Held Their Annual Meeting at Dexter Lest Wednesday.

LIST OF THOSE WHO DIED DURING THE YEAR

The Ages of the 198 Pineers Whose Deaths are Recorded.-Interesting Papers Read at the Meeting.

The Pioneer Meeting at Dexter.

The annual meeting of the Washtenaw county Pioneer and Historical society was held in the Methodist church in Dexter on Wednesday, June 12, at 10 o'clock a. m. Mr. Isaac Terry, the president, presided. The meeting was opened by singing America, followed by prayer and an address of welcome by

The proceedings of the last meeting held in Ypsilanti a year ago were read by the secretary and approved. He also gave notice of the death during the past of the society. The report was approved and R. C. Reeves, of Dexter, was then elected treasurer pro tem. in place of Mr. Treadwell.

William H. Lay, the necrologist of the society, then presented his report of the deaths among the old settlers during the past year, the total number being 198. The average age of these was 72 years at time of death. Among the oldest settlers who have died during the past year and were generally known were: Rueben Kimmel, of Superior, Solomon Sears, of Webster, and Horace

C. M. Stark, of Webster, then read a very interesting history of the first settlement of Webster and sketches of the first settlers.

On motion the following committee was appointed by the president to recommend officers for the ensuing year: Andrew Campbell, Florus Finley, E. A. Nordman, Mr. Newkirk, and William

A recess until two o'clock was then taken during which a bountiful dinner was served in the basement of the church to over 200 pioneers by the ladies of Dexter and vicinity. The tables were first occupied by old settlers who came to the county previous to 1840 The meeting was called to order at two o'clock, followed by music by the organist. The committee to recommend suitable persons for officers of the society for the ensuing year made their report as follows: President, Rev. Thomas Holmes, of

Executive Committee, J. W. Wing, C. M. Stark, E. A. Nordman, F. S. Finley, W. H. Glenn.

On motion the report of the committee was accepted and adopted and all who were recommended by the committee were declared elected.

On motion Chelsea was selected for the next place of meeting of the society on the second Wednesday of June, 1896. Mrs. Stannard, a daughter of Judge Dexter, read a very interesting paper on the early settlement of Dexter and vicinity, after which five minutes talks were given by Florus S. Finley, L. D. Wat-kins, William Campbell, N. B. Covert, Chas. Kingsley, Dennis Warner, Erastus Sampson and W. D. Smith.

J. W. Wing then read a paper on pioneer life in this county, while our state was a territory, which was full of history and was well received. The choir added much interest and enjoyment to the meeeting by singing appropriate songs.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that the thanks of this society are tendered to the trustees of the Methodist church of Dexter, for the use of their church for our annual meeting and to the citizens of Dexter and vicinity and especially the ladies for the bountiful dinner, a veritable reast of good things, furnished us on this occa-

Resolved, that the thanks of the meeting be also tendered to the Dexter singers for their excellent and appropri ate music.

The meeting then adjourned. J. Q A. Sessions, Secretary.

Petitions for the grading of Packard street to the city limits, a sidewalk on Catherine street from Thirteenth to Observatory street, and that Tony Schippacasse be allowed to violate the fire limits ordinance, were read and referred to the respective committees.

Ald. Cady, chairman of the sewer committee, reported that the bid of Henry Collins or the building of the lateral sewers in the Hill and Huron street districts be accepted, there being no valid reason why he should not be awarded the contract if he furnished a good bond.

A motion on this report was not put for a time, the aldermen consulting with Mr. Collins and the active members of the board of public works.

Ald. Prettyman moved that the board of public works be authorized to conclude a contract for the sewers with Mr. Collins.

President Clark of the board of public works was allowed to make some explanations. The idea of the board was when asking for bids to ask, prices for digging and back filling, and for furnishing and laying pipe. Mr. Collins when he made his bid was under a misapprehension, he thought all was mcluded.

Mr. Collins said that he had understood when reading the specifications that the bids asked for extras would include digging and back filling, and that he had bid an average price per foot.

Ald. Snyder said he did not understand the matter.

Ald. Prettyman said the question could be answered more fully. The engineer had said last year that there would not be many extras. He was assured by the engineer and board of public works there would be few extras and they cut little figure. The only sure way was to get bids on the extras.

Mr. Collins said the proposed change did not increase or decrease the price of the work. The board reserved the right of having the digging done and the question was what was the cost of laying the pipe.

Ald. Maynard said he did not understand the qusetion and he supposed he would not. He understood that the Mrs. Elizabeth Speechley, Ann Arbor, men had bid on laying the pipe and digging the ditch.

Mr. Bullis, of the board of public Mrs. Sarah E. Pattengiit, Aun Ar- works, now took a hand at the knotty question. He said Mr. Collins had included the digging and back filling in his bid. Mr. Frank Carpenter is on the sick JOHN BULL'S MEANNESS TOWARD A FOREMOST INVENTOR.

> All Things British Tried Hard to Crush the Discoverer of the "Bessemer Process"-The Great Change Wrought by the Invention-Bessemer's Safety Stamp.

The inventor of the celebrated "Bessemer process" is the most modest of men, shunning rather than courting observation. A few years since he was sometimes to be seen taking a "constitutional" in the neighborhood of his unpretentions abode at Denmark Hill, in England, but the venerable gentleman with the benevolent face, in the old fashioned frock coat and voluminous, many folded choker neckcloth, is now rarely seen even by his immediate neigh-

The British public, the British government and British manufacturers did their very best at one time to crush one of the most useful men ever born in Britain, and failed ignominiously. Sheffield laughed at him, and Woolwich gave him the official cold shoulder, but Sheffield and Woolwich would be crippled indeed at the present time were it not for "Bessemer steel." Yet, even now, although foreign potentates have showered crosses and stars upon him, the English government has not conferred upon him any honor more important than an ordinary knighthood, and this in spite of the fact that he has created one of the largest and most important industries in the world.

Some fascinating calculations, made by Sir Henry himself, prove that one year's production of Bessemer steel might be represented by a solid column 161/4 times the height of St. Paul's cathedral, and as thick through as an ordinary gasometer-about 100 feet.

Henry Bessemer, son of the late Mr. Anthony Bessemer, was born in Hert fordshire in the year 1813. His earlier years were devoted to art, and we find that he was an exhibitor at the Royal academy at the age of 20. At this early age he had discovered a means by which impressions of the designs on coins, medals and other reliefs could be reproduced in any numbers on cardboard Some of his work in this line is still extant, and when specimens come into the market they bring high prices.

This led him indirectly to a more important invention. He discovered that the government of the time was robbed to the tune of £100,000 per annum by unscrupulous persons, who were in the habit of removing the embossed duty stamps on legal and other documents and using the same again. Young Bessemer invented the useful little contrivance by which the stamp is embossed on the paper or parchment of the document itself, and submitted it to the then chief of the stamp department at Somerset

The potentate in question saw the advantage of this system at a glance, and soon afterward the authorities expressed their willingness to make use of it. A pretty little story is connected with this invention. When his model was completed, Bessemer showed it to the young lady to whom he was then engaged. Her first comment upon it showed that she was well fitted to become the wife of an inventor. She said:

"Yes, I understand this, but surely, if all stamps had a date put upon them, they could not at a future time be used again without detection.'

This proved a very valuable sugg tion, for Bessemer soon hit upon the idea of a steel die with a space for a movable date, and in that form his invention was adopted by the authorities. Will it be credited that he never received a solitary farthing from the government for his services or the use of his invention?

Such is nevertheless the fact, and when he hinted mildly at legal remedies he was told by the solicitor to the stamp department that he was entitled to no compensation, inasmuch as he had presented his invention to the government gratis! This was at a time, too, when he was by no means well off, when indeed he lacked the necessary money to set up housekeeping with the clever young lady whose brilliant suggestion had resulted in a perfect stamping machine! He received many generous promises from various ministers, of course, but one government went out of power after another, and to this day he has never been compensated in any shape or

A man of vast wealth now, Sir Henry Bessemer can afford to regard the troubles of that period of his life with comparative indifference, though he has since had more ample reason to cherish a dislike for all British governments and politicians. But his disappointment in this instance taught him a very salutary lesson. When he made the great discovery of his life-that by which it is possible to convert pig iron into steel by a simple and inexpensive processhe kept his discovery a secret. To some extent it is a secret to this day. The importance of the discovery can hardly be overestimated.

Before the Bessemer process came into use steel could not be bought under £50 a ton, and its price prohibited its use in numberless departments of industry where it is now considered essential. At that time, too, only 51,000 tons of cast steel were produced in Sheffield in a year. In 1892, 33,546 tons of steel were manufactured in the world every day according to the Bessemer process, the selling price per ton averaging £8 perhaps. It is chiefly due to Sir Henry Bessemer that one is almost as safe on a modern ocean steamship as on land, and that the modern structure of steel is nearly as imperishable as the Pyramids.

Such a discovery, it might be supposed, would be hailed with enthusiasm by those interested in the iron trade of Great Britain. Not a bit of it. Bessemer met with every possible discouragement. The steel manufacturers of Sheffield were dead against him from the first, and the government ignored him.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

A BALL AT THE ELYSEE.

How the Plain Dress of Our Minister There

Distinguishes Him. A modern ball at the palace of the Elysee, in Paris, where the president of France lives, is an extraordinarily brilliant and picturesque sight, for, besides the military trappings and gold braid of the army officers and the exquisite, delicately tinted toilets and elaborate coiffures of the Frenchwomen, there are the varied "habits" of the many members of the diplomatic corps. These uniforms alone are sufficient to furnish a brilliant mass of color and elaborate display. Described in detail and according to their nations, they are these:

France.-A coat of dark blue, embroidered with gold ornaments and leaves.

Russia. -- A green tunic, embroidered in silver and figured in lilac.

Germany .- A dark blue coat, embroidered in gold and faced with gold ornaments. Austria. - A coat of green cloth, embroidered with a gold acanthus palm.

England. -A coat of dark blue, also embroidered with an acanthus palm of Italy. - A coat of royal blue, embroidered with golden leaves. Spain. - A coat of blue, embellished with gold leaves and ornaments. Portugal. - A coat of blue with golden

It should be remembered that the rank of a diplomat is shown by the embroideries that adorn his uniform. The higher standing he has the greater the amount of gold that is upon his person. Embassadors and ministers plenipotentiary have their collars and cuffs, their breasts and the facings of their pockets set off with golden thread. The secretaries of embassies and the various consul generals have just a shade less of adornment on their uniforms. From an overplusage & gold lace the other extreme is reached in the conventional evening clothes of the American embassador, who appears a solemn and marked figure in the gay assemblages in his relief of somber black and white. The French presidents usually wear ordinary evening clothes, cut in the conventional style, but their white shirt fronts are broken gorgeously by the broad red band of the Legion of Honor and the great star of that order. - New York World.

Does the Eye See?

The question asked in the headline may sound odd to you if you have never taken the trouble to give the subject serious thought, but I venture the broad statement that you are not able to answer the question "offhand." It is an admitted fact, I must confess, that the eye is the "organ of vision," yet there is but little doubt, even in the minds of opticians and physiologists, that the GLUB phenomena of "seeing" is chiefly mental-in other words, that it is the mind and not the eye that "sees." How often have you seen a friend who seemingly was engaged in looking intently at some object on the table, at the opposite side of the room or at some picture, who on being aroused from his day dream would confess that he was "looking at nothing in particular." The explanation of the fact that he saw "nothing in particular" is plain enough if properly set forth. It is because his mind was busy with other times and scenes.

Faces, bits of wayside scenery, etc. were being presented to view in the panorama of the mind, and the "mind's First Day, Tuesday, July 2. eye''—or mental vision—was engaged 3:00 Trot, in eagerly scanning pictures of impres- 2:40 Pace, sions made thereon months, years or 2:20 Trot, scores of years before. WOMEN IN FRANCE.

They Are Not Only the Stronger but the Better Half In That Country.

Women are the stronger as well as the better half of France. They do every-thing but build houses. The best inspector in the French custom house is a woman. She is in the Havre office, and she has a nose that can detect dutiable goods without opening a lock. She is naturally amiable and slow to anger, but woe to the foreigner or countryman who provokes her ire.

There is no sadder spectacle in the re public of France than the women shoe polishers, who doze under the sheds of the markets and quay, one eye shut and t'other fixed on the bootbox over the way, patiently waiting for trade. They ask 5 cents and accept 2 cents for their unwomanly work.

At Thiers, the blackest town in France, the women sit outside of the grimy little machine shops mating scissor blades and polishing knife and seissor handles. The stream that turns the 10,000 little mill wheels is blacker than the Chicago river, and as the furnaces never burn without belching the toilers and their devoted lifelong apprentices are sometimes Malay and sometimes Mongolian, but seldom Cancasian in

Not long ago a college woman went down to Thiers to teach school for the winter. The promise of 80 pupils was a temptation, but on reaching the colony of soot begrimed and smoke stained smithies she found that the position paid $5 a month, and the teacher was expected to furnish the fuel for the winter. —Philadelphia Times.

Better One Way.

In North Carolina lately a case was tried in which, the defendant's character having been impeached, it was sought to bolster it up by showing he had reformed and joined the church. The witness, who belonged to the same church, insisted that as the defendant was now a Christian man of course his character was better. Counsel asked him, "Doesn't he drink just as much as he ever did?" The witness, who was colored and evidently embarrassed by the inquiry, slowly raised his eyes and said with much deliberation, "I think he do, but he carries it more better."-San Francisco Argonaut.

Laws Demanded for Protection. Joel Cook, of this city, said that the matter was the one weakness of the pro-fession and comes from the fact that it is younger than the professions mentioned. He believed that the press had power to have laws recognizing the sacredness of mation and the newspaper man. A resolution was then offered by Charles Emory Smith. of the Philadelphia Press, and after earnest and feeling speech-making was adopted. It read: "That the Inter-national League of Press Clubs urges all press clubs, members of the league, to legislatures of the various states in which such league clubs are located the adoption of laws to protect newspaper men in preserving inviolate confidential information communicated to them in the ordinary course of their duties.

CONQUEST OF THE NORTHWEST.

It Was Acquired From the British by Force of Arms.

In 1776, when independence was declared, the United States included only the 13 original states on the seaboard. With the exception of a few hunters, there were no white men west of the Alleghany mountains, and there was not even an American hunter in the great country out of which we have since made the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. All this region north of the Ohio river then prairies, teeming with game and inhabited by many warlike tribes of Indians.

Here and there through it were dotted quaint little towns of French creoles, the most important being Detroit, Vincennes, on the Wabash, and Kaskaskia this league request the different state and Kahokia, on the Illinois. These officers commanding small bodies of regular soldiers or Tory rangers and creole partisans. The towns were completely in the power of the British government. before filing or serving the complaint in None of the American states had actual possession of a foot of property in the Northwestern territory.

The northwest was acquired at the conquest, and if it had not been so acquired it would have remained a part of the British Dominion of Canada.

The man to whom this conquest was due was a famous backwoods leader, a mighty hunter, a noted Indian fighter-George Rogers Clark. He was a very eyes, of a good Virginian family, who, early in his youth, embarked on the adventurous career of a backwoods surveyor, exactly as Washington and so many other young Virginians of spirit did at that period. He traveled out to Kentucky soon 'after 'it was opened up by Boone and lived there for a year, either at the stations or camping by himself in the woods, surveying, hunting and making war against the Indians like any other settler. But all the time his mind was bent on vaster schemes than were dreamed of by the men around him. He had his spies out in the Northwestern territory and became convinced that with a small force of resolute backwoodsmen he could conquer it for the United States. When he went back to Virginia, Governor Patrick Henry entered heartily into Clark's schemes and gave him anthority to fit out a force for his purpose. - Theodore Roosevelt in St. Nicholas.

The Bicycle Demand.

It is doubtful if such a condition of affairs as exists at present in the bicycle business has ever before been witnessed by our naturally wide awake dealers. Scarcely a leading manufacturer of wheels but has found his sales-through agents greater in number than he ever supposed it was within his ability to gather-so far surpass his most sanguine expectations that he is today unable to supply to any appreciable extent the constant, steady and increasing demand for high grade wheels apparent on every hand. -Hardware

STUTTGART, Ark., June 18 .- A fishing party consisting of a Mr. Thomas and another man, their wives and three children, camping on White river five miles below St. Charles, were attacked by toughs, their tent shot into, one woman and child killed, and a man and boy seriously wounded. John Kemp, one of the toughs, was killed by Thomas.

LITTLE ROCK, June 13 .- A most flendish crime has been committed at Willis Landing, on White River, about five miles from St. Charles, Ark., the details of which have just reached this city. Maddened by drink and impelled by a desire to revenge at imaginary wrong John Kemp, with a party of friends, fired a volley of gunshots into a tent filled with defenseless women and children, killing one woman and a boy outright, and fatally injuring a little Brutes Open Fire on the Tent.

For some time a party of fishermen consisting of two families, one named Thomas, and another unknown, have been camping in a tent at Willis Landing. Farmers in the neighborhood accused the fishermen of killing their hogs. One day last week Kemp went to the tent, and in the absence of Thomas and his companion used vile language to the women of the party. A warrant for Kemp's arrest was afterwards sworn out by Thomas, but was never served. Sunday afternoon Kemp and six or seven companions, all under the influence of liquor, rode up to the tent, and without waiting to learn who was within began pouring a volley of shot through the canvas.

Warrants Will Perhaps Be Served Now. "One of the women received a load of buckshot in the breast, killing her instantly; a boy was literally shot to pieces. and a girl fearfully wounded, her death occurring shortly afterward. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Entered at the Post-Office, in Ann Arbor, Mich.

FRIDAY, JUNE 14, 1895.

The insurrection in Cuba has aroused so much sympathy among our people that it has become necessary for the president to issue a proclamation warning all citizens against recruiting armed forces for service against Spain on American soil. The president and secretary of state are determined that there shall be no infraction of our international obligations so far as it is in the power of the government to prevent the same. It is very natural that there should be a strong sentiment among our citizens favorable to the Cubans. Our people are always in sympathy with movements which make for liberty and freedom from oppression. It is felt that the Cubans have just cause of rebellion. The treatment to which the island has been subjected by Spain has been infamous. Government there has been but organized rapacity. It has not been administered in the interest of the people but for the benefit of the Spanish treasury. Then Cuba is a continental island belonging to the American system and there is a feeling here that it ought to be under the stars and stripes. All these things tend to tempt an element of our citizenship to lend a hand in aid of the Cubans. The duty of our government, however, is plain. These over zealous citizens should be restrained and we should meet all our obligations to the Spanish nation with which we are at peace. Citizens may rest assured that the government will recognize the cause for which the Cubans are struggling should it gain such headway as to make such recognition justifiable.

The strongest evidence probably of the improvement that has taken place in business of every kind is the advance in wages. Wages do not improve as a rule until the improvements in business have become marked and stable. In fact wages always advance last. But substantial as has been the improvement in every line of industry, that it would have been more marked had it not been for the continued and aggres sive free silver agitation admits of lattle doubt. Foreigners are not yet quite satisfied that this country will continue on its present financial basis and they are a little charry of our securities therefore. If this cloud over the country was removed no doubt the imporvement would be much more marked and of the remnant of the Massachusetts line rapid and the government receipts would be largely increased.

The state tax levy imposed by our overwhelmingly republican legislature is the largest in the history of the state. It is not to be raised for educational purposes however. Evidently the republicans do not desire more education. What they want is more pap, and they will get a goodly amount in the next two years from the dear people.

There is a lively republican fight going on in Wayne county between the McMillen and Pingree factions. Dr. Gordon of Roxbury, at the desire of the assembly, sitting here, preached an excellent discourse from I Kings, xii, 15, after which the general court, having given previous orders for making every preparation for drinking success to the 13 United States, sent an invitation to General Heath and the officers of the continental army and navy, and many other gentlemen. While "The Congress" and other toasts were drunk the guns on Fort Hill, Castle Island, Hull and the vessels of war in the harbor fired a grand July 4, 1795, there was great excitement in Boston. The Jay treaty of amity, commerce and navigation between the United States and Great Britain had just been concluded. July 4, 1801, was a time particularly calculated to excite the most intense patriotic memories and emotions. The informal but vigorous war with France had scarcely ceased. The young republic's merchant marine was between the fires of what has been of late termed French "spoliation," and British aggression and confiscation of ships and imprisonment of seamen. Then, too, the Mediterranean pirates were to be attended to, and the preparation of a fleet for the purpose of bringing the "Barbary rovers" to task occupied attention.

All the bells were rung, flags displayed, salutes fired by the artillery, by the Constitution and Boston frigates, Fort Independence and by the French corvet Berceau, which last was fancifully lecorated with colors.

The cadets, under Colonel Welles, as usual, did the escort duties of the day.

The Fourth In Other Lands.

While American citizens throughout the United States are celebrating the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence in the usual time honored manner it may be interesting to note that the rejoicings are not confined to this country, but are going on wherever Americans are to be found, all over the world, and that in many places the people of other countries join heartily in commemorating the "glorious Fourth." This is especially the case in Australia, where the Fourth of July has almost attained to the dignity of a public holiday.—New York Evening Post.

representing twenty states of the south and west began a two-days convention in this city yesterday. Fifteen hundred delegates, comprising Democrats, Republicans and Populists, but with 'honest money" as the slogan of all, filled the Bimetallic League of Memphis, under whose auspices the gathering is held. were with very few exceptions all the leading advocates of the free coinage of silver in the United States. They included Senators Bate and Harris, of Tennessee; Jones and Berry, of Arkansas; George and Walthall, of Mississippi; Marion Butler, of North Carolina; Tillman, of South Carolina; ex-Governor Prince, of New Mexico: Senator Turple, of Indiana; Governor John G. Fully Equaled the Carlisle Meeting. The number of people in the Auditoriam did not exceed that which greeted Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle upon his appearance here on May 23, but the demonstration was equally as imposing and enthusiastic as the one witnessed on that occasion. A permanent organization was effered, and addresses were delivered by Chairman Turple and Alexander Delmar, of California, in the afternoon, and by Congressman Sibley, of Pennsylvania; C. S. Thomas, of Denver, and Aaron Wolcott, of Indiana, in the evening. Fully 1,500 delegates were present in the Auditorium when at 2:15 o'clock President W N. Brown, of the Central Bimetailie League of Memphis, called the convention to order and introduced Judge L. H. Estes, of Memphis, who offered up a prayer. President Brown then called for nominations for permanent chairman, and Senator Isham Tennessee, was given an enthusiastic re ception when he arose to present the name of Senator David Turple, of Indiana. Harris said he had no idea of making a speech, that he only wished to state Calomel.

in a word the purpose and objects of this convention. It was called by the Central Bimetallic League of Shelby county, a strictly non-partisan organization com-posed of Democrats, Republicans and Populists. Its doors were thrown open to every American citizen who honestly believed in the propriety, the advisability and the necessity of the rehabilitation of silver. Their doctrine is bimetallism, and by bimetallism they mean the tree and un-limited coinage of all the gold and all the silver produced in this country. They, hold as to this convention that a Democrat can be present and participate in its deliberations without impairing in the ever until Oct. I, as Professor Barnard slightest degree his allegiance or fidelity has under way some work which has to his party organization, and the same is true of Republicans and Populists, whose party fealty cannot be impeached because of their open advocacy of free silver coinage. "We are here," concluded the senator, "as a band of freemen to consider this all-absorbing question which now confronts the American people. We are to consider the comage question and that question only.'

He then nominated Turple, who was elected with a wheop, and the senator from Indiana was warmly received. While he bears his 68 years lightly, his voice was rather weak for the large hall, and he showed that the warm weather made the task of delivering an elaborate address before the convention a difficult one. Atter Senator Turple had been elected by acclamation he assumed the chair and addressed the convention at length in favor of free silver. He closed as follows: "The faith of the advocate of a single gold standard is compounded of tentiary.

coined standard dollars should be of equal legal value is true, but that the metal in them must be of equal bullion value is a fallacy so contrary to our common sense and experience that it cannot be much sided by prophecy.' HARRIS OF TENNESSEE IN CONTROL.

Senator Turple was accorded another round of applause when he finished his address. A committee on resolutions was appointed—one member from each state represented. Senator Jones, of Arkansas, being chairman and Senator Harris a member from the United States at large. Judge J H. McDowell, of Tennessee, rose to ask recognition for the Populists upon the committee on resolutions He carried his point without diffibulty and it was agreed that he be empowered to present the names of delegates, who were added to the committee on resolutions as representatives of the People's party.

Ex-Governor Prince, of New Mexico, said the reason there were no individual delegates from a number of western and northwestern states was that at the Salt lower floor and a large portion of the Lake City silver conference a committee balconies at the Auditorium when the gathering was called to order. On the states collectively, and that committee stage, besides the officers of the Central was here. Speaking was next in order, and Alexander Delmar, formerly director of the bureau of statistics and mining, delivered a long address He began by saying that " principle on which all parties in this issue unite is stability; he was convinced that "no institution can enjoy a permanent footing in this country unless founded on principles of equality," and "any system of money that does not point to substantial stability of prices" will fail.

He reiterated the charge that the "demonetization of silver" was brought about by fraud and surreptitiously. He was loudly applauded, but the audience want-ed more speeches in spite of the fact that it was time to take recess. The chair finally declared the body adjourned to evening and the delegates dispersed.

SIBLEY PREDICTS DIRE THINGS.

If Silver Loses in '96 Repudiation or Revolution Will Follow.

At the evening session, which began promptly at 8 o'clock, Senator William M. Stewart, of Nevada, presided and introduced Congressman Joseph Sibley, of Pennsylvania. Sibley was greeted with thunders of applause, and in a two-hours' speech aroused his audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. He made an earnest appeal for independent political action in 1896, and occupied a good deal of time illustrating the necessity of breaking away from the old parties.

His auditors were evidently with him, for every attack upon Secretary Carlisle, the presiden or Senator Sherman was greeted with a noisy demonstration, and every time he asked the crowd if they would remain with their old parties and continue the domination of the English money power, he was greeted with a chorus of "noes." He paid his respects to the president and to Secretary Carlisle, in very plain language, calling them "traitors" for their part in the "conspiracy to demonetize silver and fasten upon the ready clearly demonstrated is the controlling spirit in the management of the dard." All such outbursts as this were greeted with tumultuous applause.

"We must win this light in 1896," continued Sibley," or we lose it beyond the lifetime of my generation or the one that follows it. You cannot put this fight off beyond 1856 and win it. If the monometalists win then comes the retirement of greenbacks, the forging of 500,000 fetters on our industries. State Prison at Jackson.

(From the Jackson Citizen.) Mr. A. E. Wing resides at 612 N. Jackson Street, Jackson, Mich. He is a keeper in the Michigan State Prison, a man of sterling integrity, and whose word is beyond dispute. He tells the following story of a wonderful escape, and the incidents connected with the dangerous position in which he was placed. He says, some months ago my attention was attracted by a swelling of my groins, which began to increase in size to such an extent that I was alarmed. It spread down my legs to my feet, and I was bloated from my waist down, so badly that I could not pull my pants, over my legs, and I had to open my shoes fully two inches before I could get them on. Even my face became puffed up; and my whole system seemed affected. could hardly drag myself upstairs to nlock my men. I consulted a physician, one of the best in the city. He said the swelling was caused by an irritation of the swelling was caused by an irritation of the kidneys, and I commenced treatment with him. But I seemed to be getting worse. I was strongly urged by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I finally con-sented. After the first week I commenced to see a change, and felt much better. This was encouraging, and I continued their use. I took five boxes in all, with the happy result that I was completely cured. I have never heard of any medicine which had such a pronounced and radical effect, and yet not affect the system generally and leave it in such a good condition. I feel better now than I ever did. After the effect was once established the swelling gradually disappeared until it was entirely

ALASKA'S BIG BEARS.

GOOD FISHERMEN, ROADMAKERS AND FIERCE FIGHTERS.

What Hunters Who Have Met the Grizzly Have to Say of His Alaska Cousin-They Do Not Fear Man and Will Fight While Mortally Wounded.

A traveler who recently returned from Alaska says: "The Alaskan brown bear Is a huge, shaggy animal, varying in length from 6 to 12 feet and weighing from 800 to 1,500 pounds. I found him to be an expert fisher, and during the salmon season he frequents all the rivers emptying into the Bering sea and the north Pacific and their tributaries as far as the fish go. After the salmon run is over the animal retreats into the recesses of the hills, where berries and small game are plentiful. Among other things he does besides fishing and occasionally chewing up a hunter, he is a great roadmaker for this part of Alaska. Nor only are the banks of the streams trodden into good trails by these huge lumbering beasts, but the swampy plains are crossed in every direction by paths leading to the hills. The traveler will do well to follow them in journeying across the country, as they invariably lead to the best feeding places along the stream and form the best routes to the hills."

A hunter who has spent some time there recently chasing brown bears writes several of his experiences to the Seattle Telegraph.

"My first encounter," he says, "with one of these brown bears was a startling experience for me, and I have always thought equally so for the bear. We had been working up against a strong current of the Koowak river all day, and toward nightfall pitched our tent at the base of a high bluff forming the right bank of the stream. While supper was being prepared I climbed the bluff to get a look at the country and was walkwith spruce and alders, and the underit. Ahead of me a cluster of rocks offerdous shaggy animal arose apparently gestive fashion, he dropped on all fours, and with wonderful quickness turned "Our little girl had diarrhoea in a and sprang out of sight in the dense my native guide, assured me that the bear must recently have concluded a heavy meal, or otherwise he would have attacked me.

"Some officers from some of the vessels of the Bering sea fleet went ashore at Herendeen bay during the summer of 1891 on a deer hunt, and one of the party saw a bear about 100 yards distant eating berries. Without thought of the consequences, he raised his gun and fired

The shot went wide of the mark, but at the report of the gun the bear started for the hunter on a dead run. His charge was met with a shower of bullets from not hesitate an instant and rushed straight at his enemy. When within about 10 feet of the hunter, the bear rose on his haunches and prepared to close. Blood was pouring in streams down his body. One bullet had shattered his upper jaw, but he was so full of fight that the final outcome of the struggle would have been extremely doubtful had not another of the party arrived and ended the fight by shooting the brute through the brain. An examination of were in parts of the body ordinarily considered vital and would doubtless have caused death, but the vitality of these antimals is almost incredible. Instances are cited of their running over 100 yards after being shot through the heart.

"Last summer, while I was at Sand Point, two hunters came in, after an absence of over a month in the vicinity of Port ge bay, and reported having killed 33 tears. One day they killed seven. In order to show that they were not spinning hunters' yarns they brought the skins with them, and sold them at a trading post at Sand Point. During the summer of 1891 two prospectors were looking for coal lands near Port Moller, and about a mile from the shore they came upon an immense brown bear engaged in catching salmon in a small stream. One of the prospectors immediately opened fire, and evidently wounded the brute badly, but he got out of sight in the thick brush. Being anxious to secure the skin the two men started to follow the wounded animal. They had not gone a dozen steps before the enraged and wounded brute turned on them, and before either one could fire a shot he seized one man by the leg and bit it nearly off, and then sprang upon his companion and knocked him sense less with the blow of his terrible paw. Having, as he thought, finished his enemies, the bear quietly ambled off, and was subsequently found dead a few hundred yards from the scene of battle."

Into the Canal-The Ancient Nilometer on the Island of Roda.

The tourist who only comes to Egypt to shun "winter and foul weather" knows nothing of the majestic glories of the Nile flood. The ancient Nilometer at the south end of the island of Roda, just above Cairo, is one of the most interesting sights of the place. The water enters from the river by a culvert into a well about 18 feet square, with a graduthe bachelors of her set. Her family had ated stone pillar in the center. On each side of the well is a recess about 6 feet blood was the most cerulean in the far- wide and 3 feet deep, surmounted by a pointed arch, over which is carved in relief a Kufic inscription, and a similar inscription is carried all around the well, consisting of verses of the Koran. A staircase goes down the well, from the steps of which the initiated may read the beight of the water on the pillar, but they are few in number, and the hereditary sheikh of the Nilometer, whose duty it is to keep the record, is a person of some importance. The Nilometer dates from A. D. 861, and I believe in the archives of Cairo may be

Sweet Peas.

Whether sweet peas can be success fully planted in autumn depends largely on the latitude, says Garden and Forest. In the southern states fall planting is a necessity, for this is the only way to give the plants a cool soil in which to make a strong, early root growth. Coming farther north, fall planting is safe up to perhaps the latitude of Washington, where the chances are about equal between planting in late autumn and in February. In southern California peas must be brought into bloom as early as February, although the nights are so cool there that they may be planted during any month in the year. The rule observed by the large seed growers is to plant just ahead of the rainy season. Indeed they have acres of volunteer sweet peas-that is, from seed which were scattered on the ground during the harvest-and 45 miles south of San Francisco these volunteer plants are in bloom by the 1st of May and often early in April.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

Georgetown was going to celebrate the Fourth of July, and among other attractions was to have a grand balloon ascension. When I, George Bates, heard of this, I made up my mind that I would go up in that balloon.

I will say right here that I never cared for the society of young ladies; consequently I was called a confirmed old bachelor at the age of 28 years. I had no relatives to dissuade me from making such a fool of myself as to wish to go up in a balloon, and no one to care whether I came down again or not. I say I did not care for the society of young ladies, but there was one-Judge Wells' daughter Sallie-who, I thought, was the best looking and altogether the nicest girl I had ever known. I was not acquainted with her, however, and never expected to be, but I liked her all the same.

I saw the owner of the balloon, Professor Sears, and he agreed to carry me up for $100. As I was in good circumstances financially I did not consider this price too high, and at once agreed to go.

The longed for Fourth of July arrived, and about 3 o'clock I stepped into the balloon with Professor Sears.

At just five minutes past 3 the signal gun was fired, and Professor Sears leaned out and cut the cable that held us. As he did so the grapuel slipped out of the car. He tried to catch it, but lost his balance and fell to the ground, leaving me, as I supposed, alone in the balloon. I was terribly frightened, for I had not the slightest knowledge of the workings of the huge gas bag, as I had never seen one closely before.

I looked over the car to see where I was going, when I noticed that there We soon caught their attention, and in was a girl hanging by her clothes to the less than an hour from the time we saw graphel, the line of which was attached the smoke a boat from the outward

There were some double tackle blocks in the car, and I at once thought Miss Wells slept two hours longer, b of a way to get the girl up. Hastily rigging the blocks, I tied the rope to the one holding the girl and found that I could hoist her up. I had to fasten the rope as low down as I could reach and then hoist till the blocks came together. They were hitched to the ropes that held the car to the balloon on top, and of course it was slow work. I think it took 15 minutes to get her into the car, when judge of my surprise to find that what Judge Wells' daughter, 24 years old, and the balle of Georgetown.

"I think the car will hold us both." "We shall have a chance to find out in a very few minutes. When the car strikes the water, you hold on with all your might to this rope. Don't let go if you can help it, unless the car turns over. In that case drop the rope, and I will look out for you.'

I had no chance to say more, for the balloon dropped with a bump that threw Miss Wells out into the water. She held to the basket, however, and I soon had it freed from the balloon by cutting the cords. The car or basket would hold one of us nicely, so I got Miss Wells into it and swam alongside myself.

"If I only knew which way land was lying, I would swim that way," I said, but I have no idea where we are."

"We are in salt water." "Oh, yes; we are at sea, and our only

I don't know how we did get through the night. Miss Wells was so afraid that I would let go the car and be drowned that she held me by the hand all night. I was so exhausted before morning that I should undoubtedly have been drowned but for her. Soon after sunrise we saw smoke curling up in the distance, and I felt sure that a steamer was coming and called Sadie's attention to it. Somehow we had drop-

"I don't get mellow tempered as I get old," he writes some years later, which is true, for to another correspondent he says: "Nothing can advance art in any district of this accursed machine and devil driven England. I lec- our time ture here (at Oxford), but only on the art of the past.'

"How inexpressibly subtle and pour trating," he writes to a young man, "is the praciple of pride! How it minutes itself with, and even pretends itself to be, and takes the likeness of, the noblest feelings in the world-and what a constant struggle it needs even to detect, much more to expel it! It is like exygen in iron-the hottest fire will not expel it altogether-and it steals in with the very air we breathe, turning all our steel into rust.

"Things that require steady labor," he writes to the same correspondent, "there are indeed for all of us to do, but they are the coal heaving part of our life and to be done with a slow step and beut back, patiently, not in a passion, not trying to beat our brother coal heavers, but only to carrying as many coals as we can comfortably. But the great things which require genius to do are done easily if you have the genius. If you are to do anything that is really glorious, and for which men will forever wonder at you, you will do it as a duck quacks -because it is your nature to quackwhen it rains."

"Do you know, Watts," he asked a friend in 1849, "to my mind the only real painter of history or thought we have in England?" "There's nothing nere like Carpaccio," he writes from Venice to Sir Edward Burne-Jones. 'There's a bit of humble pie for you. I ion't give up my Tintoret, but his dissolution of expression into drapery and 3hadow is too licentious for me now. 'I've been going to the old masters," he writes to Mr. Murray, "and staring at the Sir Joshua's. My stars, what that fellow could do!" And here finally are some flying shafts at certain modern imitators of Turner: "I have been now for 40 years vainly and always louder and louder growling and thundering into the deaf ears of the artists who fancied they admired Turner: 'Lead pencil point-pencil, sir! The Greatest Explosion of Gunpowder the World Has Ever Known.

The greatest explosion of gunpowder the world has ever known took place at the Du Pouts' worls on the 7th of October, 1890. Villa fir usual cautious policy the Da Ponts have never stated just how great a quantity of powder explodyl at this time, but it is certain that three magazines and three mills in the upper yard were blown up, one after another, and a safe estimate will put the quantity of powder exploded at 150. tons. o'clock in the afternoon. It began in the magazine for hexagonal powder, the kind used in large guns, and the mert dangerous, being made not in grains, but in reddish, six sided cakes about an inch and a half in diameter, and an inch thick, with a small hole running through the center. These cakes look like nothing so much as the unts on a wagon wheel. At the time of the explosion cakes of powder were being packed into large wooden boxes lined with tin, each box being about 3 feet square. The tin linings projected above the tops of the boxes about two inches, and when a box was packed were folded down over a tin cover fitted closely upon the cakes of cover fitted closely upon the cakes of powder. It was the duty of one of the workmen, William Green, to solder these tin edges down upon the tin cover, a hot iron being used for this purpose.

On the day in question what he had feared came to pass. A fellow workman, William McGarvey, was bringing him the hot irons from a charcoal brazier about 25 yards distant. Green stood at the door of the open magazine, and all around him were uncovered boxes filled with the hexagonal powder ready to be sealed and stowed away. There were also dozens of boxes that had been sealed. Just what happened will never be known, for neither Green nor McGarvey was left to tell the story. But the probability is one of the soldering irons was a little too hot, and by touching a particle of dirt on the tin cover produced the deadly spark.—Cleveland Moffett in McClure's Magazine.

Lifting Power.

"The growth of a few tiny rootlets," observed the teacher of the botany class, "has been known to lift a heavy rock from its place, and the root of a tree growing out under a stone sidewalk will sometimes push it up and break it. Other cases of a like nature showing the strong uplifting power of vegetable growth have occurred, I doubt not, within your own observation. Is it not so?"

"Yes'm," said the boy with the faded hair. "I've heard my paw say his last year's earn crop lifted a mortgage off his farm. "-Chicago Tribune.
