of the Ballots Last Fall and then Repocketed.

John B. Schlicht, of Ypsilanti, a brakeman on the Michigan Central, came to his death in this city on Tuesday, in a rather peculiar manner which was, however, wholly accidental. Tuesday morning when his train rolled into the yard at Ann Arbor, he jumped off and going into the freight warehouse at once engaged in a friendly scuffie with John A. Felch, who works

The wrestle over, Schlicht walked out of the warehouse and across the track as on stubble or corn ground. to his train where he stood talking when all at once he sank in a helpless condition to the ground. In the fall his head struck a crate and inflicted a deep gash. His friends bore him back into the warehouse and Drs. W. F. and James F. Berakey and C. G. Darling were called. They worked over him for an hour and a half, but could not rouse him from the comatose condition into which he had fallen. His fields caused quite an extended discuswhole left side was paralyzed and he could neither move nor speak. He was then taken to the University hospital but nothing could be done for him and he died in the afternoon only a few hours after the accident.

Coroner Ball impaneled a jury and an inquest was held at Martin's undertaiking rooms on Wednesday afternoon. Several witnesses were called all of whom testified to the accidental nature of the unfortunate affair. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the evidence. The postmortem examination revealed a large blood clot on his brain which had caused paralysis and

WANT HIM TO WHACK UP.

Ex-County Clerk Dansingburg Sued for That $100 Recount Deposit.

Suit has been commenced in the cir-Dansingburg, ex county clerk, to recover $100 due the county from him.

At the election last fall Mr. Dansingburg was defeated for the office of county clerk by Jacob F. Schuh and at once demanded a recount of the ballots. ecure a recount ne nad to deposit $100 as a guarantee, which was to be returned to him if his election was proven by the recount. If the was not shown to be elected the $100 was to go towards paying the expense of the recount. As county clerk Mr. Dansingburg deposited the $100 with himself and when the recount was finished, although his position was not sustained, and most of the errors that were discovered were against him, Mr. Dansingburg put the $100 back into his pocket, claiming that the discovery of the errors entitled him to do so.

The board of supervisors does not hold with that view of the case as the election and says the money must be a great deal of interest by the taxpayers of Washtenaw county as it will determine the right of disappointed office seekers to demand recounts of the ballots on very trivial grounds and thus of unnecessary expense. The total cost was in the neighborhood of $600, of which the $100 would have been only a small percentage.

HOW TO RAISE GOOD WHEAT.

The Question Discussed by the Southern Michigan Farmers' Club.

The Southern Washtenaw Faemers' John F. Schlicht Engages in Club met at the residence of Wm. Pease in Manchester township, on Friday. Owing to the busy season in preparing for seeding, there were not so many WANT HIM TO PAY UP present as usual. Only about 40 found time to leave their work for a half day, but those who were there had a very enjoyable time indeed, and it B. G. English shut off the social to proceed to business.

Miss Mary Hitchcock, of Sharon, funny and prosy to the enjoyment of all. Mrs. Allen, the essayist, did not respond when her name was called, and the club took up the topic for dis-cussion which was "Wheat."

John G. English read a paper upon the origin and uses of wheat. He thought the present advanced price was due to the demand for more bread in the foreign countries rather than to any political influences. Dea Richard Green, a veteran and successful wheat grower, thought nothing equalled a good old fashioned summer fallow to raise wheat on, yet he admitted that some years this did not furnish a good crop. Mr. Merrithew said he had had as serious failures on summer fallows

C. M. Fellows thought there was more in having a fertile soil with good tillage than in the crop previous to using the ground for wheat. He had subscriptions. been as successful in raising wheat after beans as in any other way, and with less labor. But all agreed that bad weather and insects might ruin a wheat crop in spite of tillage or soil.

After the discussion supper was served followed by fruit and melons for dessert. The club has adopted the rule to meet the first Friday each month with the members in alphabetical order, the place of the next meeting was not announced. This, we believe is the oldest club in the state and has a large membership.

FR. GOLDRICK'S PICNIC

Great Success.

The Labor day picnic given under rick's church, Northfield, at Andrew Mead's grove on Monday was attended by about 800 people. The grove which is located near Northfield station on the Ann Arbor railroad made an ideal picnic ground and is also quite handy of access. The two trains at 8:43 and 11 o'clock a. m. took out quite a number of people from Ann Arbor to enjoy the day and its surroundings. An elaborate dinner was served at noon and was heartily enjoyed.

A program of songs and speeches had been prepared for the afternoon, but those who were to have taken part in it had accepted some of Rev. L. P. Attempted Eviction of Miners Results in Failure.

WOMEN BEAR BRUNT OF FIGHT.

Retreat-Nearly Every Man in the Posse Receives Injuries, Some of Which Are Quite Serious-Spend the Night in a Vacant House-No Further Attempts at Eviction at Present.

Pittsburg, Sept. 7.-The efforts to evict the striking miners of the Pittsburg and Chicago Coal company at Orangeville, one and a half miles from Gestonville, resulted in a riot of no mean proportions and the utter failure on the part of the company to accomplish its object. On the news that the evictions were to be attempted, the whole vicinity about Pinleyville, Gestonville and Orangeville became wildly excited. About 7 o'clock twenty deputies from Washington, Pa., in charge of Chief Deputy Joseph H. Wetherhill, reached large crowd of strikers and their friends. Each deputy was armed with a Winchester rifle and a revolver, but in spite of this, the strikers, headed by 100 Polish women, closed in on them andthe deputies received rough treatement. They were gradually forced back and finally retreated to Gestonville, where they were followed by a crowd of about 200 men and women.

Desperate Encounter.

At Gestonville the deputies took refuge in the office of the company, where they were kept all night, during which the building was bombarded with stones and bricks and an occasional shot was fired. At 7 o'clock Tuesday morning the trouble of the night reached a climax when the deputies sallied out from their besieged quarters and started to ma ch to Orangeville. Each one carried his Winchester in his hands and his revolver was exposed, but these had no terrors for the besiegers. Headed by the women the strikers rushed on the deputies with stones, clubs and pickhandles, and blows fell thick and fast. One of the big women wrested the rifle from a deputy's hands and struck him on the head with it, inflicting serious injury. By this time 1,000 men, women and children had joined the crowd. The came from Venetia, Snowden, Calamity and Finleyville. The deputies slowly made their way to Orangeville, taking all of the above insults and injuries, but never firing a shot. They finally took refuge in a vacant house, closely followed by the mob, which quickly surrounded the building and threatened to

Ordered to Leave Town.

Finally one of the strikers approached the house with a flag of truce and a conference was held. The deputies were ordered to leave town and after a short parley decided to do so. They emerged from the house a badly scared lot of men, and walking between the opened ranks of the strikers, started for Gestonville. Almost every man in the posse was cut and bleeding, and several were seriously hurt. One had his right hand almost severed by sharp stone. As the defeated deputies ran the gauntlet they were greeted with hisses, curses and ridicule. The strikers then closed behind them and marched them to the station, where they took the train for Washington. After their departure the mob dispersed and everything is quiet now. The officials of the company say no further attempt will be made to evict the miners for the present.

WILL MAKE WAR ON DE ARMIT. Settlement of Strike Will Make No Difference at His Mines.

Pittsburg, Sept. 7.—The Pittsburg dis-Pittsburg, Sept. 7.—The Pittsburg dis-trict miners' convention to elect delegats | Wyman went up and found the womto the national convention which meets an's body, which lay in the corner with at Columbus to consider and determine whether or not the proposition that the miners return to work at a flat rate of 65 cents per ton be accepted assembled here Tuesday with nearly 100 delegates, representing every mine in the district, in attendance. The morning session was middle of August. She was demented, taken up with receiving credentials and perfecting an organization. The delegates are divided upon the question of accepting 65 cents or standing firm for wealthy man, is in Europe. the 69-cent rate, but it is thought that the influence of the leaders will result in a declaration for the compromise rate or that the delegates will at least be so instructed.

President Dolan stated that the acceptance of the 65-cent rate by the miners did not necessarily carry with it the complete ending of the strike. At the mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company camps will still be maintained and the strike vigorously continued. So in the case of any and all mines throughout the district that refused to pay the rate agreed upon at the Columbus convention would the strike be kept up and at all such points camps would be re-established and every known lawful and peaceful means would be used to keep those mines closed until the operators thereof agreed to pay the established rate. This statement was in view of the fact that it had been reported that there would probably be some mines where the rate would not be paid. President Dolan also stated that the delegates at the convention were all instructed and that they would go into the convention to decide the question of the acceptance of the 65-cent rate or its rejection entirely free from any influence of other than their own opinions and beliefs to what was the best for Miners Sue Mark Hanna.

Pittsburg, Sept. 7.—When Mark Hanna hired miners last year he arranged to retain 10 per cent. of their earnings as a guarantee against strikes. This fund now amounts to about $7,000; and the starving miners from whom it was retained will try to recover by suing the magnate. Eighty suits have been filed before Squire Brennen.

Tammany Leader Declines to Talk in Regard to the Mayoralty.

New York, Sept. 7.-Richard Croker was a passenger by the American line steamer New York, which arrived at her dock early Tuesday. Mr. Croker's fellow passengers have come to the conclusion that he is to be the Tammany hall candidate for mayor of greater New York. During the voyage many efforts were made to draw Mr. Croker out on this subject, but not only to newspaper correspondents but to his most intimate friends on board did he decline to state his purposes. The understanding among Mr. Croker's friends, however, is that he is strongly inclined to permit the use of his name as a candidate for mayor, though he is naturally unwilling that an announcement should be made to this effect before he had had an opportunity to confer with his lieutenants. "I have not the slightest doubt that Tammany hall will carry greater New York by 50,000 votes and upward," said Mr. Croker to tthe special correspondent of the Associated Press. "New York never had one reform administration after another. One such government appears to be all the people can stand in one decade. The present so-called reform administration has been chiefly Finleyville, where they were met by a noted for its increase of the tax rate, accompanied by a higher appraisement. If there has been any corresponding improvement in the quality of the government the people have not discovered it."

PACKERS REFUSE A BIG OFFER.

Would Not Carry 1,200 Pounds Over the Pass for the Sum of $750-Results of a Thirty-Day Examination of the Trail by R. H. Stretch, a Mining Engineer-Governor Brady to Rid Skaguay of Gambling and Whisky Selling.

One man at Dyea offered $750 to have 1,200 pounds packed over, but the packers refused the offer. Crossing from Skaguay and Dyea the trail is practically closed on account of the mud."

After an examination of thirty days of the Skaguay trail R. H. Stretch, mining engineer of this city, said: 'Skaguay valley was once occupied by a huge glacier, near the lower end; the rocks are ancient sedimentary or stratified deposits, with innumerable dikes and stringers of granite aspect, but all the upper portions of the valley and the summit of the range are nothing but a coarse granite without trace of any structure but with strongy marked nearly horizontal bedding planes, cut by nearly vertical cleavage oints.

Ground to Polished Surfaces.

"The action of the ice which formerly plowed its way down the valley has ground these rocks to polished surfaces, the vertical faces supporting only a few lichens, while the horizontal benches before the advent of the gold-seekers were covered with a thick carpet of moss and lichens which, though with but a frail hold on the rocks, gave a sure and satisfactory foothold. Only in a few places are there pebbles or bowldthese do not exist the individual bowlders are so large and massed so irreguarly that travel over them is more difficult than over the solid unbroken bunches. 'Of earth there is practically none, but in the course of ages a black vegetable muck has accumulated in some the crevices and in pot holes along the river bottom. Scrubby timber, spruce, pirch and alder find a foothold in the crevices, the latter mainly in the wetter bottoms, and over such material the trail finds its way.

Distances from Skaguay.

"Distances from Skaguay are: First crossing of river, one and one-half miles; end of road, three and one-half miles; small lake, five miles; Porcupine creek, seven and one-half miles; sec ond crossing of river bridge, eleven and one-half miles; third crossing of river bridge, thirteen and one-half miles; fourth crossing of river bridge, fourteen and one-half miles; fifth crossing of river ford, seventeen and one-half miles; summit, nineteen miles; meadows, twenty-six miles; Lake Bennett, forty-two

The City of Destiny Once Coined Its Own

Tacoma once had a mint that coined all of the money in circulation where the City of Destiny now stands, and it did not require the flat of Uncle Sam. the silver of Idaho or the gold of California to make the pieces from Tacoma's mint pass current among the Indians and the few hardy pioneers who were blazing the path of civilization through the forest on the shores of Commence ment bay, says the Tacoma Ledger.

Back in the early seventies the Tacoma Mill company, not being able to handily secure gold and silver for use tain Neilson of the tug Pioneer, just in trading with and paying off the Inreturned from Dyea and Skaguay, said: dian laborers and early settlers, hit "The half has not been told of the upon the novel plan of issuing its own miserable trails which the gold-seekers currency, and to this end set its blacksmith to work to fashion for it out of scraps of iron and brass pieces of collector of customs for the Puget money, or, rather, tokens, which could Sound district, is reported as being be used as a circulating medium. The pieces consisted of 40 cent and 45 cent iron tokens and brass $1 pieces. The 40 cent pieces were about an inch in diameter and the 45 cent pieces were about the size of the present silver half dollar. The $1 pieces were oval in shape, about 11/4 inches long, an inch wide and a sixteenth of an inch in thickness. These pieces were stamped with the figures showing their value, and readily passed current all over the country tributary to the mill. Nearly all of this old "mill" coin has passed away, but a few days ago William Hanson of the Tacoma Mill company presented a set of these queer coins to the Ferry museum. In his letter to the museum he said:

"The honesty of the people and the absence of any blacksmith shop save that of the company made the use of this money possible.

Oregon has long boasted that the 'Beaver' coin, minted at Oregon City in the early fifties, was the only money minted in the northwest in the days of the pioneer, but here in Tacoma, long years after Oregon's "Beaver" mint had become a historical incident, was a primitive mint that supplied the coin to furnish the pioneers and Indians with all of the necessities for their rough lives. The coins, which are still preserved, are roughly made, just such as any blacksmith with ordinary tools might make, and as a matter of fact during the early years of the mill company's existence formed practically the local circulating medium of exchange. When the Indians who were employed in the mill were paid for their labor, this coin sufficed, as all the trading they did was with the little store run in connection with the mill. The iron and brass pieces were, of course, passed among the Indians in trading with each other, and as anything in the way of supplies was purchased by them at the mill store the pieces were fully as good to them as if they had borne the stamp

There is no fair in this state which does so much for its patrons in the way of special attractions as our fair does. These performances are always given on the track in front of the grand stand and are absolutely free to all who have paid their admission fee at the gates. Of course these attractions are very expensive for the fair society, but on the other hand we get many people to the fair who would not come were it not This adds certainty to appointments for these special performances. This year the attractions are more numerous and varied than ever before. On a question of forenoon or afternoon. Its large platform in front of the grand disadvantage is only the extra number stand Waltz and Schumann will give of strokes required by a clock in strik- exhibitions each day of the fair. Prince Schumann has been called the world's champion slack wire performer, the invincible king of the steel wire. He will introduce marvelous and original feats on high and low slack wire while mainance and self-possession to the most finished degree. His performance is pronounced by press and public the greatest novelty of the age. Albert Waltz press for the performances which he gave last summer at eastern parks and resorts He holds the championship belt and medal as a skatorial artist. contortion feats on pedecycles, ordinaries and high stilts. He performs wonders that astonish men and make toys If farmers would attend the caucuses shout, defying all laws of gravitation with perfect impunity.

One great attraction will be the Kennedy Combination, a good reliable travgoverned. The president had no use for eling troupe, who will certainly give us exhibitions which are alone well worth the quarter you pay for admission to the grounds. There will be good wildwest exhibitions of the tribulations of riding bucking horses, struggling with or state in the Farmer's National con- Indians, and cowboy races, just as gress." He might have added that these gentlemen (?) amuse themselves Sunday afternoon out on the plains. There will be a two mile running race in which the riders change mounts at the end of each mile. Some of us will see for the first time what a royal hippodrome is like, see the real old Roman races such as Caesar saw, the glorious chariot races and standing races with two horses. A tandem steeple-chase The Dixboro school began Monday race by lady jockeys will be an exciting with Miss Edith Judson as teacher. and interesting event if the horses can't The Delhi Mills school began the same make such good time as the horses

A native Mexican will give an exhibition of an impaling act, throwing Mexican knives at an image with wonderful dexterity and striking with remarkable accuracy. A trick bicycle rider has also been engaged who will give highly exciting and entertaining exhibitions each day of the fair, on the track in front of the grand stand.

Another item of interest announced by the management is that Governor Pingree will be with us on Thursday, Sept. 30. He is not making a general tour of the fairs in the state this year, but he has some Dexter had a hot school election friends in our midst whose re-Monday night at which Jas. B. Page quests are positively irresistible. He and R. P. Copeland were elected will be on the grounds all day, holding school trustees. There were five candia a general reception for all his loyal and dates on the first ballot and on the willing supporters. Mr. Pingree is not second or decisive one Page received 95 fond of making speeches, and has not votes to 64 for Daniel E. Hoy. A tax promised to make one for us unless he of $4,000 was voted and the present feels just exactly like it. However, if system of textbooks was unanimously you ask him, he will hesitate not a moment to tell you how to get the most out of your potato crop. His principal object in coming is to visit with his old friends and get acquainted with the new. No committee has been appointed to receive and entertain him, since all the county is more than anxious to do that. Let every one turn out and give him a hearty handshake.

Another interesting feature of the big fair will be the display of war ralics. It is 36 years now since the war. The boys of the war 'are now the old men of peace. Everything connected with that great event has now become history and there is danger that the children of this decade regard the war all too lightly. There is nothing that will rouse a feeling of patriotism in a boy so much as to show him the flag his father followed at Antietam or Gettysburg. On the other hand there is nothing that an old soldier loves quite so much as to see the tattered flags and old shells and tell the boys how thrilling a scene it was. A special booth in the main hall will be devoted entirely to the display of these precious flags, guns, uniforms, shells, etc., a collection such as has never before been shown in this city. Some of these articles are very valuable not only as heir looms but as state property, so a good old soldier has been engaged to care for the booth and tell war stories. This collection will be under the immediate care of #White the inheritate tare of Welch Post, of Ann Arbor, who will collect and arrange the articles. They ask everyone who has any such article to kindly loan it to them and help to make the display a credit to those who have it in charge. A special night watch will be provided and the articles carewill be provided and the articles carefully handled and hung, will not be injured by nails or anything of that sort. They will be carefully returned on the one of the leading features at a fair, but at our own fair it has received more than usual attention. This county has long been famous for its fine horses and the very best always come out for the fair. Everyone takes an interest in the family driving horse contest. Bring out the best draft horse you have and show your neighbors what it is that turns your deep furrows. All of the leading breeds of cattle are represented in our farm yards. Bring your favorite to the Fair and prove conclusively to all interested that Shorthorns are more profitable than Jerseys, or the opposite. Examine class 12, department A, of the premium list. The contest between the butter making breeds has created interest for many years and the question is not yet answered. In the sheep department we would like to compare some of those fancy sheep brought from the west with those raised in the county. How do you think the native sheep will stand the test? When it comes to swine, why everyone knows what that means, the bigger the better.

The domestic displays will be presided over by competent, careful ard obliging superintendents who will be on hand with proper assistants to receive, classify and arrange the exhibits in-the most showy manner.

Unusual pains will be taken to trim and decorate the interior of the hall, to embellish and beautify it, in o der that the exhibits may appear to advantage, and that there may be a fascinaling, elegant finish and splendor to the exhibition as a whole that will impress its superiority upon the mind of the visitor, and compel an admiration of this prominent department of the fair.

During the four days of the fair the University will be open to give the people living at a distance from the University city an opportunity to visit the institution. The Library, Art Gallery and Museum are well worth visiting and are free for the inspection of the public. The new heating and lighting plants are both interesting and instructive and owing to the large number of workmen and students employed about them now, one can find out a great deal about the machinery and so forth. Remember all of the buildings will be open free to all during the Big Fair Sept. 28, 29, 30 and Oct. 1, 1897.

Positively no fakirs will be allowed on the fair grounds. The society is anxious to make money for itself, and not to help these dishonest fellows in their unprincipled business. All of the booths and stands will be let to business men whose dealings we know are honorable. Side shows and gambling games are strictly prohibited so that our patrons shall not be fleeced.

During the week of the fair tickets at one faie for the round trip can be obtained from Toledo, Owosso and all intermediate points to Ann Arbor, and from Detroit, Jackson and all intermediate points to Ann Arbor. These tickets will be good for return as late as Saturday, Oct. 2. The city street car line will run an extra number of cars during the week of the fair. A special gate to the grounds will be opened to admit directly those coming from Ypsilanti on the motor.

Those who desire catalogues giving premiums and other particulars concerning the exhibition, should address the secretary, who will send one promptly, free of charge.

The management invites you to attend, and extends to you this special in. vitation, as they desire you to co-operate with them in making this the most successful fair ever held in this region. A big crowd will be there to belp receive and entertain von.

The prospects are very promising. New features will predominate, something to think about, something to remember. We have resolved to make this the biggest and best fair ever held Soule, Danforth, Cady, Pres. Luick-11. on the grounds. It is you to contribute to the result by an exhibit of the finest and best products from your homes, shops and lands. Let every man, woman and child attend. It will be an exhibition of the products of labor, skill and invention, agricultural, horticultural, mechanical and household products, the fastest horses, the closest races, the best specimens of all breeds of stock. Something on every hand to amuse, excite and instruct. Join the galaxy of smiling faces that are partaking of the cheerful influences that will abound, see the scientific aid toward the amelioration of the condition of mankind, rest from your labors and cares, strengthen and expand your knowledge, partake of the hospitality of the society, encourage their arduous and illy paid efforts, congratulate them and elevate agriculture.

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

The Bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

CHIEF CAUSE.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or, disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passage is often, by mistake attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidney or bladder trouble. The mild and the extraodinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, and bladder remedy is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention the Argus and send your address to Dr. Kilmer's Co., Binghammon, N. Y. An Eminent New York Chemist and Scientist Makes a Free Offer to Our Readers.

The distinguished chemist, T. A Slocum, of New York City, demonstrating his discovery of a reliable cure for Consumption (Pulmonary Tuber-Consumption (Pulmonary Tuber-culosis), bronchial, lung and chest troubles, stubborn coughs, catarrhal affections, general decline and weakness, loss of flesh, and all conditions of wasting away, will send THREE FREE BOTTLES (all different) of his New Discoveries to any afflicted reader of this paper writing for them.

His "New Scientiffc Treatment" has cured thousands permanently by its timely use, and he considers it a simple professional duty to suffering humanity to donate a trial of his infallible cure.

Science daily develops new wonders. and this great chemist, patiently experimenting for years, has produced results as beneficial to humanity as can be claimed by any modern genius. His assertion that lung troubles and consumption are curable in any climate is proven by "heartfelt letters of gratitude," filed in his American and European laboratories in thousands from those cured in all parts of the world. Changes In Cave Dwelling Animals. "The influence of environment upon organisms is nowhere more striking," says Science, "than in the case of animals which find themselves accidentally lost in caves and which succeed in accustoming themselves to the situation in spite of its difficulties. M. Armand Vire gives some notes on his observations in the Comptes Rendus. The principal difference in the situation consists in the absence of light and in the rarity of animal prey. The eye always becomes atrophied to a degree which varies with the species and also with the individual. There is sometimes a difference between the two eyes of a single individual. The eyes are to a certain extent replaced by other organs of sense; the antennæ of the campodes become, in some individuals, twice as long as usual, and sometimes longer than the entire body. The tactile hairs with which the body is covered obtain an exaggerated development, and in the crustaceans sometimes even invade the ocular globe. Hearing does not seem to be accentuated, but the sense of smell is very acute, and a bit of tainted flesh becomes invaded in a very few minutes with a large colony of animals. The organs of digestion become very considerably modified in those species which are naturally carnivorous, and in two staphylins the mandibles were found to be completely atrophied. Every animal is more or less completely depigmented, but those which had no trace of color remaining began to have numerous little black spots disseminated over the whole body after they had been kept for a month in the light, and | testimony we got showed the happiness these spots were particularly abundant in those parts (antennæ and claws) which had been accidentally lost and were in course of restoration.

> CASTORIA Chart. Fletchers wrapper. His Last Meal.

Every day some fresh source of food supply is discovered, says The Stamp Collector. Adhesive stamps have not hitherto been regarded as nutritious. The ostrich prefers gold watches for a steady diet, and the traveling tinker's donkey has a reputation for consuming any clean linen that may be handy.

A Hindoo paper, however, gives an account of a curious incident that occurred at the residency in a remote distriet in Ceylon a little while ago. Mr. Pieris, the office assistant, placed on his table some judicial stamps to the value of about 200 rupees. While his attention was drawn to something else his pet goat was slowly but surely making a meal of the stamps. This was not discovered until the goat had swallowed some 50 rupees' worth of stamps. Immediately the goat's life was demanded as a penalty, and the stamps, afterward taken from its stomach, were forwarded to the commissioner.

Lepers and the Law.

The Norman-English laws enacted that a leper had neither power to sue in any court nor to inherit property. During his lifetime he was permitted to enjoy the usufruct of any property in his possession at the time he was "found guilty," so to speak, of leprosy, but all rights of disposition over it he lost.

Jury Listens to Epistles to Mrs. Christine Feldt.

INTEREST IN THE CASE UNABATED.

The Defendant Enters the Court Room with a Cigar in His Mouth and a Satisfied Smile Upon His Face-Listens to the Reading of His Letters to Mrs. Feldt-Trial Expected to Last Until the First of Chicago, Sept. 8.—The third week of the Luetgert murder trial was begun before Judge Tuthill Tuesday morning. It was the beginning of the second week of the taking of testimony, the first week having been devoted to securing the jury, and it is believed by the attorneys for the state that it will take uptil after Sept. 15 before all the witnesses for the prosecution have been heard from.

It was said last Saturday by Assistant States Attorney McEwen that he would probably be through with his side of the case by next Saturday, but that official now says that he believes the expert testimony to be introduced will take up so much time that the state will not be ready to close its side of the case until some time next week. This being the situation, it is believed it will be Oct. 1 before the jury will go out to determine the fate of the prisoner.

Wore a Satisfied Smile.

Luetgert, when he came into court Tuesday, was the same unconcerned individual he has appeared to be during the trial. As usual he carried the stump of a cigar and he puffed away at it contentedly while looking over the morning papers until court convened.

He greeted all his friends as cordially as usual and there was a satisfied smile on his face as he took his seat. Mr. Mc-Ewen announced at the opening of court that he would read the English translation of the letters Luetgert wrote to Mrs. Feldt. Mr. Vincent objected, claiming that the translations were not exact reproductions. The defendant's attorney also said he wanted all the letters written by Luetgert to the widow intro-

The objections were overruled and Mr. McEwen proceeded to read to the jury. He read in a loud tone of voice, and the words "beloved, dear Christine" and other endearing terms were heard in all parts of the court room. Luetgert sat tilted back in his chair and teetered forward and back during the reading. He smiled frequently as some thrust at the police was mentioned, but no nervousness or irritability was made evident by the man during the long time consumed in reading the six letters.

Nothing closes the mouth of the grumbler so quickly as work and food and now there is work and wages for all.'

LETTERS BY LUETGERT ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen-How He Comes to Tell This Story, (From the Battle Creek Moon.) Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know honored and respected by an who know him; such is the man who makes this statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a help-less condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest caution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plasters constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught the slightest cold it went straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price." For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents.

Not only must the actor be possessed of no small amount of histrionic talent, but he must often call in the aid of an understudy, whose duty it is to gull the onlooker into the belief that their favorite is performing the impossible feat of being in two places at one and the same time. For in nearly every play of such a $14,982 09 character it is well nigh impossible for the author so to arrange his piece that the actor may never be called upon to be on the stage with his double.

Any one who has been to see "The Prisoner of Zenda" performed at the St. James theater, must have marveled at the lightning celerity with which Mr. George Alexander, a moment before the drunken king of Ruritania, suddenly, as by some act of witchcraft, reappeared as Rudolf Rassendyll, clad in the ordinary costume of the English tourist. Then, to every one's surprise, the supine body of the king was carried in so that to all appearances Mr. Alexander was gazing upon his own person. In reality, of course, it was merely a lightning change, and the understudy had to be requisitioned to supply the person of the king.

A more famous case of double impersonation, however, is that of "The Corsican Brothers," the first play perhaps in which Sir Henry Irving gave us a taste of his wonderful talent.

In the first act—to give a slight resume of the play—the ghost of Louis, killed in a duel by a certain Chateau Renaud in the forest of Fontainebleau, appears to Fabien, his brother. The second act takes us to Paris, and through varied incident to the death of Louis. Here Irving was Louis.

In the third act, however, it is Fabien who is once more before us, who has constituted himself the avenger of his brother's death. He meets Chateau Renaud and demands satisfaction. Renaud is worsted and falls to the ground. Then suddenly the ghost of Louis appears, and, to personate the spirit of the dead man, Irving had had to fly to the wings, make his way below the stage and take his stand upon the trap, which conveyed him upward to the gaze of the thrilled spectators.

How was it done? The audience was amazed. Yet the explanation is comparatively simple: Irving stepped behind a "property" tree. His "double" instantly filled his place, taking good care not to face the audience when it was necessary for him to confront the ghost. Hence the lightning change from mortal to spirit and the resultant bewilderment of the beholders.

Neither is the "Corsican Brothers" the only play in which Irving has contrived to take a double part and yet nonplus the audience by the adroitness 5.569 88 of his metamorphosis.

Those who are familiar with the "Lyons Mail" will doubtless remember the most telling scene in the play. Here Dubosc, the murderer, is in an attic, gazing down upon the preparations being made for the execution of the innocent Lesurques—whose likeness to the real murderer has brought him | pher: to such a terrible pass—an expression 39 90 of horrible glee upon his face, clapping his hands as he sees the apparently doomed man step forward to his death.

But his exultation is premature. Lesurgues is reprieved, and the crowd 315 03 suddenly catches sight of the villainous face of the real murderer at the attic window. The door of the room is battered in. Behind it stands Dubosc. The $22,826 28-5,759 04 5.759 04 wretch is dragged from his refuge, and as they do so Irving-Lesurques coolly walks in upon the scene of turmoil.

The door of the attic is made to open inward, thus shutting Irving-Dubosc from view of the auditorium. In a moment he slips through a trap. His "double" takes his place, to be hustled Resolved, That the special assessment roll of Lateral Sewer Assessment unceremoniously by the crowd of "supers," whose duty it is also to conceal District No. 6 in said City of Ann Arthe man's face in case the fraud should bor as certified to this Council by the be discovered. Irving-Lesurques can Board of Review be and the same is hen come on in his new role.

But an actor has been known to play two parts without the assistance of a

In a certain play it was the duty of the hero to leap out of the window of his room and to enter from a door on the opposite side of the stage clad in different clothes, though otherwise the same.

This, however, was juggling pure and simple. The actor dropped into his second dress in much the same way as an American fireman is reputed to jump into his uniform. The costume consisted of but one piece with a patent fastening down the back, and as he leaped through the window frame he leaped into his clothes, which, so to speak, shut behind him and left him rehabilitated.

Neither is the part of the understudy one to be given to any ordinary "super" from the mass of warriors, countrymen lands set down in and valued upon said and the like that go to make up a stage crowd. He must be possessed of no slight amount of adaptability and smartness to enable his principal to go through his arduous task without a hitch .-Pearson's Weekly.

They Work Harder and Rate Lower Than Their Steam Road Brothers. 13191 21 INSTANCES IN WHICH AN ACTOR HAS

You often think it's hard for the passenger conductor of an accommodation train which stops at two or three stations to the mile to tell who has paid his fare and who has not. The conductor of a short run accommodation train especially must be a peculiarly gifted man. He must be at once both cool headed and even tempered, or if not he is a total failure.

But if the requisites of a railroad conductor are such, what are the requirements of the man who runs a common street car? Why, as much as those of the railroad man and several times more. The railroad accommodation conductor on one of the short run trains which leave the big cities has little more work, little more responsibility and requires less real skill than the man who by grace is called "conductor" on a trolley car of one of our cities.

Both men, of course, have thousands of cares. The railroad man has a certain number of stops to make and a certain schedule time allowed for getting over his run of the railroad. The street car conductor has an uncertain number of stops to make, yet he still has his certain scheduled time to make on his run, and he must make it, too, or be able to give an "A No. 1" excuse for failure.

The railroad conductor is always the biggest man on his train. Is ever the street car conductor the biggest, unless every passenger is off and the motorman also? These things make it hard for the patient man, who must be polite and who is expected by the company for which he works and spurred on by a dozen or so sharp eyed "spotters," or "street car detectives," as they call themselves, to feel as lovely as a spring morning, and they make his already nervous work doubly so. The railroad conductor doesn't meet that phase of existence once in a decade, or if so not any oftener.

No one presumes to expect so much from the knight of the ticket punch as he does from the knight of the trolley rope. Every one who travels on street cars expects the conductor to know every cross street on his line and just where it strikes that street, and, indeed, he should know this much, but in addition he is expected to know every one who lives on the streets along which his line runs, every one who lives on all the countless streets which cross the route of his car and then all the immediate streets and their inhabitants the whole length of his line. The street car conductor is expected to be porter as well on his car. He must help people on and off, lift up and lift down huge baskets and bundles, never get tired of all the questions which only the city directory could answer, and then, in addition, keep all of the strict rules of the company for which he works and see to it that all of his passengers do so too. For this work he gets $2 or $2.25 a day, while the railroad conductor, who is a very king in comparison, draws his $5 or $6 per day, or $125 a month, and is not classed as a "social suspect" either.-Pittsburg Dispatch.

HE PLAYED BARBER.

SHAVED A DEAD MOONSHINER, AND THERE WAS NO "NEXT."

The Job Tendered, With Some Emphasis, by Friends of the Deceased-The Traveling Man Accepted, but Now Sells Over Another Route.

"It was in Tennessee," said the traveling man, "it happened, on one of those back country roads which I was traveling on my way to a town where I had a fine list of customers. The night was closing in, and I was wondering how long it would take me to reach a place where I could spend the night. I knew that I was among the moonshiners, for the jug on a stump with the money under it was in evidence along the road. I had no thought of being molested in that country, where the only warfare is against the revenue officers, and no one would have suspected me of complicity with the government.

"A slight noise startled my horse, and I leaned out of the buggy to look into the chamber of a revolver. At the same time I saw two figures, one on each side of me, and, checking my horse, I tried to assume a bravado I was far from feeling as I asked:

"'Well, gentlemen, what is your will with me?'

"You can imagine my surprise when a boyish voice asked:

"'Kin you shave yourself?" "I answered that I always shaved myself. Without lowering his revolver he looked across me to his pal on the other side.

"He uns will do, Jim. Hop in an I'll lead the horse.'

"Having made up my mind not to be dragged off in any such ignominious manner, I said:

"'If you are going to shoot me, I suppose I must give up my life, as I am unarmed. If it is money you want, I"-"'Tell him, Jim,' said the one who was leading my horse. "'Yer won't be killed nor robbed nor nothin, if yer don't try ter give us the slip. Shet your mouth now, mister, an you'll know more right soon. "We must have gone a mile before we came to a turn in the road that brought us out in front of a cabin much larger than any I had seen that day in my travel. A woman stood at the door

"'Hev yer foun somebody, boys?' she asked anxiously.

"'Yep, morm, an he'll do the job up slick 'thout askin much pay.'

"I wondered if I was to be compelled to murder some one. The boys were beardless mountain loafers-I had met their type often, but I never knew them to be desperadoes.

"I was shown into the cabin by the woman, one of the boys following with the revolver, while the other waited to fasten the horse to a scrub oak. I saw a figure stretched on a settle, and the idea flashed into my mind that I was mistaken for a doctor.

"'I am not a medical man,' I began to explain, when the woman cut me short.

"'You uns 'ud a been tew late ef you uns was a doctor. He passed outen ordinary specifics fail. Every one has afore daylight, an it's 'nother kind of a good word for it, because everyone likes it. Why not try it for yourself? uns is a goin tew hev the biggest fun'rel uns is a goin tew hev the biggest fun'rel evah was in these yeah pahts, an we wanter hev the ole man shaved foh the fust time, an there ain't a man nowhere aroun as shaves hisself or enny-

"The revulsion of feeling which came over me was not altogether pleasurable, for I did not fancy the idea of playing barber to a dead man, but when I looked at the cadaverous countenance and tangled gray beard of the deceased I felt a sort of professional pride in making him look more like a mortal being and less like a wolf. I had always been an abstainer from strong drink, but I filled up on crude spirits that would have killed me on an ordinary occasion and tackled my silent customer with a feverish and hysterical alacrity. This was in part due to the close proximity of the two boys and their revolvers. But as soon as I had the old mountaineer shaved the revolvers were laid aside and I was treated with the utmost hospitality. The work itself had not been half as gruesome as I had imagined, and I had to fight a ludicrous temptation to pour barber talk into the deaf ears. He was such an improvement over himself when alive-as I judged by the family lingo-that I wanted to ask him to look in a mirror. I declined the fee tendered me by the boy Jim, and, supplied with a jug of moonshine whisky, I was set in the right road and permitted to leave.

"I found it true that in all that community not a man had ever been shaved, and it was only in deference to a whim of the old mountaineer, expressed on his deathbed, that he was made such a curious exception. I did not mention my part in the transaction until I was far beyond that county line, for I was not sure that, a precedent being set, they might not again demand my services, and another salesman has that route."-Chicago Times-Herald.

New England Meeting Houses. Cotton Mather said: "I find no just ground in Scripture to apply such a trope as church to a house for public worship. A meeting house is the term that is most commonly used by New England Christians, and every town, for the most part, can say we have a modest and a handsome house for the worship of God, not set off with gaudy, pompous, theatrical fineries, but suited unto the simplicity of Christian worship.

The people were seated in the early days, says Dr. Ezra Hoyt Byington, in his book on 'The Puritan In England and New England." on rough benches. men and women on opposite sides. Pews were not provided first. Now and then a special vote was passed by the town authorizing some person to build See large bills or inquire of agents for a pew in the meeting house at his own expense. Sometimes the committee was instructed "to have respect upon them that are 50 seated according their pay." In one instance we have a record that the committee was instructed "to have respect to age, office and estate, so far as it tendeth to make a man respectable, and to everything else that hath the same tendency."

Turks and Meerschaum.

According to the best authorities upon the subject, the idea of using is of comparatively recent date, compared with the age of the habit of smoking, and what is still more curious is the fact that in the oriental countries which produce white tale, or meerschaum, as it is called, and where the use of tobacco forms part of the education of the faithful, the people never dream of making this substance into pipes. They make bowls and goblets of it, but no pipes. It may be that the long pipestems which allow the smoke to cool and lose its acridity before reaching the mouth leave the oriental smoker quite indifferent in regard to the quality of the bowl. At all events, one never sees a Turk with a meerschaum pipe. - Courrier des Etats Unis.

The Ancient Umbrella.

On coins in the rock carvings of the ancients the umbrella often shows its familiar form. This goes to prove that Jonas Hanway did not invent the umbrella, but he saw the value of the eastern sunshade and soon it became the fashion to carry this useful article. There must be a great difference between the umbrella of the eighteenth century and the modern steel ribbed, silk covered, slender article which it is regarded as a misfortune to get wet. -Irish Times.

C. P. McKINSTRY'S BONDS

As City Clerk of Ypsilanti Are Missing and Cannot Be Found.

The case against ex-Register of Deeds C. P. McKinstry, charged with embezzling about $1,000 of the funds of the city of Ypsilanti at the time he was city clerk there, has again furnished a new sensational feature. The case is set for trial in the circuit court next month. The Ypsilanti city council has ordered the city attorney to sue McKinstry's bondsmen for the shortage but it now transpires that the bonds are missing.

The disappearance of the bonds has caused considerable gossip. Mr. Mc-Kinstry gave his bonds as city clerk and not clerk of the water board. In the latter capacity a large amount of money was received that is not accounted for. In the next place he gave bonds for the first year of his office, but the city neglected to require them that about $900 was misappropriated during the first year and it is a question if the bondsmen can be held for any shortage during the second year.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

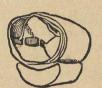

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but - now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.
