WITH ELECTRICITY.

Two Big Electric Railway Schemes are Now on the Tapis,

AN OPTION ON THE A. & Y. MOTOR LINE

May be Bought by Eastern Capital.—J. R. McDonald, of Detroit, Working the Deal.—To Detroit for 50 Cents.

An Electric Line to Detroit.

An electric street railway line is to be built between Ann Arbor and Detroit. It will be completed and in running order within the next year. It will undoubtedly at once increase the population of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti, by making them popular residential places for the business men of Detroit who wish to live with their families and yet give them opportunity to get the best education that can be obtained. Some weeks ago, as our readers will doubtless remember, it was announced, in a hazy sort of way that there was a plan on foot to build an electric railway from Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti to Detroit. Since that time those interested in the project have not been idle. Mr. Thos. D. Kearney, the attorney for the eastern capitalists who are to furnish the money necessary to complete the enterprise, informs us that the preliminary work is being pushed as rapidly as possible and he is confident that the road will be equipped and running by October 1, 1896. The right of way has been secured for a greater part of the distance and the remainder will be procured at an early day.

Ann Arbor is an ideal residence city, offering many and varied inducements, as all our residents know. If frequent and rapid transportation with a moderate rate of fare, could be secured with Detroit, many Detroit business men would make their homes in Ann Arbor. Today there are a number of residents of both Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti who must depend on the Michigan Central for daily transportation to Detroit where they are engaged in business. It has been suggested that the business interests of both Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti would suffer somewhat by attracting trade not really belonging to the twin cities to Detroit. This we think a mistake. A small number who care nothing for the business welfare of either Ann Arbor or Ypsilanti will make purchases in Detroit, as they do now and will do in any event. On the other hand, the well known advantages of both Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti as places of residence will, we are confident, attract enough people from Detroit and elsewhere to the twin cities to more than overbalance the loss and this number will constantly grow.

The success of the Detroit and Mt. Clemens road has demonstrated the feasibility of electric transportation between towns and Mr. Kearney is confident of the financial success of this road. The new road will run from Ann Arbor through Ypsilanti, Sheldon, Denton, Wayne and Dearborn to Detroit. It will be equipped for rapid service and it is expected to make the trip in about the time required by the Central. It is also expected to put the fare for the round trip down to fifty cents from Ann Arbor. Thus, at an expense of fifty cents a day, a man could have his business in Detroit and his residence in Ann Arbor.

To Buy the A. A. & Y. Road.
J. R. McDonald, of Detroit, is the name and address of a gentleman who would much like to get control of the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti motor line. On July 31 last he presented the following conditions for an option on the road:

- Ypsilanti, Mich., July 13, 1895.
To the stock and bond holders of the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti street railway company:
1. I hereby submit the following proposition for re-organization:
    1. The deposit of all outstanding bonds with a trustee to be paid for as follows, viz.: 80 cents on the dollar in cash out of the proceeds of the new issue of bonds, or exchanged for new bonds at par value, at the option of the bondholder.
    2. All the stock to be surrendered to the trustee for the bondholders.
    3. The purchase of the water power at Geddes.
    4. The railway to be converted into an electric system, and equipped with all modern improved machinery.
    5. The Geddes water power to be used to generate electricity for motive power.
    6. The road to be extended into Ann Arbor as far as the court house, via the University, if possible.
    7. The entire railway property, both personal and real, to be bonded for a sum not to exceed $20,000 per mile, said bonds to be gold bonds, running not more than 30 years, with interest at 5 per cent, payable semi-annually.
    8. I, or the new company, to pay all the floating debt of the present company.
    9. I to have five months from this date to carry out the provisions of the foregoing proposition, if accepted by all parties concerned.
- J. R. McDonald.

At a meeting of the directors of the road on the same day, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

"That the option for the sale of the A. A. & Y. street railway company be given J. R. McDonald, and that it be accepted by this board, and we hereby recommend its approval by the stockholders and bondholders of said road."

It was moved and supported that R. W. Hemphill be appointed trustee for the custody of the stock and bonds to be delivered to him, he giving a receipt therefor.

Since the above action was taken matters have slowly progressed, until Mr. McDonald has gotten nearly all of the bonds in the hands of the trustee.

As to what Mr. McDonald, who represents eastern capitalists, will do with the road, the above is self explanatory. First of all, it would be equipped with electricity, the power for which would be gotten from the Geddes dam. Mr. McDonald has another large idea, in connection with the water power. It is nothing less than to get it from Zukee lake, or some of the lakes in the vicinity for surplus supply when the river might fail to meet requirements.

Mr. McDonald was in the city a short time yesterday and was seen by the Argus. The bonds are now in the hands of the trustee, with the exception of about $9,000 worth. A certain gentleman asked the projector yesterday if he would take $5,000 for his option. Mr. McDonald said no, he would not take $10,000 for it. Concerning clause 2 of the option there is this to be said. Some of the stockholders say that they saw no inducement for them to hand over their stock. It would simply be giving it away, so far as they could see. One of the directors of the road said yesterday that such was the case, that the stockholders would have to act for the good of the community. "But," said he, "there is nothing in it for them if they keep the stock, and the stock cost them nothing in the first place."

Methodist Preachers Adjourn.

The Methodist preachers of the Detroit conference had to keep pretty late hours last Monday evening, in order to get their appointments and go home the next morning. It was nearly twelve o'clock before the bishop was ready to read the list, so great had been the trouble in making the changes. Not half of the pastors were returned to their old charges. Washtenaw county appointments were as follows: Ann Arbor—Dr. Camden M. Coburn. Chelsea—Carlos L. Adams. Dexter—Thomas G. Porter. Dixboro—Eugene M. Moore. Manchester and Sharon—David H. Yokom.

Milan—H. F. Shier. Salem—William H. Benton. Saline—Eugene Yager. Stony Creek—Benoni Gibson. Whitmore Lake and Hamburg—H. W. Hicks.

Willis—Reuben Emery. Ypsilanti—E. W. Ryan.

The all-surpassing question of the conference was the woman question. There was scarcely a day on which it did not come up in some form or other, and the women always came out ahead.

The Detroit conference is solidly for the fair sex, and the vote on the amendment proposed by the Baltimore and Colorado conferences for the admission of women, resulted in the decisive affirmative of 185 to 9.

By almost unanimous vote the conference decided against the division of the two Michigan conferences. Another important piece of business was the decisive vote in favor of reducing the ratio of representation of the clergy in the general conference by about one-third.

Sunday was the great day of the conference for spectators, and the Methodist church contained nearly two thousand people in the morning, when Bishop Hurst spoke on the theme, "Christ—the Certainty of Faith." Other preachers of the conference occupied the pulpits of other city churches. The exercises of the day closed with a grand revival service.

Friday and Saturday were taken up mostly with routine business. Friday was occupied largely by the lay conference, which met in the Presbyterian church. Six of the delegates were women and they took their seats in the conference without opposition. The laymen declared their faith in the cause of woman, and pledged their delegates to the general conference to vote for their admission to that body. The delegates elected were George O. Robinson, of Detroit, and Dr. R. S. Copeland, of this city. The seven clerical delegates elected on Friday and Saturday were: Dr. J. F. Berry, of Chicago; Dr. C. M. Coburn, of Ann Arbor; Rev. C. T. Allen, of Detroit; Rev. E. W. Ryan, of Ypsilanti; Rev. W. H. Shier, of Detroit; Rev. John Sweet, of Calumet; and President Fiske, of Albion. The lay delegates enjoyed a sumptuous banquet in Harris hall on the evening of Friday.

The statistics of the conference are of interest. There are 46,634 church members in this conference, an increase of nearly three thousand this year. There are 463 church buildings within the conference limits. Foreign missionary collections have taken a slump this year, while most of the home collections have increased slightly.

The conference adjourned to meet next year in the Garland street church, Flint.

LEAD TO ANN ARBOR.

That's the Direction all Roads Will Take for Next Week's Fair.

ANOTHER CUTE TRICK OF THE NEW WOMAN

Miss Bower Presents a Bond With All Woman Signers.—Big Bicycle Race.—Good Showing by Ann Arbor Riders.

Not Bondsmen But Bondswomen.

Miss Emma E. Bower presented her bond as treasurer of the school board at the adjourned meeting of the board Tuesday evening. The document was decidedly unique, in that the sureties were all women and were as follows: Olivia B. Hall, Mrs. J. F. Nichols, Mrs. C. C. Warner, Lucy D. S. Parker, Ella R. Stafford, Elizabeth S. Pardon, Lizzy Voy Millen, Katherine T. Cramer, Frances J. Miner and Henrietta C. Penny. The bond was accepted.

Since Miss Bower's bond was presented to the board, some doubt as to the legality of the document has been raised, it being alleged that a married woman cannot legally affix her name to a bond and be held responsible. The opinion of the board in the matter is rather unsettled. Ex-President Beal said this morning that he saw no reason why a woman, holding property in her own name, could not be held responsible. Still, he thought it a matter for the lawyers to decide.

The elocution question came up at the meeting for generous discussion. The committee reported that the teaching of elocution be not made compulsory on non-resident students. President Scott objected to increased requirements on anybody and Trustee Gruner thought the salary paid, $450, too large for the amount of work done. John R. Miner moved that elocution be stricken out altogether from the curriculum and the teacher excused from duty. The matter ended by laying the committee report on the table.

The librarian reported the circulation of books for last year to have been 13,225. On motion of Trustee Miner it was voted to close the city schools next Wednesday, that being school day at the fair. Mrs. Dr. Garwood read the resolutions of the W. C. T. U., relative to liquor being sold at the county fair, but the board thought the subject out of its province and it was not taken up.

Winners on Wheels.

Hundreds of people lined up on both sides of South Main street Wednesday afternoon to witness the start and finish of the second annual ten mile road race of the Wolverine cyclists. The crowd had to wait an hour after the scheduled time for the start on account of unavoidable circumstances, but they were well paid for the temporary discomfort. There were thirty-six starters, many of them from Toledo, Jackson, Detroit and other places, Columbus, Ohio, being represented by two riders.

Percy Patterson, of Bay City, won first time prize in 28 minutes, 19 seconds, and got a National wheel, valued at $125. Geo. C. King, of Toledo, took second time prize, a pair of Palmer racing tires, in 29 min. 30 sec., John Schaffer, of Detroit, won third time prize, a pair of trousers made to order, in 28 minutes, 33 seconds.

Geo. C. King was the first rider in, but could not take first position prize, having won a time prize. Accordingly first position prize, a Victor bicycle, went to Paul C. Meyers, of Ann Arbor, who rode in 29 minutes, 06 seconds. Howard Coffin, of Ann Arbor, took second position prize, a pair of Morgan & Wright tires, in 28 minutes, 53 seconds. Third position prize went to C. H. Diehl, of Jackson, who rode in 28 minutes, 43 seconds.

Other Ann Arbor riders and their time were: Allen Smith, 31:45; G. M. Banfield, 30:07; Chas. Duncan, 30:25; W. J. Orr, 30:14; Frank Warren, 32:07; E. J. Stoll, 31:12; A. H. Staebler, 30:17; Roy Sage, 31:47 3-5; Geo. W. Kyer, 31:32; Lawrence Stamfer, 33:30 2-5; Frank Moorland, 31:25; O. G. Wheeler, 34:54; R. B. Canfield, 33:26; Walter Vaughan, 34:18; Clinton Millen, 34:55.

The officers of the race were: Referee, H. G. Prettyman; judges, J. E. Beal, Robert Phillips, R. S. Greenwood, Prof. J. A. Drake; starter, E. W. Staebler; timers, J. W. Weston, Detroit, Robert E. Staebler, John C. Walz, jr.; clerk of course, F. Muehlig; assistant clerks of course, Al. Long, W. Copeland, Henry Schlenderer, Ed. Schlenderer; checkers, W. H. Owen, August Tesser, H. B. Godfrey, Geo. Coates, T. R. Dodsley; umpires, Geo. H. Fischer, Frank Sutherland.

The prizes, a large number of which were presented by Ann Arbor business men, were unusually fine and did credit to the generosity of the donors.

Aboard for the Fair Grounds.

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week will be four great days for the people of Washtenaw county. They will be great days for Ann Arbor, for from the four corners of the county all roads will lead toward the city. Supt. F. E. Mills has promised the best fair in the history of the Washtenaw County Agricultural and Horticultural society, and judging from entries already in, in all of the twenty departments, he will more than keep his word. This being the forty-seventh annual fair, there are forty-six former good records to break, but there is no good reason to doubt that all will be smashed.

The live stock department is going to be a star attraction. In horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, Supt. Mills says that entries are abnormally large. One of the largest exhibitors will be H. C. Waldron, of Worden, who has made forty-five entries in the horse department, all Normans. Other large exhibitors will be W. H. Dell, of Stony Creek, and Fred Hutzel, of Pittsfield. E. L. Davis, of Davsburg, has made forty-two entries in the cattle, sheep and poultry departments. Geo. Nissly, of Saline, will be a big exhibitor of poultry and poultry supplies. B. D. Kelly, of Ypsilanti, has placed thirty-five entries of sheep, cattle, swine and poultry. He has a fine herd of Short-horn cattle. William W. Tubbs, of Seio, has made twenty cattle entries. Geo. E. Sperry, of Pittsfield, has fifteen entries of Shropshire sheep and poultry. D. B. Sutton, of Northfield, will exhibit a large flock of sheep. J. C. Chalmers, of Pittsfield, has entered eight head of Guernsey cattle. Whittaker Bros., of Lima, have a good flock of Blacktop sheep and have sent in eighteen entries. E. E. Leland and Son, of Northfield, also have eighteen entries of Shropshires. Live stock entries closed on Wednesday, with the biggest list ever had.

INTEREST IN SCHOOL EXHIBIT.

Commissioner of Schools Wedemeyer has his plans for the school department well matured. The fair society has offered $200 in premiums and the merchants have increased the amount to $400. Last year it took ten flags to supply those schools that had the largest percentage of attendance at the fair on school day, for there were ten schools that had every pupil present. This year ten schools may have choice of flags or of library supplies. Wednesday is to be school day, and an excellent program of speaking has been arranged by Mr. Wedemeyer. The list of speakers will include Superintendent of Public Instruction Pattengill, of Lansing, Superintendent A. M. Whitney, of Ypsilanti schools, and ex-Commissioner M. J. Cavanaugh.

THURSDAY—WOMAN'S DAY.

Thursday will be the day for women, and the day's program relating to them is in charge of Miss Emma E. Bower. She has secured the following speakers: Mrs. Lillian Hollister, of Detroit, ex-president of the state W. C. T. U. and at present great commander of the L. O. U. M.; Mrs. May Knaggs, of Bay City, president of the state woman's suffrage association; and Mrs. Mary Mayo, of Battle Creek, one of the chief officers of the state grange. The speaking will take place in a tent provided on purpose for the occasion.

The art department will be full. All the space in the main hall has been taken, and only four merchants have been crowded in at that. Applications for space have to be refused every day.

There will be unusually fine machinery exhibits. The space for carriages and manufactured goods has all been taken, and three tents which have been provided for the overflow are also filled.

THE SPEED DEPARTMENT.

There will be horse races on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. On the latter day there will be splendid bicycle races, while on all three days there will be special races.

The horse races will be as follows: Wednesday, 2:30 trot, yearlings, and four-year-old trot; Thursday, yearling stake, 2:38 pace and 2:40 trot; Friday 3:00 trot, 2:35 pace and free for all. The race program is in charge of Frank Butterfield, of Whitmore Lake, superintendent of the speed department.

On Wednesday and Thursday there will be interesting dog races between Leo, a pacing canine from Ypsilanti, and Prince, a trotter from Northville. This will be a handicap race, Leo receiving a handicap of ten seconds. His driver is but seven years old, weighs only forty-two pounds and is said to be the youngest jockey in the profession.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday there will be special exhibitions by the Kemp sisters, the Kemp brothers and Mlle. Rosalia. The sisters are only seven and nine years old and their performances with their trained ponies are said to be marvellous. They have been at the Ionia fair this week.

Friday's bicycle races, in charge of F. Stofflet, are bringing in many entries. $400 in prizes have been offered. There will be six races: Boys' one-half mile handicap, 16 years or under; one-half mile open; half-mile boys' race, 8 years or under; three mile lap race; one mile open; five mile handicap. All are under L. A. W. sanction. The prizes are all valuable.

There will be no gaming stands this year. Superintendent Mills received an offer of $500 for exclusive gaming privileges and also an offer of $150 for the privilege of a questionable exhibition, but both were promptly refused. There will be special railroad rates to the fair on both roads next week, tickets being sold for one fare for the round trip and good for five days.

It seems that the badger species is not wholly extinct in this part of Michigan. Last Monday morning John Kirkby, tenant on Geo. Preston's farm, four miles north of this village, was wamed by the barking of his dog that the animal was exercised by something of an unusual nature. On repairing to the spot he found a big badger at bay. With the aid of stones and the dog he gave the creature its quietus, and now displays its pelt as proof of his powers as a mighty hunter. The beast's claws were one and one-quarter inches in length and its weight about 32 pounds.—Grass Lake News.

The Milan Leader thus describes a bicycle collision: Our article in last week's issue of the Leader on pedestrians dodging bicycles went into effect here Monday night. Henry Pullen and Bert Taylor were the bicycle riders, the pedestrian was an escaped veal calf. In the semi darkness, however, the dodging was entirely omitted by all three, but the collision came with unabated fury, and great was it indeed! The calf was uninjured, but soared nearly to death. The fore wheel of Henry's bike struck the calf amidship and Henry went skating along the graveled street on his right cheek, and Bert came over on top of Henry and the calf. After they had torn themselves apart and taken an inventory of the debris, it was found that Henry had lost some of his cheek and the front wheel of his bike was twisted inside out and outside in, while Bert was as cheeky as ever, and his bike a good as it was the day he paid fifteen cents for it.

All nut trees and hazel bushes in the county are hanging very full of nuts.

What do you think of a man who will try to avoid the new school law by trying to figure out his children older than they really are? That man does not live in Chelsea or Ann Arbor, but in our model town of Dexter and in the year of our Lord 1895.—Leader. He thinks as little of his children as we think of him.

Geo. H. Foster, the old reliable well driver, has been over at Bridgewater the past few weeks, making wells for a number of farmers in that vicinity. The latest is told on a well known citizen who, in going by a certain business place quite late one night, heard a series of most unearthly sounds within. Hastily hunting up the village marshal, they repaired to the scene and forcing entrance made the horrifying discovery that the sounds emanated from the nostrils of the proprietor, who was enjoying a quiet little snooze before going home to the bosom of his family. None of the parties concerned are saying very much about it.—Dexter Leader.

A man by the name of Ellis, living in this vicinity, was a soldier in the Mexican war and is entitled to a pension, but is unable to unwind the tangle involved in the fact that in enlisting he simply took the place of another, assuming his name, and so served as a substitute without any record being made of the act. In other words, he personated the other man without any formalities, and so lost his own identity in that of a man he relieved. The romantic part of the transaction is found in the reason for the act, which was that the other fellow wanted to get married. We fear Mr. Ellis will never get his pension, though we sincerely wish he might, as he is needy.—Ypsilanti.

In reference to the now historic interview between a Chelsea and Dexter lady Bro. Thompson of the Dexter Leader, says: "Now look here, Bro. Hoover, if you expect to continue sliding down our cellar door don't rehash any more old chestnuts and endeavor to pass them off as Chelsea wit. We are willing to admit that you have a very nice little town up there in the mud, and hope you are doing your share of business, for you certainly need it. It is exceedingly bad taste for you to let slip so many envious remarks. When time and education have elevated your web-footed cranberry pickers to the standard of the remainder of the county, we will cheerfully do our best to have the right hand of fellowship extended to you. Until then, however, your portion must be prayers and probation."

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida street, San Francisco, suffered from a dread cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficiency of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. ADRIAN PRESS WASHTENAWISMS.

Ann Arbor canine owners are invited to walk up to the clerk's office and pay the license that permits a mangy cur, an ugly bull dog, a sleepy mastiff, a useless poodle, a more useless pug, a meek shepherd or a frisky black and tan pup, to legally live in that city with other people.

Occasionally there's a man over in Washtenaw county who thinks the fair the last of this month won't amount to much, because of this thing or that thing not being to his taste. These fellows should remember that the Michigan game laws permit the shooting of jacksnipes after September 1.

In the Ann Arbor art school Miss Hunt is announced to conduct classes in black and white, every Saturday morning. Thus the descendants of Ham receive equal recognition with the pale fawn—and Ethiopia in art, may properly date from this Ann Arbor era. Pupils please furnish chalk and charcoal.

A jury of Ypsilantians acquitted some Salvation Army parties who were arrested for blockading the streets. Capt. Allen appeared for the defendants, and by his vivid portrayal of the wickedness of the community and the increasing need of moral instruction, whereby others of their citizens could be kept from going to congress and otherwise falling into degradation, the jury was forced to acquit, on the theory of the greatest good to the greatest number. This gives the Salvationists the right of way, and also serves as a sort of atonement for Capt. Allen, who has for a long time been watching for an opportunity to do something that would excuse his promise to Washtenaw farmers that wool would be 50 cents if Harrison were elected.

With fruit so plentiful that people can hardly give it away, Milan boys still have so much of the "Old Nick" in their make up that they sneak around with slingshots, knock off the best peaches and pears, and scramble off with them before the women can turn around and get a club.

Thursday, Sept. 26, is to be woman's day at the Washtenaw county fair. We learn that the program is to be in charge of Miss Emma E. Bower, of the Democrat. That insures its excellence. If we visit the fair it will be on Thursday. That's when the fair of Washtenaw can be seen.

"Has Washtenaw coal?" queries the Argus. Certainly, down in Milan, Dexter and Ypsilanti, where they have the cash to get it. We have seen no ads showing much coal on hand in Ann Arbor. Ann Arbor people generally won't need to worry about coal for the future. They'll find it hot enough, and if there's a lack of coal a supply of brimstone that is inexhaustible is said to be available. Ez. Norris and Col. Dean please N. B.

The Methodist conference is in session at Ann Arbor this week. While it is a strictly business session in which the pastors between prayers fish for acceptable locations, still we trust that in their devotional deliberations they will not forget the newspaper and legal fraternity over there, and that they will continually remember the big fair that occurs the last of the month and which is worthy any intercession they may be able to give. Now that the students are away, and the city is like a grave yard, we suggest that the conference mark its deliberations with a little of the old fashioned Methodist vim, wherein the whole county of Washtenaw shall be aroused to a sense of its danger, and its old time democratic 1,200 majority shall be restored, and the fair be made a success.

Items Relative to Washtenaw County Rehabased by the Irrepressible Smith of the Monroe Democrat.

One of the latest results of the Ypsilanti whisky unpleasantness is the resignation of Rev. H. M. Morey, of the 1st Presbyterian church. The Elder's hostility to the saloons had been "on tap" some weeks. A part of his church not agreeing with him, Mr. Morey steps down from his pulpit.

Mrs. Davis, an elderly lady of Hudson, recently visited her daughter at Jerome and walked in the orchard. An old crooked-pated ram also walked in the orchard and espied Mrs. Davis, on whom he gazed with disfavor and squaring off made a hit that sent the old lady to grass with a broken leg—a breach of gallantry on the part of the sheep. Wool, however, is on the free list.

A Betzer, Hillsdale county, man has just been fined $10 for cruelty in running his horses. The moral tendency of age is towards the greater punishment of crime. An Ann Arbor man was lately fined $2, just for whipping his wife.

Farmers around Portage lake find neither deeds nor mortgages sufficient to hold their property against the marauding campers of that quarter. They would turn loose their sea serpent, but he is rented to Petoskey till October.

The Adrian Press, in its last issue, prints a five-column directory of the whereabouts of former Adrian people. Not to be outdone, the Grass Lake News publishes a six-column list of the dead in the village cemetery, but does not mention their present whereabouts.

J. W. Clement, of Victorville, Lenawee county, reports striking mud, oil, water and gas while drilling a well on his farm recently. He is the same man who reported losing all his cattle down the cracks made in the earth by the drought. Clement's condition is accounted for by the fact that he was formerly on the Evening News staff.

Great, pethy weeds grow like a forest along the edges of Allen's creek, Ann Arbor. The street commissioner feels delicate about cutting them, fearing the board of public works might want them for sewer pipe.

Washtenaw is now suspected of covering up a rich stratum. For some time symptoms have appeared and recently Samuel Tabbs, of Osborn's Mills, has struck on his farm, a vein, the extent of which he will prove.

How to Judge a Book.

We knew that the Moslems, when they conquered Persia, found in that country an innumerable quantity of books and scientific treatises, and that their general, Saad Ibn Abi Oneccas, asked Caliph Omar by letter if he would allow him to distribute those books among the true believers with the rest of the booty. Omar answered him in these terms: "Throw them into the water. If they contain anything which can guide men to the truth, we have received from God what will guide us much better. If they contain errors, we shall be well rid of them, thank God." In consequence of this order the books were thrown into the water and the fire, and the literature and science of the Persians disappeared.—Notices et Extraits.

Is such a thing possible? It is.

Many a woman suffers month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints.

Foolish do you say? No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully. "COMRADES ALL" AT CHATTANOOGA

Blue and Gray Shake Hands, Sectionalism Vanishes and the American Millennium Is Accomplished—Sketches of Dedicatory Exercises on Chattanooga Field—Extract from Gov. Altgeld's Remarks—Lesson of the War and of the Monuments.

CHATTANOOGA, Sept. 19.—If one may judge by the events of the last ten days, Mason's and Dixon's line has been wiped off the map. The friendly, brotherly, feeling that has been displayed here this week and that was shown at Louisville last week by the boys of the gray toward the boys of the blue, show that the bitter sectionalism that has so long divided the union no longer exists. For nearly a fortnight now the doors of the south have been thrown open to the men who came here thirty odd years ago bearing arms of slaughter and destruction. Not a single incident that would indicate a feeling of hatred on either side has been recorded. "Yankees" and "Johnny Rebs" grown gray with years have gone over the great battlefield together, discussed the events of those awful days, drank together and even in some instances, slept together, without stirring up anything like an angry thought.

The Boys Are Fraternizing.

Generals who commanded armies for the Union have been guests of the generals of the Confederacy and each has solemnly declared that there is "no north and no south." "The events of today have bound us together as nothing else could have done, and the solemn yet joyous event of tomorrow will seal the tie forever." So spoke a venerable soldier of the north to one of the south at Snodgrass Hill, and the latter replied with tears in his eyes: "Comrade, you are right. Shake hands." And they did. Chattanooga's people are doing as much for the entertainment of their northern visitors as any one could wish.

Dedicated to the Living, Not the Dead.

Yesterday was devoted to the dedication of the monuments marking the positions in the field. At the Illinois dedication Governor Altgeld was the principal speaker and in the course of his remarks he said: "You observe we are marking positions, we are celebrating actions, we are pointing to what the living did; we are not building tombs, we are not decorating graves, for not very many of our heroes are buried here. * * * 'Tis not their graves, 'tis their deeds that live. Men look toward the firmament for the names of the heroes and rarely ask where their bones are buried. Standing on the shores of the Mediterranean more than 2,000 years ago the great Pericles, while pronouncing a funeral oration over the Greeks who had fallen in defense of their country, said: 'The world is their sepulcher, and wherever there is speech of noble deeds there they will be remembered.' So with our heroes.

The Lesson of the Monuments.

"There have been thousands of battles of which the actors were forgotten almost as soon as the groans of the dying had ceased because there was no principle involved; it was simply human butchery. But not so with the battles of this war. Here was hanging in the balance the very existence of republican institutions among men, and the liberty of millions of human beings yet unborn. Never before was there such an issue; and when the smoke of war had cleared away, when the sun again arose over a peaceful land, the world beheld * * * that the battles and horrors of the war had been the birthpains of a new era, with which time had been pregnant; that they were hammers in the great clock of omnipotence peeling through the mists of the dawn of a new day for millions of the human race. That in brief is the sublime, the imperishable story which these monuments tell."

At Other Similar Exercises.

At half a dozen places on the field similar exercises were in progress. Michigan had led off, as a matter of fact, her state commission occupying for that purpose the platform on Snodgrass Hill, on which the general dedicatory exercises will take place today. The monuments and markers erected upon the battlefields of Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Missionary Ridge and Orchard Knob were presented to Governor Rich by Captain ex-Congressman C. E. Belknap, president of the state park commission. After Governor Rich had accepted the monuments on behalf of the state, General Henry M. Duffield, of Detroit, who commanded the Ninth regiment in the war, delivered an eloquent oration. The monuments were then turned over to General Fullerton.

BUCKEYE AND HOOSIER STATES.

Distinguished Men Gather to Take Part in the Ceremonies.

The Ohio dedication was under direction of General John Beatty, president of the board of commissioners. This was the most elaborate and notable event of the day. Bishop Joyce, of the Methodist church, offered prayer, and addresses were made by General Charles H. Grosvenor, ex-Governor James E. Campbell, General Aquilla Wiley, who turned the monuments over to Governor McKinley, and he in turn to General Fullerton. Members and officers of the state commission also spoke. Governor Campbell's address was largely a eulogy upon General Ferd Vandever, a fellow townsman, who took an active part in the battle.

A distinguished gathering marked the dedication of the Indiana monuments at the camp established near Cave Springs. Besides Governor Claude Matthews, the occasion presented as speakers the soldier author, General Lew Wallace; Colonel I. N. Walker, the newly-elected grand commander, G. A. R.; General J. R. Carnahan, and Judge D. B. McConwell, of the Ninth Indiana infantry. Kelly's field was occupied by the Wisconsin people. Near it stands the monument erected to the First regiment of that state. The Rev. Jackson E. Webster, chaplain of the Tenth Wisconsin, opened with prayer. Addresses were made by Governor W. H. Upham, ex-Governor Hoard, W. W. Watkins, chairman of the state board, and others.

Massachusetts monuments were dedicated at Knob Hill at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The ceremonies were short, simple and impressive. Governor Greenhalge called the assembly to order and made the address of the occasion. He briefly reviewed the part that Massachusetts took in the awful battle and then of the part she took in the great rebellion. In conclusion he spoke of the dedication of the field as a national park in honor of the heroes who fell there. At the conclusion of his speech the governor and his staff, together with the state commission, went to the National cemetery and decorated the graves of the Massachusetts soldiers buried there.

GREAT GATHERING AT NIGHT.

One of Barnum's Three-Ring Circus Tents Crowded With Veterans.

It is doubtful if P. T. Barnum in his palmiest days ever saw such a crowd at his circus assembled beneath one of his old three-ringed tents in this city last night. The occasion for this great gathering was the reunion of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. A large number of veterans belonging to the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, who came here from Cincinnati, were present as guests. The Veteran General J. D. Morgan, from Quincy, Ill, vice president of the society, and who is now past 80 years of age, presided in the absence of General Rosecrans.

When the meeting had been called to order General Morgan introduced Mayor George W. Ochs, who made the address of welcome. Response was made by General H. V. Boynton, secretary of the association. Following General Boynton, General Morgan made an address of welcome to the Confederate veterans, after which Senator Charles Manderson, of Nebraska, delivered the annual address to the society. He closed as follows: "My comrades and my companions, have no fear for the republic. It is based on man's love of liberty; its structure bedded on equal rights to all, and cemented by the blood of our slain. Let the pessimist feel disturbed, false prophets scent danger in the signs of the times and give forth forebodings of evil to come. Be not dismayed. This government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

PILLSBURY'S OBJECT LESSON.

He Is Discussing Wages with His Employes When the Statisticians Call.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 19.—The labor statisticians were given an unexpected object lesson in the settlement of a labor difficulty between the largest flour milling company in the country and a delegation of its employes. The commissioners had been invited to the general offices of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mill company to look into its business methods. At the moment of their visit Charles A. Pillsbury, the managing director, was having a conference with a delegation of employes who asked for a restoration of wages.

Pillsbury asked his visitors to listen to the discussion, an invitation they gladly accepted. Statements of both sides were made, Pillsbury showing that the milling business had been without profit for four years, and the men replying that it was profitable now. The reduction of 20 per cent. in wages still stands and they want it removed. After the discussion had progressed for some time Pillsbury turned to the commissioners and asked for their opinions.

Commissioner Powers, of Minnesota, diplomatically parried this query by pointing out that it would be manifestly improper to express an opinion. But the commissioners listened to the discussion, which was very friendly in tone, with evident interest.

STATUTE OR NO STATUTE.

The Texan Governor Is Going to Stop the Corbett-Fitzsimmons Fight.

AUSTIN, Sept. 19.—Governor Culberson was seen in reference to Judge Hart's opinion at Dallas favorable to prize fighting. He refused to express himself, but it is evident that he will ignore the opinion and prevent the fight. To be prepared for an adverse opinion he has been looking up Governor Ross' action on the Sullivan-Kilrain fight, which he prevented from coming off in Texas. Ross' order to the sheriff cites the laws still in force and commands him to enforce them.

Governor Culberson had several copies of the order made and it is certain he proposes to prevent the fight. Texas has a ranger force controlled and governed by special laws, and they can be ordered anywhere in the state by the governor without military red-tape regulations, and their special province is to prevent infraction of laws. Culberson will probably use this force. Culberson's action unmistakably indicated he would prevent the fight at all hazards.

Vest Still a Free Silver Man.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Senator Vest was interviewed in regard to his reported change of views on the silver question. He said: "I know absolutely nothing of the published report, and the alleged conversation never occurred. During my stay abroad no one approached me on the subject. I have not left the ranks of free coinage advocates and my adherence to the principles which I have always advocated is unchanged. I firmly believe in the full and unlimited use of silver against the single gold standard."

His Lesson Was a Costly One.

FINDLAY O., Sept. 19.—William Woodward, a wealthy and very eccentric old man living south of this city, has always believed in the honesty of his neighbors, and has never had a lock upon his doors. Some persons unknown entered his house while he and his family were asleep and found the hiding place of $600 in money, with which they made away without disturbing any one.

Stricken Fatally While Speaking.

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 19.—While Pension Attorney J. P. Dry was addressing the annual reunion of the One Hundred and Forty-fourth Ohio regiment in Lambright's grove, near Nevada, his speech suddenly stopped, and he fell from the platform to the ground. He was found to be suffering from paralysis and died in a couple of hours.

Alleged Abortionists Held.

OSKALOOSA, Ia., Sept. 19.—For the alleged death by abortion of Irene Severt, at Fremont, J. A. Gunn, a leading business man of unblemished character, and Dr. Boatman have been arrested and held in $2,000 bonds. The girl left a statement, written by another doctor, charging these men with her ruin and death.

Lawyers Who Make Their Own Wills.

Many celebrated men have neglected to settle their affairs. Ben Jonson, Dryden and Sir Isaac Newton all died intestate, Bacon insolvent, and the epigram on Butler's monument in the abbey sufficiently explains why he and many others like him never made a will:

The poet's fate is here in emblem shown: He asks for bread and he receives a stone. "Wills," said Lord Coke, "and the construction of them do more perplex a man than any other, and to make a certain construction of them exceedeth jurisprudentium artem." An old proverb says that every man is either a fool or a physician at 40. Sir H. Halford happening one day to quote the saying to a circle of friends, Canning humorously inquired, "Sir Henry, mayn't he be both?" At any rate experience teaches that lawyers who draw their own wills sometimes make great mistakes. Sir Samuel Romilly's will was improperly worded, Chief Baron Thompson's will became the subject of chancery proceedings, while the will of Bradley, the eminent conveyancer, was actually set aside by Lord Thurlow.—Teuple Bar.

Evidence in the Durrant Trial.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The principal witness to testify in the Durrant case was George King, organist of Emanuel church. He testified that Durrant being in the church about an hour after the time Mrs. Leake swore she saw Durrant and Miss Lamont enter the church; also that Durrant was pale, disheveled and sick and complained that he had been overcome by escaping gas. Witness smelt no gas.

Woman in a Postoffice Robbery.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Sept. 19.—Three men and a woman, charged with the robbery of the postoffice at Blossburg, N. M., Sept. 11, were arrested here. They are alleged to have driven from here to Blossburg, where they made a successful raid on the postoffice. They gave their names as Charles Black, Thomas Rivers, John Edwards and Louisa Vans.

IS THE COUNCIL ECONOMICAL?

Alderman Butterfield made a set speech to the council Monday night in which he lauded that body for its economy and spurned with contempt the charges of extravagance which had been made against it. If Alderman Butterfield is correct, and every good citizen should certainly hope that he is, the public should be fully enlightened upon the subject and the current belief to the contrary should be removed. But unfortunately the alderman's figures, on which he bases his whole claim, are worthless. The question is not how much money the council is putting in the various funds, but how much they are paying out of them. It is a question not of receipts, but of expenditures. This being the case the question has not resolved itself into how much taxes the council raised in July so much as it is how badly will the treasury be depleted when the council is through. Upon this depends the amount of taxes to be raised next year. The present council has audited bills during the five months of May, June, July, August and September. A fair comparison then would be the expenditures for the five months with the corresponding five months of 1893 and 1894, those being the years Alderman Butterfield has chosen for comparison.

For these five months in 1893 the total expenditures were $19,371.38. In 1894 for the same period the expenses were $22,296.73 and for 1895 the expenditures for the five months were $37,533.89.

These figures standing by themselves, while strictly correct, work an injustice to the council, for in them are included the sewer expenses. Deducting the sewer expenses paid during these five months of each year, the other expenses of the city are left as follows: 1893, $19,371.38; 1894, $21,666.09; 1895, $25,333.31. These figures for five months of each year show an increase in expenditures in 1895 of $3,667.22 over 1894 and $5,961.93 over 1893.

From these figures the friends of the present council claim that there should be deducted the money paid for the road roller, stone crusher and grader, or $3,746.66, as the city has that much more stock to show. On the same grounds the council of 1894 may deduct the $125 paid for a wagonette. These deductions being made, the ordinary expenses for the five months this year would exceed those of a year ago by $45.56.

The Argus would like to hear from Alderman Butterfield on this view of the case, believing that a discussion of the expenditures of the city is the best means of keeping them down.

The Argus is pleased to announce that it has added to its editorial force Mr. E. J. Ottaway, for several summers managing editor of the Petoskey Resorter, and last winter the University correspondent of the Daily Courier. Mr. Ottaway will have charge of the local and advertising departments, and as he is a keen newspaper man our readers will, we are sure, find cause to congratulate the Argus on this accession to its staff. His work will speak for itself and we promise to keep the Argus in the lead.

FUN IN THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Last Monday Night's Session Was Such as Would Make a Monkey Laugh—Very Facetious Aldermen.

Last Monday evening's session of the common council was worth a paid admission. There was more fun, hilarity and excitement than the usual Sunday school picnic affords. The fun was mostly furnished by the street committee and by Alderman Butterfield, who filed a lengthy statistical objection to a statement which he said Alderman Coon had formerly made in council, to the effect that the council had earned the reputation of being the most extravagant council that the city had ever had.

The report of the street committee came first, at least chronologically. It concerned the grading of S. University avenue, to which diverse and sundry objections have been made by some residents of that avenue. The report was a brilliant rhetorical display, contained some sound sense, some nonsense and is worthy a place in literature along with other volumes of American humor. Here it is:

"Your committee on streets, upon whose recommendation a grade was adopted for S. University ave., and the board of public works directed to improve the street in accordance with such grade, beg leave to report that after the work of improving said street was in part completed, various and sundry protests came to the knowledge of your committee from persons living in the vicinity who claimed that a great and irreparable injury had been and was being perpetrated in and upon their private property.

"That your committee promptly and courteously waited upon the aforesaid indignant persons and bore their criticisms, some of which were not a little unreasonable, like men of chivalry; that they found upon S. University ave. a mass of earth piled high in the middle of the street; and from six to eight inches above the grade recommended by your committee, and adopted by the council; that they were informed that the inhabitants living along the line of the street had been instructed by the members of the board of public works, that the street committee, the humble body which now addresses you, was doing the work at that point, that it, your committee was responsible for the whole matter, including the grievances of which complaint was made, and that it was the inexcusable incompetence and blundering efforts of your committee which constituted the instrument of this monstrous persecution of the innocents.

"That all this they endured without flinching, together with the irony, sarcasm, invective and even insult amounting to a literal threat of violence of a certain ex-official, who occupies the position of mere spectator passing along in the road, treating the latter, however, with becoming disdain.

"Your committee would further report that they have since been informed by the city engineer that the grade stakes for the improvement upon the western portion of said avenue were by mistake set six inches too high, thus accounting fully for the excess of earth that had been placed upon the street.

"Your committee would further report that no member heard a complaint in reference to this work until the same was almost completed, that the attention of certain members of the board of public works, as your committee is informed, was called to it, at a stage when it would appear to the most casual observer that something must be the matter, and that they, instead of notifying the street committee or investigating for themselves and comparing the work with the drawings on file in the office of the engineer, from which it is perfectly apparent that an error had been made, simply informed the people that the street committee had done the work and that the same was under the supervision of that organization.

"Your committee would further report that it has made no mistake in relation to S. University ave. and has nothing for which to offer an apology and that it does not understand that any of the work upon the streets is done under its supervision.

"That the engineer admits that the error was his and that the grade stakes have been lowered to correspond with the grade as recommended by your committee in the first instance.

"Your committee would further report that the extra earth which now lies upon S. University ave. is all needed to perfect the parking along the center of the avenue, and they recommend that the same be moved off the street and placed upon said park at the expense of the engineer."

Alderman Brown thought there was a "nigger in the fence" somewhere, in connection with that grading, and he had heard the avenue was to be turned into a driving course for Ann Arbor's fast horses. Alderman Taylor said the street had been graded because the people along it had been petitioning for years to get the trees in the middle of the avenue parked. Alderman Pretzman knew all the time that it would make a fine driving course and he was glad the city was getting on a level with the other enterprising cities of the state in that particular. Major Soule, of South University avenue, said he was perfectly satisfied with the new grade and if people wanted to make a driving street out of it he would be glad of it.

There the matter dropped and Alderman Butterfield took the floor. Referring to Alderman Coon's statement, as given above, he thought it called for denial in the shape of a resolution. He had it figured out that the monies appropriated by the council itself this year, irrespective of sums voted directly by the people, were less than in 1893 and 1894. Therefore he proposed the following resolution:

"Whereas, an alderman has stated in open session that this council has earned the reputation of being the most extravagant council the city has ever had, and

"Whereas, the fact is that the total appropriation for the year 1895 for which this council is responsible is less than it was in 1893 or 1894, therefore

"Resolved, That this council do and hereby does record its emphatic denial of the charge."

The resolution was unanimously adopted. The usual routine council business was disposed of. A communication from State Railroad Commissioner S. R. Billings said that he had received official notice regarding the location of a flagman at the Fuller street crossing of the Michigan Central, and that the matter would be attended to.

New Homeopathic Faculty.

The new faculty of the school of homeopathy of the University, as selected by the homeopathic committee of the board of regents, will be made up as follows:

Dr. W. B. Hinsdale, of Cleveland University, dean, and professor of materia medica and therapeutics.

Dr. R. S. Copeland, formerly of Bay City, professor of ophthalmology, otology and paedology, in other words of eye, ear, nose and throat diseases.

Dr. O. R. Long, for seventeen years superintendent of the asylum for criminal insane at Ionia, professor of the theory and practice of medicine.

Dr. Oscar LeSeure, of Detroit, professor of surgery and clinical surgery.

Although he has not definitely accepted, it is probably that Dr. W. G. Willard of the Chicago Homeopathic college, will accept the chair of gynaecology and obstetrics.

A superintendent of the homeopathic hospital will be appointed, so that each hospital will hereafter do business under its own flag. At the meeting of the board of regents, Sept. 25, it is probable that the selections of the homeopathic committee will be confirmed without dissent.

Dr. Wilbert B. Hinsdale, who has been chosen as the professor of materia medica and dean of the department, was born in Wadsworth, Medina county, Ohio, in 1851. He is a brother of Dr. B. A. Hinsdale, of the literary department. He graduated at Hiram college, Ohio, in 1875, and after several years of teaching he studied medicine. He graduated at the old Cleveland homeopathic college, now the Cleveland university of medicine and surgery, and entered upon the practice of medicine, in which he has since been engaged. Several years ago he became a member of the faculty of the college in which he had received his professional education, and has become an increasingly prominent member of the faculty from the time of his election. For the last two or three years he has filled the chair of materia medica and practice. At the time of his election to the position to which he has been called, he was the registrar of the institution, performing duties very similar to those that are attached to the dean's office in the homeopathic department of the university.

Opening Today.

Mr. B. St. James, formerly of the firm of Goodyear & St. James and who recently purchased the stock of Bach & Roath, has his opening today. Mr. St. James has proved himself a wideawake, hustling business man. He opens up today a splendid line of dry goods for the inspection of which he invites the ladies of Ann Arbor and vicinity.

Mr. St. James has purchased a large quantity of the very latest styles of goods and, as a result, has his large, new store packed to its utmost capacity with up-to-date goods. He has made a specialty of ladies' dress goods, underwear and hosiery. To the elaborate assortment in these lines Mr. St. James wishes to call special attention. The ladies cannot find a larger assortment in these particular lines anywhere in the county. Then, too, Mr. St. James bought these goods at a time and in such quantities that he is able to make the price right. The ladies should at least call and look over his new goods and new styles before purchasing. He is sure he can please you both in quality and style as well as in price. ### LOCAL BREVITIES.

Alice Wheeler Hawks has sued her husband for divorce on the ground of desertion.

The University hospital opened on Monday last and already contains a score of patients.

Adelbert B. Walker, the liveryman, was married yesterday to Miss Carrie Hamilton, of Salem.

Arthur Sweet has been elected trustee officer by the school board and it behooves the small boy to watch out for him.

The regular monthly social of the ladies' society of the Presbyterian church was given last evening in the church parlors.

Ann Arbor may have another educational institution added to its already long list. J. W. Sheridan was in the city this week looking up the prospects for a school of telegraphy.

Geo. B. Harrison, business manager of the U. of M. Daily, has arrived for his year's work and has arrangements for the Daily under way. The first issue will appear on Sept. 28.

County Clerk Dansingburg has received notice from Secretary of State Gardner that Washtenaw county's quota of volumes of the acts of the legislature of 1895 has been forwarded. It requires 199 copies to supply the public officers and newspapers of the county.

Through his attorneys, Lawrence & Butterfield, Herman Hutzler has begun suit against the city for the sum of $5,000, trespass on the case. The suit arises from the controversy regarding the Washington street sewer, and the refusal of the council to pay the bill for damages presented by Hutzler several weeks ago.

The board of public works held its regular meeting Wednesday evening, with all members present. City Clerk Mills was authorized to advertise for bids for coping the park on South University avenue, as directed by the council. It was voted to open a passage through the park at South Ingalls street. Mrs. Kittredge was given permission to cut down a tree in her sidewalk on Division street.

Marshal Peterson captured a small boy with a Flobert rifle one day this week and took the trouble to see what sort of charge he was using in his anti-sparrow weapon of death. There were just 104 shot in the charge, enough to deal destruction not only to the unlucky sparrow, but to the eyes of any pedestrian who might get in the way. The youngster got off with a sound piece of advice and with assurance that the next offence might prove more serious in its penalty.

There were two slight accidents in Wednesday's bicycle races, both due to the fact that the road was not clear. W. W. Griffin came to grief on the start, running into a horse and buggy at the foot of Main street hill. He was not hurt. The other accident happened to Chas. Banfield, just as he came in. A hack got in the way at Williams street and to avoid a collision with it, Banfield ran into the crowd, throwing him off rather violently. He was not badly hurt.

The Y. M. C. A. is taking advantage of the law enacted by the last legislature by making use of the "traveling" library. About fifty books, principally of fiction and history, have been received from the state library at Lansing, and are before the Y. M. C. A. boys for use for six months, when they will be returned to Lansing and another set of fifty may be obtained. The only cost is the freight, and a deposit of five dollars has to be made to cover all incidental expenses.

The entertainment course of the Y. M. C. A. for this winter is to be a good one. Five numbers will be given, as follows: 1—Laura Dainty Co., including violin, harp and baritone, October 15, 16, or 17; 2—Nina Drummond Leavitt, banjo and mandolin, assisted by the Ann Arbor Concert company; 3—Robert J. Burdette; 4—Rev. J. M. Barkley, of Detroit; 5—Royal Bell Ringers, of London. President Wagner says the association will not sell a single ticket less than 1,000.

J. A. Brown has purchased the grocery stock of Bradford & Co., from assignee Edward Duffy.

Superintendent Reeve of the University has been made special campus policeman by Mayor Walker.

Titus Hutzler has purchased the Spohr block, on south Main street, occupied by A. Teufel with his harness shop.

There will be a special meeting of the O. E. S. next Wednesday evening, Sept. 25, for the purpose of installing officers for the ensuing year.

Patrick Fitzsimmons, of Dexter, is in trouble with the courts. He is charged with keeping his saloon open on Sunday and the next term of circuit court will decide the matter.

The University foot ball team has gone to Omena, near Traverse City, for preliminary fall training. Eighteen men were taken. They will return to Ann Arbor about October 1.

The remains of Mrs. P. T. Gibney, late of Bay City, were brought to this city Tuesday for interment. Deceased was a daughter-in-law of Mrs. M. H. Herey, of Spring street.

Wadhams, Ryan & Reule expect that the improvements in their store will be completed next week, when they will have a magnificent front and a commodious and convenient block.

Mr. Hanby is doing a big business at Whitmore Lake with his saw mill, getting out lumber for the Michigan Furniture Co. Three teams are drawing logs from the Watkins farm.

E. E. Howe, the author of "Break o' Day," who is a frequent visitor of ex-Prosecuting Attorney M. J. Lehman, has been spending the summer at South Lake, preparing material for a new novel. His first novel had a good reception.

Miss Lucy Cole instructs the scholars in school district No. 3, Pittsfield, Lodi and Ann Arbor, in singing during the coming year. At the largest school meeting held in years it was unanimously decided to re-employ Miss Cole, this being her second year.

Mrs. Kathrina Schiappicassee, wife of Anton Schiappicassee, the fruit dealer of North Main street, died Tuesday morning of typhoid fever, at the age of fifty-four years. Mrs. Schiappicassee was born in sunny Italy and came to Ann Arbor nineteen years ago. She leaves, besides her husband, a family of six children.

The flag raising exercises at the Salem school Tuesday were a great success. There was a large crowd present, including a majority of the school patrons of the district. A splendid program, consisting of songs and recitations, was carried out by the scholars of the school. Prof. Charles Stark, principal of the school, made a short address of welcome. Speeches were made by Hon. George S. Wheeler and School Commissioner Wedemeyer. The flag, which is a very large and beautiful one, floats from a pole sixty feet high, presenting a very pretty appearance.

Hon. F. E. Mills returned home last week from Grand Rapids where he had been attending the state fair. Mr. Mills acted as one of the judges of Jersey and Holstein cattle. The fair was a great success. He met his brother, Clark Mills, of Mancelona, Mich. Together they visited the soldiers' home. His brother took the trouble to inquire about how many men of his old regiment, the Twentieth Michigan Infantry, had been inmates of the home. He was informed that since the home was opened only four men of that regiment had been there. Four companies of this regiment were raised in Washtenaw county.

Adam Frey, of Salem, is a guest at the county jail, with excellent prospects for a visit to Pontiac or Kalamazoo. Tuesday morning he came to the city and about the first thing drove W. K. Childs out of his office. Being successful there, he went to the office of Prosecuting Attorney Randall to continue his tactics. The prosecuting attorney being out of the office escaped unscathed. Frey demanded of the typewriter if Mr. Randall were in. On being told that he was not, he began to flourish his fists and cried out, "Well, then, you get the act for me." The typewriter not knowing just what act to get, and disliking the pugilistic tactics of her client, respectfully handed over the office to him. Frey followed her out and she dodged back in and shut the door in his face. There seems to be no doubt that he is insane and steps will be taken to have him committed at once to an insane asylum. Frey has caused trouble before in his own neighborhood.

The regents of the University have begun suit against Edward R. Root et al, of Coldwater, executors of the will of the late Henry C. Lewis, to compel them to deliver to the University certain pictures of the Lewis art gallery collection bequeathed to the University in the Lewis will. Root asserts that under the terms of the will only those pictures actually in the art gallery should go to the University and those in contention, he contends, were in the residence, not in the gallery. The clause of the will upon which the matter hinges is this: "I give to the University of Michigan all my paintings and statuary and all my art works of every kind and nature which are contained within my art gallery." The gallery was only a part of the residence, being connected therewith by a hallway. In the bill instituting the suit, the regents assert that the pictures at issue were removed from the gallery after the death of Mr. Lewis. There are about 150 pieces concerned, of the 725 pictures and statuary pieces of the collection.

An Ann Arborite's Lecture. The following in the Flint Daily News of the twelfth is written by a prominent attorney there, a graduate of both the literary and law departments of the University: "The lecture delivered by Prof. W. B. Stickney, of Ann Arbor, at the library building last evening, under the auspices of the Columbian club, was listened to with deep interest by a good sized audience. 'Nicola Tesla and Recent Marvelous Discoveries in Electricity and Ether' was the subject, and it was handled in an able manner by the speaker, who is an ardent admirer and strong champion of the Serbian whose startling electrical discoveries have opened up a new era in the world of science. Although Nicola Tesla is but 37 years of age he has fathomed many of the hidden mysteries of electricity and is the patentee of 127 inventions along this line. Prof. Stickney suggested that the world was upon the eve of even greater discoveries in electricity and ether, the latter of which he denominated as a storehouse of energy, and ventured the prediction that in five years from now the world would stand face to face with materialized forces of which it does not now even dream." We are informed that the preparation of this lecture is the result of a labor of love—spare moments improved as they flew.

NEGRO ORATOR ON THE PLATFORM,

And Colored Men and Women in Carriages in the Procession—Eloquent Remarks of Booker T. Washington—"Cast Down Your Bucket Where You Are"—The Touching of the Button and Starting of the Machinery—The Grand Finale.

ATLANTA, Sept. 19.—The great Cotton States exposition is open, and opened amid scenes that are unique in this "neck o' woods." A well-known writer once described a scene witnessed at the visitors' entrance to the British house of commons. The writer aforesaid and two traveling acquaintances, one of whom he calls "Alabama," had tried in vain to obtain tickets to the visitors' gallery of the British house, and failing had gone around to the entrance to that gallery to watch those who had been more fortunate.

"Great Scott, Alabama, look at that." As they stood there, among the first who came along with the coveted ticket of admission was a tall negro, coal black, escorting a pretty flaxen haired English girl. As they moved toward the entrance the writer exclaimed to his Alabama friend, "Great Scott, Alabama, look at that!" And they looked. The color line evidently did not exist in that country.

In a measure the opening of the exposition here was as remarkable in respect to the color line as scene the pictured in the foregoing. The programme in the Auditorium within the exposition grounds presented the remarkable spectacle of ex-Governor Rufus B. Bullock, elected chief executive of the state by Republican votes during the reconstruction period, and now a leading citizen of Atlanta and director of the exposition, acting as master of ceremonies in introducing in succession to a southern audience, Mrs. Joseph Thompson, president of the woman's board, and Booker T. Washington, the representative of the negro race.

Words of the Negro Orator.

This incident coupled with the appearance of negroes in carriages in the parade and the presence of the Negro building on the grounds emphasized the recognition given to the race by this exposition for the first time in the history of such enterprises. And Booker T. Washington's oration was worthy of the occasion. It was delivered in faultless English, with impressiveness and eloquence, and was frequently applauded. He said in part: "No enterprise seeking the material, civil or moral welfare of this section can disregard this element of our population and reach the highest success. I but convey to you, Mr. President and directors, the sentiment of the masses of my race when I say that in no way have the value and manhood of the American negro been more fittingly and generously recognized than by the managers of this magnificent exposition at every stage of its progress. "Cast Down Your Bucket Where You Are."

"A ship lost at sea for many days suddenly sighted a friendly vessel. From the mast of the unfortunate vessel was seen the signal, 'Water, water; we die of thirst!' The answer from the friendly vessel at once came back, 'Cast down your bucket where you are.' A second time the signal, 'Water, water, send us water,' ran up from the distressed vessel, and was answered, 'Cast down your bucket where you are.' The captain of the distressed vessel at last heeding the injunction, cast down his bucket and it came up full of fresh, sparkling water from the mouth of the Amazon river. To those of my race who depend on bettering their condition in a foreign land, or who underestimate the importance of cultivating friendly relations with the southern white man who is their next door neighbor, I would say, Cast down your bucket where you are—cast it down in making friends in every manly way of the people of all races by whom we are surrounded. Cast it down in agriculture, in mechanics, in commerce, in domestic service and in the professions.

Same Advice to the Whites.

"To those of the white race who look to the incoming of those of foreign birth and strange tongues and habits for the prosperity of the south, were I permitted, I would repeat what I say to my own race: 'Cast down your bucket where you are.' Cast it down among 8,000,000 negroes whose habits you know, whose loyalty and love you have tested in days when to have proved treacherous meant ruin of your firesides. Cast down your bucket among these people who have without strikes and labor wars tilled your fields, cleared your forests, builded your railroads and cities and brought forth treasures from the bowels of the earth and helped make possible this magnificent representation of the progress of the south.

His Promise for His People.

"Casting down your bucket among my people, helping and encouraging them as you are doing on these grounds, and to education of head, hand and heart, you will find that they will buy your surplus land, make blossom the waste places in your fields and run your factories. While doing this you can be sure in the future, as you have been in the past, that you and your families will be surrounded by the most patient, faithful, law-abiding and unselfish people that the world has ever seen."

BUTTON WAS TOUCHED LATE.

Not Until After 4 O'clock Was Everything Ready—The Great Fountain.

The orator of the day was Judge Speer. He traced the history of the exposition, and paid an eloquent tribute to its projectors and to the influence it would have on the moral and material elements of the south. When Judge Speer concluded his oration the ceremony of touching the button took place. Wires had been stretched from Gray Gables to Buzzard's Bay and still another wire had been stretched from the Auditorium here to the Machinery building. While Judge Speer was delivering his address the operator cleared the line to Gray Gables and shortly after 6 o'clock everything was ready.

Herbert's band played a selection and suddenly a flash of light from an electric lamp illuminated the buildings. There were great cheers. The exposition was formally opened. Down at Machinery Hall Engineer Charles S. Foster had attached two electric valves to the Frick engine and the 4,000,000-gallon pump. When President Cleveland touched the button the electricity opened a small valve which forced a jet of steam against a larger one, and this opening the steam was admitted to the cylinders. Mr. Foster was sitting by the big engine waiting for the signal from the president.

He held his head close to the electric valve for a half hour. When the valve clicked and the hissing steam poured into the cylinder he raised his hand to the engineers around him and at once all the turning and the ponderous machine announced the opening of the great show. Standing on the banks of Lake Clara Meer Luther Staininger directed the operations of the fountain, the greatest electrical creation in the history of the world. The single jet from the center of the machine suddenly began shooting and as it rose above the banks of the lake the men at Paine's fireworks building began a salute of 100 bombs.

The first bomb, thrown high into the air, notified the crowds around the ground that the exposition had really started and great cheers rent the air. This closed the regular programme, and the great crowd distributed itself over the grounds and the buildings for a first peep at the big fair whose formal inauguration they had just witnessed. The opening was a complete and unequivocal success, and the exposition begins with every good omen in its favor.

The Arion Glee club sang a song when Senator Manderson had finished and then Hon. Hillary A. Herbert, secretary of the navy, was introduced. As the secretary came forward he was greeted with loud applause, and made a felicitous speech. Lieutenant General Schofield, General Grenville M. Dodge, General Daniel Butterfield, and General Horace Porter each in turn made a brief talk, when Secretary Herbert had finished. The meeting then adjourned.

At the Gray Gables End.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Sept. 19.—The gold-rimmed button attached to a wire connecting Gray Gables, the summer residence of President Cleveland, with the motor in Machinery hall at the great Cotton States and International exposition at Atlanta, was pressed by the chief executive of the United States last evening. This act, coming at the close of an elaborate opening programme at Atlanta, was intended to furnish a fitting climax to the day's events in that city. Just before touching the button the president exchanged congratulatory messages with the exposition directors.

Odd Fellows' Supreme Body Bars Him Out of the Order.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 19.—At the session of the sovereign grand lodge, I. O. O. F., amendments to the constitution, introduced at last year's session, came up for final action. The first amendment was the addition of another section to article 16, providing that no saloonkeepers, bartenders or professional gamblers shall be eligible to membership in the order. This immediately raised a spirited debate, which lasted for more than three hours.

The vote was finally taken amid the utmost confusion and the amendment passed by a vote of 147 to 32, the requisite number being 135. This amendment has been successively introduced at the annual sessions for four or five years past, but its supporters have never been able to pass it until this time. When this had been done the hour was so late that the second important amendment was laid over until today. This is an amendment to shut out the negro.

LINCOLN, Sept. 19.—According to reports from O'Neill the vigilance committee of Holt county, members of which are credited with the lynching of Barrett Scott last December, is again active and threatening vengeance on residents who denounce its methods. Last week James Binkard received a letter warning him to leave the country or suffer death. The offense committed by Binkard was denunciation of the men who murdered Barrett Scott.

He heeded the warning and went to Iowa. Several other men have received letters, but have refused to depart. Prominent among them is John Menzie. When he received his notice he quietly hitched up his team, went to O'Neill and had his life insured for the benefit of his family, and returning home he put word to the vigilantes that he was ready to balance accounts at any time and place.

A GRAND TRIUMPH.

Baffled Many Times but Success Comes at Last.

(From the Grand Rapids Press.)

The following incident would be hard to believe if it had not occurred right here in Grand Rapids, and investigation by our representative has placed it beyond the reach of doubt. These are the facts in reach of Mr. J. H. White of No. 25 Halfley Place, has been an instructor in penmanship in different business colleges for the past fourteen years. He says: "Last October I was suddenly taken ill. I consulted a physician, who said the pain was from 'gravel' stones; gradually grew worse; the pain was in my back and side. My back swelled up in a great rage, and I finally grew so bad that I was taken to bed, as helpless as a child. I passed blood, and when the pain was at its worst I was like one crazy. The doctor injected morphine to give me relief, but further than that he said he was powerless, and nothing would do me any good but surgical operation. I believe my flesh was literally cooked in the attempts to relieve my agony, everything was used, mustard plasters, turpentine, hot cloths and all such things. I was in this condition, given up by the doctor, and almost out of my mind with suffering. I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and really I felt easier in 20 minutes. After about two hours I had a passage of urine, and passed blood and some 'gravel' stones which greatly relieved me. I rapidly improved. I took in all six boxes, and I feel to-day entirely well. Mine has been a wonderful case. I feel that I cannot say anything strong enough for Doan's Kidney Pills. My great wish is that they may become well known. They will prove a boon to mankind.

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

REDUCING GROCERIES.

It has been said that "the mills of the gods grind slow but they grind exceedingly fine." Now we have done better for although our groceries are "exceedingly fine" we have reduced them in our price-grinding mill, in less than no time. We won't say that we have reduced our entire stock, but we have put down the price upon articles too numerous to be enumerated.

CONCERNING THE SCHOOLS.

Supt. Whitney's Address at the County Fair Last Year.

(Published by permission of Supt. Whitney, by the managers of the Fair.) Ladies and Gentlemen.

A few weeks ago it was my privilege to witness a procession of more than 15,000 children. Today I see assembled on a somewhat different occasion several thousand more. When we look about us and see men defying the authority of the government and engaging in the wanton destruction of life and property, as we saw only too plainly a few months ago, we wonder if any of those children who engaged in that great Sunday school parade in Detroit a short time since, each one of whom carried the United States flag, or any of those who are assembled here today, will ever be guilty of such crimes and open defiance of law and order, and a sense of our responsibility as teachers comes over us more forcibly than ever before. We are anxious not so much as to how we shall best teach arithmetic, grammar, geography, and all the other branches of the school curriculum as we are as to how we may train up the boys and the girls, too, to become good citizens.

The many nationalities we find in our conglomerated civilization make the problem indeed a difficult one. We wonder how many of these riotous strikers in Chicago and elsewhere have ever received any training for good citizenship in the public schools? If they had all received such training we might well despair. But we are encouraged when we know that very few of them could even speak our grand mother tongue, much less had ever been trained to love and honor our flag and free institutions. Our hope of defense from anarchy lies in our public schools and in the enforcement of our compulsory educational laws. We must have the best schools possible, and then must keep the children of all colors, all creeds, and all nationalities in them, and we shall find that "Caucasian, Coptic and Malay," Hungarian, Pole, German and French all make good citizens, when put through the amalgamating process of the public schools.

We have been striving to find out how to do things to the best advantage, as well as to find out what to do. We have been studying school systems and the methods of doing things employed by others, but only until very recently has anyone struck the root of the whole matter by beginning a study of the child himself. The subject of child study is one of the most fertile fields for cultivation. We must know what the child knows and build upon it. We must observe how the child's mind acts when acting naturally and assist it to act in its natural order.

The child knows a great deal about a great many things when he enters school. He knows a great deal about arithmetic; he has played with his blocks and marbles and will undoubtedly be able to give his teachers many points on the "combinations from one to ten." He knows a great deal about geometry; watch him when school is dismissed and see him demonstrate the proposition that, "A straight line is the shortest distance between two points." So he has a little practical knowledge of a great many things, and we have only to guide him along the lines he has already started. He is a natural patriot, and if properly handled, will make a most excellent citizen. We need to limber up our course of study so that he may be given an opportunity to develop his heaven-given faculties. We need to teach patriotism more though we have to teach arithmetic a little less.

We are, I think, beginning to admit that there is a little something of importance aside from arithmetic, grammar and geography. We are beginning to admit that it doesn't hurt a boy or a girl either—and a very young one at that—to know a little something of history and of our government; of literature and our great writers; of drawing, music, geometry, physics, astronomy, botany and almost every other subject, and, children, you need not "wait until you grow up before you can understand these things," as so many of us have often been told we must do.

We need to know more of the relative values of studies. We have been until recently entirely neglecting to teach a good practical knowledge of how to wire our own language in order that we might find time to crowd the children's minds with technical grammar and diagraming—the most indefensible of all fads that human ingenuity or Yankee skill ever invented. We have been teaching a multitude of rules and formulas in arithmetic, and with the younger pupils the most of whom leave school before they are twelve years of age, entirely neglecting the study of history and literature which would tend to make better citizens and create a taste for good reading.

Do not think for a moment that I argue that these old foundation stones should be utterly demolished. By no means, but the point I wish to make is, there are other things of equal or greater importance that should have a place in our school curriculum. We need to limber up our courses of study so that the children may be prepared "to have life and to have it more abundantly." You fathers and mothers should become interested in these questions. You should know what your children are feeding upon, and see to it that none others are more favored than they. You should live with your children and near them, for when father and mother both live near the children then the children are comparatively safe.

The one point, then, in the new education, if indeed it be new, is to keep the child and the student and the teacher, too, in touch with their environment, and to make that environment the best possible. Isn't one reason why some of us are such poor teachers that we are completely out of touch with the children and the world in general? This may at one time have been thought to be a necessity. Indeed, even now there are some who would have the teacher wholly apart from the thought and the activities of the thinking, active world. It was only a few days ago that I saw something to this effect in one of our so-called educational journals. I quote as nearly as I can remember: "A teacher should in no case express himself publicly or too freely in private upon the questions that are agitating the public mind." Of what use is the teacher anyway, and why is he tolerated in this world of woe?

The ideal teacher, then, according to this standard is one who never thinks upon a public question, or if he thinks never expresses himself upon any question of religion—I dare not say of denominationalism—of government or of social policy. He is asked to make good citizens of his pupils, but he must not under any circumstances tell them what constitutes a good citizen; he must teach patriotism, but he must not be patriotic enough to condemn the conduct of riotous strikers, or to attend a caucus or to vote for what he thinks is right. Such folly reminds me of the man who said he liked a certain church with which he was connected, because it troubled itself neither with politics nor religion. Whenever any code of etiquette decrees that a teacher cannot, with good taste, express an opinion upon any public question then that code of etiquette should undergo an immediate revision.

But I fear I am wandering. I spoke of the extension of the school curriculum in order to keep the children in touch with his environment. This implies a progressive spirit on the part of the teacher. She must avail herself of every favorable opportunity for advancement by broadening her education, by attending teachers' conventions, and summer schools, by visiting schools, by reading the best literature, and by occasionally doing a little downright hard thinking. I wish every teacher would at the close of each day take just ten minutes to think over what she has done, how she has done it, and why she has done what she thinks she has. She might then be greatly benefitted and avoid many errors. But the duty of improving our schools does not lie wholly with the teachers. You school directors should have a very prominent part in it. You can well afford to give your teachers a good equipment and to make their surroundings as pleasant as possible. It will pay in the better teaching which they will be able to do. Perhaps one thing which may be as helpful as any, in fact, I know of nothing more directly helpful to any teacher, will be a small but well selected library found in every school house in the county. You have been fortunate for the past few years in having for your commissioner a man who has been interested in this subject, and with proper effort on your part you can do much in this line to give your children a taste for good reading.

In some respects the child that is born and educated in our rural schools is fortunate, very fortunate. Carefully prepared statistics show that 91 per cent. of the successful business men of our large cities came from the country, and I doubt not this is true of other cities. Yet I would not attribute their success to the great superiority of the country schools over our city schools. There are two great advantages which the country boy has. First, he is usually allowed to advance in his work as rapidly as his ability will permit. To state it negatively he is not held down by any grade or class; while in too many of our city schools, once in a class of forty pupils means a completion of the course with the same pupils, be they dull or be they bright; for allowing a boy to advance according to his ability is felt by the parents of the other boy to be extreme partiality—as the Coxeyite feels that he is discriminated against because you have always been attentive to your business, have prospered, while he, who has been tramping the country, and declaiming against the injustice of our laws, sees the doors of the poorhouse opening before him. But the man who thus wastes his time and the boy who lounges and loiters, plays truant and comes into school a few minutes tardy each morning, is discriminated against by laws more inexorable and irrevocable than rules of the school or acts of congress.

There are early varieties in children as well as in pumpkins and potatoes, and those that ripen first should be the first on the market. The bright pupils in every school should deserve an opportunity to exercise their talents as the bright man in the business world has a chance to exercise his, without anything but an honest and honorable relation to the activities of others. If a child does not have this opportunity for free competition, he soon becomes a dawdler, cultivates, per force, habits of inactivity and is finally outstripped by those naturally not so keen as himself. He makes a poor citizen when he becomes a man. We need, sir, to limber up our city school system so that the bright boys of the city, and there are a few of them, may have as good a chance as the bright boys of the country. The second reason I would give why the boy of the country has an advantage of the city boy is that he always has something to do. The country boy goes from school at four o'clock to do work about the farm and to do the chores about the house. He makes the acquaintance of his father in the field and of his mother in the home; while too many of our city boys go from the schools to the vice of the street and to the gambling and cigarette of the alley, away from the association with and wise counsel of his father and the benign influence of his mother. There is no danger so great for a man or a boy as idleness. Mothers and fathers of the city, if you would save the boys give them something to do. Buy an ax and a saw and let them work up that wood pile, no matter how large your bank account.

Let him keep the weeds from the garden and the tall grass from the lawn, the dirt from their own clothes and the dust from their own shoes. Don't do everything for them. It pays to teach the boys to work, not so much for what they can do as for what it does for them. If more of our boys could have a piece of ground, a shop, a place of some kind where they could work off their superfluous energy, we should have less occasion for truant officers and reform schools. To supply this defect the manual training school has been introduced into some of our larger cities, but it will fail of its purpose if it fail to teach the true value of work. May the day soon come when some public spirited citizen in all of our cities, small as well as large, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, as well as Cambridge and Toledo, Minneapolis and Boston, recognizing that work is one of our greatest blessings, emulating a Rindge or a Franklin, shall erect a lasting monument to himself or herself by founding a manual training school in which both boy and girls may become skilled with the hand and the eye, and may learn that all toil is honorable, and from the kindergarten to the university our education may be one characterized by work.

Whatever, then, be the nature of the training of the child it is the duty, the business, let me say, of the school to train emergency men and emergency women, men and women who will have stability of purpose and principle, who will not be moved by the barking of a dog or the howling of the wind. We want men and women who will have the Epilepsy 20 Years. Cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

A few years ago, Mr. L. W. Gallaher, was an extensive, successful expert manufacturer of lumber products. Attacked with epilepsy, he was obliged to give up his business. The attacks came upon him most inopportunely. One time falling from a carriage, at another down stairs, and often in the street. Once he fell down a shaft in the mill, his injuries nearly proving fatal. Mr. Gallaher writes from Milwaukee, Feb. 16, '95.

"There are none more miserable than epileptics. For 20 years I suffered with epileptic fits, having as high as five in one night. I tried many of the best physicians, paying to one alone, a fee of $500.00 and have done little for years but search for something to help me, and have taken all the leading remedies, but received no benefit. A year ago my son, Chas. S. Gallaher, druggist at 191 Reed St., Milwaukee, gave me Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and I tried it with gratifying results. Have had but two fits since I began taking it. I am better now in every way than I have been in 20 years." Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by druggists on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit or price refunded. Book on the Heart and Nerves, free. Fire Apparatus in the American Colonies. The early settlers in America paid no attention toward protecting themselves against fire, and the different colonies had grown into fair sized communities with several industries well established before any steps were taken in that direction. About the earliest mention of a definite method of fire protection was made at Salem, Mass., in 1644, when each inhabitant was ordered to be supplied with a ladder under penalty of a fine of 5 shillings. These ladders were undoubtedly made in Salem or in the immediate vicinity, and one might readily say that here began an American industry that is now carried on so extensively in many places and under a multitude of different forms. In 1648 four fire wardens were appointed in New York city. These men passed a law to fine every one whose chimney became foul or whose house was burned by his own carelessness. The money so obtained was to be used in the purchase of ladders, hooks and buckets. These were not provided, however, until some years later.

Boston also took steps in this direction, and on the first day of the twelfth month of 1653, or, by the modern method of computation, on Feb. 1, 1654, the following entry is found in the town records: "The selectmen have power and liberty hereby to agree with Joseph Jynks for Ingins to Carry water in Case of fire if they see Cause soe to doe."—John G. Morse in Popular Science Monthly.

Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead." "The Old Homestead," which will be the attraction at the Grand opera house Wednesday night, is not a surface play. The emotions of the lowly folks he depicts are deeper than those of the city-bred who, accustomed to school themselves, forget, in the victories of today, the disappointments of yesterday. But not so with the lowly tiller of the soil, for to him, yesterday's tragedy hovers as a cloud over him and is his for today and for many days to come, and it is only after many weary disappointments, that the familiar smiles again chase across his honest countenance as he beholds the silver lining breaking through, where the clouds seem darkest. In Joshua Whitcomb Mr. Thompson has given to the stage a character creation foreign to any that has ever been presented before, a character so honest, so homely, so true, that the actor is forgotten, and we seem to hold converse with the very man himself, aiding him in his trials, sharing in his sorrow, rejoicing in his joys, and, as the curtain drops in the play, feel as if parting with an old friend of years, instead of an acquaintance of a few hours only.

Presented here on Wednesday evening, Sept. 25.

A Michigan Law Graduate on Marriage.

The following extract from an article in the Ohio State Journal, on why college graduates do not marry, will interest the friends of the University of Michigan:

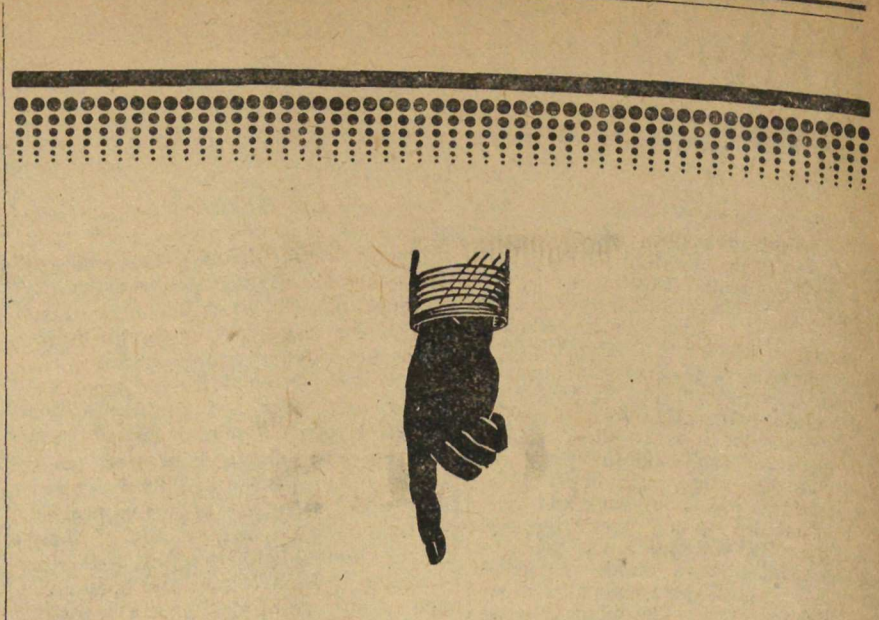

"The last of these college girls had been the most ambitious of all. When she carried off honor after honor, her friends prophesied great things for her. Always wanting to be a lawyer: she entered the law school of the University of Michigan the year after she graduated. So well poised was her mind, so judicial her temperament, that the examiner singled her out from a large class as worthy of especial commendation.

"She even reached the fame of three lines of Associated Press matter, always printed advantageously in the newspapers under a half column descriptive of a Kansas woman's fight with a bear, under the double header 'What Women Can Do.' This woman married a man to whom she had been engaged in her college days. He studied law in the same school. Of southern birth, he wanted to settle in Georgia, the state which seemed to him pregnant with possibilities. They settled in Georgia, although the wife had always a longing for Minnesota. He is now a rising lawyer and she an excellent housewife. I was with her for two days before I could quite explain the heartbroken look in her face. We were sitting together one evening, and I said: 'Your husband doubtless owes something of his success to your well balanced mind. How happy a man must be who has a wife that understands all about his business!'

"You are still a theorist, I see. My husband is too tired when he comes home at night to think of his law cases. He never mentions them. I tried to help him, but no man with a good brain needs a woman's head. He only needs her hands.' Then turning to the little daughter at her side, she said, with an energy that called the ambitious school girl to my mind: 'This child shall know from her mother that a husband is not necessary for a woman's happiness, and a profession is. What would I not give if I could feel this night my brain on fire and every pulse quickened by the eager study of an intricate case at law!'
