Coroner Ball was notified and he went to the spot where he found the body of a man about 40 years of age lying near the track. The skull was crushed and the body was still warm viewed the body and it was taken to O. M. Maritn's undertaking establishment. In his pockets were found a letter addressed to him from his mother Mrs. F. Steele, of 818 Willow st., Port small articles.

At the inquest held in Martin's undertaking rooms Monday afternoon, four witnesses were examined. The engineer and fireman of No. 8 testified that there was no negligence on the part of the railroad employees. Theodore Jackson said he saw Steele walking on the track about 10 minutes before the train came in. He walked perfectly straight. When on the main track he laid down and to all appearances went to sleep. The evidence of Charles Balfranz, who was in a boat on the river, was substantially to the same effect as that of Jackson. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death in accordance with these facts.

John H. Steele, a brother of the deceased, came here and took the remains to Port Huron on the 3:47 p. m. train Monday, where they were interred. He said that some years ago his brother got hurt in the mines in northern Michigan, since which time he had trouble with his head and had been subject to fits of apparent numbness of his faculties when he would have no control over himself, and it is probable that during He was a son-in-law of Mrs. Kather- one of these fits he fell down on the

AN UNMARKED GRAVE.

The Resting Place in This City of Michigan's First Chief Justice.

The workmen, who were laying the water pipes through Felch park last Saturday came upon a heavy iron casket, heavily coated with rust, which was about six feet under the surface. A TIE FOR A PILLOW. Fletcher, who died in this city in 1852 after having lost his property, and who was buried at the expense of the Washtenaw bar. No stone had ever marked his grave. The body was reinterred where found.

> Judge Fletcher presided over the territorial circuit court here from 1833 until the state was admitted into the union. Judge Fletcher was the first chief justice of the Supreme Court of the state of Michigan, serving in that capacity from 1836 to 1842, when he resigned. He was a man of dignity and refinement and was respected by our citizens. Unfortunately he married his landlady whose insane eccentricities are still remembered by many of our older residents. They resided on what is now the fine Smith property on the corner of Washtenaw and E. University aves. She kept a cow and had the hay for it stored in their parlor. She bought many silk dresses and had them made up but never wore them. Instead she wore a short calico dress in which she used to come down town to sell eggs, taking the back streets to avoid the judge. She would make up batches of pies, cakes and bread, fill the oven and building no fire go away to let them finish baking. Twice she went east on visits, each time taking with her a large barrel of soft soap. She use to yell murder in the dead of night. Finally the judge secured a divorce from her.

> In spite of his unfortunate marriage, the judge was one of the great men of Michigan and it is a shame that the last resting place of the first chief justice of Michigan should go unmarked. Money should be raised to purchase at least a plain slab to mark the grave.

B asting Electricity.

Carelessness on the part of the motorman is, according to recent investigations, the cause of a great waste of elecdied in Ft. Collins, Colo, Aug. 6, of trical force. This occurs at the starting and stopping. Sometimes the power is left on until after the brakes are set, at other times there are merely partial currents, but quite enough to foot up a considerable aggregate. In fact, it is estimated that as much as 20 per cent of power may be lost in this way. So noticeable has this become that it has been found advisable to adopt a very simple device by means of which the lost current is, at least approximately, measured, and the amount thereof can be charged up against the unskillful or careless motorman.

This device consists of a strip of alloy placed in a box prepared to receive it. The alloy is held against the wire by a weight attached to the lower end of the strip. It is supported by a short piece of German silver wire of such cross section as to be heated by the current which flows through it to operate the car. At a certain temperature the wire melts its way through the strip The piano pupils of Miss Maude of alloy, thus allowing the strip and Wortley, of Chelsea, will figure in a weight to descend. There is an automatic device to prevent injury to the recorder or the stoppage of the car in case the wire should melt under an abnormal current. The recorder is pushed into place, at the same moment closing the car circuit. To insure its use the arrangement is such that unless the recorder is in place the circuit is open, and the car will not start. A record is home of the bride's mother, Mrs. N. runs and the number of inches of alloy melted during the run. This is returned at the end of a month and is posted up Miss K. Maude Cady, formerly critic over against the man's name. It has been estimated that a considerable saving is effected by this means.-New York Ledger.

The Young Member.

Grantley Berkeley tells, in his "Life and Recollections," how a member for Ludlow, in the last parliament of William IV., "tried to make a maiden speech, and, rising in his place with a very tald head, known, too, as he was congress, for personal gallantry at the to everybody, as one of the oldest stagers in all the ways of the world, he began with great affectation of inexperience and with an exceedingly mild voice, 'Mr. Speaker, I am but a young member.' On hearing this assertion from so well known and crafty a man, possessing so venerable a pate, the entire house roared with laughter. Twice he stopped, and three times he commenced with these words, but it was useless. The house would not listen, and he never to my knowledge essayed to speak again, or, if he did, the sight of his bald head, set his audience in a Robert Sherwood, of Cherry Hill, roar." Parliamentary manners are commons, when a venerable looking member of 60 claimed indulgence for his maiden speech. - Gentleman's Mar-

Banking In Melbourne.

The banks and banking business here are a marvel to Americans. There are 17 banks in this city. The three largest have deposits of nearly £18,000,000 ($90,000,000). They carry large cash reserves and make advances to customers on quite a different system from our banks-on open accounts or overdrafts, as we call it. They all issue notes, one colony cashing the notes of another at a discount of so much. They charge you a little something for everything they do, but then you know that's after the English system of trading. They use the check system, and everybody has an account and nearly everybody overdraws. A fellow told me the other day that the man who couldn't overdraw his account didn't amount to much. There is not more loss to the banks here than in America from overdraft. The banking business seems thrifty. - Melbourne Letter.

It is now the general conclusion of scientists that light is simply the result of vibrations or waves which occur in a hypothetical substance known as the ether, a substance supposed to permeate all space and all objects and to be coalmost as well not eat, for what good can your food do you if it doesn't to this theory, when the ether is caused to vibrate at a certain rate it gives rise to the sensation of light in proportion to the rate of vibration, or, in other words, the wave length. In this way, chemists assert, the various colors are produced, red having the longest wave length and violet the shortest wave length of any of the colors-that is, there are more waves or vibrations in a given time in the case of violet than in the case of red light. Briefly, in relation to this peculiar phenomenon, the theory is that colored bodies owe their color to the fact that they exert a selective action on the waves or rays of light which fall upon them, allowing some to pass on, and so give the effect of color, while others are absorbed or destroyed.

Chicago, Aug. 17.-Prosperity has really arrived. Out of twenty-two merchants interviewed at random as they came into the headquarters of the National Association of Merchants and Travelers within an hour Tuesday morning, eighteen of them reported a marked increase of business within the past six months. Report a Large Business.

Local jobbers report for Monday and Tuesday the biggest business they have done since 1892. The reasons given for this are varying, but most of the visiting merchants attribute it to good crops and high prices for them. Many ascribe the change to the settlement of the financial question, the dropping of tariff disturbances, or the imposition of protective duties. But the big crops are the favorite reason. The statements made by men interviewed give a fair idea of the general sentiment. All the merchants coming into the association headquarters are asked to fill out blanks describing trade and agricultural conditions. The proportion of "prosperity stories" in the total interviewed is about the same. These reports come from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and the other states in this part of the country.

"There is a decidedly better feling all around our part of the country," said H. N. Dayhoff, a member of the firm of Dayhoff Bros., dealers in general merchandise in Dayton and in Donegal, Dixon county, Kan.

MAKING TOOTHPICKS.

THE INQUISITIVE MAN LEARNS SOME-THING IN LEWISTON.

He Is Shown Over the Toothpick Factory by a Bright Boy Who Was There For That Purpose-A Big Machine Too Intricate For Description.

The inquisitive man alighted from the cars in the city of Lewiston, Me., and stood on the station platform in an attitude of indecision, for he was at a of his tracks during both races. loss to say in which direction it would be most desirable to turn.

"I can earn a dollar a day packing toothpicks, and that is better than working in the cotton factories," he heard a little girl say to a companion, and instantly the inquisitive man had found an occupation.

"Packing toothpicks! Of all things, I prefer to see a toothpick factory, and it is fortunate I blundered on board that train," he said to himself.

Then, with the air of one bent on most urgent business, the inquisitive man set out in search of the toothpick factory.

It was not so imposing a structure as he had expected to see, but there was so much bustle and semblance of industry everywhere around the establishment that his disappointment as to the general appearance of the building was round these parts?"

"I do not icmember ever having been here before.

"Then I guess you never have, because you wouldn't be likely to forget a toothpick factory if you'd ever seen one. We make 6,000,000 picks a day, and that's quite a pile. Anyhow, you'd think so if you had to count 'em before getting a bite to eat. Want to see the machine?"

"Can you show it to me?" "That's what I'm here for."

"I should think that it would be more profitable to work in the factory than to idle your time away answering the questions of ignorant people like "That's where you make a big mistake, mister. It's a mighty mean man who won't pay me for showing him 'round, and I pick up fair wages when there's a good crop of visitors. Come along, and I'll show you the toothpick business. Here in this yard the stock is sawed into pieces 61/4 inches long," And the small boy pointed to the inclosure in which a dozen or more circular saws were buzzing and humming as they quickly divided the logs into the required lengths.

All pieces not clear and straight grained were thrown aside, and the remainder was being packed into barrels so made that wide crevices appeared between the staves.

'Yes, that's all right, "the small boy said, answering the inquisitive man's crop assured. Woolen and cotton mills look of inquiry. "The stock is being packed for the steaming room. When the barrels are full, they'll be taken there and left about three hours, when the blocks will be almost as soft as leather. Charging the wood with steam drives out all the sap, and it is then is done.'

The small boy led the visitor to a what is known as a "veneer machine," a piece of mechanism not unlike a lathe, which was rapidly converting the wood into pliable bands, hardly thicker than the work was much as if a roll of cream colored ribbon was being unwound and thrown carelessly on the floor. Two boys were gathering up the damp material and winding it on huge spools.

"They're getting it ready for the big machine," the guide said as he chewed a fragment of the wooden ribbon. "Every one of the spools holds about 100 feet of the veneer, and the rest of the work is done so quickly that you won't have much of a chance to see the operation.'

The "big machine" was so intricate that the inquisitive man realized that he could not describe it intelligently, even though he should spend many hours studying its construction. He saw at one end of a long, narrow structure, filled with wheels and knives, arms on which the spools of veneer were hung and observed that men pushed the ends of the wooden ribbon through narrow slots, where it was seized by little steel fingers.

He knew that somewhere inside the machine the material was being cut, trimmed and smoothed into flat picks with chisellike ends, for directly opposite to where the veneer was being fed to the iron workman a long spout shot out toothpicks in bewildering numbers. It was a perfect cloud of tiny bits of wood, which would soon have buried the machine itself but for the fact that boys were gathering the harvest into wooden boxes with wire bottoms capable of holding a peck or more.

"That's all there is to the making," the guide said as the inquisitive man raised his eyes. "Of course they're soft now, as the veneer was, but these boys will take them into the drying room, and after they've had hot air forced through them by the steam blower for 20 minutes or half an hour they'll be stiff and brittle, so that you can break a dozen or so a day and in that way help to make trade good."-James Otis in Philadelphia Times.

Pneumatic Tires in England.

"Can the American makers establish a demand for the hose-pipe type of tire in this country?" The question is propounded by a writer in an English paper, who then proceeds to answer in the negative. "This is a question which seems to be agitating the minds of some of the people in the trade across the Atlantic. Some of them seem disposed to make any sacrifice in order to convert the English rider to the 'hose-pipe,' but I fear they will be grievously disappointed. This kind of tire does not suit the flinty roads of Great Britain, and we have learnt from experience how it lacks durability and resistance to puncture. If anything were needed to strengthen the convictions of the English riders that the hose-pipe tire is not suited to their requirements, it is the fact that a year or two ago one of the very best examples of that type of tire was exploited energetically in this ready for splitting. Come this way and country, and for a time seemed likely you can see how that part of the work to carry all before it; but after it had been thoroughly put to the test on British roads it could not face the orroom in the main building, where was deal, and the company formed to manufacture it was forced to make a doubletube tire its leading specialty. The Match Industry In America.

The first manufactory of friction matches was located in the center of the Connecticut valley, in the historic community known as Chicopee street. The principle of this invention had been thought out in Europe, but bright Yankee minds were quick to catch the idea from across the water, and the manufacture progressed as rapidly here as there. The credit for this invention is probably due to John Walker, a chemist, who lived in England in Stocktonon-Tees. He was experimenting with chlorate of potash and found that it could be instantly ignited by friction when coated on a stick with phosphorus and drawn through folded sandpaper. This discovery was made in 1829, and, the attention of Michael Faraday called to the new idea, it soon became popular, and the manufacture was started nearly simultaneously in Europe and America. The first factory for the making of friction matches on a large scale is stated to have been established in Vienna in 1833, but the factory on Chicopee street was running nearly as early as this, if not before -Springfield Republican.

Cipher Writing. The art of secret writing, or writing in eigher, was, according to Polybius, invented by Æneas, author of a treatise on tactics and other works. He produced 20 methods of writing in cipher, which no person could unfold, but we doubt much whether they would preserve this quality at the present day. It is no less strange than true that this art, so important in diplomacy, as long as couriers are liable to be intercepted, was held in abhorrence by the elector Frederic II, who considered it as a diabolical invention. When we get our European debts paid up, perhaps we will fare better in trading with Europe.

In order to make the consulates President McKinley has been so active in filling the last few weeks worth an office-seeker's while, the state department has issued orders largely increasing the fees they receive as perquisites. For instance, the rate they have been receiving for administering oaths is 50 cents. This has been increased to $2. and so on all along the line of official certifications the consuls make for the hundred thousand Americans traveling or residing in Europe the fees have been doubled. This makes the consulates worth having and will be a great relief to the McKinley personal appointees, whose income was in danger of abbreviation by the reform in the way of fees! Secretary Olney.

THE DUN MACHINE

As Viewed from the Standpoint of an Anti-Protectionist.

Dun, the republican croaker, calamity howler, and prosperity boomer, is trying hard in the last issue to prove that things are "looking up."

There's such a feeling of confidence that the bank clearings are the largest since 1892, (the great year) and it is due "to large investments for wheat, the crop being large, and the cotton crop being large"-the result of confi-

Certainly, the whole thing is due to confidence.

The tariff did it.

The gold standard brings the crops right.

Oh yes, of course, the business is increasing, but shipments don't prove it. "Leather is not active."

No, but the Dun lying machine is. 'Sales of wool, bear little relation to consumption, but dealers, since the tariff bill was enacted, are no longer confident of a speedy advance. Yet prices have risen during the past few weeks nearly one cent a pound.'

Marvelous! With the prices tending pward on everything but labor, and with a tariff of 12 cents a pound, instead of free wool, gamblers have managed to raise the price of wool one little cent per pound in two weeks. Wonder-

'Iron and steel products average slightly in price, but the outlook is altogether more hopeful. The demand for finished products is increasing, the feature this week beng large contracts from Russia, Sumatra and Germany.

Now would not that drive a pessimist off his peg? The iron industry is July we exported $32,829,204 worth of booming, or will be booming, for the tariff has brought orders from foreign countries for finished products.

It is no wonder, that with Dun's Review, started in 1892, to systematically exports of gold and silver exceeded our and croak continually about the danger of democratic rule, it helped bring on the panic over which it seemed to gloat with special pleasure. #### AN ARTFUL DODGER.

The Story of a Stolen Watch and a Truly Penitent Thief.

Being rich and proud, the old railroad magnate would give a reasonable fortune if this incident in his career had never become public. He had left his office one afternoon, and in front of the building found a crowd, attracted by a passing procession. He was pressing his way through when stopped by a brilliantly handsome young woman whose face wore a troubled look. She wanted to reach a street in the northwestern part of the city and was at a loss what route to take. He gallantly helped her out of the crush, put her on the right car and told her where to get off. Wanting to know the time a few minutes later, he dove into his watch pocket, only to find it unoccupied. A little profanity was followed by a chuckle, for the watch taken was a cheap affair he was carrying while his timepiece was being repaired.

He had never suspected the beautiful young lady, but the next day she appeared in tears and restored the stolen watch. She was sorely pressed for money, had no one to whom she could go for help and had yielded to a momentary impulse. But her conscience gave her no rest until she repented and made restitution. She had thrown herself on his mercy, and the old gentleman was deeply moved. He insisted on her taking $50, to be returned if she was ever in a position to repay, otherwise to be regarded as a gift. Overcome by a joyful reaction, she almost fainted and would have fallen but for the support of her benefactor. When she was gone, he felt as a man who had done a good deed and was on the best of terms with himself. He even looked in the glass to smile congratulations at himself. There he discovered that his big diamond pin was gone. The long pocketbook was missing from the inside pocket of his coat. With a weak hand he reached for his own $500 chronometer, and that, too, had vanished. He told no one but his wife, whom he swore to secrecy. That is how the affair got out. - Detroit Free Press.

Trouble Caused by an "I."

Editor Clugston of the Spiketown Blizzard looked out of the front window of his office, hurriedly grabbed his hat and darted out through the back door. says the Chicago Journal.

The last issue of The Blizzard had contained a personal item to this effect: "Our young friend, George Corbinson of Thatchersville, was in town again last Sunday. Rumor has it that he will soon lead to the altar a beautiful belle of Spiketown. George is one of the sold young men of our neighboring city."

Editor Clugston had written it "solid young men," but he knew it would be of no use to try to explain the mistake to the large, athletic young woman who was approaching the office.

And so when Miss Euphorbia Lickladder, the acknowledged belle of Spiketown, walked in at the front door a few moments later and inquired in a deep, tragic voice for the editor, Mr. Clugston was emerging from a back alley 21/2 blocks away and making for the open country.

Rewarded the Rogue.

Von Moltke was an early riser and loved early risers. Once, while roaming around his Silesian estate at daybreak, he found a peasant woman bearing on her back a sack of potatoes which she had just dug, making a load heavy enough for a mule. "Here's a thaler for you," said the great field marshal. 'You see, the early bird catches the worm." Afterward he found out that she was a night thief who had ravaged his fields persistently, but whom his steward had never got up early enough to catch.

THE DECORATIVE JAPANESE.

Home Ways of Summer Life Among the Mikado's People.

Gardens excepted, there are no outward manifestations of the old poetry of Japanese life so remarkable as those summer houses occupying all the picturesque sites of the country. Wherever there is a view worth going to see you will almost certainly find a summer house built to command it, no matter how wild or poor the district.

You will find summer houses clinging to sea cliffs over the thunder of breakers, nestling in shadows of gorges over the roaring of rapids, strutted out over the precipice fronts like eagles' nests at the verge of dead craters, for in Japan there will always be summer guests wherever there is summer beauty, travelers happy to please their eyes and rest their feet and to leave some coppers in payment for the privilege of the vision and the repose. The summer house at which I am now staying is typical of the class, a skeleton structure of two stories, simply and strongly built after the manner of peasants' dwellings and at a cost of perhaps $60. Timber is cheap here. On the other side of Japan such a building could not be put up for $300. It stands on the edge of a lofty cliff and overlooks a little bay near ancient Moinoseki. From ground floor to roof it is open on three sides, and on the seaward side shelter from the sun and wind is given by trees rooted in the cliff below, but towering far above the eaves-enormous pines, with branches many feet in girth. Between the zigzags of those mighty limbs there are glimpses of the sea and fishing sails (canvas or straw) flitting like white or yellow butterflies, and the far pale thread line of the Hoki coast, and Diasen's cone thrusting into the clear sky like some prodigious blue crystal, or, looking directly down over the needle foliage of younger pines, you see the wimpling of the bay and bathers laughing among the rocks, and children playing with seaweed and shells. You view the world as a fishhawk views it, though I presume with vastly different sensations. After a swim it is delightful to sleep here, the sharp, sweet sea wind in your hair. You are furnished with a bathing dress, sandals, a big straw hat of curious shape to keep off afternoon. the sun, barley tea and cakes, a smoking box and a pillow, and the price per day of this entertainment is-3 cents! The guest is expected to bring his own food with him and to provide himself with towels.-Lafcadio Hearn in Atlantic Monthly.

FREAKS BECOMING SCARCE.

So Say Dime Museum Men, but They Are Looking For a Startler.

"If freaks become any scarcer," said a dime museum proprietor a few days ago, "a good many of us will have to go out of the business. I never in my life saw such a slump. Eight or ten years ago we could get all the freaks and curiosities we wanted-real ones. too, and no fakes. We've got agents scouring the world for them, but they are as scarce as strawberries at Christmas time."

"I'll give you a pointer," said another man in the same line of business and who was one of the party of three. 'If you can secure the freak I have in mind, you can quit the business as rich as Barney Barnato ever was."

"Why don't you grab it yourself?" asked the first speaker.

"Can't. If I could, you'd never have "What is it?"

"No, not 'what is it?' That's an old one. The freak I've been looking for can't be located. I've tried for him and

A Very United Family.

The value attached by the poor, and even by those who are not in the depths of poverty, to decent surroundings in family life is a very variable quantity. Decent lodging is not by any means universally regarded as one of the prime necessaries of life. Occasionally it is relegated to quite a back seat.

An instance was given before the commission of a family of seven persons-father, mother two grown up sons and three grown up daughters-all living in one room. With them this arrangement was a matter of choice, not necessity, for they earned between them about £7 a week, more than £350 a year, and even from a slum landlord they could no doubt have afforded to rent another room or two. Having screwed down the item of rent to an irreducible minimum, they determined to have a thoroughly good time, and this is how the witness describes their proceedings: "In the evening they would all go out to the music halls and to the theaters. On Saturday afternoon they would take five tickets each for some omnibus or conveyance that was going into the country, and on Sunday they would go to Brighton and to other places." It is comforting to reflect that Mattings, these Arcadian beings were a united family and always took their pleasure together as well as their naps. It is not stated whether they took in lodgers .- From "The Housing of the English Poor," by the Right Hon. Lord Monkswell, in North American Review.

Twenty-Two Evictions of Striking Miners Take Place Near Plum Creek-Camp of the Strikers Not To Be Disturbed Until the Court Has Passed Upon the Question -Samuel De Armit Under Arrest by the Sheriff-What Strikers Say.

Pittsburg, Aug. 17.-Martial law has to all intents and purposes been declared in Plum, Patton and Wilkins townships by Sheriff Lowry. The three mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company are in these townships, and all roads leading to them will be patrolled by his deputies. Persons walking or driving along the roads who cannot give a satisfactory account of himself or herself, will be ordered to leave the neighborhood, and upon refusal will be arrested. The sheriff will not attempt to break up the camp of the strikers until the court has passed on the question, but announced Tuesday that he is determined to stop the marching and trespassing the company's property. will be allowed on the company's property who fail to have a pass signed by Superintendent De Armit. There are now nearly 800 men in the camp at Plum Creek. After the mutiny at Sandy Creek Monday the camp at that point was abandoned and the men went to Plum Creek. In addition 200 men arrived at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning from Belle Vernon. The large increase in the number in camp has caused a shortage of provisions and the men are hungry. They threatened to march during the morning, but were induced not to do so by the deputies. Monday night it was decided to have the women march, as the injunction did not in-Twenty-Two Evictions.

The order of the sheriff to arrest all persons, however, caused a change in the programme and there was no march. Sheriff Lowry said he would disperse the women as quickly as the men, as he interpreted the court's order to mean to enjoin not only the men, but all who attempted to interfere with the De Armit mines in any way by a show of force. There were twenty-two evictions near Plum Creek during the day of striking miners. Passengers on the morning train from Pittsburg to Turtle Creek say a man who gave his name as Jacob Monroe, said he was from the Osceola mine, and announced that he was going to kill De Armit. The claim is made that there are a number of suspects in the vicinity of the mines who are after the De Armits. They are not in the camp, however. Samuel De Armit is under ar-rest by the sheriff. Neither he or the sheriff will say for what, but the strikers say it is to prevent his arrest by any constable, which would be impos-Plum Creek Tuesday morning. strikers say only twenty-nine men are at work, while the company say they have 250 men. The output Monday was five cars of lump and three cars of screened coal. Sheriff Siops Marchers.

At Turtle Creek fifty strikers, without their head but the American flag, marched from Camp Determination Tuesday morning on the Oak Hill mines. This was done unexpectedly and in violation of the restraining order temporatween two rows of French women, headed by Mrs. Jennie de Witte and Mrs. Marie Brogie. The women called at the men on the way to work and fearing trouble. When the men had all passed the women went to their homes, saying they would be out again next morning.

IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Strikers Are Showing Material Gains in All Sections.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 17.-The strikers show material gains in all sections of West Virginia. In the Wheeling district there is not a miner working, while on the Ohio side of the river the last man, except those who are to furnish coal for water and electric light plants, are out. In the Fairmont district the strike leaders did not succeed in closing the Montana mine entirely, but they made decided gains. The camp will be maintained till the last man leaves his work, when these recruits will be taken with the main body to the other Watson company's mines to help close them. In the Kanawha valley about 300 men have gone to work since Monday morning, but more than that number have left their work. The trouble is that the mines are so far apart that concentrated action is hard to get. In the Norfolk and western region the organizers have gone to work again with a will, and in sufficient numbers to prove effective. The leaders are getting on the United States court injunctions, and find upon careful reading that they prohibit nothing but trespass, and do not apply to speechmaking or assemblage on public ground. They are no longer a cause of alarm to the organizers.

In the Honey Brook District.

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 17.-The strike sitaution in the Honey Brock district of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre company's collieries is unchanged. No attempt was made to start work at the mines Tuesday morning. Manager Lewall was again on the ground. He arranged for a meeting with a committee of the strikers, the result of which will not be made knokn until the men meet at Macadoo. The strikers are confident of success, but unless a compromise is effected the tie-up will be lengthy. The coal and iron police are still guarding mines, but thus far they have not been molested or had occasion to arrest a single striker.

They had an opportunity of conferring with the local miners Sunday and it now remains with the Decatur men whether or not they will

Nature has provided a certain amount of work for every organ of the human body; overtax them and disease eventually follows. There is not one porally follows. There is not one por-tion of our organism that is so overworked Mr. Elliott was somewhat uneasy as as the kidneys; on them is placed the im portant function of filtering the blood of the impurities which naturally form in the regular action of life and digestion. kidneys are consequently termed the sew-erage of the system; clog up this sewer, and the blood becomes tainted with poisonshered into the presence of the queen.

SHOT A STARVING MAN

Was Caught Stealing Bacon from Klondike Prospectors.

BLACK SIDE COMING INTO VIEW.

Grim Warning Given by Returning Gold Hunters. Who Say the Country Is a Veritable Death Trap-The Passes Cannot Be Crossed-Late Comers Must Halt in the Valley, a Prey to Disease, Hunger and Criminals.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.-In the mad rush for Klondike gold men are already starving to death. Of the thousands now hastening to Alaska many will never return. Their bones will bleach under the snows of the deadly passes. Gold there is in plenty. But it is not easily obtained, and this is not all. Starvation, disease, treacherous Indians, desperadoes who will commit murder for a biscuit, frightful storms and all the perils of an unknown, inhospitable and barren country await the inexperi-

Men who are abandoning their homes to join the mad scramble for the new El Dorado should remember that once they have passed over the gang plank of the Alaskan steamer there is no way of getting back unless they turn about immediately while they have money for transportation and strength to clamber into the boat.

Account Given by George L. Fish.

Over the entrances to White and Chilkoot passes there might well be strung the legend, "Who enters here leaves hope behind," for it is the sheerest luck of a fair percentage of those going in ever return to civilization or live to see fruition of their wild hopes. One of the clearest accounts of the situation at Dyea and Skagaway, where several thousand prospectors are now camped waiting to get over the divide, was given by George L. Fish, a prominent grocer of Oakland, Cal., who made the trip in order to see whether there was any chance for rushing supplies into the Klondike this fall. He found the outlook hopeless. He said:

"If you want to do a service to humanity advise men and women to stay away from Dyea and Skagaway. The day I left Dyea there were three funerals. Two were those of young men who had attempted to cross Dyea river. The last funeral was that of a young man who had reached the summit of Chilkoot pass. He was entirely out of provisions, and, goaded to desperation by starva-tion, he stole a side of bacon. He was detected by two of the party from whose outfit he stole, and was shot to death. An inquest was held and the verdict was justifiable homicide.

Starvation and Death.

"At least 5,000 people are camped at Dyea and Skagaway, and the majority will remain there through the winter. Starvation and death will stalk among them. There are many lawless adventurers in the two little towns on the bleak coast; men and women of a stripe who will not hesitate at the commission of any crime when money and food be come scarce.

"I was ashore for nearly three days during which time I made close observation. People who had arrived at Dyea two weeks before had been unable to move owing to lack of transporta-tion. There were 1,500 people between Dyea and the summit, and this included many women. There were about 3,500 from Skagaway road to Dawson through the White pass and down to Lake Bennett. It is impossible to get through the pass and there is a swamp of seven or eight miles to cross before reaching Lake Bennett."

He said few of the prospectors had the courage to advance, and many had

In declining to abide by the market value of silver as the standard of currency value, India has taken a step towards demonetizing silver. Japan and Russia have adopted the gold standard and no one means to go back on it. Then why not say so and not be deterred by the threats of a possible Bryanite victory and dismiss the question finally? Chicago Firemen Hurt.

Chicago, Aug. 17.-Four firemen were seriously hurt by the falling of a porch at Twenty-first and Spring streets at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. When the flames were nearly extinguished Marshal Heaney, accompanied by Captain George Marks and two truckmen, made their way to the porch in the rear. While they were making an examina-tion the porch suddenly gave way, precipitating them to the ground, a tance of thirty-five feet. Captain Marks was removed to Mercy hospital. The attending physician said that recovery was doubtful. Truckman William Mc-Cullom is also badly hurt. At a late hour his condition was considered seri-

Hicksville, O., Aug. 17.—Between 12 and 1 o'clock Monday night two masked men entered the home of H. C. Humbarger, an old man living four miles west of this city. They bound and gagged him and escaped with $1,800 in money, about $900 in notes and about $1,800 in bonds. The notes and bonds were dropped, however, and were found in the morning. FOUND ON A MOSQUITO, IT SAVED HARDIN'S LIFE.

Neither Enift Nor Branding Iron Was a Pretty Fair Shot and Always Kept In

"Them was pretty good shots," said the old sheep raiser when the boys had finished telling about some glass ball shooting they had done at the gun club tournament, "but folks nowadays don't ago. There was Dan Hardin now, who run a sheep ranch in west Texas in 1881; he could shoot."

"Pretty good shot, was he?" asked the boys, to draw the old man out.

"Well, he was a good, fair shot for them times and locality. A Colt's 45 was Dan's favorite. He run about 6,000 sheep and a good many cattle and horses. The ranchers all marked the ears of their stock, each man in a different way, to distinguish their property. Dan's mark was a hole in the left ear and an underbit in the right, and he never allowed a knife to be used on his ranch. He marked every animal himself with his six shooter, and he never made a mistake. It was a sight to see him gallopin across the prairie on his mustang after a bunch of lambs or a round up of spring calves, a-placin his marks with his 45 and never varyin a sixteenth of an inch from where they belonged. Dan marked more mavericks than anybody else in the country put together.

'From practicin so much Dan get to be a first rate shot. He used to ride along in his pasture and put his mark on the coyotes and jack rabbits just to keep his hand in. It got so that nine times out of ten when a man killed a deer with his winchester he would find a hole in its left and an underbit in its right ear, and he'd always send Dan over a quarter of venison when he got it home. I seen Dan win a bet of $50 one day from a tenderfoot. We was ridin along the road and we seen the ground a-humpin up where a mele was shovin along out of sight under the earth. Dan made his proposition, the tenderfoot took him up, and Dan's old 45 went off a couple of times. We dug the mole up, and there was the marks in his ears right where they belonged. After awhile I don't think there was a living thing on Dan's ranch except his wife's that didn't have his mark in its ears.

"This habit of Dan's got him out of a pretty bad scrape one time. Along about 1882, when free range commenced gettin scarce, the fence cutters got to cuttin the wire fences around the pastures and give the sheep men lots of trouble. Dan's had been cut half a dozen times, and he was mad. One day he rode out without his gun and saw a slicin his wires like fiddlestrings with his ranch and got his gun. He struck out on Tompkins' trail and overhauled him about sundown in the little town that was the county seat. Dan shot him quietly and was about to get a cup of coffee and start back home when he was surprised by the sheriff's arrestin him. You see, that was about the time the law and order gang got to raisin Cain in the west and tryin to set down on promiscuous shootin and personal Tompkins hadn't been out of town for laid out on a table in the courtroom.

"Directly Dan went over and looked cuse Post. pretty sharp at Tompkins, and then he asked one of the deputies to go out to a little jewelry store across the street and bring a magnifying glass. The deputy went and got it, and Dan handed it to the judge and asked him to step down and look at something a minute. There was a mosquito with his bill fast in Tompkins' ear, and Dan asked the judge to take a good look at it with the glass. The judge did so, and blest if that mosquito didn't have a hole in its left and an underbit in its right ear, as shore as vinced that Tompkins must have been prowlin round his ranch. It was what you would call good circumstantial evidence, and ten minutes afterward Dan was on his way home."

There was a little silence among the boys, and then the one who had broken 45 glass balls out of a possible 50 suggested that some lemonade be handed around at his expense. - Washington

Antwerp's Bells.

From the cathedral tower at Antwerp 80 bells have, for over 200 years, rung out music for the benefit of the people living on the green fields which border the Scheldt. Once a year, in the month of February, the authorities select the music, and the organ plays every hour from the old masters of Christian song.

Pickpockets, or "hooks," as they are termed in the criminal vernacular, are often well educated and of genteel appearance and manners. Those who work the "tubs" (omnibuses) are exceptionally respectable in their dress and quiet in demeanor. As stated in the printed Used on Tha. Ranch, as the Owner Was warning exhibited in railway stations and omnibuses, pickpockets are "both male and female," but the proportion of the latter is small, probably less than 10 per cent.

The best educated and most genteel are generally experts at devices such as card sharping and tossing for money, and, speaking several languages, are enabled to travel all over the world. This class is especially dangerous on board the large Atlantic liners. Representing themselves as gentlemen of property traveling for pleasure, they disarm suspicion by their liberal conduct in paying for champagne and cigars. But woe to any unfortunate passenger who plays at cards with one of these vampires. The victim is possibly gently handled for the first few nights, until confidence is fully established, when larger stakes are proposed. He is then plied with drink, and after losing nearly all his money is "kindly" assisted to his berth by his "friend," who coolly rifles his pockets of the remainder. On awaking he is unable to recollect the exact amount of his losses and can only come to the conclusion that he has been very "unlucky."-Pearson's Weekly.

A Slight Difference.

The nearest fixed star whose distance has been measured by the astronomers, is Alpha Centauri, as you know. Its parallax was determined many years ago, and its distance found to be about seventy-one millions of millions of miles. Not that an expression of those figures can possibly give you any conception of the space between us and the star, but that is the way the observers have to put it. Now, it seems, another determination of this star's parallax has been made, which brings the twinkler about eighteen millions of millions of miles nearer to us than we thought it was. That is a mighty big difference, or it would be in most things, but millions and billions and trillions of miles seem to be mere trifles when we are considering the depths of outer space.-Philadelphia

Statistics show that the uneducated factory girl is more frequently married than is the wide awake, capable girl in the higher salaried position of stenographer, office assistant, clerk or trusted secretary. The factory girl is not thrown with people of wealth and position so much as is her more talented sister, and consequently when some honest man comes along she is ready to trust her future with his in a simple, even shabby, little home. Substitutes For Glass.

Tectorium is the name of a material manufactured in Germany as a substitute for glass. Bichromated gelatin is laid over both sides of a kind of web of galvanized steel or iron wire and can be made into sheets one-sixteenth of an inch thick. It is unbreakable and is said to be lighter than glass. It bends easily, is a poor conductor of heat and cold, and is not difficult of repair. However, it is liable to become soft in hot weather and is inflammable.

Hornalos is much like tectorium, only more transparent and harder. Manilla paper soaked in boiled linseed oil until it is both waterproof and translucent is
