The Episcopal Convention.

TheEpiscopal diocesan convention was held in this city Wednesday and Thursday and was largely attended by the clergy and the lay delegates of the various parishes. It proved an important and spirited convention. Rev. S. W. Frisbee, of Detroit, was elected secretary. Bishop Davies, in his annual address, spoke in strong terms against raising money for church purposes by balls, minstrel entertainments or dancing. During the past year he has confirmed 783 persons, ordained three deacons and delivered seventy seven sermons.

At the evening session Wednesday the subject of missions was discussed and for contributions to missions but to rely upon voluntary pledges. Upon calling the roll of parishes $6,152 was pledged, an amount in excess of former years. A very pleasant reception was held after the business meeting.

Yesterday a long debate was held over the giving of suffrage to the ladies at the parish meetings and after many technical objections had been raised to the resolution it was referred to a com-The committee consists of Rev. Ralph E. McDuff, of Flint, Rev. J. E. McCarroll, of Detroit, Hon. W. C. Maybury, of Detroit, and J. C. Smith. The following deputies were elected to the general convention at Minneapolis: Rev. Dr. Prall, of Detroit, Rev. Dr. Johnson, of Detroit, Rev. H. Tatlock, of Ann Arbor, H. C. Parke, L. S. Trowbridge and T. H. Eaton, of Detroit, and Thomas Cranage, of Bay City.

The following were selected trustees of the diocese : H.C. Parke, W. J. Gray, E. N. Lightner, H. P. Baldwin, L. S. Trowbridge, T. H. Eaton, F. E. Driggs and W. C. Maybury.

The standing diocesan committee is as follows: Revs. R. W. Clark, S. W. Frisbee and J. H. Johnson, of Detroit, Rev. T. W. McLean, of Bay City, and Messrs. S. D. Miller and H. C. Parke, of Detroit, and Gen. W. H. Withington, of Jackson.

The diocesan board of managers and missionary committee is as follows: J. Pittman, W. Aikman, George H. Minchener and J. B. Howarth, of Detroit, Hon. James O'Donnell, of Jackson, Thomas Cranage, of Bay City, and Mrs. Reed's painting of a collection of F. H. Pierce, of Flint.

The Art Exhibit. (From Yesterday's Times.)

"Let me give you a pointer on this road making business, as I have had considerable experience in that line,' said Robert Widenmann, of New York, who went east on the same train with the street committee yesterday morning. "Rockland county, in which I reside, paid out $30,000 to find out that nigger heads, or what you call hard heads, are no good for macadamizing roads. I was a member of the board of supervisors when the roads were built and opposed the use of the nigger heads. The argument used by the majority of the members of the board was that the stones could be got from the farmers for nothing. Like your stones here, they are composed of conglomerate. The experience proved that the hard pieces would be made smooth and the soft pieces ground up and scooped out by the wheels of vehicles. We had to take up the roads and cover them with a layer of crushed dark limestone about six inches thick. It was cheaper to get this crushed limestone in cars than use the field stones. It will be the same case here. The field stones will do for the substructure, but the top dressing should be crushed limestone. It is very important that your roads should receive the proper curve so that the drainage runs off to the sides. This plan they pursued in Central Park, New York city."

The ladies connected with the Ann Arbor Art School have been busy as a hive of bees today putting in position the different pieces of work done by members and which will form a very interesting exhibit. A Times reporter was shown through the room this morning by some of the ladies and gathered a few notes as to what can be seen by those who attend. The first thing his attention was directed to was the beginners' work in outline, which is on exhibition merely to show what it is. Next came the books of mechanical drawing by Harry Banfield and Olaf Peterson. The charcoal work by members of the school, taken from casts and other objects is very good and deserving of more than a passing glance.

Among the paintings in oils Mrs. Hoyt's collection of homely articles, a stone jug, apples and ears of corn, is a very strong piece, she also exhibits grapes, roses, nasturtiums and several other good pieces. Miss Orcutt's still life study of a brass candlestick and an open bible with a pair of spectacles lying on it, is most excellent. She also shows flower pieces of scarlet geraniums, peonies and dogwood. old books is considered very good as The convention adjourned at five also Mrs. A. C. Nichols' piece like Mrs.

Mrs. Joel Dunn and was born March 23, 1814, in Bakersfield, Vt. Two years later his parents removed to Batavia, Genesee county, N. Y. In the spring of 1831 the family removed to Michigan settling on the Gorham farm, now known as the Bird farm, on Jackson ave. He enjoyed th school advantages of Ann Arbor and later entered a drygoods store, being in business for himself in Homer and Belleville, Mich. About his 20th year he was thrown from a horse and injured his lungs. The effects of the injury becoming worse, a severe hemorrhage made him give up business and in the year 1851 he went to California over the plains, settling in Placerville. He liked to refer to his western experience, and often spoke very interestingly of his adventures. After keeping store for a while in Placerville he sold out and became the Sacramento buyer for the late well known Leland Stanford. After being in California six years his health was Delinquent Tax Fund ... restored and he came home via Panama. He turned his attention to farming and settled on the William Taylor farm lying north of the city in Ann Arbor town. About the beginning of ing: the war he moved into the city, In the year 1861 he married Mrs, Polly M. Otis. The Legal Question,

(From the U. of M. Daily.) It is an interesting question in legal circles as to whether the legislature can compel the regents to remove the school of homeopathy to Detroit in accordance with the provisions of the recently passed law provided they refuse to accept the $25,000 to effect Ferguson, Brown, Taylor, Shadford, the removal. The question arises in Prettyman, Coon, Butterfield, Cady, this way. The board of regents is a Pres. Hiscock-15. constitutional body as well as the legislature and it is believed equal in authority in the particular field ever which its powers extend. Cne of the clauses of the constitution is that the board of regents shall have the general supervision of the University and the direction and control of all exenditures from the University inter est fund. There is no question that while their disposition of the income lars per month. from the endowment fund is final, they must obey the directions of the legislature as to the expenditure of special appropriations raised by the tax levy. The legal proposition is, would the regents, leaving out all considerations of policy, have a right to continue the homeopathic department at Ann Arbor in case they refused to accept the $25,000 specially appropriated by the legislature to effect the removal? This constitutional aspect of the question was fully argued before Govthe measure and leave the question of validity contingent upon the future action of the regents.

A Sunday Fracas.

On Sunday afternoon, while a thousand or more people were attending the solemn impressive services of the laying the corner stone of the new Bethlehem church, a different scene was transpiring on South Main street. Henry Sohlau owns and lives in a house near the toll gate. There is a well on the line between his property and that of William Pieske. The latter is building a new house. Mr. and Mrs. Pieske walked out on this calm beautiful Sunday afternoon to look over their property. What then took place will not be determined until officially adjudicated by Justice Pond. It must have been a somewhat exciting time from the tale unfolded by the parties. If their stories take 15 cents each along and go and prove to be facts it was somewhat of a see them tomorrow, Friday and Saturfree for all fight. The causus bellum was a new pump Mr. Sohlau pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault and battery and the case was adjourned to June 7. It is claimed that he was attacked first. And Lois Tanner was 16.

From the first day of our meetingwe were the children of wealthy parents and were summering by the sea-some intangible influence, some inexplicable force seemed to draw us to each other Miss Mate Cobb entertained and to run the lines of our lives parallel. For two years we had known each other. and one day-it was the third summer after our meeting-we sat on the rocks by the shore, and as the waves beat in Fred Grieves, wife and baby, of rhythmic measures upon the silver sand stretching out at our feet I looked into her sweet blue eyes and knew that Lachesis, as she drew two threads from Clothio's spindle, was twisting them into one cord, forever indivisible.

"Oh, Jack," she cried nervously, 'what made you say that?'

"Why shouldn't I say it?" I answered, with a dogged resolve not to be put down by any woman's whim. "Because, Jack," she said very ear

Hurricane Follows a Heavy Rainstorm-

Much Damage Done. Cincinnati, O., June 6 .- The hot wave that has worried Cincinnati for the ast week was broken yesterday by the iercest storm of the year. A hurricane accompanied the storm, which did great destruction in many parts of the city. Houses were unroofed, trees snapped before the blast, and fences torn down and glass windows were blown in all over the city. The storm lasted only an hour, and in that time seventy-eight one-hundredths of an inch of rain fell, and the mercury ropped from 92 degrees to 72 degrees No fatalities are reported in the city On the river the wind nearly caused panic on the Coney Island steamer Bostona. The steamer Scotia was blown up the river for a mile, and then ran ashore during the gale. No one was injured. Rochelle Rockaway, aged , ran into the Central Police Station to get out of the rain. Just as she crossed the threshold the heavy door slammed and the knob struck her on the forehead, knocking her senseless and cutting a long gash in her forehead. Several houses and barns in Avondale were unroofed. Lightning struck a res idence and set fire to the kitchen, while other portions of the roof of the house were blown in every direction.

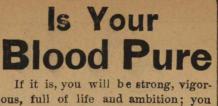

DENY SENSATIONAL REPORTS.

Government Officials Say Diseased Port Is Not Sold in America,

Washington, June 6 .- It is said at the agricultural department there is no truth in the published reports that pork examined microscopically for export to Germany and France, and found to contain trichinae, is stamped by the inspectors as free from disease and so transported and sold in interstate commerce trade. Early in February Secretary Morton ordered all pork examined microscopically and if found to be affected with trichir sis tanked, but later it was decided .hat the present law did not give the secretary this authority. The enforce-ment of the order was, therefore, postponed until July 1, when the new law goes into effect. It is doubtful, howver, whether the new law will give him power to cause the destruction of pork affected with trichinae.

WASHINGTON Jane 6 - The pension case of Jauge Charles D. Long, of Michigan, which has been before the local courts in one form or another for some time, has been finally determined by the court of appeals, the commissioner of pensions coming out victorious, though the probabilities are that the case will now be taken to the supreme court of the United States. About a year ago Commissioner of Pensions Lochren caused the pension of Juage Long to be reduced from $75 to ner, United States engineer, that Ni-agara Falls has entered the list of lake $50 per month. Subsequently the case came before Judge Bradley, of the Disports. Recent dredging operations at trict supreme court, and he decided in effect that the commissioner of pensions had no authority to reduce the pension. The court of appeals reversed that decision, holding that a pension is not a vested right except in a very limited sense, as shown by the act of Dec 21, 1893; that the courts cannot interfere in matters of this kind, and that the commissioner of pensions had a perfect right to review the acts of his predecessors.

CUBA IN BAD FINANCIAL STRAIFS.

Big Burden of Debt and Her Principal Preducts Away Down.

WASHINGTON, June 6 - A semi-official statement has been received here from the leaders of one of the most influential elements in Cuba showing that the war expenditures are becoming so enormous and the sugar and tobacco industries so unprofitable that they believe a general uprising will result from the hard times caused. The portion of the statement concerning the desperate conditions prevailing is as follows: "The war expenses of 1868-78 were paid by Cuba. Spain fur-nished 212,367 men, but not a single dollar. Cuba was loaded with nearly $300,-000,000 debt, besides a yearly budget of $58,000,000 in those ten years.

'General Lovellar declared in the Spanish cortes that the war expenses had been $700,000,000, or an average of $70,000,000 a year. Sugar produced then with slave labor was sold at 6% cents a pound. Leaf tobacco was sold 100 per cent. above to-day's prices. Per contra, sugar sells today at 1.86 cents a pound, or 30 per cent. below cost of production, and is pressed to its last ditch by German beet sugar. The tobacco industry is ruined beyond redemption by a tariff war. Leaf does not pay the cost of labor at to-day's

This affair nearly broke his father's heart, as well as breaking down his health, and although he al ways believe his son innocent of the crime he never fully recovered from the effects of the schock. Following this affair he retired from the ministry and re-moved to Winchester, where he lived with his wife and daughter until his death

MINERS ACCEPT THE SCALE,

MASSILLON, O., June 6 - The miners of Massillon met in the rain and voted to accept the new scale of 51 cents under protest, and at the same time framed a strong appeal to Governor McKinley to send relief. They ask for help on the ground that they are now physically weak from long destitution, and that at the new rate they cannot supply themselves with the necessaries of life, even with steady work. Mass meetings were held elsewhere in the district, the scale being rejected at Navarro, East Greenville Dalton and Pigeon Run. INDIAN SIGN LANGUAGE.

Gen. Gibbon's Story of an Incident in the Seminole War in 1849.

Brig. Gen. Gibbon entertained an audience last evening with some reminiscences of his services among the Indians, says the Washington Star. Gen. Gibbon's experience with the Indians commenced in the Seminole war as far back as 1849. Gen. Gibbon said it was remarkable how much can be told by means of sign language between people accustomed to its use. As an instance of this he related a circumstance of the Seminole war. Hostilities appearing to be imminent between the whites and the Seminoles, under Billy Bowlegs, their chief, it was desired to communicate with the Indians to ascertain whether it was really their purpose to go to war. It was very difficult to get at the Seminoles, however, and no method seemed open until one day a man came in from his cabin down on the coast and stated that he had left there on account of his supposed danger from Indians. He had found upon his cabin door a small white flag made of heron's wings, attached to a stick. On the end of the stick were a twist of tobacco and a small string of beads. He said some Indians had scrawled upon his door with the end of a burned stick some signs. There were three stars in a line, then a full, round circle, and then four more stars. These signs were interpreted to mean that Billy Bowlegs desired to have a peaceful smoke and talk with the white men; that his messenger had been at the cabin three days before the time of the full moon, and that he would come again four days after the full moon to receive the answer of the white man. The Indian's message was answered by the presence of the white men four days after the full moon, and, sure enough, Billy Bowlegs was on hand, a conference was had, and it was shown that the Indians did not desire to engage in a general war, but that the outrages of which the whites complained had been committed by a few unreliable, bad Indians. A SECOND NORMAL SCHOOL.

Last Monday the governor signed the bill providing for another normal school at Mt. Pleasant. The Mt. Pleasant people in consideration of the locating of the school there give to the state the fine new building now occupied by the private normal and ten acres of of Turkey as a nation and the partition ground. The bill carries no appropriation, hence the school will not become a state institution in the full sense, we presume, until the legislature provides means for its running expenses, and that will not be until there is another session of that body. The people of Mt. Pleasant agree however, to maintain the institution until that time. This school will have for its purpose the fitting of teachers for the primary grades and the district schools. It is a step, therefore, in the direction of meeting an urgent want. If normal training is a good thing for those who intend to teach, and it is generally conceded to be, it must be admitted that one normal school is entirely inadequate to supply the demands of this great state and the legislature has acted wisely in establishing another school. That our district schools are the weakest feature of our school system, is admitted by all educators of prominence, still these schools are almost wholly without normal teachers. If it is the function of the state to educate her children, it is her duty to provide teachers for the schools. And if it is the duty of the state to train teachers, then it has not fulfilled its obligations when it has supplied trained teachers to the villages and city schools alone. They should be trained in such numbers as to supply the district schools as well. The establishment of another normal school is a movemnt in that directon. Educational sentiment in Michigan is advancing.

to such an extent as to cause them to demand not only reparation for the crimes committed against their consular agents, but extensive reforms in behalf of the Armenians. The reply of the Turkish government is a practical defiance of these powers. England has, however, declined to accept any modification of her demands, and a large British fleet is now assembled at Beyrout with the purpose, it is thought, of enforcing the demands of the three powers. Interesting news may be heard from there at any time, therefore. The situation is one that demands action by the great powers of Christendom. The awful crimes against humanity and civilization which have been of periodical occurence in Turkey for centuries should no longer be tolerated. Turkey should be forced to comport herself in accordance with the humanitarian ideas of the times, and her treaty obligations, or take the consequences. The wiping out of her territory among her neighbors would be justifiable and an advantage to the world.

The United States Bureau of Educa tion has been collecting statistics upon the question of the value of a common school education, in dollars and cents, as shown in the wages of common la. bor. From the answers of various manufacturers throughout the counry, it has been discovered that such laborers, possessed of a common school education, received an average of 25 per cent. more wages than those who lack that train-The same inquiries elicited the ing. farther fact that a high school course added still another 25 per cent. to the wages paid for such labor. The knowing of these facts ought to have some influence upon the rising generation. For they mean that, in addition to the various other and higher advantages derived, persons possessed of a common school education, other things being equal, have a considerable advnatage in the battle of life over their fellows who lack it and that these advantages are still more marked as education is extended. These facts ought to be indelibly impressed upon those who, with free schools all about them, are disposed to grow up in ignorance. They should understand that by such a course they are lessening their chances for a successul life. In the time to come competition in every line will be far keener than in the past and those who enter the race handicapped with lack of training will be quite sure to find themelves distanced.

The suit grew out of the attempt of the governor to prevent prize fighting, not only by the power of the court, but by using the militia.

An interesting question may arise over the signing by the governor of the Mt. Pleasant normal school bill and the bill providing for the removal of the homeopathic medical college to Detroit. The constitution says that the governor may sign within five days of the time the final adjournment of the legislature any bill passed during the last five days of the session. Neither of the bills referred to was passed within the five day limit. The question is, therefore, whether those two bills did not die with the adjournment of the legislature.

The bill appropriating $25,000 for an electric light plant at the university was vetoed by Governor Rich, Wednesday. He gives as his reasons for the veto the statement that the bill was not in accordance with the distinct understanding had in the passage of the onesixth of a mill bill, the fact that no other state institution received an appropriation for such purpose this year on account of the condition of the treasury and that the bill made the appropriation available nine months before it will be collected.

WHITE METAL RULES THE MEETING

Judge McConnell, the Permanent Chairman, Make- a Vigorous Silver Speech, Followed by Bryan and Altgeld_All the speeches Loudly Applauded and All 16-to-1 Efforts-Kentucky Republicans Nominate Bradley_Judge Caldwell a Free Coinage Man.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 6.-The free silver convention of the Democratic party was called to order by Secretary of State Hinrichsen. All around fluttered banners with the war-cry "16 to 1" emblazoned on them and the seats of all the delegates were full, with a large crowd of more or less interested on-lookers on the floor and in the galleries. There were but few gold men in the legislative chamber when the hour for calling the convention arrived, and they acted as spectators and not as participants in the proceedings. "Buck" Hinrichsen was received with a volley of cheers as he wielded the gavel and called the convention to order. His speech was a clarion call to the Democratic party for the adoption of the free silver policy.

Defended the State Committee.

Hinrichson devoted himself mainly to a defense of the action of the Democratic state committee in calling the convention, and in the course of his remarks he took occasion to make a few sly thrusts at the national administration and the "gold bug" members of the party. In accordance with the arrangements of the state central committee the following temporary organization was named: Chairman, Judge Monroe C. Crawford, Union county; secretary, Hon. A. C. Bentley, Pike county; assistant secretaries, William J. Cochran, Cook county; W. P. McDowell, Vermilion county, James D. Breckinridge, Fulton county; Robert J. Hunt, Macon county; William Stoeffel, McHenry county; H. T. Eberlein, Green county; sergeant-at-arms, Thomas Manion, Jefferson county. Delegates to a National Convention.

The different congressional districts were called on next, and they handed in their lists of their committees, also of delegates to the proposed national mone-tary convention. Then the committees on resolutions, permanent organization, etc., were named, two of the resolutions committee being Judge Henry J. Miller and ex Judge A. J. Hunter. A recess to 2 p. m. followed some discussion of routine business and at that time the convention reassembled and the permanent organization was effected with Judge S. P. McConnell, of Chicago, as permanent president He made an extended speech on the money question, every line of which was as radical free silver as any free silver men would desire, and every paragraph of which was loudly cheered.

"Machinations of the Millionaire." The judge said near the close of his speech: "A financial system devised by Hamilton, Jefferson, and Washington, under which we had prospered as a people and grown great as a nation, was suddenly overthrown by the machinations of a millionaire senator without any appeal o the people. Jefferson enjoined us to often return to a consideration of first principles. And therefore it seems to me that the great party of which he was the founder very properly leads in the great work of restoring to the people a financial system which met all their needs, and which was as much a badge and a guaranty of their independence as immunity from the stamp law or the tea tax."

Among the speakers were also A. J. Hunter and Richard Michaelis, of the Chicago Frieie Presse.

BRYAN ADDRE-SES THE DELEGATES.

The Nebraska Statesman Applauded from Start to Finish.

When it was announced that ex-Representative Bryan would address the convention there was a roar of approval, and his appearance was the signal for tremendous applause. Bryan suited the crowd. His speech was facetious and cutting, and occasioned almost continuous applause, delegates throwing their hats in the air. He complimented Chicago for the constitution prohibits any state from having as a citizen such a man as Judge using anything but gold and silver as McConnell, who would march at the head of the Democratic party with a double shield. He said that this was the most Democratic audience he had seen in a long time. No party is fit to be a factor in politics which has not an opinion on

You had just as well have an English general at the head of your army, an English admiral at the head of your navy, as an English banker at the head of the treasury department."

When Bryan concluded Governor Altgeld was called upon. He spoke at some length, saying in part: "It is an irrevocable principle that when you increase the volume of money in the world you increase the selling price of the products in the world. Democratic congressmen are instructed to vote for this policy

After a long debate a resolution was adopted requesting the Democratic national committee to call a national silver convention not later than August next, and if that committee refuses Democratic state committees are asked to take independent action to that end.

Governor Altgeld was indorsed with enthusiasm and after passing complimentary resolutions the convention adjourned. On reassembling speech-making was indulged in until the platform was ready. It was read and adopted, and then W. O. Bradley was nominated for governor by acclamation. Bradley made a speech in which he indorsed the platform fully and then proceeded to denounce the Democracy very vigorously. For an hoar near-ly he poured out a philippic on the na-tional and state administrations, and his speech was punctuated all through with applause.

The substance of the platform adopted is a declaration in favor of protection to American industry and against the Wilson bill, which is charged with the business depression; opposition to the state bank system and denunciation of the Cleveland foreign policy. On silver the platform says: "We are opposed to the free and unlimited coinage of silver, beheving that is would involve the country in financial ruin. A BACK BLOW.

The Weapon Small,- but None More Certain or Effective.

In these times when backs are lame, In these times when backs are tame, when almost every other one we meet has now and then, or all the time, a back that aches or pains—"a weak back," "a bad back," a back that makes their life a misback," a back that internet they go on day by gry to bear — and still they go on day by day in pain and suffering. Now 'tis the easiest thing in the world to give this played out back "a blow" that will settle t, and put in its place a new one equal to It's just like this: hit at the cause; most backaches come from kidney disorany. Reach the kidneys, start their clogged-up fibres in operation; when this ders. is done you can say good-bye to backache. Here is a case from Battle Creek: Mr.

Jesiah M. Shoup lives at 51 Broad Street, he was a member of the Battle Creek police force for many years. As a member of the force he served the city well, but the rough weather he was often subjected to laid the foundation of kidney disorder, which has troubled him very much. Here is what he says about it:

About three years ago, while on the police force, I contracted from exposure a kidney trouble, which has since given me no end of trouble. The pain was right through my kidneys and across the small of my back; if sitting down and I wanted to stand up, I had to arise very slowly and gently to avoid increasing the pain; I had such tired-out feelings all the time, and I was steadily getting worse. About two months ago, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Their action and effect was most complete, they removed the old aching pains for good. I can now get around as quickly as anybody. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly as represented." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. "I've killed my cousin, Fred Behrens. Here's my revolver."

Sergeant Rea picked up the weapon, and remarking, "Well, I guess you didn't hurt him much," took the young man in charge and sent two officers to investigate the matter. The young man gave his name as Henry C Grote.

Upon reaching 1208 Montgomery street the officers found it to be the residence of Mrs. Bessie Symons, a widow with three daughters, two of them, Mary and Helen, having just reached womanhood. On the floor in the parlor was found the body of Fred C. Behrens, a man about Grote's age. Just over his heart was a bullet wound, and Behrens was dead.

The family was most reticent about making any statements more than that Grote and Behrens had quarreled and Grote had shot. The young men had been calling on the two daughters for some time. Mary, it was stated, was engaged to Grote, and Behrens had been paying marked attention to Helen.

Fred C. Behrens and Henry C. Grote were first cousins and had been brought up side by side. When they reached manhood, they had entered society together, and in their choice of especial lady acquaintances had fixed upon sisters, Mary and Helen Symons. They had spent many evenings and days together, and about Thanksgiving time, previous to the tragedy, Mary and Henry had become engaged. Every one looked for a similar occurrence between Helen and Fred.

But all at once Behrens had ceased calling upon Helen. Matters had gone an, and now my inexperience was painso far with them that the affair created talk. Grote went to Behrens and asked his reason. Behrens refused to give any reason, simply saying he was tired, and tried to persuade Grote to give up Mary. This Grote refused to do and upbraided Behrens for his conduct.

This angered Behrens, especially when Grote told him that all honorable men considered him most contemptible. He threatened to get even with Grote and to ruin his reputation with the girl he loved. The very next day he wrote Mrs. Symons a note, telling her that Grote was associating with lewd women. Mrs. Symons asked Grote about it. and he denied it This controversy was kept up for some time. The young men even came to blows over the affair. The climax to the trouble was told by Grote himself.

"When I went home last night, mother asked me if I had received a note from Mary. I said no, and she said that Bessie, Mary's younger sister, had been over twice that evening with a note for me. I concluded that Fred had been making some new charges against quite insistent upon nagging her all I Blows a Boat and Man to Atoms and me, and 1 determined to put an end to could. the matter. I put a pistol in my pocket for one reason. I intended to propose to Mrs. Symons that Fred and I and some one whom she might choose should go directly to Ada Huntley's and prove whether or not I had ever been to that house. I meant if she would not consent to that to go to Fred and demand a retraction, and if he would not make one could feel the blood fly along my neck. and my hands shook so I could not have put them out to her if she had asked me to. I had never spoken of love to a womful to me. I knew that the brave man could win a triumph now, but I was not brave. On the contrary, I was a coward, an arrant coward, and in my fear I slipped down off the rock where we had been sitting and walked out upon the sand

"Where are you going, Jack?" she called to me. "I don't like to be left here all alone. I'm sure Charlie Verder wouldn't treat me like that."

That was enough to set me wild. Verder was the one fellow I dreaded, and he hadn't known her six months either. I went back to the rock and stood at the foot of it, just near enough to touch the hem of her gown-such a sweet, white gown, with a bit of blue showing through it as the blue sky peeps in and out from the fleecy white clouds. 'Do you like him?' I asked sullenly.

"Not any more, I guess, than you like Mattie Swann," she retorted, with a perk of her nose and a shake of her hail and rain. fluffy hair. "Then you like him pretty well," I

"No; it shall not. I insist upon your accepting the apology and the apologizer as well. I want you, Lois, and that's what I started to tell you down there on the rocks. Answer me now, with only the sea, and the sky, and the sweet twilight as witnesses.

I was about to take her hand and more tenderly urge my claim to an answer. when she gave a slight scream and sprang to one side as if she had stepped on a mouse in the sand.

"Look there," she whispered, pointing to a couple seated on an old spar half in the sand, and who until then were not visible. I looked and saw Verder and Miss Swann, very close together and talking earnestly.

"Let them be witnesses also, if they will, darling," I said bravely, and this time I took her hand in mine.

But is was too dark for them to see, and when Lois and I walked by them in the duskier shadows of the later evening she had promised to be my wife, and though the great sun of the heavens had set over the world and the earth was full of shadows the greater sun of love had risen in our hearts, and they were filled with the light inextinguishable. That was a dozen years ago, and today Lois is the prond and happy mother of three of the prettiest and sweetest children in the world, except four that I am the proud and happy father of.

KILLED BY THE INTENSE HEAT.

Thunder storm in Pennsylvania Accom panied by Destructive Wind.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3 -As a result of the intense neat an unknown man succumbed to the heat in Fernwood cemetery and died a few hours later. From papers on him it is thought that he was E. Weiss, of New York, Mrs. Ellen Casey, aged 50, was overcome at her home in Wilsontown, Montgomery county, and died shortly afterwards. Almost at the same moment her husband, John Casey, was driving a wagon near Ardmore when a thunder storm came up. His wagon was struck by lightning and completely demolished and he was thrown out and severely injured. Henry Stumgardt, aged 30, was looking at a thermometer in Jenkintown when he collapsed, and it is thought he will die.

A large number of prostr ations were re ported. In Reading the temperature was 101 at 2 p. m., and in Altoona 96. The thunderstorm was general in the eastern section of the state. In Mount Carmel it was so severe that houses were unroofed and trees blown down, while the coal breakers in the path of the storm were also damaged. In the rural districts of Pottsville crops were badly damaged by

In case an advance is secured in the Pittsburg district a proportionate advance is to be made in Onio, and a board of seven miners and seven operators is to be appointed to determine whether such an advance has been made in the Pittsburg district, with authority to call in a disinterested party in the event of a failure to agree. All miners are to be reinstated without prejudice. The agreement is to be submitted to the miners of the state for their approval or disapproval, and will doubtless be approved.

to use the pistol to intimidate him. 1 cannot understand how I got my courage up to do the shooting.

'Well, when I went into the house, I saw Fred sitting there. I threw my hat down with an angry toss, and conversation began. Fred asked me if I would swear on the Bible that I did not visit the Huntley woman's house on Jan. 7. I took the oath, and then he wanted me to swear about some visit in October. I did not propose to let him master it over me in that way and told him I would not. I do not remember exactly what was said. I saw him sitting there coolly, calmly, vindictively trying to lie away all I held dearest, for a fancied wrong

"It may seem childish, but I could here I saw this man whose greatest delight would have been to have parted as forever It was more than I could stand They say I started out of the room and then turned back. I do not remember, only that I drew my pistol and fired without aim and rushed from the house Following the shooting came the inquest at which Grote and his sweeteart met for the first time after the tragedy She threw her arms about his nec7 and kissed him, but her evidence only aided to fasten a crime upon her lover Grote was held for the killing and bound over to the grand jury, which indicted him for murder in the second degree Ex-Governor Charles P Johnson was engaged to defend him, and through his efforts the young man, who had always borne a most excellent reputation, was released on bail. Then came the one bright spot in his dark days-his wedding to Mary Symons. They were quietly married, and for the few days preceding his trial lived at his home as happily as was possible with the dark cloud continually hanging over them. And then came the trial.

The case was watched with much interest, and as the state had little or no evidence of malice, and as the circumstances surrounding the shooting were most extenuating, Grote's attorney felt sure of an acquittal. But during the trial ex-Deputy Sheriff Kickham ran across a clipping containing an interview with Grote the day after the tragedy, in which he admitted putting the pistol in his pocket to intimidate Behrens. The defense had been that he was in the habit of carrying a revolver to protect himself from footpads. An of ficer was sent to find the reporter who wrote the interview. He was found and away off down here in this lonesome place again at this time of day, or any other time, I think you'll know it." Then she started off along the beach toward the row of cottages. It was a mile or more, and I thought I would keep within call, so I let her get some distance ahead of me. I poked along behind, gazing out to sea and wondering where all the beauty of the purple shadows had gone, and why it was the clammy. They were the same shadows, and the same waves, and there I was, and-but where was Lois? Fifty yards up the shore and hurrying along as if she were afraid of twilight ghosts or other strange inhabitants of the crepusnot bear a separation from Mary, and cular air. I looked over my shoulder nervously, and all around, and shivered. football.

"Lois, Lois!" I kept on calling, but she gave no heed. Her face was set away from me and she was going with it rapidly. But not so fast that I could not catch her in the next 50 yards or so. "Oh, Mr. Belden," she said in a tone of pretty surprise as I came up panting by her side, "how you frightened me! I had no idea you were on the beach this evening.'

Think of that, and still her father having the temerity to talk about puppy love! If that wasn't full grown mastiff sarcasm, I'd like to know what it was. But I was not to be thwarted by a woman's whim now, any more than I was in the beginning.

'Oh, Lois, Lois," I pleaded, though I puffed as I did so. "Don't talk like that. We are not children to let a trifle come between us and our love. You know I love you, and I know I love you. It was because I love you so that I grew wild with jealousy when you spoke of Verder. I don't care a rap of my finger for Mattie Swann, even if you do like Charlie Verder."

"Mr. Belden," she began very stiffly-"Call me Jack," I cried, with all my feeling come again. "Call me Jack, as you have always called me.

"Perhaps I'd better," she said coldly. "You have acted so childishly that Mr. seems scarcely an appropriate title.'

'You shan't talk that way to me, Lois Tanner," I exclaimed as I stepped in front of her and blocked her path. "I have done wrong, and I apologize humbly for it. Now, as a lady, you cannot do otherwise than accept it."

"I accept the apology, and pray let that end the matter."

SILVER SENTIMENT OUT WEST.

Col. Morrison Says It Is Intensifying Whether Growing or Not.

WASHINGTON, June 3.-Colonel W. R. Morrison has just returned from a six weeks interstate commerce trip in the west. "How are the Democrats getting along with the silver question?" he was asked.

"The Illinois state convention," he replied." will declare for the free and unlimited coinage of silver on the basis of 16 to 1. Of course, there is much division of opinion as to calling the convention at all, but those who oppose the movement have taken no active part in the opposition.

"Is not the silver sentiment growing in Illinois and the western states?'

"I do not know as to how much it is growing. It is evidently intensifying. The unlimited and unconditional free coinage men are growing in persistence and activity.
