A School of Art Wanted.

Col. Thomas E. Knox, the artist and art critic of Dundee, was registered at the Cook house on Monday. Col. Knox spent four hours in looking over the Lewis collection of paintings and statuary in the university. He found many well known artists represented. He thinks that the Unviersity of Michigan has now a start in this valuable collection, which, if followed up by an art school, will make Ann Arbor one of the art centers of America. What is needed is a plain fire-proof building, and an artist who is also a good business man. Then one of the greatest art schools in America can be built up. A good man with the necessary work could arrange great art loan exhibits, which would bring thousands of visitors to the university. BRIDGE COLLAPSES

Letting a Train Down on Top of Twenty Men.

A DOZEN CAUGHT BY THE CRASH.

Wife of the Bridge Engineer Among the taught in a Cave in of Rock in the Pewa-Dead_Twenty Cars Piled on Top of the Victims_Steampipe Bursts on Board the men Killed at a Cincinnati B. aze.

DENVER, July 18 -A special to The Times from Monument, Colo., says: The local freight on the Santa Fe road fell through the bridge at this place, burying beneath the wreck Mrs. Albert Cooper, and a number of the Santa Fe bridge gang who were rebuilding the bridge. Twenty cars are piled promiscuously on top of the victims. As near as can be learned the local freight, loaded heavily with lumber and stone, passed upon the bridge. As the engine neared the south end the workmen underneath saw the bridge rock and shouted an alarm to their comrades. Before the danger could be realized the engine and twenty cars came crashing through, burying those who could not get out of the way beneath the crushing weight.

Death of the Engineer's Wife.

Mrs. Albert Cooper, wife of the engineer of the bridge gang, was sitting in a shady place under the bridge. Her husband shouted to her, but the noise of the train drowned his voice, and it is certain that she is in the wreck. There were about twenty men in the bridge gang and it is believed ten or twelve are under the wreck. These must certainly have been killed. The engineer escaped, but the fireman, conductor and brakeman went down with the wreck. The bridge was fifty feet high and about 300 feet long. Three Killed and Three Fatally Hurt.

LATER-Further news from the bridge disaster at Monument shows that but three persons were killed, but three others will die. The immense weight of the train, bridge timbers and stones fell on Mrs. Cooper, who had just brought her husband's lunch. Conductor Glaze jumped and was saved, as did Fireman Frye. J. C. Childers, boss carpenter, saw the peril of Mrs. Cooper and jumped off the bridge to save her, and was carried under the ruins with her. The bridge was over a gulch known as Dirty Woman's gulon. It has always been a frail structure and this awful catastrophe was frequently predicted.

The work of clearing the wreck is being pushed rapidly. But for the bodies underneath the debris would be burned. The cars are ground into splinters, and are mixed in with heavy bridge timbers, stone and freight.

List of the Casualties.

The list of killed and wounded is as follows: Killed-Mrs. Albert Cooper and J. C. Childers, Kansas City, Mo.; unknown tramp. Injured-Mark Wickens, engineer; Charles Gardner, brakeman, J. N. Erby, brakeman-all three fatally; James Call, hip broken; Henry Allen, broken leg; Charles Rue, leg broken; Wallace Cooper, Lamar, Colo., head cut and back hurt; J. W. Cole, bridge contractor, broken arm; Charles Stonehouse, foreman bridge gang, both legs broken; H. C. Bookert, head and shoulders cut; Shaw, hip crushed, head cut; Chas.

GREAT FIRE AT CINCINNATI.

Two Firemen Killed and Eighteen Other Persons Injured.

CINCINNATI, O., July 18.—Two firemen were killed and eighteen injured at the fire that started in Seaman's tobacco warehouse. Loss, $175,000, well insured. Following are the dead: Captain Michael M. Healy, fire company No. 29; Thomas W. Wiseby, pipeman company 8. Lieutenant F. B. Newman, of No. 29, was dangerously hurt; Theodore Simpson, bookkeeper, hip fractured; Louis Busch, æronaut, skull fractured. The others were painfully injured, but are doing Chairman E. Gerry Brown, of Brockton.

The fire started in the five-story hay and feed warehouse of J. H. Hermesch & Company, at Water and Walnut streets. It spread so as to threaten the entire square bounded by Walnut, Water, Vine and Front streets, and another alarm soon called out the whole fire department. The fiames at times came near reaching the buildings across the streets. The warehouse went up like an explosion. Then the fire spread to Nelson, Morris & Company's large stables, but their large warehouse stood fire

The adjoining commission and tobacco company warehouses, however, went up like piles of kindling, causing such a conflagration as to threaten the north end of the suspension bridge. George O. Brown had 6,000 bags of peanuts in his ware-house. They burned like shavings and burned the stock, taking with it the large tobacco warehouse of L. Seaman & Co. which was full of leaf tobacco. All the streams of water had no effect on the fire in these warehouses, and the firemen exerted themselves to save other buildings.

The dense smoke from the burning piles of tobacco prevented the firemen from seeing their danger. When the walls of these warehouses fell the fire spread in all directions. At 2:30 the front street walls fell, and then was when the firemen were killed.

CINCINNATI, July 18.—Two little girls about 10 years of age, the daughters of John Beiverle and William Kirchaner, were killed at Fleischman's malt house. ON BOARD THE CINCINNATI.

Presentation of Silver Service by Mayor John A. Caldwell.

BROOKLYN, July 18 .- The crew of the United States cruiser Cincinnati were astir early and the decks of the ship got an extra scrub and polish in honor of the distinguished visitors from Cincinnati, headed by Mayor John A. Caldwell, who were to present an elaborate silver service to the ship from the citizens of the city after which she is named. When the committee, consisting of Mayor Caldwell, Congressman J. H. Bromwell, Police Commissioner George Henshaw, Perry S. Heath, W. W. Peabody, Jr., Julius Fleischman, Dr. C. R. Holmes, Colonel Alexander Gordon (of Governor McKinley's staff). Dr. K. M. Johnson and Lieutenant Charles S. Bromwell, U. S. A., accompanied by Lieutenants Sutherland and Osterhaus, arrived on the navy yard tug they were met by Rear Admiral Bunce and Captain Glass, modore Sicard, Captain Rogers and all the officers on duty at the navy yard. The silver service, which consists of eight silver pieces lined with gold, was exhibited on a skylight on the quarter deck. The committee was escorted to the quarter deck where Mayor Caldwell presented the service. After the speech making was finished the Cincinnati representatives and visitors, a number of whom were ladies, were entertained by the ship's officers to a dejeuner in the ward room.

THINKS HE WILL SWING.

Holmes Said to Have Practically Admitted

PHILADELPHIA, July 18. -H. H. Holmes has virtually confessed to the murder of the two children whose bodies were found in the cellar of a Toronto house. It was learned at the office of the district attorney during the two hours' interview Holmes had with three members of the district attorney's staff that Hormes said: "I suppose I'll swing for this."

This is the only remark dropped from Holmes' lips which in any way tended to incriminate him, and the district attorney considers this a practical admission of Holmes' guilt. Notwithstanding Holmes' remark his counsel says he can prove an alibi in his client's case. He says that Holmes was not in Toronto when the Pitzel children were murdered. This he says can be proven by Mrs. Howard, Holmes' third wife, who is at present living with her mother in Franklin, Ind. The authorities place but little credence in the alibi story, and are satisfied Holmes is the murderer.

SEVEN HANDED EUCHRE.

Definite Points Given That Will Enable One to Play the Game.

For pleasure, pure and simple, seven handed euchre clubs may be cited as models. The game is played with a full pack of cards, and the joker is used. Seven cards are dealt to each player, giving first three and then four and leaving four on the table. This quartet is dubbed "the widow." The player on the left of the dealer makes the first bid of 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 or 7 tricks, naming the suit, the highest bid getting it. The bidding is done in turn. The person who secures the bid then selects three other players—partners thus pitting four against three. If the bidder wins, he and his partners each count the amount bid. If he fails, he is euchred, and the three opponents count each the amount bid. While one can play a quiet, steady game, taking no risks, and holding high cards or the joker play for a euchre, the spirit of extreme feminine politeness engendered by this fad of the hour requires that a person holding the joker should bid the limit, seven, thereby always introducing an element of chance in the contest and giving each one more show.

Prizes are played for. A certain number of points gained can be the limit or a given period of time as agreed upon. The one holding the highest number of points at the decisive moment wins. -Philadelphia Press.

EVIDENCE ACCUMULATES.

Iowa democrats and Iowa republicans have fixed their status on the money question and they are "agin" the 16 to craze. Each favors the continued use f both gold and silver in our circulation. They are therefore of necessity opposed to free and independent coinage by this nation alone, since that means, as everybody understands who has any knowledge of financial principles, a decent to silver monometalism and the consequent retirement of gold from circulation. As both democrats and republicans of Iowa desire that the country shall not suffer the loss of either gold or silver from the volume of our circulating medium, they wisely de. clare for the coinage of both under such legislation as will maintain the parity of both and hence the concurrent circulation of both. To this end they urge the United States to use their influence to secure this in the only way it can be brought about, viz., by international agreement.

There is no little satisfaction to the advocates of a sound monetary policy in the position taken by the great state of Iowa. It indicates that the free silver errancy is utterly unable to withstand the oncoming of industrial revival and the campaign of education which is being waged, and that support of it will soon be confined to the silver producing section.

The free silver heresy could never have gained the proportions it did, had the people been in their normal condition of mind.

But they were oppressed by hard times the most grinding the country had experienced in years, brought on in part at least, and in so far as governmental action was responsible, by vicious republican tariff legislation and the worse Sherman silver law. The people were in a state of consternation created by the calamity howlers whose doleful predictions were sufficiently potent to frighten a democratic congress away from the carrying out in full of platform pledges.

It is not surprising that under such circumstances the people turned to the first nostrum that seemed to promise

As is always the case during such trying times there was not wanting those who poisoned the minds of far better men with the dishonest thought that by an act of congress, making fifty cents worth of silver a dollar, all debtors could scale down their obligations and liquidate them with one half the exertion they could under existing conditions. In other words that congress could and should aid debtors in repudiat. ing one half of their debts. This was simply a revival in a modified form of the old greenback fetich which in turn was born of the panic of 1873 Better times and sober second thought have discovered to the people the dishonesty and danger of such a course and the hallucination is rapidly fading away. The result in Iowa is one more evidence of the fact.

THE FARMER AND THE FALL OF PRICES

The ills of the farmer are a never ending source of sympathetic (?) talk on the part of those politicians who hope to use the farmer vote to foist them selves into big salaried public positions. That the farmer has experienced hard times and the loss of some of his profits along with his fellows in every line of business, no one questions; but that he has been in any exclusive and peculiar fashion the victim of the industrial depression and and fall of prices is not true and does not appear from the evidence. All of the fall in prices has not been against him, indeed some of it has been in his favor.

According to the Minneapolis Tribune it was shown by the sworn testimony of conditions surrounding the silver queswitnesses in an important lawsuit in tion were radially different from the that city in 1882, that it then took 324 conditions of today. Besides, sevenbushels of wheat to pay for a selfbinder, teen years is sufficient time for a man while an improved and in every way a to learn something unless he be like the better reaper can be bought this year for Adrian Press editor in which case, of 187 bushels of wheat. There is no evi- course, it is not to be expected. Some dence in this that the farmer in his par- people may be ashamed of him but that ticular line has been a great sufferer by makes the case all the worse for those reduced tariff rates or by the demone- people. The people of Kentucky evitization of silver. Like evidence is also dently are not ashamed of him. But at hand from another and widely sep- they glory in the breadth and strength arated section of the country. E.C.Klip- of a man who honestly acknowledges stein author of a little pamphlet called that he knows more now than he did 'Free Coinage and the Farmer," eventeen years ago and that this fact lynched.

These statistics show the exchangeable miliating spectacle when a man sees PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY value of produce then and now. The the error of his ways and sets out to New York Evening Post places some of correct those errors. The same is true these facts, brought out by Mr. Klip- of the nation and this nation is rapidly stein, in a very concise and lucid form following in the footsteps of John G. as follows: "In 1867 the farmer could Carlisle on the silver issue. The people get for 50 bushels of wheat, 100 bushels are beginning to see more clearly and of corn, 500 pounds of pork, and 100 the free silver mists have got to go. cross-ties, a money price of $289.50; in 1895, he could get but $138. There is the free coinage argument in a nutshell: the farmer robbed of half his crops by the gold monopoly. But look further, and see what the farmer could do with his money in 1867 and what he can do with it now. Mr. Klipstein gives a long list of prices of groceries, dry goods, hardware, tools, etc., of daily necessity to the farmer and shows that an average consumption of these articles would have cost, under 1867 prices, $341.08. In 1895 the same things could be bought for $112.05. Thus the Virginia farmer's loss by falling prices is really a considerable gain. On the transaction referred to he would be $77 to the good that is, to supply his needs in 1867 he would have had to add $51.58 to his produce, while now he could purchase the same things with his produce and have $25.95 as credit." Professor Laughlin and others have furnished proof also, from actual market reports, in Iowa and Illionois, that the farmer can get more goods for less corn and wheat now than before the "great crime" of 1873. All of these things have served as eye openers to the farmers and they are not shouting for free silver as loudly as they

of first-class ability do not enter the teacher's profession. Those responsible for this libel are no doubt people who have but limited knowledge of the personnel of the profession; for where, or in what profession or line of business, can be found a brainier lot of men and women than the 10,000 and more representative teachers who recently went up to Denver to attend the national teachers association? We believe it is no disparagement to any organization that meets, to say that this one in character, ability and high aims is second to none. Certainly this ought to be so when their duties and the interests committed to their keeping are considered. To them is intrusted for training and guidance, the very flower of the nation, its hope for future security and advancement What they are, the 14,000,000 pupils in the schools are destined in large measure to become. The teachers constitute the standing army on which the destiny of the republic depends. They are representatives of its better aspirations and its exalted hopes. That they are not unmindful of their responsibilities, and that they intend to meet them with all the energy and ability they possess, is evidenced by their utterances in the recent national convention. They were not there as educational optimists, but with the conviction that educational systems and methods can and must be improved. The brainiest men and women in their ranks had been assigned to the preparation of papers on every phase of educational work from the kindergarten up, and these papers were compends of the most advanced thought on the subjects discussed. The unconventional part of the program, the conversational discussions were, likewise intensely earnest and valuable. In fact the whole proceedings of the great meet were marked with breadth and earnestness which augur well for the future of our educational interests. A study of the doings of the convention furnishes convincing evidence that our schools will not lag behind any other interests in the progress that is being

After his outspoken utterance in congress for free silver coinage and his trenchant aguments in support of his doctrine, Secretary Carlisle ought to be ashamed of himself for espousing the gold standard at the beck of Cleveland. The people are ashamed of him. It's a most humilating spectacle of selling principle for preferment, position and self.—Adrian Press. Whatever John G. > During the past three months there has been a very decided advance in prices, in fact the increase has been radical in many lines, yet silver, which, according to the silverites, is the barometer by which the prices of other staples are guaged has advanced but a fraction. There has been a remarkable advance in wheat, corn has also advanced, iron has gone up and is still tending upward, along with the manufactured products of the same, beef and mutton have increased in price, still, silver, which according to the theory should lead, has not even followed only in the slightest degree. There has been a significant lesson in all this to the people who were at first inclined to believe that there was something in the barometer theory. The object lesson has been too potent for them and they now understand that silver has nothing to do with these advances in prices and no more to do with the fall of prices. The free silver mirage is receding.

The deficit in the national treasury for the fiscal year just closed is twentyseven millions less than for the preceding year. & Classic Performance In the Old Theater at Orange.

Of scenery, in the ordinary sense of the word, there was none at all. What we saw was the real thing. In the opening scene of "Œdipus," the king, coming forward through the royal portal and across the raised platform in the rear of the stage, did literally "enter from the palace" and did "descend the palace steps" to the "public place" where Creon and the priests awaited him. It was a direct reversal of the ordinary effect in the ordinary theater, where the play loses in realism because a current of necessarily appreciated but purposely rejected antagonistic fact underruns the conventional illusion and compels us to perceive that the palace high as the prince. The palace at Orange, towering up as though it would touch the very heavens and obviously of veritable stone, was a most peremptory reality.

The fortuitous accessory of the trees growing close beside the stage added to the outdoor effect still another very vivid touch of realism, and this was heightened by the swaying of the branches, and by the gracious motion of the draperies, under the fitful pressure of mistral took a very telling part in the performance. Players less perfect in their art would have been disconcerted by it, but these of the Comedie Francaise were quick to perceive and to utilize its artistic possibilities. In the very midst of the solemn denunciation of Œdipus by Tiresias, the long white beard of the blind prophet suddenly was blown upward so that his face was hidden and his utterance choked by it, and the momentary panse, while he raised his hand slowly, and calmly freed his face from this chance covering, made a dramatic break in his discourse, and added to it a naturalness which vividly intensified its solemn import. In like manner the final entry of Œdipus, coming from the palace after blinding himself, was made thrillingly real. For a moment, as he came upon the stage, the horror which he had wrought upon himself - his ghastly eyesockets, his blood stained face—was visible, and then a gust of wind lifted his mantle and flung it about his head so that all was concealed, and an exquisite pity for him was arousedwhile he struggled painfully to rid himself of the incumbrance—by the imposition of this petty annoyance upon his mortal agony of body and of soul.-The Comedie Francaise at Orange, by Thomas A. Janvier, in Century.

WHAT A GOOD KNIFE COSTS.

More Men Spend $3 For a Pocketknife Than Less That Amount.

"More men pay $3 and upward for a pocketknife than less. That may not be the experience of all cutlery dealers, but that's the kind of trade we cater to," said a knife expert from behind the counter of a store on one of the most frequented of down town streets. "Spaniards spend the most money for knives," he continued. "Spaniards who come here are very fastidious in the matter of cutlery anyway. Where an American family in the same circumstances will be content with the ordinary plated tableware, costing $4 or $4.50 a dozen, a Spaniard will have nothing but the finest steel with ivory handles, at $18 and over. Matrimonial Ventures Made Extra Hazardous by the Hunt For Business-A Hair Raising Warning From a Life Insurance

When the young man walked into the newspaper office and timidly asked the society editor if she would kindly insert a notice of his approaching marriage, he little thought of the trouble he was bringing down upon his head.

The announcement was printed Sun-When he reached his office Monday, he found a stack of letters waiting for him, every one addressed in a handwriting he did not know. He whistled when he opened the first, ditto the second, looked a bit surprised at the contents of the third and swore fluently shrough the balance of the pile. At noon there were more. Despite the evident curiosity of his fellow laborers in the office he did not take a soul into his confidence until the third day. Then he remarked to his deskmates:

"Say, the great American life insurance man isn't overlooking any bets these days, is he?"

"Wherefore this outburst?" For answer the groom to be went to a drawer and produced a stack containing 147 letters-he said that was the exact number, though his friend did not count them—the accumulation since that fateful Sunday morning.

"Every blamed one of them is from some agent for some life insurance company who wants to insure my life. Each one represents the best company on the face of the earth. Each pays the largest dividends. Each invests the money of its patrons to the very best advantage. Each moralizes on the uncertainty of life and seeks to impress upon me the solemn duty I owe to my wife that is to be to get my life insured for a million or two of dollars. And each blessed one has come since the announcement of my approaching wedding was printed."

The young man paused a moment, then he dug into the pile and after a few moments' search produced a document which he shoved at his friend, simply saying:

Here is one choice extract from the document: "In the midst of life we are in death."

"Let us call your attention that it is every husband's duty-his solemn duty —to provide for those dependent upon him. A LOVE SONG.

My little leaves, why are you glad?

Answer, quivering little leaves,
Small clapping leaves, so freshly clad
In a green world that never grieves.

Answer me, for my heart is sad!
Love God, love God! they sing,
Gay as the highs a wing. Gay as the birds a-wing.

My little flowers, what's your delight? Now answer, for my soul believes
In your sweet petals, pure and white,
Sweet purity no man deceives.
Answer, my flow'rets fair and bright.
Love God, love God! they sing,
Gay as the birds a-wing.

Fresh blades of grass, you cheerful seem.
What is it that all grief relieves? Thick ye upspring, a fair sunbeam
In your low stems its brightness weaves.
How do you keep that sunny gleam?
Love God, love God! they sing,
Gay as the birds a-wing.

The flowers and grass make their reply, The flowers and grass make their reply,
With all the merry clapping leaves,
And echoing the holy cry
The drooping heart its joy retrieves.
All voices to their Maker fly.
Love God, love God! they sing,
Gay as the birds a-wing.

From Minerals, Vegetables.

It has long been a dream of the evolutionist that the vegetable kingdom has evolved from the mineral, as he believes that the animal has evolved from the vegetable, and it may be that in the fairy figures on our window panes we are witnessing, as it were, the efforts of nature to effect this transformation. We are taught that the earth was once too hot to support the life of plants, but that after the surface had cooled, trees, shrubs and mosses sprang up. Whence did they

A frosted window pane shows us the strange phenomenon of inorganic matter assuming the shapes of ferns and leaves and fronds, and may perhaps represent to our eyes in miniature a process which went on on a large scale during the prevegetable era of our earth's history. This idea is as old as the Jewish Cabala, where we read, "The breath became a stone, the stone a plant, the plant an animal, the animal a man, the man a spirit, the spirit a god."-London Spectator.

Mrs. Phæbe Thomas of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Manna is the concentrated juice of several plants which grow in great abundance in many parts of south Europe, Asia and Africa. The tree which most generously produces it is a sort of ash. The juice exudes from the stem | de during the summer months, as a consequence of the punctures of an insect that infests the tree, but the better kinds of manna, known as "flake manna," are obtained from incisions made in the bark. The poorer qualities come from the bark near the roots of the tree. The manna of commerce is obtained chiefly from Sicily and Calabria. A variety is collected by the Arabian Bedouins from a species of tamarix, which is used on bread like honey. The word is believed to be derived from the Syriac mano, a gift, though there is little evidence that the medical substance now known by that name has anything in common with the manna mentioned in the travels of the Israelites.

The prim girl at the edge of the group listened eagerly at first, but as the plan unfolded an expression of disgust and horror crept over her face. She could now contain herself no longer and interrupted with:

YACHT SINKS OFF SOUTH HAVEN. Three Men Drowned While Out for a Trial Trip on the "Artist."

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich., July 15.-Yesterday afternoon Mr. H. Tittsworth took his new yacht "Artist" out for her trial trip in company with the builders, Messrs. Coats & Stillson. When about four miles north of the harbor a squall struck and going to press.

Complete Market Reports in each capsized her. The life-saving crew went out immediately, and soon after the tug McClure, but the yacht was so far away that the men were all drowned before the crew could reach them. All that was found was a cap which proved to have belonged to Mr. Stillson. The reason for the boat sinking so quickly was the fact that she held a great amount of ballast which could not be shifted, and that being new they had not as yet put in any air cans to buoy her.

ENDEAVORERS TAKE A REST.

Great Meeting on Boston Common Spoiled by a Big Storm.

Boston, July 15.-The weather man after bestowing upon the Christian Endeavor convention since Wednesday his finest weather, Saturday sent upon it a deluge of rain just as the assault upon Mammon was about to culminate in the great out-door religious gathering announced to take place upon Boston Common. On that green a vast assemblage, estimated at between 40,000 and 60,000 persons, was ready to begin what would have been the greatest religious gathering in the history of the world. President Francis E Clarke, D. D., glanced fearfully skyward, but opened the services at the appointed hour. Then came the heavy rain, but the discomfort of the Christian Soldier.

Dr. S. F. Smith, author of "America," was then introduced and the thousands sang a verse of that hymn in compliment to its author. By this time the rain was falling in torrents and the president announced an adjournment to the big tents, Endeavor and Williston, near by. About New York Recorder. 15,000 found seats and the remaining thousands went away. The subject of the day's addresses was "Good Citizenship" and the usual rallies were held during the day. The junior rally was held and thousands of little Endeavorers were present. State, territorial and provincial rallies were held at night in the respective headquarters and were largely attended.

The programme yesterday included work only for visiting clergymen. The local ministers in general gave place to those who had come from other localities to attend the convention, and it is doubtful if ever in the history of Boston its pulpits were supplied with such an array of eminent preachers. To the more than 50,000 members of the Y. P. S. C. E. the day came as a literal "day of rest," which was well appreciated after last All the churches were packed. Today is the closing day of the leave the Knights of Labor, though camp.—New York World. it is well known that such was the intention: Secretary Treasurer John W. Hayes appeared before the convention to the old organization. When he got up to speak he was hissed, but the delegates were with him when he finished. When hissed Hayes dared the organization to leave the Knights of Labor and expounded a few sections of the laws of the order, one of which stated that if a local seceded any ten members of the body could re-organize and take all the funds and property belonging to the seceding body.

Hayes followed this up by giving the names of ten men who would take this action in case the organization went to the new K. of L. The fight was made on the proposed secession of L. A. 300, the richest labor organization in the country. It holds bonds, mortgages and cash to the amount of $500,000, and has a membership of 7,000, including all branches of the glass trade.

BURGLAR ASSAULTS A WOMAN.

Is Throwa Jown Stairs by Her Brother, but Manages to Escape.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 15 .- A burglar was discovered in the residence of Isaac Davis, a Philadelphia cottager at 112 South North Carolina avenue, by Miss Louisa G. Davis, a sister, who was visiting at the house. When Miss Davis attempted to give the alarm she was murderously assaulted with an iron bar. Her skull was crushed in a terrible manner. He then fled, but at the door he was met by Mr. Davis. Raising his iron bludgeon he dealt Davis a blow. In spite of this Davis grappled with the murderous intruder and after a fierce struggle succeeded in throwing him bodily down stairs. He was too weak to follow up his adversary, however, and the burglar escaped. Davis will probably recover, but the young lady will die.

Texas Law Is Against Prize Fighting. Austin, July 15 -Attorney General Crane has given out his decision on the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at Dallas in October. He says the law of 1891, in spite of its crudeness and indefinite framing, is valid and that it prohibits prize fighting in this state. He says the sheriff of Dallas county will be expected to enforce the law. Many other Texas jurists say the law is invalid. The only way for the prize fight managers to do is to pull off a fight somewhere soon and have the law tested.

One Performance on the Stage, the Other In the Audience.

I attended a recent performance given by some amateur actors and actressesvery good they were, too-and while I enjoyed the stage entertainment I was not unmindful of the one that was in progress directly behind me.

"She has to play whatever they give her to play. She's a beginner, you know.

"Well, I wouldn't begin that way." "Annie" appeared presently. She said, "Yes, my lady," and "No, your lordship," and "I will tell her Residence and Office, 48 Fourth Ave., North ladyship that you are here," and a few more stunners of that sort very well, I

But when the French count with the pointed beard chucks her under the chin I could hear the old lady behind me getting into a fine rage.

"Well, the idea of our Annie letting a man do a thing like that!"

"But, mother, that's in the play." "I don't care if it is. I suppose he'll kiss her later on! The idea!'

Well, he did kiss her shortly after and got a good slap in the face for his pains. The old lady almost rose in her seat. "Good, good!" she cried in a very audible voice.

"I thought Annie wouldn't stand anything of that sort!"

She objected to the young girl's little love affairs with the footman, however, and could hardly be kept in her chair when the two plighted their troth. "I don't call that play acting," she

And this is the legend he told me: Before the white man knew there was a western continent, before the Spaniards came, even before the reign of the ancient Quetzalcoatl, lord of the Seven Caves of Navatlaques and king of the Seven Nations, out of which arose the splendor of the Montezuman empire, the powerful tribes lived in the north. They were as the sands of the shore washed by the great ocean of the rising sun, and Gerber, banker. The company has the green canyons. There was a vassal been sending its circulars through the chief, Azul, of lowly birth and evil ways. brought his richest treasure to Maxtella's court. He used his black art that he might appear pleasing in her sight. His arms and throat were bare. On his head OOA! OIL FOR THE SASUN CARNAGE was a snowy white helmet, and his dress was of green feathers. His breastplate of feather work gleamed like jewels when the sun shone upon it. Tall and straight was this vassal chief and mighty was his stride. Great blue and blood red stones shone in the middle of

But the counselors were wise men. They could see his black heart and read his evil mind, and they spurned him with scorn. They would have driven him from the court. The vassal chief held in his hand a wand, sharp pointed like a knife, by which he worked his magic art.

When the queen appeared, he looked at her and turned pale. Azul's eyes pierced her, but his magic was not strong enough to make her love him. Until then she knew not fear, but now the evil spell was upon her. All of Azul's power was exerted to subdue her gentle heart.

When she went to walk, a wolf sprang up in her path, sharp stones cut through the deerskin and wounded her feet.

Near by was a spring of healing water, but when Maxtella went to drink of it a foul odor of poisonous gases arose.

She sought her couch, but Azul had driven sleep away. When she was alone, the black hearted vassal chief would suddenly appear and with thongs of the deer would beat her white body until his savage lashes drew drops of blood.

All things could be make Maxtella do but love him. False words she spoke to her counselors and did unholy deeds that made her courtiers bow their heads in shame. No more was Maxtella just or merciful. Cruelty, pitiless cruelty, turned her love of her subjects to hate.

Of her attendants who remained faithful none was more so than a little page, a boy of not more than a score of years. These two sat one eve within the palace. The dusky shadows were gathering without, but the night could only bring added wretchedness to Maxtella. The boy sang to her, and as his song died away a black shape entered the room. It was Azul.

"Thy song is sad," he said to the "Why do you not weep, Max-

The rivers of Maxtella's eyes were dried up.

"Now I will teach you how to weep, and he struck her with his cruel thong. Maxtella turned upon him her timid, pleading eyes. With a mighty bound the youth leaped toward the chief and seized the magic wand. Its possession gave him the strength of many men. He struck the wretch a blow and pinned him to the floor. Azul writhed in pain, and the blood dyed his dress of feathers crimson. None but a wizard might ever loose him. With the blow the spell he had wrought on Maxtella was broken, and all her gentleness and purity returned. It was this that caused her to pity the bleeding wretch, squirming in agony, yet furious with rage. She reached down her delicate hand to withdraw the wand if it were possible, when Azul seized her by the arm and buried his sharp, gleaming teeth into the hand extended in mercy.

Maxtella, unable to release herself, shrieked in pain, for the bite of the sorcerer was as deadly as the poison of the snake with the castanets in his tail.

Now is thy blood ming d with mine," hissed Azul, "and of thy own free will! Now are we one forever. By my living hate and the mingling of our blood I have supremest power over thee. Sent Into the District Ahead of the Butchers So as To Be Ready When Wanted-How It Was Used on Dead and Living Victims-Situation in Armenia Today-

VAN, Armenia, May 24 .- [From the special correspondent of the Associated Press.]-The Sasun massacre, it would appear, was one of the most carefully planned outrages in history The evidence of this is circumstantial only, but it is alleged to be none the less conclusive. ing the Sasun region, and particularly the districts in the south and southwest, were apparently unusually busy in gathering up the scattered warriors of their tribes for an invasion of the Sasun region. In July and August enormous quantities of petroleum was shipped from Erzeroum to Moush This petroleum came originally from Russia to Erzeroum, and so great was the quantity brought over the mountain roads that it was a subject of remark to very many persons.

How the Petroleum Was Used.

For a time it looked as though nothing went over the roads between Erzeroum quantity of petroleum herself, nor do her merchants sell much of it to the surrounding country. In the villages candles of sheep fat oil are used for lights What Moush wanted with these countless can of petroleum was a mystery. But the mystery was a mystery no longer after the Sasun massacre, for that petroleum was used to burn the houses of the Sasun villages and to cremate the bodies of the wretched villagers who fell victims to the awful butchery. In burning the houses the petroleum was thrown upon the wood work in generous quantities and set on fire, with the result that smoke. In cremating the dead the bodies were, in many cases, placed between lay ers of wood and built up into a sort of funeral pile.

Living Men Treated the Same Way. The entire mass was then saturated with petroleum and set on fire. It is charged that living men were cremated n the same way. But this was a merciful way of putting the unfortunate creatures to death in comparison the tortures inflicted many others. The massing of troops near the Sasun region, and particularly at Moush was carried on for some time before the beginning of the massacre, in order that everything might be in readiness, according to the programme said to have been carefully made out at Constantinople. A similar butchery would have taken place at Modikan if Europe had not made a move for investigation of the Sasun horrors.

Look to England for Relief. In the city of Van at this moment there are 500 young men sworn to give themselves as a sacrifice to Turkish butchery in the hope that the attention of England may be more strongly called to the desperate situation of their people. Unless Europe controls the reforms there will be a massacre of 20,000 Christians in the city of Van within three months. The Armenians themselves will bring this about rather than be cast adrift by their fellow Christians of the west. There is no language quite adequate to a description of the real condition of Armenia at present. and women are ravished by Kurds and Turkish soldiers. Woe and want and despair and death stalk abroad in this beautiful land that was once a part of the garden of Eden. The inhabitants of Van are living on the brink of a massacre from British Liberals Snowed Under so Far as the Elections Have Gone.

LONDON, July 15.—There were twentytwo contested elections for parliament Saturday and the returns show that the Unionists have gained eight seats, in proportion more than one-third. This indicates an overwhelming Unionist majority in the next house. The most astonishing fact is the defeat of Sir William Harcourt in Derby, regarded heretofore as the very heart of Liberal England. His defeat is the sensation in political circles. Of 110 members thus far elected, ninetysix are Unionists, ten Liberals and four Parnellites. Eight Liberal seats have been captured by the Unionists and the Radicals have captured one Unionist seat, that at Perth. The crusade against the house of lords is relegated to the dimmest future. to home rule for Ireland the coalition government can do what it likes. It looks as if they will have a majority suffi-cient to make them entirely independent of the Irish vote, so that the old Parnell tactics of obstruction will be of no avail in the next house. Among the Unionists elected is the Marquis of Lorne, the queen's son-in-law. The moral effect of Sir William Harcourt's defeat will be great, as even the most sanguine Conservative did not expect a Liberal majority of 1,900 to be converted into a Unionist majority of 1,100. While Sir William Harcourt fared so badly, Balfour, the new first lord of the treasury, who is to succeed Sir William as leader of the house of commons, nearly doubled his majority in Manchester. Sir William Harcourt's defeat is generally attributed to the prominence which he gave to the local veto, or local option, measure. The Sunday Observer (Unionist) points out that the returns of unopposed candidates are as significant as the results of contested elections. Seventy-six seats had been handed over to the Unionists without a fight, while the Liberals were allowed to retain only five uncontested

This list of used pianos represents our stock of rented instruments, together with a few odd styles and sample pianos, which we desire to close out to enable us to direct all our efforts to the sale of the Clifford Piano, in which Company we have recently become interested. Among these instruments are some rare bargains. Every piano has been carefully regulated, tuned, and put in first-class condition. Most of them show but little wear, and all have been carefully polished, and, where deemed necessary, revarnished. We are very desirous of closing out every odd piano in stock, as we wish to devote our entire energy to the instruments in which we are directly interested. Every piano on this list is gharanteed to be exactly as represented, and will be taken in exchange by us for any new piano at its full value at any time within one year. Correspondence invited.
