of people to form at the pit doors before it is opened, and when the play is very successful and popular this may continue for an indefinite number of nights. "It has now become the custom to admit those who care to pay sixpence extra for the privilege at 5:30. Then they get good seats, but they have to wait a prodigiously long time in their places before the play begins. "This state of things recently inspired some ingenious manager with another happy thought. He hit on the plan of providing free coffee and cakes, from the nearest tea and coffee rooms, to the crowd waiting in the pit on the first night of his new play. It proved such a good arrangement that the others followed the example."-New York Her-

Feminine Ingenuities.

Of the multifarious uses of the hairpin, some at least are well known. They are suggested by a French traveler's description of a pin which the Indian women of Peru wear as a fastening for their shawls. Its head is in the shape of a spoon. In fact, it is a spoon and a shawlpin in one. It is odd, the Frenchman says, to see a woman pull out the pin, letting her shawl drop from her bare shoulders, and proceed to use it for eating her soup or porridge. After the repast she passes the bowl of the spoon carefully between her lips two or three times, gathers up her shawl and fastens it in place.

The same women use their slippers instead of pocketbooks - a point in which they may be said to have the advantage of their North American sisters, who, having no pockets, or none within comfortable reach, are compelled to carry their purses in their hands.

The money of Lima consists of bank notes, which go very well into the bottom of a slipper.

RESEARCHES IN THE AIR.

The air of a meeting room, tested in different places and at different times during the progress of the meeting, showed numbers of micro-organisms varying from 135,000 to 3,500,000. The air near the ground contained fewer than the air near the ceiling. For example, the air some four feet from the ground contained 270,000 before the meeting and at the end of the meeting 400,000, while near the ceiling the amount at the beginning of the meeting was 3,000,000, and at the end of the meeting this had been increased to 3.500.000.

Air near a burning jet of gas showed the largest figures of all. Thus, in the immediate vicinity of a bunsen flame the gigantic number of 80,000,000 was found in a cubic centimeter, or 489,. 000,000 per cubic inch. In Mr. Aitkin's own words: 'It does seem strange that there may be as many dust particles in one cubic inch of air of a room at night when the gas is burning as there are inhabitants in Great Britain, and that in three cubic inches of gases from a bunsen flame there are as many particles as there are inhabitants of the

Dentists have a splendid opportunity of studying the power of imagination. An up town practitioner by way of illustration told a reporter about one of his women patients. He placed her in the chair, and taking the small hand glass which dentists use put it into her mouth for the purpose of examining the molar which was to be ex-

The united efforts of her husband and the dentist were for some time unable to persuade her that the tooth was not extracted and that she could not possibly have been hurt. After examining her mouth with the aid of a glass she finally became convinced that the tooth was still in i.s place. Taking her seat in the chair again, she submitted to the operation of extracting the tooth without a murmur and expressed her surprise that the pain was so slight. - New York World.

A JOURNEY TO INDIA.

CONTRASTS OF THE OLD AND NEW WAYS OF MAKING THE TRIP.

Mrs. C. T. Burt, of Pittsfield, The Cape Voyage, Which Thackeray Took, the So Called Overland Route and the Suez Canal Way-Interesting Features of

> "You recall perhaps," said the returned East Indian, "that Colonel Newcome in making his final visit home from India came by the so called overland route, across the desert from the head of the Red sea to Cairo? Thackeray, himself an East Indian by birth, was sent to England as a child, but he came by way of the cape of Good Hope and St. Helena and caught a glimpse of the exiled Napoleou. There must be yet a iew persons living who recall the time when Thackeray's voyage was the ing. one everybody made in going from India to England, and there are, of course, thousands that have made the caravan journey, as it is only a quarter of a century since the opening of the Suez canal. That last even has done more than any other one thing to make life in British India endurable, for the cutting of the canal has reduced the journey home to a fortnight less and brought the round trip ticket down to £85. The price one way by the caravan route was £120, just about the cost of a trip around the world in our day. Thackeray's journey was a matter of months, Colonel Newcome's a matter of weeks, that of the East Indian now a matter of

"Lieutenant Waghorn was the man to lay down and establish the caravan route. It soon became a regular freight and passenger line. It was from Suez to Cairo, a distance of 70 miles, usually made in about three days. The freight was carried on the backs of camels, and the passengers rode in a rude diligence drawn by mules. There were caravansaries every five miles, where the mules were changed, and at some of these there was ood to be had. The great standby was 'spatchcock.' When the natives in charge of a caravansary spied an approaching caravan, they instantly rushed out, caught some fowls, wrung their necks, and an hour later served them, scar e dead, to the travelers; hence the name spatchcock. That journey across the desert was most trying a little. Let me see"to women and children, and the railroad from Suez to Cairo in 1859 was hailed s a vast improvement over the caravan merhod of travel.

'Ten years later came the canal. The digging of the canal practically destroyed Suez, for the port is some distance from the city, and a busy town with a large hotel and many small ones has been transformed into a dust heap in the desert. The canal, in destroying one town, built up the others, for Port Said and Ismailia are creatures of the canal. The former used to be one of the worst places on earth, and at ordinary times one of the dullest. The vicious Levantines, of all eastern races, and the equally vicious Europeans from every part of the continent seemed to The glass had no sooner touched the wake into activity only at the approach hells and every sort of evil resort opened wide their doors to the delayed traveler. "The Suez canal is in some respects the most wonderful waterway in the world. As soon as the traveler enters it he realizes that he is in the hands of the French. A French speaking pilot takes possession of the ship, and all officers of the canal are Frenchmen. One of the most interesting sights to the canal in early days was to see one ship meet another. The passengers on each crowded forward with greetings and the waving of handkerchiefs, and there were tears from the outward bound at the thought of what the homeward bound were soon to see. The meeting of ships is now no cumulative sentence of twenty-two years, longer a novelty. I once encountered the Khedive Tewfik's yacht, with his harem on board, as we passed through the canal. The Red sea is so hemmed in with mountains on either coast that the progress of a large sailing ship would be extremely slow and attended with danger from sudden squalls. Such a passage of the Red sea would be almost intolerable, for the heat is oppressive, and the monotony of the arid sand hills ashore is tedious beyond expression.
