A PARK AND A LAKE

Which Would Boom Ann Arbor as a Resort.

OUR CITY'S CHANCE

To Gain the Most Beautiful Park in Michigan.

The Money Necessary Not so Large as to Be Beyond Our Reach.—It Would Add Materially to Ann Arbor's Growth.

Ann Arbor has an opportunity presented to her of making one of the most beautiful parks to be found in the country at a trifling expense. If the city is to keep on growing along the lines on which it has grown for the past decade, there is no money that can be more wisely spent than that necessary for this purpose. At an expenditure of money not exceeding that squandered on Detroit st., Ann Arbor can be put in the way of becoming a beautiful summer resort. It is now a city of homes and beautiful homes at that. Let the other surroundings be made to correspond. Detroit has spent millions on Belle Isle park and the money has not been begrudged. Ann Arbor, with slight expense can have a park far exceeding in natural beauty Detroit's great park, although, of course, not so extensive, but we do not need so large a territory as our city is much smaller.

Ann Arbor can have, if she will, a lake at her very doors, accessible by the street cars, and within easy walking distance, in fact within the present city limits. She can have her boating clubs, safe skating ground in winter, etc. Nothing would cause the summer school to grow to larger numbers so quickly. In the summer, people want to go where there is water. We can have our own lake and keep many of our own people at home besides filling the town with strangers. Other towns give large bonuses to manufacturers. These are experimental. Some bonuses draw paying businesses, others do not. Ann Arbor is not a manufacturing town. It is a residence and an educational city. It therefore needs to strike out in a different direction. It needs to add to its attractions for people who want homes. People go to the Chatauqua summer school in thousands because of the beautiful grounds and lakes. Let us learn from this.

The above remarks lead us to a description of a plan in the course of development which if carried out will give Ann Arbor what she needs to further her material growth, a beautiful park and a beautiful lake. It is a plan that has been hatching ever since beautiful Cedar Bend avenue was built, a plan which may be opposed by some as bitterly as Cedar Bend ave. was opposed before it was built, but over the fulfillment of which all will rejoice as they did when that drive was finished.

The proposed park is to be made by the purchase of the land between Cedar Bend ave. and the river including the island in the river which has recently come into popularity as a resort. It is to be reached from Wall st. or from Cedar Bend ave. and rustic bridges are to be thrown across to the island and to the mainland. Already figures have been obtained on the land necessary for the park. Spencer D. Lennon offers 15 acres of ground south of Cedar Bend and extending to the river for $1,000. This land is beautifully wooded. East or south of this are 8 or 10 acres belonging to Mr. Gardner which can be had for $600. This takes the park to the crooked road by which the ascent to the heights is made from Fuller st. On the other side George Rhodes offers the island and a four rod strip of ground running from Wall st. along the river to beyond the island in the river and also the island, 5½ acres for $500. George W. Weeks very generously offers, in case the other strips are purchased by the city, to donate free of expense to the city, his land which lies between the Lennon tract and the Rhodes tract so as to connect the two pieces. We have then over 30 acres of ground running for some distance along the river and specially fitted by nature for park purposes, in fact a natural park, which can be purchased for the city for $2,100.

Anyone who does not believe in the possibilities of the most beautiful park in Michigan, has not gone carefully over these grounds and should do so at once. The street car company have stated that if these grounds are purchased for park purposes they will at once extend their lines so as to carry the people where they will naturally wish to flock. It is proposed to build a road from Wall st. to Cedar Bend ave. and as these hills are naturally gravel beds, the materials for road building are all there. Cedar Bend ave. in spite of the large proportion spent for engineering was the cheapest bit of road building ever attempted in this city.

Now for the lake scheme. John F. Lawrence owns 22 acres of land on the south and west side of the river and Dr. Sudworth owns the remaining land between the river and Fuller st. These are beautiful meadow lands and Mr. Lawrence has told the committee who waited upon him that he would take $200 per acre and Dr. Sudworth has said that he would sell for less per acre than Mr. Lawrence. Now the Lawrence property possesses a water right which the city could utilize by building a dam to flood all the level land between the river and Fuller st, making a beautiful pond of thirty acres or more which would make as safe and delightful boating as could be found anywhere, and so easily accessible to any of our citizens.

How much more material would be the benefit resulting from this than can be derived by the hazardous offer of bonuses to manufacturing enterprises. From the increased attendance on the summer school alone, Ann Arbor would soon get back her money. It would add another and powerful attraction to the university for beauty and especially the beauty of nature which is an educational influence in itself. It would draw many residents and would be entirely in keeping with the spirit of the city. The people of the city will in all probability be called upon to vote this upon this matter and the opportunity is one which should be taken advantage of, while it is possible. The city administration which brings this project into effect will have a monument for all time, which will call forth the gratitude of their constituents and their constituents' descendants.

Washtenaw Teachers' Association.

The first meeting for this year of the Washtenaw County Teachers' Association was held at the high school hall, Ann Arbor, Saturday. The pupils of the Ann Arbor schools furnished music, singing several pieces in the line of the humane work.

Dr. R. S. Copeland gave a half hour's talk on the "Care of the Eyes," and not only instructed the teachers in a matter of vital importance to those under their care, but interested the children as well.

Mrs. L. M. DeWitt gave a carefully prepared paper on the "New Woman," which met the hearty approval of all.

Commissioner Lister spoke of the work of the district school teachers and noted the increasing demands of the profession and suggested means for meeting some of them through a system of county teachers' classes, to be carried on under the direction of instructors located conveniently through the county, which plan seems to meet the hearty approval of all the teachers.

Prof. Chute talked interestingly on the subject of physics, and Prof. C. A. Hoyt, of the Normal College, gave a short address on the application of child-study to the work of the teacher. The address was well received and was full of excellent suggestions.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Chelsea.

BOTH FEET CUT OFF.

A Chelsea Boy Meets With a Serious Accident Monday.

Archie Leach, son of Mrs. James Leach, of Chelsea, met with a very serious accident Monday night which may cost his life. He left Chelsea Sunday night with Joseph Remuant and was beating his way to Buffalo on a stock train. When the train neared the station at Essex, Ontario, Monday night, Leach jumped off to avoid the conductor but fell under the wheels. One foot was cut off at the ankle and the other leg was so badly smashed that it had to be amputated at the thigh. Word was sent to his mother at Chelsea, who went to Essex Tuesday. There is some hope for his recovery but he will be unable to do manual labor for the rest of his life. Leach is only 18 years of age.

The Anti-Tramp Society.

The annual meeting of the Anti-Tramp Society was held in the council chamber Friday evening, but the slim attendance of only seven members was enough to dishearten the most enthusiastic of workers along this line. The president, Rev. J. W. Bradshaw read his annual report, which will be published in local papers at an early date. Treasurer C. E. Hiscock read his report, which summarized it as follows: Receipts—Balance from last year, $14.70; dues, $1; from city for labor, $80.95; total, $96.65. Expenditures—Supplies, $4.10; 87 lodgings, $13.05; 310 meals, $77.50; balance on hand, $2. Rev. J. W. Bradshaw was re-elected president, Prof. C. H. Cooley secretary, and Mayor C. E. Hiscock treasurer. The work laid out will be continued along the same lines which have proven so successful in the past two years. It is greatly desired that our citizens take more interest in the plan which has done so much to free our city of the tramp nuisance.

Tried to Sell a Stolen Wheel.

A young man named Oscar Hoffman, of Detroit, tried to sell a good looking bicycle to F. Stofflet, Monday, for $20. Mr. Stofflet doubted the boy somewhat and having furnished him a night's lodging, communicated with Sheriff Judson, who telephoned to Detroit to learn something about him. The answer came back that he was wanted in Detroit for stealing a bicycle. Tuesday evening an officer came and took Hoffman to Detroit. The wheel he tried to sell Mr. Stofflet was rented from a Detroit bicycle livery.

THE FAIR A SUCCESS

About 15,000 People Have Already Visited It.

ENTRIES WERE MANY

And Overcrowded Most of the Departments.

The Wedding Was a Great Drawing Card and Was Happily Consummated—Everything Passed Off Very Pleasantly.

Today is the closing day of the big Washtenaw county fair and if the interest in it keeps up as well today as it has done the other three days the management hopes to chronicle a financial success. The entries in every department but that of cattle have been enormous and the limited space at the disposal of the superintendents has been crowded to overflowing, and taken altogether it has been one of the most successful fairs ever held in Ann Arbor.

All Tuesday and part of Wednesday was devoted to the reception and arrangement of the entries in the several departments and Superintendent Mills and President Leland were ubiquitous in their attention to the wants of all, being ably assisted by the various superintendents of departments.

In the cattle department the showing is a small one. Pacey & Smith, of Scio, and D. B. Kelly, of Ypsilanti, have good herds of Durham and grade cattle, including aged cows, three and two year old heifers, yearlings, calves and bulls. Horses, sheep and swine are largely represented and some fine specimens are shown. The poultry department is overflowing and there are not coops enough to hold all the exhibits. In the dairy and culinary department the housewives of the county have outdone their former excellent work and the show of bright golden butter, light bread and cake, and toothsome canned and preserved fruits is most appetizing to behold.

The displays of potted plants and cut flowers is confined to a few exhibitors the principal one being Cousins & Hall, the florists, who carry off 10 first and one second prize. The fine arts department contains many beautiful as well as difficult specimens of ladies, handiwork, among which was particularly noticeable the hand painted china collections of Miss Amanda E. Reyer, of Ann Arbor, Miss Ida A. Lthrop, of Pittsfield, and Mrs. R. Spooner, of Ypsilanti. The ingenious handiwork and tireless patience exhibited by one lady in the making of two quilts from very small fragments of cloth, is also well worthy of mention. As a whole the display of needlework was very good, and the paintings in oil and water colors were much admired.

The farm and garden department had numerous entries of good exhibits, the fine vegetables being especially prominent on account of the poor season for garden stuff. In this department was shown corn in the stalk 12 feet high and over, heads of cabbage 18 inches across, mangold wurtzels of mammoth proportions, while the onions, potatoes, carrots, etc., were beautiful specimens of their kind. George E. Sperry, of Pittsfield, had two ears of yellow dent corn, one of which weighed 1 pound 8½ ounces and the other 1 pound 8½ ounces. The mammoth citrons, as big as medium sized watermelons, shown by Mr. Hausser, of Ann Arbor town, were admired by all. The fruit department, in view of the poor season, has some good specimens in it, but not by any means equal to those of former years.

In the mechanical department Walker & Co., of Ann Arbor, have a fine display of carriages, harnesses and horse furnishings. The principal exhibits are a two seated Stanhope surrey, a handsome phaeton, and a buggy with ball bearing axle. Other exhibitors are Hurd & Holmes, of Ann Arbor, and Jacob Strum, of Saline. Esslinger Bros., Ann Arbor, have a fine case of hand made and polished horse shoes, and Wm. Wenger shows two bicycles of his own make.

In the merchants' displays Eberbach & Co., show hardware and house furnishings. They also have a guessing contest as to how long a candle 5 feet high and 5 inches thick will burn. The winner will receive a $25 stove. Fred Rentschler exhibits a fine lot of photographs, and Edwards & Dowler are also exhibitors in the same line. The Ann Arbor Music Co. and J. F. Schaeberle show pianos, organs and musical merchandise, besides furnishing free concerts for all who will listen.

The Ann Arbor Mandolin and Guitar Club, playing on Bohman instruments were the center of attraction in J. F. Schaeberle's corner of the fine arts building Thursday afternoon. Mr. Schaeberle is the local agent for the Bohman instruments.

One of the most interesting features is the relics of the civil war shown under the charge of Welch Post, G. A. R. and which attracted a great deal of attention.

Wednesday was school day at the fair and the exhibition made by the school of Washtenaw county under the direction of School Commissioner Lister, was a good one. Before 10 o'clock in the morning the country schools began to arrive in gaily decorated wagons and when the parade was formed on the fair ground there were 18 schools in line. Pittsfield, No. 27½, Miss Carrie Revel, teacher, won the first prize. Saline, No. 2, Miss Irene Young, teacher, won the second, and Ann Arbor town, No. 3, the third prize in this display. The schools that received honorable mention by the judges for this display were Scio, No. 5, Scio No. 3, Superior No. 4, Scio No. 10, Northfield No. 6, Ann Arbor No. 7, Saline No. 8, Saline No. 7, Saline No. 3, Salem No. 2, and Salem No. 1. Saline No. 10, Miss Cora Young, teacher, took the prize for the best appearing school off the wagon, and Salem No. 1, Miss Leland, teacher, got the prize for singing on the wagon.

The rhetorical contests were held after the parade in the large tent of the Ann Arbor Music Company, and the prizes were awarded as follows: Mabel Wood, of Lodi No. 5, had no one to oppose her and took first prize for reading. Lulu Fairbanks, of Saline No. 1, took the prize for declamation. Salem No. 1 was awarded the prize in the singing contest, and Eva Schairer of the Saline Union school won the first prize for spelling.

The Saline Union school and district No. 11, York and Augusta, were the only two exhibitors in map drawing, kindergarten and manuscript work, and carried off the honors between them, the former taking the first prizes.

The judges of the field display were Prof. R. O. Austin, of Saline, Col. Dean and F. J. Dansingburg, of Ann Arbor.

The judges of the rhetorical contests were Miss Mills, of Ann Arbor, Mrs. John K. Campbell, of Augusta, and Miss Fellows, of Mooreville.

Following this came excellent addresses by ex-County School Commissioners Cavanaugh and Wedemeyer, which were full of forcible comments on matters of general interest to the educational interests of the county. School Commissioner Lister introduced each speaker in a few pleasant words.

At 1 o'clock a cavalcade of the live stock exhibits was made on the race track headed by Becker's Band. The balance of the afternoon was taken up with the special attractions and horse races.

Yesterday was Farmers' Day and the country people turned out en masse. It was estimated at 3 o'clock that over 7,200 admission tickets had been sold and it is thought by good judges that the crowd numbered fully 10,000 people. The speakers expected to be present did not materialize and Gov. Pingree who was to greet his Washtenaw friends could not stretch his hand this far as he is in Venezuela. But everyone took things good naturedly and put in their best ticks to have a good time. At 10 a. m. the Chequamegon orchestra gave a concert in the Ann Arbor Music Co.'s big tent and Frank McIntyre and Ray Warren sang solos. The afternoon performances began at 1 o'clock, the music being furnished by the Superior Grange Band. By 2 o'clock, the hour set for the marriage of Mr. Otis E. Killenbeck and Miss Nellie Ferguson, of Ypsilanti, the grand stand was packed, jammed and running over with people anxious to see the ceremony. Every other part of the grounds in that immediate vicinity was also crowded with people. The wedding party was a small one consisting only of the officiating minister, Rev. Mr. Arnold, of Ypsilanti, the bride and groom and Mrs. Ellen Beaudrie, a near relative of Miss Ferguson.

Supt. F. E. Mills acted as usher and after the marriage knot was tied the minister saluted the bride in the most approved style. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mrs. Beaudrie, by request, sang an original song of congratulation, but her efforts to sell the words at 10 cents a copy did not seem to meet with very great success.

Following the wedding came some more of the special attractions, 2:30 trotting race and a 2:35 pace, the judges for which were E. J. Helber, Dr. Nowlin and F. B. Braun. Frank Butterfield, of Whitmore Lake, was starter.

This afternoon the stores in the city will be closed and the clerks and others will be given an opportunity to witness the fair. The program is a good one.

Unitarian Church Announcements. Rev. J. T. Sunderland will preach next Sunday morning on the question, "Why Study the Bible?" The sermon will be followed on subsequent Sundays by two others on "How to Study the Bible," and "The Relation of our Bible to the other Great Sacred Books of the World."

These discourses will be in a sense introductory to the work of Mrs. Sunderland's Students' Bible Class, which will organize at 12 o'clock for a year of study of the Bible, beginning with Genesis and going through to Revelation, endeavoring to answer the question "What is the Bible?" in the light of the best modern knowledge.

Next Sunday evening the regular evening services of the church will be resumed. The pastor will preach upon the question, "Is Inquiry in Religion Safe?"

The Young People's Religious Union will resume its meetings at 6:30 p. m. in the church parlors.

Woman's Work

Is never done, and it is especially wearing and wearisome to those whose blood is impure and unfit properly to tone, sustain, and renew the wasting of nerve, muscle and tissue. It is more because of this condition of the blood that women are run down,

Tired, Weak, Nervous,
Than because of the work itself. Every physician says so, and that the only remedy is in building up by taking a good nerve tonic, blood purifier and vitalizer like Hood's Sarsaparilla. For the troubles Peculiar to Women at change of season, climate or life, or resulting from hard work, nervousness, and impure blood, thousands have found relief and cure in Jerome Schermerhorn continued his attempt to drown his defeat in the Mollie Bennett will case last week at Ypsilanti and on Wednesday Justice Childs fined him $5.65 or ten days in jail. Jim Kinney, an incorrigible disorderly was the same day sentenced by Justice Childs to 65 days in the Detroit House of Correction for a second offense.

George L. Boyden, a well known farmer of Dexter township, died Sept. 1, of heart disease, aged 60 years. He was born in Massachusetts but was brought to Michigan by his parents when a year and a half old to the farm on which he has since resided. He was married in 1857 to Harriet M. Pratt, who with one son survives him. He was highly esteemed by many friends who appreciated his good qualities.

Secretary Baker of the State Board of Health has received information that persons claiming to represent the State Board of Health, are visiting farmers to examine the condition of the water supply on their farms. After making an examination of the water they declare that they have found microbes and bacteria in it and terrify the farmers into buying alleged disinfectants. Secretary Baker says that the State Board of Health has no such agents or representatives and when a representative of the board is sent out to make investigations, he will be able to show letters of authority with the official seal attached.

Ed. Stryker, on whose head a half century sits lightly, paralyzed the residents on Union street a few days ago by driving up to his home on that thoroughfare in a cutter. Mr. Stryker despises scorching and therefore rode with a slow and measured dignity behind his Rosinante, who is also of a conservative temperament and not given in the least degree to the fippancies and frivolities so characteristic of horses that don't know enough to come in when it rains. There was something about the cut of the animal's eye, the sway of his ear, the droop of his lip, the swell of the nostrils that awoke all the sentiment in Mr. Stryker's poetic nature, and he purchased the noble creature for the munificent sum of $3.00 with the cutter thrown in. Ed and the horse seem to be of the same age.—Grass Lake News.

Last week was one of peculiar experience for many of the deputies of Washtenaw and adjoining counties. As the story goes Joe Gauss, of Saline, had a fine horse stolen Sunday night, Sept. 12, and the officers were at once put in motion. They searched day and night. Sheriff Judson was phoned from all quarters and no ground was left uncovered. Friday evening as the men went around Gauss' barn, a peculiar scent met them and close investigation proved that the animal so long searched for had stole and hid himself. He had gone in between the straw stack and a high board fence where he had become fastened and unobserved and there died in a standing position. Joe blamed the officers the first few days for not being able to get trace of his horse, but now the deputies can turn and give him the shake.—Saline Observer.

HE WAS HOMESICK.

SO HE WAS EASILY LURED ACROSS THE MEXICAN LINE.

How an Amateur Detective Outwitted an Embezzler—Posing as a Forger in Exile Who Knew of a Rich Deposit of Ore That Had Never Been Reported.

"I never was in Mexico but once, and then I went as an amateur detective," said the mining expert. "It happened this way: A friend of mine in Pittsburg had his confidential clerk—to whom he had given an opportunity by trusting him fully—skip with $10,000. He knew where he was, just over the border from San Diego. But he was safe, for he kept religiously on the wrong side of the line. Several detectives had been sent down there to lure him over, but in some way he had detected the detective in them, for they often acquire a professional air in spite of their best efforts to the contrary.

"I knew that my only chance would be to go and live there as a fugitive from justice myself and so secure his entire confidence. I decided to be a forger. I took up my abode in the wretched little town and in about 24 hours was so sick of it that I was on the point of throwing up the whole scheme and going back. But my friend had done me many a favor in business, and in decency I owed him some return. Of course I did not make the slick man's acquaintance. I was determined he should make mine. He held off for several days, evidently thinking I was a detective and expecting me to make, as they had always done, approaches to him. But I kept away, as if I were suspicious of him. The fellow was dreadfully homesick, and I don't wonder, in that place. He used to go out on the desert and look at the stars and stripes across the border and wish he dared go back. He evidently began to think he was worse imprisoned than if he had been in some penitentiary.

"Finally one day he ventured to address me. I replied very coldly to his salutation, which only made him the more anxious to know me. He began to inquire into my business and find out what I had come for. I gave him no special satisfaction until one day I said that I had come for a change of air. With the same kind of air in the United States a few miles away this was, of course, absurd, and he concluded, as I intended he should, that I was there for the same reason he was, but I plied him with no questions. Finally, in his impatience, he burst out with:

"What's the use of keeping up this pretense longer? I know and you know that we are both on the same errand down here. It is true, as you say, we can't live over there"—pointing toward the country over the border. "Let's own up and have done with the farce." So we confessed to each other, he telling me all about his crime, which I knew already, and I telling him all about my imaginary iniquity. "That was as far as we got for awhile, but it did him good. For it left him free to talk. He was very homesick, and we both acknowledged that it would be almost pleasanter to give ourselves up and serve out our terms than to stay there the rest of our lives. I once or twice hinted that I was ready to do so. But he wasn't, and I knew that no ordinary inducement would get him where he could be taken. But he had no opportunity of investing his money, and his cupidity naturally forced him to see that he had made a very poor bargain if all he was to get out of his rascality was to sit and spend it slowly in that little hole of a Mexican town.

"I had already interested him with my stories of fortunes that had been made in lucky mine investments, and told him I knew of one rich deposit which I had never reported to any one, intending to invest the amount of my forgery in its development if I could get some more to put with it. I told him it was in an out of the way locality in southern Arizona, and that we could get there without detection if we would go on foot or burro back and avoid the railroads. Finally he concluded that he was willing to take the risk if I would and go and look at the property. The rest was easy. I wrote at once for an officer to be ready to head us off while crossing the Colorado river. We had traveled some distance without being challenged or exciting suspicion. I threw off my pretended apprehension, declared that we were safe from all interference and that we might as well take it easy. This proved contagious, and I saw that I would have no difficulty in getting him to the point I had designated to the officers.

"We were riding slowly along in the hot sun of the desert when suddenly from behind a butte two men on horses shot out and rode swiftly toward us and were upon us almost before we had time to realize it. Although I had expected them, I confess I was taken by surprise—it was done so quickly and successfully. Of course they handcuffed me as well as him. But before we had reached the railroad station they had released me, and he understood how he had been fooled. I expected he would burst out in curses and reproaches, especially when they confiscated what he had left of his stealings. But he didn't. In fact, it was so great a relief that he made no defense at the trial and took his sentence with great indifference. I would hardly have been surprised if he had thanked me for the favor—he was so thoroughly sick of exile."—Chicago Times-Herald.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have been a great sufferer from kidney trouble; pains in muscles, joints, back and shoulders; feet would swell. I also had womb troubles and leucorrhoea. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, I felt like a new woman. My kidneys are now in perfect condition."—Mrs. MAGGIE POTTS, 324 Kauffman St., Philadelphia, Pa.

"My system was entirely run down, and I suffered with terrible backache in the small of my back, and could hardly stand upright. I had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I have gained fifteen pounds, and I look better than I ever looked before."—Mrs. E. F. MORTON, 1043 Hopkins St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

LILLIAN CRIPPEN, Box 77, St. Andrew's Bay, Fla., says:—"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I had suffered many years with kidney trouble. The pains in my back and shoulders were terrible. My menstruation became irregular, and I was troubled with leucorrhoea. I was growing very weak. I began the use of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine, and the first bottle relieved the pain in my back and regulated the menses. It relieved the pain quickly and cured the disease."

A Patent Office Incident.

The patent office official bowed politely from his place at his desk as the visitor in clothes of cleric cut and a smooth face greeted him with a subdued "Good morning, sir."

"Good morning," responded the official, with a cheerful, $150 a month manner. "Is there anything we can do for you this morning?"

"I don't know really, sir," crooned the caller softly. "To know if you can is the object of my visit this morning, sir."

"Very well, state your case, and if we can do anything for you you may rest assured it will be done."

The visitor cleared his throat pretty much as if he were going to deliver a sermon.

"I think," he said slowly and with hesitation, "if I mistake not, that I saw a statement in some one of the public prints to the effect that this office would not issue a patent on Sunday. Is that true, sir?"

"Quite true. It does not."

"Why is that, sir, if I may ask?"

"It is against the rules of the office is all I know."

"Will it issue one on any other day of the seven, sir?"

"Certainly it will. That is what it is here for."

"Oh, thank you, how nice," twittered the visitor, taking a large madras handkerchief from his coatall pocket, shaking it out and wiping his brow with it. "That being the case, if you will be kind enough to let me have one on Tuesday, sir, you will do me a great personal favor. You see, sir, Tuesday is my birthday, and I want a patent on it so no one can use it for birthday purposes, sir, except myself."—Washington Star.

Greeks as Fighters.

Smolenski had placed a battery of mountain guns on a plateau overlooking the village of Velestino, and along the base of this plateau was a battalion of Evzones, sheltered by the position of the ground and by intrenchments. The battery on the plateau played on the Turkish advance with great effect, and the order was given by the Turkish commander to charge it. The Turkish infantry swung clear, and the cavalry, led by a young officer, came on in column, first at the trot and then at a swinging gallop. It seemed a mad undertaking for cavalry to charge a battery of well served artillery planted on the crest of a long, steep slope.

The brave horsemen were met with salvos of shells which plowed through their ranks. Then suddenly uprose the Evzones from their partially hidden cover and poured upon them volley after volley. No troops could withstand such fire, and, completely broken, the Turkish horsemen turned and sought shelter in the woods in the neighborhood of Risomylos.—"With the Greeks in Thessaly," by W. Kinnaird Rose.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Look after the Back: A Fall, a Strain, a Constant Sitting or Standing Position Brings Backache—Do You Know This Means the Kidneys are Affected?

How few people realize when their back begins to ache that it is a warning provided by nature to tell you that the kidneys are not working properly. You have a severe fall, you strain yourself lifting or perhaps you are compelled to maintain a sitting or stooping position for long intervals at a time, your back begins to ache, then your head, you become listless, tired and weary, but do you understand the real cause? We think not, else you would not use plasters and liniment on the back, which only relieve but do not reach the cause. If you would rid yourself of the pain and cure the root of the trouble, at the same time save many years of suffering and perhaps life itself, you will take a kidney remedy that has been tried and proven that it will cure.

Mr. John Robson of 661 Russell Street, Detroit, says: "As a result of exposure during the war I have suffered ever since with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Pains would start in my hip and go around to my back. Highly colored urine denoted kidney disorder. The pain in my back was often so bad I had to give up work until the severity of the attack passed away. I have used many liniments and other things, but received very little relief. Some time ago I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and they have worked a wonderful change in me. My back is all right now and I owe it all to the almost magical influence of Doan's Kidney Pills." Mr. Robson was a member of the Fifty-first Illinois Regiment, which served through the war with honor and distinction. Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

Richard Ainsley and son attended the reunion of the 20th Michigan Infantry held at Lansing last week. Mr. Ainsley was one of the boys in blue of the 20th Michigan.

Dr. and Mrs. Chase, of Kalamazoo, have been out visiting brothers and relatives of the latter. She was known years ago as Elizabeth Moore, daughter of Lewis Moore.

Mrs. Priscilla Talcott, of Ypsilanti, who is in her 89th year, is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. B. Abbey, who is nearly 86 years old, and her nieces, Mrs. Harvey S. Day and Mrs. George Hammond, of Willis.

Joseph Breining attempted to climb over a barbed wire fence the other day and in so doing he caught his foot in such a way that it was going to throw his face on the barbs. He put out his hand to save himself and had two fingers out to the bone on the barbs, so that the bones were visible.

Sunday, Sept. 26, a barn belonging to Mrs. Elias Alban was burned with all its contents. The house and a portion of the barn was occupied by Frank Fullington. Mr. Fullington lost nearly all he had. He had a span of horses, but several weeks ago one of them sprained an ankle so he could not travel and the other was burned in the barn, together with a top buggy and a new double harness. No insurance. Mr. and Mrs. Fullington were several miles from home when the fire broke out. James Bunton, who rented the farm, lost 100 bushels of last year's beans, three loads of unthreshed beans, which he drew into the barn on Saturday, 60 bushels of last year's oats, and 7 acres of unthreshed oats. Insured in the Washtenaw Mutual. Some one must have visited the barn and set it afire.

London Architecture.

Not long ago an English architect was heard to make a curiously suggestive remark. Conversation had turned upon the manifold dangers to which we expose ourselves by traveling in railway carriages. "The great rule," said this architect, "is never to look out of the window until you are a good 80 miles from London. Otherwise you risk seeing the Crystal Palace."

RAGE MADE HIM A MURDERER.

Double Crime of Contractor Due to Ungovernable Temper.

Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Wallace J. Christian, a contractor, in a fit of rage Tuesday shot and instantly killed Horace F. Pritchard of New York. Then Christian turned his pistol on Thomas Manning, a constable of Wurtsboro, and shot him twice, mortally wounding him. The crime took place in front of Christian's cottage in the grounds of the Sullivan County club, near Wurtsboro, and before the eyes of his wife. The murderer escaped to the woods and has not been arrested. Christian, a man of ungovernable temper, had a misunderstanding with Pritchard, who was a manufacturer of window frames and sashes, over material furnished for buildings erected by Christian. Pritchard sued Christian for settlement and accompanied Constable Manning to Christian's cottage, where the constable attempted to serve papers on Christian and also to arrest him. Christian came out of the house, cursing Pritchard, and going up to him thrust the muzzle of the pistol against his body just above the groin and fired. Pritchard fell dead. The constable fled and Christian fired after him, striking him twice in the abdomen. Manning cannot recover. A sharp lookout is being kept in all the neighboring villages and the murderer will undoubtedly be captured.

TOWN NEARLY DESTROYED.

Eighteen Out of Twenty-Five Stores Burned at Williamsfield, Ills.

Galesburg, Ills., Sept. 28.—The town of Williamsfield, in the east end of Knox county, is overwhelmed by the fire which wiped out eighteen of the best of its twenty-five stores Monday night. The fire started in an old livery barn in the heart of the town and swept away two entire blocks of business houses. The fire engine was stored in the barn and was the first thing to burn and the populace were helpless, but fought bravely with primitive means. The total loss will foot up to $30,000, about half covered by insurance.

The loss is principally in stocks, as the buildings were wooden and cheap. The heaviest individual loser is J. M. Baird, lumberman, whose entire plant was swept away. Loss, $4,000, half insured. Zener & Ryan, general store, lose $10,000 on stock, with $5,000 insurance. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin, as the first man at the engine house smelled kerosene, and the fire spread rapidly.

Gold Discovery in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 28.—Excitement continues to prevail in an acute degree near Purdam's Springs, in this county, north of Little Rock, over the discovery of gold. Persons from Cincinnati and elsewhere have been buying up tracts of land in that vicinity on the strength of developments made in the past few weeks. They have gone about it quietly and without manifesting a disposition to get their name into the papers, and this strengthens the belief in the merit of the developments so far. If the subdued excitement breaks forth in its fullness there promises to be a second Klondike epidemic.

Massachusetts Democrats.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 28.—The Massachusetts Democratic state convention assembled in this city Tuesday to nominate candidates for the various state offices, from the governorship down, to be filled at the election in November. A motion "that the Democratic party of Massachusetts indorse the platform adopted at the last national convention of the party held at Chicago and will welcome to its ranks all supporters of that platform and will have no political fellowship with those who do not support it" was passed unanimously.

Fatal Crossing Accident.

Chester, Pa., Sept. 28.—Three persons were killed on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks at Carrerott, a few miles below this city Tuesday morning by a passenger train crashing into a wagon. The victims are: Mytro Dobrinski, aged 35 years; George Baldwin, aged 6 years; Maud Baldwin, aged 12 years, son and daughter of Robert L. Baldwin. Dobrinski and the Baldwin boy were instantly killed and the little girl lived a few minutes. The horse was also killed and the wagon torn to splinters.

Attempt to Burn a Village.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 28.—A desperate attempt to burn the village of Arlington, in Washington county, about twenty miles from here, was made Tuesday morning. The watchman discovered two men on the street at 4 o'clock with masks. He gave chase but they escaped. Simultaneously fire broke out in four places. The villagers turned out and by dint of desperate work saved much property from destruction. The total loss is about $35,000.

Declines To Be a Candidate.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 28.—Hon. James M. Woolworth has written to Warren Switzer, secretary of the National Democratic state committee, declining to be a candidate for supreme judge on the party's ticket. His resignation is on file at the office of the secretary of state. A meeting of the state committee has been called to take some action looking to the completion of the ticket. Mr. Woolworth declines to discuss the situation.

Ex-Postmaster Missing.

Holland, Mich., Sept. 28.—C. E. Siple, ex-postmaster of Hamilton, Allegan county, is missing, and government inspectors, it is said, are reviewing his accounts. Mr. Siple left home two weeks ago, saying he was going to the probate office at Allegan. His wife claims to know nothing of his whereabouts. Siple was a leader in the business affairs of Hamilton. He was removed from office about six weeks ago.

Firebugs at Work.

Pomeroy, O., Sept. 28.—Middleport is wrought up to a high pitch of excitement over the work of incendiaries the past few days. Five fires have followed in rapid succession in different parts of the town. An organization has been perfected to patrol the town.

Sale of the Union Pacific.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 28.—Late Tuesday afternoon a telegram was received from Master in Chancery Cornish, now in New York, fixing Nov. 1 as the date for the sale of the Union Pacific.

Mental Telegraphy.

"Let me take your hat, John, dear. I'll close the door. You're tired, I know. Give me another kiss. What's one?"

"Thank you, my dear. You are very thoughtful."

"Of you always, to be sure, you poor, dear boy. I have the nicest supper for you. Look—some lovely biscuits, the kind of cake you like best and your favorite preserves too!"

"How kind of you."

"Not at all. It's a wife's duty, you know, to study her husband's wishes and comfort."

"Why, so it is! I had quite forgotten that."

"Now, John, aren't you pleased?"

"Oh, of course, of course, my darling, only—"

"Well, only—"

"Nothing, nothing—but you've been down town this afternoon, haven't you?"

"Why, John, how did you guess? Yes."

"And to the milliner's?"

"You're a mind reader."

"No, not at all." (After a reflective pause.) "Well, here it is."

"Oh, John, $10—you dear, sweet, good hubby."

"Um,—yes,—ain't I? But, come on, let's have that delicious supper now. I need it." (To himself, as he spreads his first biscuit) "Mind reader—I guess so! I thought she was talking through her hat, and she was."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Pipe Made of a Seal's Tusk.

A pipe made out of a seal's tusk was seen at the Weare office recently. The stem is nearly a foot long and is quaintly illustrated with representations of life under the arctic circle.

The artist was an Indian, and the little sketches in India ink show up very well against the ivory background. There is a reindeer about to fall under the arrow of an archer. There is a sledge drawn by dogs. Fir trees, tepees, a fishing scene, where the captives are being brought to shore in a net, are all true to life.

Another ornament of the same character is a pair of walrus tusks, with delineations of other Alaskan scenes, with the fox and the white polar bear in evidence; also an Eskimo leveling a gun at the latter.

It is said that to add to the terrors of overland travel in the long winter months the larger wild animals are often driven by hunger to attack the trailmen, and packs of ferocious wolves will besiege a camp for days, attacking the horses and reindeer as well as the dogs. More than one caravan has been done to death in this manner, as the whitened bones strewn along the tracks show.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Horse Model Makers.

"Making full sized models of horses is quite a distinct and well paid business, the models for the world wide almost being made in London," said the manager of a great firm of carriage builders in Long Acre.

"There is scarcely a considerable carriage builder or dealer anywhere who has not in his shop or warehouse one or more full sized models of horses (we and some other firms have respectively several such models always), which are not only used as a mere attraction, but are also, being movable, put into different sets of shafts, so as to show customers how a complete turnout will look.

"Then, again, extra good models are made for exhibitions, shows and the like, and many of the best harness makers in all countries keep them in their shops for trying on purposes.

"I have given as much as 60 and 70 guineas for a good model, but of course the general run of these things costs far less, except for exhibition purposes. I have seen models made of the skin of a real horse, but the imitation variety is the rule. The men who make the models—quite artists in their way, some of them—are also the sellers, as a rule."—Pearson's Weekly.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1897. A GRASS LAKE RESPONSE

Which Rivals the Wanderings of the Bard of Willis.

Manchester, Chelsea and Grass Lake now look down upon their neighbors from a pinnacle of greatness on which they were placed by Mrs. W. F. Shaler, in a speech responding to the toast "Grass Lake, Chelsea and Manchester" at an L. O. T. M. banquet in Grass Lake, a speech which deserves to go thundering down the ages as long as the rays of history shall irradiate the path of time, and which in its effulgence rivals the most famous utterances of the bard of Willis. The response was as follows:

"Toastmistress and Ladies: Grass Lake—Chelsea—Manchester! Seats of empire in queenly realms! more beautiful for situation than the enduring city of which the enraptured Psalmist sang! glorious with stately turrets and gleaming towers—with lofty domes and slender spires! vestibules of the homes of the immortals! the abodes of fair women and brave men! what words of mine can do justice to thee, lovely brides of our goodly land? Dwelling amid the splendors of this triumvirate of marts, where white-winged peace abides, we envy not the great metropolis of our own land, her rush of life and mighty opulence; nor London, the modern Babylon, with her architectural grandeur and titled greatness; nor Paris, city of palaces and evanescent gaiety; nor the romantic glories of the castle-crowned heights of the Rhine; nor imperial Rome, with her crumbling triumphal arches and moldering greatness! We envy them not, for amid the stately splendors of these magnificent cities there flow rivers whose black waters are composed of misery and want, sorrow and tears, crime and death, and which, to our experience, are unknown. Our fair towns, virtuous and happy, sit enthroned amid expanses rich with autumn's fruitage and fanned by breezes sweeter than the perfumed winds of Araby the Blest. Within their delightful precincts gladness dwells and plenty holds court, as the graceful but substantial forms of many about me attest. It is not all of life to live unless you live in one of these three retreats of bliss, and it might be risky to deny that but for the rise of our trio of imperial towns, Columbus' glory would be imperfect. Then hail, Grass Lake! forevermore queenly! against whose foundation walls the waters of the mighty deep beat in stormy anger, or sigh in osculatory bliss! Hail, Chelsea! charming empress of the plains! with thy thousand graces and a mosaic of emerald and gold stretching away on every side to the azure rim of the bending skies! Hail, Manchester! fair bride of the crystal river that weds thee to the all embracing sea and jeweled with virtues as bright as the stars in the blue floor above thee! All hail, triumvirate of smiling Queens! may thy radiant retinues gathered here in this glad hour, clasp fraternal hands and may the golden bonds of friendship bind us one to another until the curtain drops and the drama of life is ended."

PHW! Now may the bard of Willis, and that older bard, the Latin Horace, hide their diminished heads.

DEATH OF MRS. STARKWEATHER.

Ypsilanti's Great Benefactor Passed Away Last Friday.

Mrs. Mary Ann Starkweather, notice of whose serious sickness appeared in last week's Argus, died at her home in Ypsilanti, at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, aged 78 years and 2 days.

Mrs. Starkweather was born at Waterville, Oneida county, New York, September 22, 1819. Her maiden name was Newberry. On June 5, 1839, she was married in Detroit to John Starkweather, and since 1841 she had lived continuously in or near Ypsilanti. Mr. Starkweather died on February 2, 1883, and for the last 10 years Mrs. Starkweather made her home with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Duebel.

The city of Ypsilanti, indebted to Mrs. Starkweather for many munificent gifts, among which may be mentioned the handsome drinking fountain west of the bank building; the statue surmounting the soldiers' monument, the Starkweather Memorial chapel in Highland cemetery, the Ladies' Library Association building, the fine grand piano in St. Luke's church house, and the Students' Christian Association building, situated on the Normal grounds. Aside from these magnificent gifts, Mrs. Starkweather had been most generous in her contributions to the upbuilding and support of church organizations, both in Ypsilanti and other towns, and her private acts of charity were numerous and munificent.

The funeral services held Monday afternoon were conducted by Rev. R. K. Wharton, of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. William Gardam, of St. Luke's Episcopal church. As a mark of respect and appreciation of her many public acts of beneficence, the schools and all business places were closed during the funeral hour. The common council and Carpenter Post, G. A. R., attended in a body, while many other organizations showed appreciation of her worthy efforts by being largely represented.

All About a Bicycle.

Deputy Sheriff Huhn had quite an exciting experience Tuesday afternoon with a young lady. He tried to take possession of a wheel which she had left standing in front of White's ice cream parlor on a writ of attachment. She refused to give it up as she had borrowed it of her sister, and insisted that the officer follow her home, present the writ to her sister and then take possession of the wheel if he had the authority. The deputy was afraid he would lose the wheel if he did this and a crowd of young fellows gathered around and roundly hooted him for his action, which only lay in the line of his duty. It seems that the wheel in question was bought for a Butler wheel, the price being $65. After the young lady had paid $35 on the wheel she found out that it was not a Butler wheel that she had bought and she refused to pay any more money on it. The writ of attachment described the wheel as a Butler, but no such name could be found on the wheel which is still in the young lady's possession.

SCHAEFERLE MUSIC STORE, W. Liberty St., Ann Arbor.

STORY OF A WAR SONG.

The Man Who Composed the Music for "We Are Coming, Father Abraham."

The man who composed the music for Whittier's song, "We Are Coming, Father Abraham, Three Hundred Thousand Strong," is an old and somewhat decrepit piano tuner, who carries on his business near Windom, Minn. His name is A. B. Irving.

One day soon after Lincoln's call for 800,000 more men, Irving, then a young man, was on his way to Defiance, O., from Fort Wayne for the purpose of singing at a political and loyal meeting. He had considerable reputation as a composer and singer and the Republicans had asked him to come and help them. On the way he read the poem, which had just been published. Irving studied it, formulated a tune, hummed it and got the rhythm, and that evening at the Defiance meeting he sang the song for the first time. When he had finished, and the last echoes had died away, men mounted their chairs with wild enthusiasm, swung their hats and broke loose in cheers that rang with feeling. He sang it again and again, and they would scarcely let him rest.

The next night he sang the song at Fort Wayne, and again aroused the same enthusiasm. He wrote out the music and sent it to the publisher who had handled what he had composed, with instructions to publish it on his usual terms of royalty. It was published, and inside of a month more than 40,000 copies had been sold. In a few days the publisher failed and Irving never received a dollar for the music.—New York Sun.

MEDITERRANEAN RENTS.

Highest at Gibraltar and Lowest on the Island of Malta.

In no place on the surface of the globe is rent so high as at Gibraltar, the reason being that the geographical position of the town precludes the possibility of its being extended in any direction. A long, narrow strip of what was once seabach is alone available for building purposes. All the rest is precipitous rock.

Upon this narrow parapet, in some cases less than 100 yards in width, are crowded the homes of 25,000 people. As much as $10 a week is asked and obtained for the use of one small room, and this, too, in a place where the normal rate of wages is quite 10 per cent less than in America. Naturally the overcrowding is fearful, and the water supply being scarce and intermittent, cleanliness of living as we understand it is almost impossible.

No wonder that in the old days the plague and the cholera ravaged the "rock" with a virulence unknown in the filthy and pestilential cities of the far east.

In Malta, on the other hand, house rent is ridiculously cheap. Anywhere outside of Valetta an excellent seven room house can be had for $15 a year, while rates and taxes are unknown. The houses are built entirely of the cream colored stone of which the island is composed, and which, is so soft that it can be cut with a saw into blocks or slabs of any desired size or shape. So while the Maltese builder is digging up his foundation he is at the same time getting out the material for his walls, his flooring and his roof.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Most Wonderful Cave In the World.

The most wonderful cave in the world is in the island of Tonga, in the south Pacific. Byron called it "a chapel of the seas." It is formed in a rock that is almost surrounded by the ocean. This rock is about 60 feet high and broad proportionately.

Many years ago a boy, the son of a native chief, was chasing a huge turtle, when his game seemed to sink into the rock. The lad watched and waited until the tide fell, disclosing a small opening in the rock about six feet under low water mark.

Diving boldly, the young hunter entered the aperture, and, to his surprise, came to the surface inside the rock. The rock was hollow, and its interior was found afterward, when the natives explored it with torches, to contain many beautiful stalactites.

When attacked and followed by enemies, the natives, who know the secret, leave their canoes, plunge into the water and disappear. Their foes linger, astonished at their disappearance, for no person not acquainted with it would suspect that the rock was hollow.—London Telegraph.

FIGHTS AMONG TARS.

SAILORS OF THE NAVY EVER READY WITH THEIR FISTS.

The Unavoidable Causes of Friction—Simple Things Start the Quarrels, and Then They Must Be Settled—Bruised Combatants "Fell Down a Ladder."

The regulation against fighting is perhaps the dearest of all naval regulations. It is impossible of enforcement. If it were enforced to the letter, pretty nearly all hands among the men forward would be in the "brig" from one year's end to the other. Fighting is practically a necessary evil among men who wear their country's uniform for a livelihood. Officers of experience blink at it. They know the bad, contaminating results of bitterness between a pair of bluejackets under the forecabin. They have learned that it is better the thing should be fought out and done with than that dozens of men should be drawn into a quarrel that festers and grows unless the head of it is broken by a decisive battle between the two men who have been snarling at each other. People who have made ocean voyages often dwell upon the weariness which has overcome them at the sight of their fellow voyagers' countenances toward the end of a passage. This is a feeling which is aggravated a thousandfold amid the uncomfortable surroundings of a war vessel's forecabin, the hundreds of occupants of which are obliged to be constantly together for from one to three years. Each man becomes thoroughly aware of all his mates' little characteristics, and after awhile, whether these characteristics are good or bad, they jar upon him, if only on account of their monotony. Thus friction is generated, and it is for this reason that the crew of a man-of-war just returned to the United States after a three years' cruise in foreign waters is generally such a sour looking lot, even as concerns the officers aft, who become quite as sick of each other as do the men forward.

Hardly a day passes that there is not at least one scrap on board most men-of-war, with the promise of a heavier battle to follow. A bluejacket seats himself on another's ditty box, and, on being roughly ordered by the box's owner to vacate, he refuses and consigns the owner to a much less moist place than Davy Jones' locker. The men come together, two or three blows are exchanged, and then, as by common consent, each man draws away, both feeling that the "jimmy legs" (i. e., the master at arms) is not far distant and neither caring for a trick in the "brig." Having thus become involved in the minor fistic argument of the deck, the two bluejackets are looked to by the entire ship's company to bring their affair to a satisfactory conclusion. The mere exchange of growls between the two men doesn't go. "Pipe down there, ye men-of-war chaws, and settle the thing right," is the general remark hurled at them by all hands when they meet in mere contests of cuss words, and the sailor who is considered to be the aggrieved man is watched carefully to see if he makes any preliminary moves toward arranging a regular fight. He almost always does.

Nearly all the regular fights between bluejackets aboard ship are pulled off down below in one of the firerooms or in an empty bunker. The empty bunker is preferred on account of its greater isolation. When a fight is to come off between two bluejackets below, all hands know all about it, often including the master at arms himself, but very few of the men, unless they are intimates of the combatants, expect invitations to the fray. There is not room in a bunker for more than half a dozen friends of each man, and even with this number the space is rather contracted.

With a second each and a referee agreed upon by both, the men, stripped naked to the waist, go at it. The fights are not of the rough and tumble order. The men fight according to regular prize ring rules, and their shipmates are present to see that the rules are complied with. As many as 50 rounds are sometimes fought. Ordinarily one of the men goes under by the time the tenth round is called. If the men are unequally matched and one of them is getting palpably the worst of it, all hands in the bunker agree that the thing should stop, and it does stop. If the contestants are about of a sort, the fight is carried on to the end, until a knockout blow is planted by one of them or both are too weak to go on. At the conclusion of the fight the on-lookers quietly depart from the bunker and ascend to the deck by different engine room ladders, so as not to attract the attention of the officer of the deck.

Both men generally get pretty thoroughly mauled and bruised up in these bunker fights, and when the battle is over they jump into their uniforms and repair to the sick bay to get themselves patched up with arnica, court plaster, etc. The surgeon knows at a glance what ails them, but for the sake of form he asks them what the trouble is. They have both fallen down a ladder. Both at the same time? No, sir; they fell down different ladders. "That's curious!" murmurs the surgeon, with a smile and a faraway look in his eyes, scribbling an account of their injuries in his record, and then he orders the apothecary to dress their wounds.—Washington Star.

Long Wait.

"Grandpa, how old are you?" "I am 87 years old, my dear." "Then you were born 80 years before I was. What a long time you had alone waiting for me!"—Philadelphia Times.

That army chaplaincies continue to be very alluring to the clerical mind is indicated by the fact that nearly 800 ministers applied to the federal government for appointment to a single vacancy that recently occurred.

MADE IN MAINE.

Interesting Facts About the Genesis of Spools and Shoe Pegs.

"Oxford county, Me., turns out nearly all the spools on which the sewing thread of this country is wound," said a wholesale dealer in such articles to the writer. "The spools are made from white birch timber, and they are produced by the million in Oxford county. There are many other parts of western Maine, also, where the industry is important. There are numerous sawmills in that part of the state which are kept busy all the year round sawing white birch logs into strips 4 feet long and from 1 to 2 inches wide and of the same thickness. These strips are sent to the spool factories, where they are quickly worked into spools by the most ingenious labor saving machinery.

"The strips of white birch are fed into one machine, and they are not touched, in fact, are hardly seen again, until the spools, all finished for market except polishing, drop out by the bushel from another machine several rods away from where the strips started in. The spools get their gloss by being rapidly revolved in barrels turned by machinery, the polish resulting from the contact of the spools in the barrel.

"In the backwoods villages of Oxford county one sees scarcely any other industry but spoolmaking, and every person in the neighborhood is in some way interested in the business. The factories have been eating into the Maine birch forests for years, but there still seems to be enough of the timber left to feed the machinery for many years to come. Hundreds of thousands of feet of logs are cut and sawed into spool timber annually.

"Shoe peg factories are also an important branch of business once peculiar to Maine, although it has of late been followed to some extent in other eastern states and is spreading to the hard wood forests of northern Pennsylvania. Maple is used largely in the manufacture of shoe pegs, although white birch is used at some factories. Shoe pegs are sold by the bushel and are worth all the way from 75 cents to $1 a bushel, according to quality. More than $150,000 was received by Maine shoe peg factories last year for goods.

"A curious and profitable business has grown up in the Maine woods near the sawmills in the utilizing of the immense quantities of sawdust by compression. Thousands of tons of this waste material are bought for a mere nothing and are pressed into compact blocks and bales and in this form is finding a ready market for kindling and fuel in eastern cities."—Washington Star.

A TRIFLE TOO MUCH.

How an Old Dorky's Sympathy Was Unfeelingly Imposed Upon.

General Nichols of Louisiana commanded a brigade of infantry during the valley campaign in Virginia which so immortalized the name of Stonewall Jackson. In one of the three famous victories over Banks, Milroy and Shields, says the Nashville American, the Louisiana brigade bore a conspicuous part, and its gallant commander was carried from the field mortally wounded, as every one supposed, but good nursing and skillful surgery saved the life of the general. He left a leg and an arm on the battlefield and lost one of his eyes. He wears an artificial leg on one side of his body and an arm on the opposite. The pluck which enabled him to withstand these terrible wounds, and to which he is indebted for his life, perhaps, more than to any other cause, sticks to him yet, and he is one of the most jovial of men, enjoying a good joke as much as anybody. He tells this on himself:

When canvassing for governor, he was invited by a lady who knew of his loss of limbs to make her house his home, and he accepted. She ordered her manservant, who knew nothing of the general's misfortune, to see that he was comfortably put to bed. The dorky felt proud of the honor of serving a distinguished general and the next governor, and the general was inclined to be communicative, which delighted the negro very much and made him feel at home with his guest. When he took the general's arm off and laid it on the table, he commenced to express great sympathy, saying: "It sho' is bad for a man to lose he arm dat erway! An de Yankees done dis, did dey?"

When the general told him to take his leg off, the negro thought he was joking, but went at it in a businesslike way, though he was almost ready to shed tears of sympathy this time. Placing the leg on the table by the side of the arm and looking at the general, he said: "Umph! Leg off on one side an arm off on t'other. Dat is too bad, to cut a man up in dat sort o' way."

The general saw the opportunity for a little fun had come, so, leaning his body forward, said: "Come, now, take my head off." But the negro was gone.

The Wheat King.

The "wheat king" of the world belongs to Argentina. He is an Italian immigrant named Guazone, and his broad acres are situated in the south of the province of Buenos Ayres. His crop occupies an area of 66,370 acres. He numbers his workmen by the thousand, and each one receives a certain share of the profits. When his season's crop is harvested, he fills over 3,000 railway trucks with the grain.

Japanese theaters have their boxes so arranged that the ladies can change dresses, as it is not considered stylish for a lady to appear an entire evening in one dress and with the same ornaments.

POOR OUTLOOK IN ALASKA

According to J. C. Young, a Chelsea Man Who Is There.

J. C. Young, who left Chelsea, in June last with about $1,000 worth of supplies for the Klondyke gold region in Alaska, wrote a letter from Juneau to his brother, J. Young, of Chelsea, recently in which he says:

"The outlook here is very gloomy. We find that there are hundreds of people and tons of supplies on the beach at Dyea, waiting to be packed over the summit, and we must wait our turn to be packed over. They compel every one to wait his turn. They put a fellow in the river yesterday for offering more than the regulation price, which is $17 per 100. According to the outlook now, it will be at least two months before our turn will come, and think it impossible to pack ourselves soon enough to get through this fall. Some of our party are badly discouraged, but I have quit climbing mountains before I reach them, so I am going it alone to Dyea, and take my chances with the rest. One thing sure, if I can't get through this year I can the next. I started and am going. There are 14 in our crowd. Those whom you know are W. E. Knowles, Charles L. Walters, Charles Oaks and J. H. Hamil. People are standing around in bunches arguing the situation from every imaginable standpoint, while I am quietly writing to you."

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

The Bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

CHIEF CAUSE.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passage is often, by mistake attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, get your urine aside for twenty four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidney or bladder trouble. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, and bladder remedy is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention the Argus and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

What is Scott's Emulsion?

It is a strengthening food and tonic, remarkable in its flesh-forming properties. It contains Cod-Liver Oil emulsified or partially digested, combined with the well-known and highly prized Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, so that their potency is materially increased.

What Will It Do?

It will arrest loss of flesh and restore to a normal condition the infant, the child and the adult. It will enrich the blood of the anemic; will stop the cough, heal the irritation of the throat and lungs, and cure incipient consumption. We make this statement because the experience of twenty-five years has proven it in tens of thousands of cases. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion, 50c. and $1.00, all druggists. Some weeks ago County Clerk Schuh against the warnings of several parties who were in the office at the time, lent a woman $1.40 with which to get to Toledo. The woman left her address and promised to send the money as soon as she earned it. Not hearing from her after a lapse of a couple of weeks, the captain wrote to her about it; she repeated her promise to pay him, but said she had not got the money. Wednesday of last week Mr. Schuh got a letter from her with $1 in it and the promise to pay the balance as soon as possible. Mr. Schuh always did have faith that his charity was not misplaced in this instance, and he is still further assured of it now.

A meeting of the Charitable Union will be held in Harris hall, Thursday, Oct. 7, at 3 o'clock. It is hoped that all who have helped to make it possible to care for the poor who are sick, aged or infirm, will renew their membership by bringing or sending their dollar for the year. The funds are very low and the work of the society during the winter will depend on the generosity of its friends.

Eugene J. Helber's trotting stallion Flashlight won the 2:17 trot at the Lenawee county fair at Adrian, Friday, in three straight heats, the fastest heat being made in 2:20 with two lengths to spare. The last half of the heat was done in 1:09. The unbeaten horse Rightwood, owned by Neely Bros., of Brooklyn, was the contending horse in the last heat. Flashlight is undoubtedly the fastest trotting horse that has ever been owned in Washtenaw county.

A noticeable feature in the street scenes of Ann Arbor Saturday was a trio of street musicians. Two girls played violins and a man turned the crank of a hand piano mounted on wheels and drawn by a white horse. When they had finished their musical selections at one place, the man would jump on a seat in front of the wagon, the girls on one in the rear and they would move along to another place. The combination gave the popular airs of the day in a very fair manner.

Tobias Kuebler, one of a gang of loungers who have made life miserable at times to ladies and others who had to pass by their haunts on the north side, was up before Justice Pond Friday on the charge of being a loiterer and disorderly person. Not having the money to pay a fine of $1 and $3 costs, he was sent to jail. It is to be hoped that Marshal Sweet will continue his missionary work and break up these gangs of loafers not only on the north side but on the main business street as well. So far he does not seem to have been very successful on Main st.

Frightful Tragedy Committed by an Iowa Farmer.

KILLS WIFE, CHILDREN AND SELF.

When the Terrible Crime Was Discovered Only the Eldest Son, Out of a Family of Eight, Was Found Alive—After Murdering His Family the Desperate Man Sends a Bullet Through His Temple and Dies Beside His Wife's Corpse.

Carroll, Ia., Sept. 28.—John Boecker, a farmer living eight miles northwest of this city, shot and killed his wife and five of his children. He tried to kill his eldest son, but the boy is still living. Then he lay down by the side of his murdered wife and baby and shot himself. He was still living when the terrible tragedy was discovered Monday morning, but he was unconscious.

Apparently happy and on the best of terms with his family, Boecker had been last seen on his farm. He was not moody or morose. He acted like a kind father to his six boys and girls. He was not threatened with financial disaster or starvation. What it was that changed him from a loving father to a wholesale murderer may never be known. The terrible crime was committed between sundown and dawn. The farm is isolated and the shooting was unheard.

Drugged the Coffee.
John Boecker must have contemplated murdering his wife and children early in the evening and prepared for it by drugging the coffee. The victims were found dead in bed, and it was evident they had passed from sleep to death. Some of the children must have been aroused by the shooting of the others unless they had been drugged by the murderer.

John Boecker had offered to help a neighbor to thrash Monday morning. When he did not appear at 9 o'clock his brother, Henry, went over to the farm. He found the doors locked and no sign of life about. He had to break in one of the doors. In the back room the brother found John Boecker and his wife and the baby lying on the bed bathed in blood. The wife and baby were dead. Boecker had taken a shotgun and fired into the neck of his wife as she slept. Mrs. Boecker died without a struggle and without the knowledge that her children were to meet a dreadful end at the hands of their father.

Slaughter of the Innocents.
Boecker set the gun against the wall and seized a revolver and sent a bullet into the forehead of the baby as it lay on its dead mother's breast. Not satisfied with this he struck the infant on the head with the butt of the revolver to make sure it was dead.

The farmhouse is a story and a half frame building. Upstairs the other children slept. The noise of the shooting had not aroused them. The murderer of his wife and baby must have carried a light or he waited until daylight, for his aim was effective and the bullets entered the same place on each child. He went up the creaking stairway and picked out his children deliberately and shot them, each in the forehead. John Boecker did not have to beat in the heads of his other children with the revolver to keep them quiet. They were fast asleep when the bullets entered their brains, and none woke up to beg mercy from the father. Caroline, aged 10; Christlue, aged 9, and John, aged 3, slept in one bed in the corner of the room.

Shot Caroline Twice.
The father was not apparently satisfied with his aim when he shot Caroline, for he sent two bullets through her forehead. The eldest boy, Henry, aged 8, and Lizzie, aged 6, slept in the same room. The father bent over the children and shot one of them through the forehead. His revolver was empty and he went below to reload. Then he came back to shoot the remaining child. He thought both were dead and went downstairs to end his life by the side of his wife. The bullet passed through his temple and he fell dying on the bed. His hand, blackened with powder stains, still grasped the revolver when his brother Henry discovered the remains. An examination of the victims showed that all but two children died instantly, for the blood clots were under their heads. The surviving boy recovered consciousness soon after his uncle arrived on the scene, but he could not give any account of the tragedy.

THIS MAN'S PLANS FAILED.

Wisconsin Farmer Attempts to Cremate His Entire Family.
Milwaukee, Sept. 28.—Near Waterford, a village twenty miles southwest of here, Nic Kepper, a well-to-do farmer, sought to exterminate his family by making a funeral pyre of his home, but the other members of the household awakened barely in time, and he alone perished. Kepper, who was 53 years old, spent Monday evening in the village and went home intoxicated.

He retired, but at midnight got up and set fire to the barn, which was close to the house. The family was awakened by the smoke and arose just in time to see Kepper walk upstairs and disappear in the flames. Kepper had had trouble with his wife, and only Monday was served with a summons in a divorce suit. The authorities are satisfied that he intended that the whole family should perish.

Senator Hale's Son Married.
Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 28.—Chandler Hale, son of United States Senator Eugene Hale of Maine, and Miss Rachael Burnside Cameron, youngest daughter of ex-United States Senator J. Donald Cameron, were married at noon Tuesday at the Cameron country place near Harrisburg, in the presence of a large gathering of distinguished friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George S. Chambers, pastor of the Pine Street Presbyterian church of this city, where the Cameron family worship.

Missing Men Heard From.
Washington, Sept. 28.—The state department has been making inquiries for some time to ascertain the whereabouts of Harry Tollerton, son of B. W. Tollerton of Toledo, O., and Professor D. J. Holmes of Meadville, Pa., who were in Europe on the way to enter a Berlin university. It was feared that the young men had been captured by brigands, but a telegram received Tuesday from Mr. Tollerton at Toledo announces that he has heard from his son at Luzerne, Switzerland.

VICTORIA'S REGAL RIGHT.

Why the Niece of William IV Was Called to the Throne.

Several newspapers, in explaining to their readers how Queen Victoria came to succeed William IV, say it was because she was his niece. That is the truth, but only half the truth, for William IV had nephews and other nieces. George III's first, second, third and fourth sons were respectively the Prince of Wales, afterward George IV, who died childless in 1830; Frederick, duke of York, who died in 1827, also without children; William, duke of Clarence, who died William IV, June 20, 1837, without lawful issue, and Edward, duke of Kent and Strathearn and earl of Dublin, who died Jan. 23, 1820, aged 53, leaving as the sole issue of his marriage with Princess Victoria of Leiningen a baby daughter, now Queen Victoria. The queen succeeded William IV not because she was simply his niece, but because she was the only child of the brother next to him in the order of succession.

Had Queen Victoria had a brother she would in all probability not have been a personage of historical celebrity, save in the contingency of succeeding him. Her rights were those that devolved on her from her father. At the time she succeeded to the throne her uncles—the Dukes of Cumberland, of Sussex and Cambridge—were living, younger brothers of her father and junior to him in the line of succession in the order named. The Duke of Cumberland, who became king of Hanover on the death of William IV, was a man of such despotic temper and principles that all England cherished the Princess Victoria as standing between it and his succession to the throne. He had lawful issue, as had the Duke of Cambridge.

The Duke of Sussex, a most estimable man, married twice, but these unions being repugnant to the provisions of the royal marriage act, his children were barred from the line of succession. From the revolution of 1688 rose the Jacobite party, made up of those who supported the cause of James II, his sons and descendants. The picturesque modern Jacobites do not recognize Queen Victoria, despite the fact that her succession is due to her Stuart blood, for she is a direct descendant of Elizabeth, daughter of James I, to whose heirs the title to the throne devolved by the act of settlement on the death of Anne.—Boston Transcript.

Why Not Try It?

You may have heard of Carter's Cascara Cordial many times without ever having given it a trial, and yet you may be in great need of just such a medicine as this. If your blood is impure, if you have that tired feeling, have lost your appetite, if you have dyspepsia, sick headache, liver and kidney trouble, rheumatism or catarrh, why don't you try Carter's Cascara Cordial? It has benefited others and it is reasonable to believe it will help you. Price, 25 and 50 cents. For sale by H. J. Brown.

Deafness in School Children.

The fact that myopia is frequent among school children is well known. It is not so well known that impaired hearing is also frequently met with. The children thus affected are often accused of being lazy and inattentive, when in reality their ears are at fault. Helot shows that these cases are quite common, are easily recognized, are generally curable and when cured a large number of children are transformed, so to speak, both from a physical and a moral standpoint. According to Weil of Stuttgart, the proportion of school children with impaired hearing is 35 per cent; according to Moure of Bordeaux, 17 per cent. Helot agrees with Gete and other aurists that the proportion is 25 per cent, or one-fourth. All the children in a class should be carefully examined, and these semideaf pupils will always be found among the poor scholars. The cause of infirmity to be sought for—nasopharyngeal catarrh following measles, scarlatina, whooping cough, adenoid vegetations, hypertrophied tonsils, etc.—and normal conditions are to be restored by appropriate treatment.—Popular Science News.

DREAMS OF THE DAYS GONE BY.

Dreams, come home to my heart again
With the memory of the past,
Come with your pleasure and your pain
And your hopes too bright to last.
Come from your hidden graves that lie
In the beautiful realms of the days gone by;
Come from your glorious graves that lie
In the realms of the days gone by!
I will welcome ye all again,
As once in the halls of Eld,
Welcome the pleasure and the pain
For the beauty your brief lives held.
Dreams, come out of your secret graves
In the woodland wilds and the dim sea caves;
Dreams, come out of your myriad graves
In the wilds and the dim sea caves!
Ye throng the halls of my heart once more
With faces sad with pain.
Oh, faded ghosts of the dreams of yore,
The joy comes not again.
Go back to your mournful graves that lie
In the shadowy realms of the days gone by;
Go back to your voiceless graves that lie
In the realms of the days gone by!

BITTER AGAINST EMMA

Labor Men Oppose Her Appearance at Convention.

SHE IS A NEW YORK ANARCHIST.

Emma Goldmann Declares She Will Address the Labor Leaders, but That Remains To Be Seen—Debs Not Present at the Second Day's Session—Miner Nearly Killed by Strikers in the Springfield District—Street Car Men Organizing.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, when the second day's session of the labor convention at Orpheus hall was to have been called to order, E. V. Debs was not present. Emma Goldmann, the New York anarchist whose right to a seat as delegate in the convention will yet meet with bitter opposition, made her appearance and announced that she would address the meeting. The only other woman present among the fifty odd delegates who assembled Tuesday morning was Mrs. Mary Willis, who represents the Chicago Knights of Labor. The first work of the convention Tuesday was the report of the committee on resolutions.

Monday's Session Very Stormy.

Monday afternoon's session of the convention was a stormy one. The trouble grew out of the question of admitting Emma Goldmann and Dr. H. S. Taylor of Chicago, the Populist leader, as delegate. Dr. Taylor won, after half of the delegates had called him an enemy of the workingmen. But he had only two votes to spare. Miss Goldmann's admission to the convention as a delegate of the New York Debating club, was bitterly fought by J. W. Rae, vice president of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators of America, who declared that trades unionists could not afford to sit in convention with a woman of Miss Goldmann's views. He said the workingman must repudiate anarchy. When, finally, Miss Goldmann was admitted, Rae walked out of the hall, saying a convention that would admit an anarchist was no place for an honest delegate. The incident broke up the session and caused a hasty adjournment.

ATTACKED BY STRIKERS.

Miner in the Springfield District Is Almost Killed.

Springfield, Sept. 28.—Striking coal miners have again assaulted miners who are working below the district scale. Late Monday night August Chrisman, one of No. 2 shaft, was attacked by a large crowd of striking miners and almost killed. His collar-bone was broken, a rib was fractured and he was generally bruised. His condition, while painful, may not prove fatal. Sheriff Eater has issued warrants for several strikers who are charged with the assault. There is no change in the local situation. The co-operative miners are at work and but two "scab" miners.

Chicago Street Car Men Organizing.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The organizers of local union No. 88 of the Street Railway Employers' Association of America are meeting with success among the employees of the Chicago City railway. Three hundred and fifty names have been added to the roll, and President Carr states that within the week 90 per cent of the men will be members of the union. Then if the discharged men are not reinstated a strike will be ordered.

MOUSTAPHA BEY DECAMPS.

Recalled Turkish Minister Omits the Usual Courtesies.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Officials at the state department have been surprised to learn through private sources that Moustapha Bey, the recently recalled Turkish minister, sailed for Constantinople from New York early last week. The secretary of state received about ten days ago a formal and exceedingly brief notification from the Turkish minister that he was about to proceed direct to Constantinople.

State department officials deny that anything but the most cordial relations exist between the representatives of the two countries, but this denial is naturally weakened by the fact that Moustapha Bey in leaving this country omitted all the courtesies usual under such circumstances. His last visit to the state department occurred about the middle of June. The state department has not been informed as to the successor of Moustapha Bey.

Victims of the Newcastle Wreck.

Denver, Sept. 28.—There seems to be no doubt that Elmer E. Black a Pennsylvania railroad engineer, and his wife were victims of the railroad wreck at Newcastle, Col., Sept. 9. A special dispatch from Pittsburgh, Pa., says that Superintendent Robert Pitcairn of the Pennsylvania railroad has identified the burned and blackened portion of a Pennsylvania railroad pass found in the wreck on which the name of Black could be faintly deciphered as one issued to Elmer E. Black. The remains of Mr. and Mrs. Black were in all probability among the ashes of seven unidentified victims whose bodies were almost entirely destroyed by fire.

Mayors and Councilmen Meet.

Columbus, O., Sept. 28.—The first annual conference of the mayors and councilmen of the United States, the Canadas and Mexico was called to order at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning by Mayor Black of this city, about 160 accredited delegates being present in the Auditorium. The mayor's opening remarks were brief and formal and he closed by introducing Governor Bushnell of Ohio, who delivered the address of welcome.

Debt for New York to Saddle.

New York, Sept. 28.—Examination of the financial department of Brooklyn, which will be consolidated with greater New York at the coming elections, reveals a shortage of $1,600,000 to $2,000,000. All this is for unpaid arrear taxes. Unless special legislation at Albany is obtained to prevent it, New York will be saddled with this debt.

Paper Company Fails.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The American Paper company, at Van Buren street and Custom House place, failed Tuesday morning. The company made an assignment in the county court to Frank P. Tyler. The assets are said to be worth $22,000 and the liabilities about $80,000.

THE TRUTH ABOUT IT.

What Is the Use of Living if You Can't Be In It?

Yes, Erastus, we have noticed that article in a scientific journal advising people to sleep more in order to live long, and to tell you the truth we take but little stock in it. We notice that Tesla, the great electrician, claims that a man might live to be 200 years old if he would only sleep most of the time. And suppose he should. What would a man amount to sleeping like a fat dog in the summer? For all practical purposes a man might as well be dead as to be asleep, with this advantage in the way of being dead—he isn't in anybody's road.

Suppose a man lived for 200 years and slept 160 of it. He can only figure out when the thing is through that he has really lived 40 years, and in that 40 he neither cuts as much ice nor has half the fun the man has who passes in his checks at 60 and out of the 60 has only slept 20 years. Is there any particular object, my boy, in simply lying round asleep for 150 years, wearing out bed-clothes and saving a trifle on funeral expenses? We think not. All there is in life worth living for you get while you are awake. All the time you ought to spend asleep is just enough to enable you to keep awake the rest of the time.

Sleep is a necessary evil, just so much good time that you have to give up in order to keep your stomach, liver and other organs in fair shape. Of course we have read a good deal about beautiful dreams, when angels hover overhead and all that, but our experience is that this talk is almost altogether rot. When you are in good physical condition, you don't dream. When you dream, the angels aren't in that vicinity. It is when you have filled your interior with fattened swine and boiled cabbage that you retire to sleep, perchance to dream. To dream—aye, there is the rub!—when you feel a four headed dog sitting upon your vitals and know that the horned and cloven tailed whangdoodle from the barren mountains of Hepsidam is crawling upon you, breathing smoke and fire, and you are paralyzed, or you seem all at once to find yourself in the midst of some gay and cultured assembly with no clothing on your person except perhaps a paper collar and a pair of hose supporters and utterly unable to explain to the ladies and gentlemen present why you are there in this decollete costume or to take your departure.

There is nothing angelic or heavenly about the average dream. On the contrary, it is hades and repeat. The young man who has to be routed out of bed at 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning may live a good while, but the chances are that he won't amount to as much in life as a three legged dog in a jack rabbit chase. The proper thing, young fellow, is to sleep less and get a hump on yourself, even if you should pass out before you are 50. One year of life spent in knocking rich, ripe, luscious persimmons is worth five sleeping in the shade with the worms crawling over your person and the timber bugs trying to roll you out of their way.—Tom McNeal in Topeka Mail.

Humbert's Generosity.

King Humbert's generosity in charitable works is said to be fabulous. A petition hardly ever remains without an answer. His majesty spontaneously gives presents to those persons to whom he does not wish to grant subsidies. These presents are generally of two kinds—a golden clock with the royal arms or a brooch set in diamonds. His jeweler supplies him each year with 500 clocks and 1,000 brooches. King Humbert never goes to the theater save on the occasion of an official solemnity. He says that he finds no pleasure in artificial life.

Her Foot in His Pocket.

Of Princess Pauline Borghese, she whose charms Canova is supposed to have immortalized in his Venus Victrix, Mr. Augustus J. C. Hare, in his "The Story of My Life," relates this anecdote, told him by Lady Ruthven: She used, when at Rome, to go to "la toilette des pieds" of Pauline Borghese. Regular invitations were issued for it. When the guests arrived, they found the princess, supremely lovely, with her beautiful little white feet exposed upon a velvet cushion. Then two or three maids came in and touched the feet with a sponge and dusted them with a little powder—"c'etait la toilette des pieds." The Duke of Hamilton used to take up one of the little feet and put it inside his waistcoat "like a little bird."

EXPERT TESTIMONY.

Introduced by Defense in the Luetgert Trial.

DR. REISE OPENS THE BATTLE.

Boiled a Body in the Same Vat That the Prisoner is Alleged to Have Used in Disposing of His Wife—Material Points of Prosecution Contradicted by the Physician—Crowd is Disappointed Because Luetgert Does Not Testify.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The real troubles of the Luetgert jury began Tuesday when the defense put on the first of its expert witnesses. With Dr. Bernard L. Reise on the stand, Luetgert's counsel began the task of contradicting all that the men of science summoned by the state had tried to prove, and the twelve jurymen began to realize how varied and mysterious are the ways of experts on the witness stand. As was expected, Dr. Reise's testimony—based on his experiments with boiling human bodies in the same vat said to have been used by Luetgert—was contrary to the theory of the prosecution in all material details. In the first place he declared it was impossible to heat the potash solution to the boiling point in the vat. He tried it repeatedly and failed. Continuing with a minute recital of the experiments, Dr. Reise said there were no sesamoid bones left in the vat after the process was finished. The experts for the state, it will be remembered, identified several bones in the vat as human sesamoids.

No Effect on Artificial Teeth. Dr. Reise further sought to deny the truth of the state's hypothesis, by testifying that the solution had absolutely no effect on artificial teeth; that all the pieces of the skull remained in shape, and that portions of the spinal column, forearm and the heel were also found in the bottom of the vat. With such counter statements the defense hopes to destroy the effect of the testimony given by the army of scientists subpoenaed by the state, who identified the bones as human and told what would be the effect of such a treatment on the body of a woman. It is known the defense has plenty of other experts who will corroborate the evidence of Dr. Reise. Professor Eckley, demonstrator of anatomy at Northwestern university medical school; Dr. Allport, Dr. Potter, and many others will also combat the theory of the prosecution. The jurymen will have to decide which side is correct and nobody envies them the task.

State Makes Fast Time. Fast time was made in the examination of witnesses Tuesday. Six were on the stand before Dr. Reise was called, and so quickly did the state dispose of them in the cross-examination that it looked for a time as though the defense would run short of witnesses again. The big crowd that had gathered with the hope of seeing Luetgert take the witness stand thought sure he would be called upon then, but after a long consultation, Attorneys Vincent and Phalen decided to plunge into the expert testimony. The failure of the defense to allow Luetgert to testify disappointed the throng that had gathered for the express purpose of hearing what the prisoner himself would say about the array of evidence the state has piled up against him.

"No, Luetgert will not testify today," said Attorney Vincent when he first came into the courtroom. "Just when he will go on the stand is not yet settled, but you may say definitely that he will not do so today."

Defense Nearing an End. Attorney Vincent admitted that with the end of the expert testimony nearly all the evidence of the defense—barring that locked in Luetgert's bosom—will have been submitted and that then the prisoner will be sworn and asked to tell his story. It is believed to be the best way to conclude the defense. Aside from Dr. Reise's evidence the testimony Tuesday was not remarkable. It is true that another witness swore to seeing Mrs. Luetgert alive after the date she is said to have been murdered, but the alibi has become so common that they attract little attention from the audience, although the counsel for the defense naturally think them highly important. A fruit peddler bearing the name of Armadale J. Urdike told of this latest vision. He claimed he saw a woman resembling Mrs. Luetgert near the town of McHenry, forty-five miles from Chicago, June 9. She was not alone, however, on this occasion, being in the company of another woman. Both were camping out in the woods.

Recognized a Photograph. Urdike recognized a photograph of Mrs. Luetgert as a picture of one of the women he saw June 9. This was over a month after the Kenosha people say they saw her. Other witnesses called by the defense Tuesday were Dr. Ruth-erford, for three years the Luetgert family physician; H. R. Arnold, who was helping Luetgert make a loan on his property; Maggie Shaughnessy, who was at the dance May 1, and did not see Gottlebe Schimpke there; August Heinemann, who heard Mrs. Luetgert say she was going away, and August Rehmann, who described the elevator gate in the factory basement. The gate itself—twelve feet long—was brought into court and shown to the jury. With the plank that covered the vat, it will be offered in evidence by the defense.

Verdict on the Struble Case. Shepherd, Mich., Sept. 28.—The coroner's jury in the inquest upon the death of Cashier Struble, who shot himself or was murdered in his bank last month, rendered a verdict Tuesday morning of suicide. The verdict was reached after eighteen hours' deliberation. It is a surprise and disappointment to many of the people here and in the surrounding country. The farming people crowded the little village Monday night in anticipation of a verdict or a disagreement. Monday two of the jurors held to the murder theory, but both were won over to the majority before daylight Tuesday.

A WOMAN'S LETTER

Concerning Dr. Hartman's Free Treatment for Women.

I received your book on Gynecology and commenced the use of your medicine at once. I took five bottles of Per-na and two of Man-a-lin. I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking Per-na I could hardly walk across my room; now I am doing my own work, can walk a mile and a half to church. I shall never cease to thank you for prescribing for me. I had been under the treatment of two doctors, but never received any benefit until I commenced taking your medicine. I am now well and able to do my own work. I wish every woman who was suffering as I was would send for one of your books on Gynecology. It is a God-send to suffering women. May God bless you and spare you many years to relieve women who are suffering as I was. I am anxious for every woman who is suffering as I was to know what your medicine did for me.

Mrs. H. D. Moss, Greensboro, Ga. A free book written expressly for women by Dr. Hartman, will be sent to any address by The Per-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

HER SOUL UNBURDENED.

A Young Bride's Confession in the Waning of the Honeymoon.

Charley Wheeler and Lucille Sprockett had been married nearly three weeks, and they had just returned from their wedding trip. They were supremely happy in each other's love, and the honeymoon so far had been to them as one long, blissful dream. Within the next day or two, however, the bride grew slightly depressed in spirits, and an uneasy feeling seemed to take possession of her. The young husband noticed the change, but attributed it to fatigue from the recent travels. But his bride grew more nervous and took on such a troubled expression that he said to her:

"You have something on your mind, darling, that is troubling you. Tell me what it is."

At first she tried to persuade him that he was mistaken, that nothing worried her.

"You are wrong, Charley, dear," she would say. "Really, I am not worrying over anything. I am just as happy as I can be."

The day following, however, the young wife wore such a troubled look that her husband said to her:

"Lucille, you must tell me what is troubling you. I will not be put off any longer. As your husband I have a right to know."

Seeing that further concealment was impossible, she broke down and sobbed bitterly:

"Oh, Charley, I am so unhappy!" she wailed. "I have—deceived—you."

A sickening sensation swept over the young husband. Surely there must be some mistake. She, whom he had looked upon as the personification of innocent womanhood—deceive him! It must not be. It would destroy his happiness and blight his life. And then, when he caught a sudden vision of the horrible possibilities of the situation, he became sick at heart and almost fell to the floor. Then, with a great effort, he controlled his feelings.

"Tell me," he said. "I am prepared for the worst."

"Oh, Charley, I am so sorry!" "You should have thought of this before."

"I know, I know. I see my mistake, now it's too late," she cried. "Oh, why didn't I tell you before we were married?"

"Tell me now, and be quick about it. I cannot bear this suspense."

"Tell me first that you will forgive me," she said in pleading tones. "I will devote my whole life in atonement for this one mistake."

"I cannot promise until I know what it is," he said.

Then she came over and knelt at his feet.

"Oh, Charley, you know the wheel I got just a few weeks before we were married?"

"Yes; but what has that?"

"Why, I bought it—on the installment plan—$4 a month—and have only paid—no installment. And I just know the collector will be—here tomorrow. Oh, Charley," she sobbed, "can you ever forgive me?"—Ohio State Journal.

Have you earache, toothache, sore throat, pains or swellings of any sort? A few applications of Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil will bring relief almost instantly.

Where a Man Must Speak Up.

"I had occasion the other day, for the first time," said a sober minded citizen, "to go up high in one of the modern tall buildings. I called on a man in the seventeenth story. It certainly was tremendous the way they hoisted us up that shaft, with a smooth start and easy stops and lightning between. But the most impressive thing about the trip was this: A man who got on where I did, at the ground floor, and who wanted to get off at the tenth floor, said 'Tenth,' as it seemed to me, the instant we started up, but the elevator man said: 'This is the twelfth. We'll stop going down.'"

"If there is a place on earth where a man needs to speak up, it appears to be in the modern elevator car."—New York Sun.

THE CHILI QUEENS.

THEIR THRONES WERE IN SAN ANTONIO'S HISTORIC ALAMO.

Their Reign is Ended, but They Ruled Royally For a Long Time—They Were Especially Gracious to the Tourist From the North and Made It Pay.

When the northern tourist used to strike the town, the first things the patriotic citizen who was doing the honors would proudly steer him up against would be the Alamo plaza chili stand, with its attendant divinity, the far famed chili queen.

"Now, sir, you've seen the historic Alamo, the old cathedral and the missions and got a whiff of our ozone," the citizen would remark with righteous pride, "and tonight you must come and eat a Mexican supper and see the chili queens. The chili queens are one of our most noted attractions—the beautiful, dark eyed señoritas, you know."

The tourist generally knew. This was in the late eighties, the palmy days of the chili queens, when their fame had spread to the larger northern cities. Some very musical verse about them had appeared in the magazines, and in the newspaper sketches they were idealized as stunning creatures, with the rich, brown skins of the tropics and the languorous grace and bewitching black eyes of Spanish Gonnas.

When the citizen and the tourist stroll up to the gay looking chili stand with its big red, green and yellow lanterns and its scintillating pyramids of cheap but gorgeous glassware, she promptly shuts up the sporty young man who is bandying slang with her or quits haggling with the chili gorged bootblack over change.

She hastily rearranges the flowers in her hair and the big bouquet at her bosom and beams on the new arrivals with sparkling eyes.

The citizen addresses her with an easy familiarity.

"Hello, Chiquita! How's tricks?" "Hello, señor. Tricks are bueno. How is my amigo, the señor?"

They all used the Spanish dialect when they had special customers, despite the fact that other tongues came easier to some of them by nature. There were six reigning queens on the plaza in 1888, and one of them was of German descent and another was born in the island where the sod is highly green and there are no snakes. The other four, however, were señoritas of the genuine Mexican variety.

Chiquita's eyes sparkle with their most brilliant luster, and, with a quick succession of flashing smiles, she uses her red lips and white teeth to good advantage on the tourist while she engages in badinage with the citizen.

"You're looking prettier than ever tonight, Chiquita. I'm glad of it, because we want to make a good impression on my friend here. He's from away up north, you know, and he's heard of you before."

Then Chiquita uses her tinkling laugh and slaps the citizen gently on the cheek.

"So sorry, but I have not a single nickel to give you. But take this flower instead."

She transfers a big rose from her corsage to the citizen's buttonhole. The tourist is beginning to want his share of the fun.

"Yes, I heard of you up there, and that's one reason I came down here—to see you, you know."

"Oh, my! You must have a flower too."

Her hands linger lightly on his coat as she carefully pins a spray of honeysuckle on, and the tourist begins to believe that he must have come down here for this. He is enjoying himself very much.

"Well, let's begin on our chili peppers," suggests the citizen. "You say you never ate one before? We had better take a little of everything, then, so you can say you 'did' San Antonio right. Bring us the whole bill of fare, Chiquita."

The queen turns sharply to the slimy looking old Mexican who has charge of the steaming pots and kettles in the rear and rattles off this with a celerity which seems to astonish the tourist:

"Jesus, andar! Dos platos de chile con carne, y dos tamales con chile gravy, de enchiladas tortillas, y dos tazas de cafe."

The fiercely burning chili con carne agonizes the tourist and he chokes on the enchiladas, but he manages to struggle through the tamales by drinking a great deal of water. Meanwhile, the chili queen sits opposite him in a languishing attitude and keeps up her tinkling laugh. When it comes time to go, he insists on paying the bill, despite the protests of the citizen, and tenders a $5 bill. Chiquita seems to have trouble in counting out the change and a thought strikes the tourist.

"Say, Chiquita," he says tentatively, "you needn't mind that if"—

"You mean you want to make me a present?"

As that is what he means, she tucks the bill in her bosom, and gives the tourist a fond look. She takes another rose from her hair and pins it on his coat and squeezes his hand in bidding him goodby.

Then, when her customers are gone, she goes and sits down in front of one of the steaming kettles, with a lap full of tortillas, which she uses to scoop up large mouthfuls of chili.

Chiquita was a fair type of all the chili queens. They were not the idyllic creatures of popular conception that they appeared to be when on dress parade, but most of them were really comely and they had the charm at least of novelty.

The glory of the chili queens waned and flickered away with great suddenness, and they themselves drifted away from the high tide of fame and fortune in a like manner.—San Antonio Express.

THE WONDERS OF SCIENCE.

Lung Troubles and Consumption Can be Cured.

An Eminent New York Chemist and Scientist Makes a Free Offer to Our Readers.

The distinguished chemist, T. A. Slocum, of New York City, demonstrating his discovery of a reliable cure for Consumption (Pulmonary Tuberculosis), bronchial, lung and chest troubles, stubborn coughs, catarrhal affections, general decline and weakness, loss of flesh, and all conditions of wasting away, will send THREE FREE BOTTLES (all different) of his New Discoveries to any afflicted reader of this paper writing for them.

His "New Scientific Treatment" has cured thousands permanently by its timely use, and he considers it a simple professional duty to suffering humanity to donate a trial of his infallible cure.

Science daily develops new wonders, and this great chemist, patiently experimenting for years, has produced results as beneficial to humanity as can be claimed by any modern genius. His assertion that lung troubles and consumption are curable in any climate is proven by "heartfelt letters of gratitude," filed in his American and European laboratories in thousands from those cured in all parts of the world.

The dread Consumption, uninterrupted, means speedy and certain death.

Simply write to T. A. Slocum, M. C., 98 Pine street, New York, giving post-office and express address, and the free medicine will be promptly sent direct from his laboratory.

Sufferers should take instant advantage of his generous proposition.

Origin of a Name.

The origin of the name Fife is not known. One historian tries to show that it comes from the Celtic word veach, a Pict, and means that the district was inhabited by Picts, but that is obviously absurd, as Fife was not specially the home of any of the Pictish nations. The tradition that finds greatest favor is related by a monk, who states that the first known possessor of the district which has since grown into the kingdom of Fife was one Fifus Duffus, a famous chieftain whose date is lost in the mists of antiquity.

PLOT IN BALTIMORE.

UNION MEN WERE PREPARED TO BURN THE CITY IN 1861.

A Counter Movement to One Which It Was Believed Southern Sympathizers Had on Foot—Confidential Disclosures Made by the Old Tobacconist.

"During the first year of the war," a grizzled colonel remarked, while recalling incidents of the great rebellion, "business connected with the recruiting and equipping of volunteers in Pennsylvania took me frequently to Washington, and as the hotels in that city soon became crowded and uncomfortable, I made it a custom to stop at Barnum's, in Baltimore, remain overnight there and run over to the capital early in the morning, and thus I passed many nights during 1861 in the famous old hotel of the Monumental City. Near it was a large tobacconist's shop, where I discovered a superior grade of cigars was sold, and of this shop I became a regular customer. Ordinarily I was served by a young salesman, but I frequently saw in the shop an old gentleman who, I presumed, was the proprietor. One day I was rather surprised by the old gentleman's stepping forward to wait on me himself. After I was served he said:

"If you are not in a hurry, sir, I would be pleased to have you walk into my private office and have a smoke."

"I readily assented, and he led the way to a room at the rear of the store, separated from it by a glass partition, plainly but comfortably furnished, and having the appearance of long and habitual use. Pushing toward me a large split bottomed rocker, my host remarked:

"Here, for many years, I have been accustomed to receive my friends, of whom I had many, but I am sorry to say that now the number is sadly diminished."

"Why so?" I asked.

"Because of differences in opinion," he replied. "I need not remind you of the condition the whole country is in, or tell you how completely men vary in their ideas of duty. Nowhere is that variance greater than here in Baltimore, and nowhere is there greater danger of its leading to a calamity."

"You surprise me," I exclaimed. "I knew there was considerable secession sentiment here, and that months ago it exhibited itself openly, leading to bloodshed on the streets, but I thought all that had passed away."

"By no means," he replied. "The rebel sentiment in Baltimore is as intense and bitter today as it ever was. The apparent quiet is only on the surface. You are in the service of the Union, and it may be as well for you to be informed exactly what the situation here is."

"Three-fourths of the people of Baltimore are intensely southern in their feelings and prejudices. All the slaveholders are so, and they are the leading citizens. Following them is the class which always toadies to what is considered the aristocracy, and after these comes a large disorderly element known as the plug uglies, who are willing and ready to do anything that looks like resistance to constituted authority. Now, I know beyond doubt that the leading secessionists here are thoroughly organized and are determined, the first favorable opportunity that offers, to declare openly for the new Confederacy and carry Baltimore certainly, and Maryland if possible, out of the Union."

"How is all this to be done?" I inquired.

"Their plan is this: They know every man upon whom they can rely, and their strength is well understood. They have clubs organized, which meet regularly. The leaders have control of plenty of money, and supplies of arms are available. Regular communication is had with the Confederate leaders in Virginia, and they are waiting only for a definite, tangible opportunity to strike. Such an opportunity would come if the Confederate army made an advance toward Washington—a thing they expect—or should the Union army meet with another serious reverse in the east. If Beauregard had pursued McDowell after the battle of Bull Run, they would have risen then, and many were the curses heaped upon him for his failure, as they expressed it, to follow up his victory."

"What," I asked, "do you Union men propose to do if the movement you anticipate is made?"

"Burn the city," he replied. "Just as certainly as the Russians burned Moscow will we burn Baltimore if the rebels here take it out of the Union."

"How can you, so few comparatively in numbers, do this?"

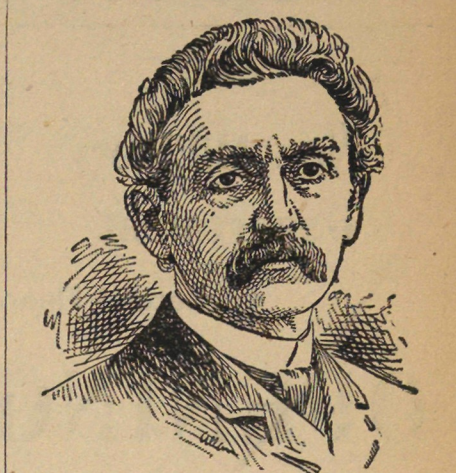

"Well, sir, we, too, are organized and for this one purpose. In every part of the city preparations have been made, and when the time comes 100 or more fires will be started at once. Do you know what this is?" he asked, taking from a closet a ball of tow, cotton, or oakum about the size of a large cocoon.

"It is a fire ball, thoroughly saturated with turpentine. Plenty of these are ready, and at an understood signal they will be lighted and thrown where they will certainly prove effective. Oh, we know well enough that we cannot resist the organized rebels, but you can rely upon it that only the ruins of Baltimore will ever become a part of the slaveholding Confederacy."

"I never saw my old Union loving tobacconist after that evening, for not long afterward I was sent to the army in the southwest and remained there until the end of the war. We all know that Baltimore remained in the Union and was not burned, but we know, too, that the Confederate army never made a serious advance on Washington, so that the opportunity waited for by the rebels in the Monumental City never came. How much truth, if any, there was in the old man's story must remain unknown. I only tell the tale as it was told to me."—New York Sun.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

Cures a Prominent Attorney.

M. R. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 80. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address, DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

President Hutchins has a phone in his residence now. It is No. 22.
The new electric lighting plant will not be ready for use before Dec. 1.
A new fraternity, Phi Rho Sigma, has been established in the medical department.
Prof. Hensch, who is not at all well, went to Mt. Clemens Saturday, where he will remain until the semester opens.
Mr. John Tatlock, the newly appointed instructor in English, is a nephew of Rev. Henry Tatlock, of St. Andrew's church.
Prof. Rebec has been offered the professorship of philosophy at the University of Colorado, and is giving the call due consideration.
The University library is open from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m. Beginning Friday it will be open from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Levi D. Benjamin, who graduated from the department of pharmacy last year has accepted a position in the chemical department as an assistant.
Edward Clark Marsh, of Detroit, is the new secretary of the School of Music. He has been on the editorial staff of the Concert Goer for some time past.
Charles F. Watkins, of Traverse City, last season's coach on the U. of M. baseball team, arrived here Saturday. His mother will spend the winter with him.
Dr. W. J. Herdman was chosen a member of the executive council by the American Electric Therapeutic Association, in session at Harrisburg, Pa., Thursday of last week.

The U. of M. football team will have its first game of the season at the athletic field tomorrow afternoon. The game will commence at 3:30 and will be against the Normal School eleven.
F. M. Loomis, formerly business manager of the U. of M. Daily, has been appointed instructor in and general director of the laboratory of bacteriology in the new Grand Rapids Medical College.
George M. O'Connor, of Detroit, a graduate of the high school and university, was married Wednesday of last week to Miss Selena Kent, of Detroit. Mr. O'Connor's home is also in Detroit, where he is assistant manager of the Hammond estate.

George Wahr has issued this week a cloth bound text book of Algebra of 80 pages, prepared by E. A. Lyman, A. G. Hall and E. C. Goddard, instructors in the U. of M. The book is prepared especially for use in courses 1 and 1a at the university.
Edwin Roedder, who has been teaching for the past year in St. Mary's Hall, Episcopal Military School, Montclair, Colorado, arrived here Friday to take Mr. Hildner's place as instructor at the university this year. He will also work for his doctor's degree.
The Students' Lecture Association has booked the following attractions: Gov. Robert L. Taylor, of Tennessee; Slayton grand concert company, with Max Bendix, violinist; Hon. Wallace Bruce; Dr. Fridtjof Nansen; Leland T. Powers; Booker T. Washington, Chicago alumni number; John Philip Sousa and his band; Hon. J. R. Burton, and the annual oratorical contest.

The homeopathic department of the university enters upon its next year's work with one of the most united and harmonious faculties that it has had since it was instituted, and its professors are all bright, active men. Dr. W. B. Hinsdale, the dean, and Dr. R. S. Copeland, the secretary, have fought hard and well for the retention of the department in Ann Arbor, and they will reap the reward of their labors in seeing an increased number of students at the college this year. The new appointments that have been recently made have also strengthened the teaching force. Dr. Kinyon, of Rock Island, Ill., who has been appointed to the chair of gynecology and obstetrics is one of the most prominent homeopaths in the United States, and Dr. Albert Elliott, of Montreal, Canada, who has been appointed instructor in pathology, is one of the best students in the east, and will be a great acquisition to the department. May the department long flourish under its present able faculty without any more internal dissensions.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, dean of the medical department, U. of M., will give an account of his wonderfully interesting visit of the past summer to St. Petersburg, Moscow, and the great "Fair of Nijni-Novgorod."
Dr. Samuel A. Jones, of this city, will lecture on "Thoreau," bringing out some interesting facts about that great genius that have never before been made public.
Prof. Dean C. Worcester, U. of M., will give a splendid illustrated lecture on "The Philippine Islands and their people," including an account of the Spanish rule in those islands, and the social and political conditions which have led up to the present revolt against the Spanish government. The 75 slides used to illustrate this lecture are the first that have ever been made of scenery in that part of the world.

One evening will be devoted in part to shadow pantomimes, and in part to readings of fine selections of literature illustrated in a unique manner by means of stereopticon views.
There will be a most interesting evening of "American Poetry and Song," and another not less delightful of "Irish Poetry and Song," in which the best songs of America (including the songs of the south) and the best songs of Ireland will be rendered. These evenings will be something unique.
Finally, there will be a "Heine Evening," with a short address upon that most brilliant of modern lyric poets, and the singing (partly in German and partly in English) of a large number of his finest songs set to music by Schumann, Schubert, and other famous composers.
Season tickets for the course will be put on sale at once at Sheehan's, Wahr's and other places.

ATHENS THEATER ATTRACTIONS

Seats for "The Brownies."
Seats for C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger's magnificent production, "Palmer Gox's Brownies," which will be seen at the Athens Theater on Tuesday night of the coming week, go on sale Friday evening at 7 o'clock at Wahr's bookstore and Hangsterfer's on State st. It is advisable that they be secured as soon as possible, for the wonderful spectacle will pack the house to the doors. No greater attraction has ever been brought to the city, it being positively guaranteed that "The Brownies" will be witnessed here exactly as it has been seen in the largest cities throughout the country. Palmer Cox, the famous Brownie Man," the marvellous flying ballet from the Folies Bergeres, Paris; The Romolo Brothers, the world's greatest acrobats and head balancers; Newhouse and Bunts, "the wandering minstrels;" Eddie Pinand, the phenomenal Brownie trick bicyclists; and all the other remarkable features that have made the attraction such a famous one will be presented intact. Seventy-four well known artists will appear in the cast, and the scenic effects are on such an elaborate scale that two 60-foot baggage cars are necessary for their transportation.

WANTS A SETTLEMENT.

Charles M. Ashley Is After Wellington R. Burt.
Chas. M. Ashley as executor of the will of the late Gov. Jas. M. Ashley, has commenced suit against Wellington R. Burt, receiver of the T., A. A. & N. M. Railway, for the recovery of $38,000 in bonds, and real estate to the value of $35,000; also against Gen. W. Quintard et al., of New York, for the recovery of 182 shares of the preferred stock of the Ann Arbor railroad.
Mr. Ashley says that his father conveyed to Mr. Burt a certain amount of real estate several years ago, which he subsequently deeded to the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, and received the price therefor, but for which Gov. Ashley never received the least consideration.
As to the $38,000 of bonds sued on in another section, he says: "I have a letter from the attorney of the reorganization committee, in which he disclaims, for the committee, any claim on these bonds, and I yet have to learn that anybody has any claim on them. These bonds were taken out of my father's private safe by W. R. Burt, at some time during the past four years, and he has retained them under his control."

Unity Club Lecture Course for 1897-98
Unity Club has its course of lectures and entertainments for the coming fall and winter essentially completed. It offers something remarkably fine. There will be eight lectures and four other entertainments—twelve evenings in all, and the whole course will be offered as usual for a dollar.
Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, of Chicago, editor of New Unity, extension lecturer of Chicago University, and one of the most eloquent preachers in that city, will give his famous lecture on "The Cost of a Fool."
Rev. W. W. Fenn, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, Chicago, and special preacher for this year of Harvard University, will lecture on "Dante," with a full set of Dore's splendid illustrations.
Prof. Nicholas P. Gilman, editor of the New World, Boston, and author of many well known books, will lecture on a living subject connected with the sociological progress of the country.
Rev. Eli Fay, D.D., of Los Angeles, Cal., one of the best known and ablest speakers on the Pacific Coast, will give his lecture on "Some Obstacles to Individual and Social Reforms."
Rev. Samuel M. Crothers, of Cambridge, Mass., one of the most brilliant men in New England, will speak on a theme not yet announced. He is pastor of the church attended by President Eliot and a large part of the faculty of Harvard University.
Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, dean of the medical department, U. of M., will give an account of his wonderfully interesting visit of the past summer to St. Petersburg, Moscow, and the great "Fair of Nijni-Novgorod."
Dr. Samuel A. Jones, of this city, will lecture on "Thoreau," bringing out some interesting facts about that great genius that have never before been made public.

Birthday Celebration.
On Tuesday evening about 25 couples gathered at the home of John Clancy, in Northfield, for the purpose of helping him celebrate his birthday anniversary. Among several valuable presents that were given Mr. Clancy as mementoes of the occasion was a $5 gold piece by Philip Duffy, a handsome chair from Nathan Nixon, and an elegant rug from Mrs. John Shanahan. During the evening dancing was indulged in by the young people to music furnished by the Chequeamegons, of Ann Arbor. Supper followed, after which a program of songs and speeches was given, embracing soprano solos by the Misses Nona O'Brien and Katie Seabolt, a couple of songs by Walter Seabolt, and a speech by Lew Renwick. At the conclusion of the program dancing was again taken up until an early hour of the morning.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Death of Ed. A. Cadieux.

Edward A. Cadieux, the well-known young barber of E. Washington st., died Monday evening, after an illness of 11 days, aged 26 years. He leaves a wife and one child to mourn his sudden and early death. Mr. Cadieux was greatly liked and respected by his numerous friends and customers, who sincerely sympathize with his family in their bereavement. The funeral services were held at St. Thomas' church yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, and were attended by the members of the Maccabees, Foresters, B. P. O. Elks, Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors, to all of which orders he belonged and had insurance in. The barbers of the city and the Lyra singing society also attended in a body. His remains were laid to rest in Forest Hill cemetery.

York and Augusta.

John Belcher threshed 192 bushels of buckwheat from 14 acres the other day. It was estimated that he would have had 100 bushels more if it had not been for the wind of last week.
Samuel Finch, of Augusta township, came very near having a blaze last Thursday. His father while smoking allowed the fire to escape from his pipe and did not notice it until the bed tick and part of his clothing was on fire. It was extinguished before much harm was done.

Notice.

The township clerk of Ann Arbor township will be at the county treasurer's office in the court house, at Ann Arbor, Saturday, Oct. 2, to receive woodchuck scalps.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

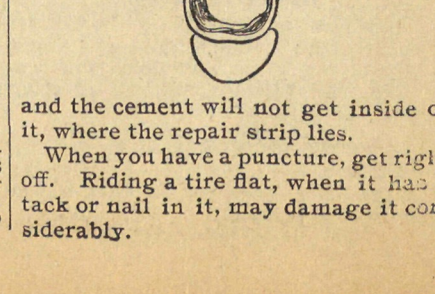

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail:
Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.
