BY MARIANNE FARNINGHAM. The Sabbath day was chang, in the sea, the sea,
The uttered benediction touched the people tenderly,
As they rose to face the sunset in the glowing, lighted west,
And then hastened to their dwellings for God's blessed boon of rest.

But they looked across the waters, and a storm was raging there;
A flerce spirit moved above them—the wild spirit of the air—
And it lashed and shook and tore them, till they thundered, groaned and boomed,
And, alas! for any vessel in their yawning gulfs entombed.

Very anxious were the people on that rocky coast of Wales,
Lest the dawns of coming morrows should be telling awful tales,
When the sea has spent its passion, and should cast upon the shore
Bits of wreck and swollen victims, as it had done heretofore.

THE GRAND RAPIDS SENSATION.

Grand Rapids stands at the head of the column at present in the sensational line. Our readers will find a complete history in this week's issue, of the infamous Addis divorce case, which has not only thoroughly arroused the denizens of the city in which the parties live, but disgusted the people, of the State generally, and made them righteously indignant.

The principal witness in the case seems to be one Heman Blodgett, himself a married man with a family of children. The avidity with which he gave evidence criminating himself, is of itself condemnatory, and goes far toward showing the the press of the State where they have falsity of the charges preferred.

Ex-Regent Grant recently issued what he and it comes just about as near being an "analysis" of Beal's History as a cider press does to being a steamboat. Col. Grant has a bad job on hand, and the sooner he drops it, and subsides into oblivion, the sooner will the people forget him as one of the Chesaning Argus, March 5, 1880. The Ann Arbor Register Publishing Co. says Rice A. Beal offered to bet a very Beal thought if he put the stakes any higher they would fail to meet them, and as it was while the colored voters are all for Grant they did. If the Register ring and the mouth piece thereto had any sand about them (or in other words were in the right) they would have either put up or shut up, and if they had have put up we don't know as we could blame them for going on putting up more than he did, for when he However, its fall would not hurt him feetly painless treatment applied with great much. It will require a much more lengthy explanation from Regent Grant to satisfy The United States Supreme Court has e people of Michigan of any good reason decided the United States election laws for not submitting the points at issue to a jury. They evidently knew too well the safety of their cause in the star-chamber processes to which they assidiously adhered, refusing steadily to submit the case to the decision of disinterested men, a fact from which every man at all acquainted with the circumstances can draw his own ference. We have always thought Judge Huntington guilty of a grave impropriety in consenting to preside at the trial, and we believe the great mass of the people so regard his action in reference to this matesty was never in doubt, but always deliter. Washington Letter.

Written for THE COURIER.
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5, 1880. Another Democratic blunder! The other day Washington was startled by the announcement that the public printer had furloughed nearly all his help, and must stop work of all kinds except printing the Congressional debates. His appropriation was exhausted and he could not exceed that without violating the law. What was the cause of so early an exhaustion of his funds? The extra session and the starying out political game of the Democartic party. The Democratic majority had not the sense to pass a deficiency bill early in the session, as asked for by the public printer, and in that way to cover up their tracks in a measure. The Bourbon leaders are very unhappy at this result of the affair, because it is calling attention to the uselessness of their extra session, as well

Postmaster General Key and his assistant Brady are not gaining an enviable reputation by their assumption of right to override the law prohibiting them from exceeding their appropriations in expenditures. Their testimony before the Postoffice Committee shows that they have wilfully disregarded the law and they will not get all they asked for as a deficiency.

Well, here it is the close of the first week in March, when Randall said Congress would be ready to go home, and yet no important business has been done. The new rules have just been adopted in the interest of Democratic partisans, and now I suppose the Democrats may consent to Death by Morphine. For some time past Horace Lathrop, who lived at the toll-gate just south of the city, on what is known as the gravel road, has been laboring under a depression of mind because of threatened litigation respecting the road. A large share of the stock was owned by him, and, of course, he was greatly interested in its success. Last Friday morning he left his home stating to his family that he intended to see a gentleman in this city with reference to looking over the books of the road. But instead of so doing he took the 12 o'clock train for Toledo, and upon arrival there room until the following Monday. He had evidently procured morphine before going to the hotel, and immediately commenced taking the same, with the intention of suicide. He was called Saturday morning, partook of breakfast, but immediately retired to his room, saying he was sick. At about 6 o'clock P. M. the bell boy was again sent to his room, and found him under the influence of the opiate, unconscious and breathing heavily, and though efforts were made to revive him, it was of no avail, and he expired some three hours subsequent. A bottle and two papers were found which had contained morphine, but neither were labeled, so it is impossible to tell where the drug was obtained. Telegrams were immediately sent to his relatives in this city, and his son, Orlando Lathrop, went upon the first train, which was not until Monday,

Mr. Lathrop came to this county from New York in 1832, settling in Pittsfield. He was born in 1806 in New Hampshire. He has always been a respected citizen and considered honorable and upright in all his

-Since writing the above we learn that the stockholders claim there was something wrong about Mr. Lathrop's management of the affairs of the road, and that an investigation was about being instituted. Be that as it may, he has cancelled all accounts by paying the debt of nature.

Conservative Surgery.

Bloody and heroic operations constitute the smallest and most unpleasant part of the Surgeon's work. His main efforts are directed to preventing the necessity for mutilating proceedures, and the true surgeon rejoices over a limb saved, a part restored, or an operation avoided, more than over ninety and

FRIDAY, MARCH 12, 1880.

How a Brother's Death was not Avenged.

The Jewish Talmud relates a curious adventure which happened to King David. It occurred some ten or twelve years after his interview with Goliath, in the valley of Elah. It will be remembered that David, on that occasion, used a sling. It is said, in the Scriptures, that he put his hand in his bag and took from thence a stone and slang it." It was the custom of shepherds in those days to carry a sling and a bag of stones tied to the girdle. The same custom prevails now in Spain. The In King David's time they not only used these slings in controling their herds, but also in war and in hunting.

David's interview with Goliath took place about 1063 B. C., according to Bible chronology. It was a grand exploit, and raised him from a shepherd boy to the sublime dignity of a king. About eight years afterward, when he was only thirty years of age, he was annointed King of the Jews at Hebron. Hiram, King of Tyre, sent messengers to him, and cedar trees, and carpenters, and masons, and they built him a house, and he took "more concubines and wives out of Jerusalem," and had sons and daughters born unto him like any other

Between Hebron and the Dead Sea lay the wilderness of Judah, in which there were multitudes of wild game of various sorts and sizes. This wilderness bordered on the frontier of the Philistines, over whom a brother of Goliath named Ishbi, reigned as king. One day while David was out enwashington follows her lead; and radular washington follows her lead; and radu appeared before him in the likeness of a beautiful roe. David threw a stone and missed him. He, however, continued the pursuit with such reckless eagerness that. Ishbi could press no wine out out of him. That evening there appeared in the Jewish congregation at Hebron, a dove with silver wings, manifesting great perplexity. This mysterious apparition was at once recognized as a warning that the king was in danger. The king's counselor instantly mounted a fleet horse, and soon found himself at the door of the house of Ishbi, the Philistian King. The king's mother stood in the tian King. The king's mother stood in the door spinning, and recognizing the counselor as an Israelite, threw her spinning wheel at him. It fortunately missed him. Ishbi seeing the trouble, and fearing that David might release himself, join his counselor and overpower him, ran to the wine press, seized David, and throwing him high in the air, fixed his spear in the ground, point upward expecting David would fall on it and be killed. But the counselor performed one of those magical tricks which had been handed down from Moses and Aaron, and David hung in mid air unharmed. He, however, soon joined his faithful counselor. however, soon joined his faithful counselor, and the two fell upon the unfortunate Ishbi and despatched him. King David return-

How Girls go to Sleep.

We had wandered out under the moonold college songs till finally sleep, with his bright colored mantle of dreams, called us, and we retired to what we fondly supposed would be repose. But if you have ever occupied a room with six girls you will know that sleep is not always to be obtained at once. One young lady was an hour and a half by the clock in brushing and braiding her hair, in putting up her crimps, in cleaning and polishing her finger-nails, in running a piece of silk floss between each pair of her thirty-two teeth, in polishing each one with a little stick and some owder, in giving them a vigorous brushng with soap and water, in washing her hands and applying glycerine to them, in putting on a wash good for the complexion, reading her bible, in kissing everybody good night, and getting into her hammock, which everybody who has tried it knows is a work of time. Just as we thought we were almost asleep, she recollected that she had not taken her nux vomica, and she argued a long time with another young life with her by his side, but now that she ness, to which Mankind or Dumb Brutes lady to try to get her to take nux vomica quoting at great length from Dr. Pulte and other eminent homoeopathic physicians to prove that she and everybody needed nux omica occasionally. When, to get peace, the poor girl swallowed the globules, we thought we had earned repose, but then another young woman remarked in a cheeranother young woman remarked in a cheer-ful tone that she was cold, and one of the are congregated the warriors and squaws of ed what seemed to the sleepy ones an endless controversy, as somebody else was "burning up with heat" and wanted another opened. This was finally settled. Everything was quiet for at least five minutes, and we were all at length giving up to "tired nature," weet restorer" when tired nature's sweet restorer" when suddenly an awful sound was heard. A great weight fell violently upon the bare floor, the shriek of a woman leaped upon the midnight air, quick questions and ex-clamations were heard. A light was struck, and it was discovered, not that robbers and murderers were upon us, but that some-body's hammock had broken down. This was reconstructed, and again we addressed ourselves to persuading Morpheus to knit up our sleeve of care, which, by this time, was very much raveled indeed. Ten minutes of utter quiet passed away; nothing was heard but the gentle breathing of the sleepers, when one affectionate girl, turning over, called out: "Well, I'm going to sleep; good night, everybody."—[Lippincott's Magazine.

Did you ever sit down, Telemachus, and contemplate for an hour or two, the beauty f silence? You will appreciate its beauty and its blessing, my son, as you grow older. Sometime, when you want to think and the bore who is with you wants to talk; sometime, when your ears have been dinned into partial paralysis by the man who always will talk to you in the railroad car; sometime, when a man has been talking politics to you when he knows you hate politics; some ime, when he has been telling you all about himself, or trying to find out all about your-self, then you will know, my son, how beautiful is silence. How like a benison it comes o sooth your ruffled spirit; falling on your ortured soul softly as the twilight shadows, and you love her with a love that is adoration, and on the altars of your grateful heart, you burn before her noiseless shrine the voiceless incense of your worship. All through your life, my boy, cultivate flashes of silence. Now and then, an hour of contemplation is worth a week of talk. The when you sit and hold his hand (if that is his gender, my son), and can say nothing to him. When you meet a stranger, my son, who can talk eleven hours a day, avoid him if you can, and don't shoot him if you can possibly get rid of him by any lawful means. And, one parting word, Telemachis: Don't talk to a man in a railroad car. He is never, at least rarely, thankful to you. Railway conversation is always tiresome; the listener has to strain his ears to hear, the talker has to strain his voice to speak; the talker has to strain his voice to speak; thing. He is apt to be a very reticent man. the talker has to strain his voice to speak; if you speak too loud, everybody can hear | He does not have to talk a great deal. He you; if you speak too low, you can't hear is a moderate man, not only in habits of each other. Never talk to people on the body, but also in mind. He is not a pas tesy. And if you can't tell when a man doesn't really want to talk with you, my son, you had better get a position as teach-er in some asylum for the deaf and dumb, and learn to lose your voice entirely, as fast as you can.—[Burlington Hawkeye.

Total Abstinence in the White House.

The ladies would generally vote for Mrs. Hayes for a second term. It is safe to say that no lady in the present generation has produced a more favorable impression by the grace and simplicity of her manners in presiding at the White House than has she. It is worth a journey to Washington to see so simple and unconventional a lady at the very head of the best American society. Her face is wonderfully mobile; it constantly expresses her own genuine enjoyment in the enjoyment of her guests. shepherd men use slings in herding their joyment in the enjoyment of her guests. Her laugh is contagious; and it would be them, and throw stones with great accuracy. as impossible for a photograph or even a portrait to picture the life that sparkles in her face as for a picture to portray the sunshine that dances on the dimpled surface of a lake which ever and anon breaks out into a quite rippled laughter.

Her social victory is complete, and has been won after a hard battle. The story has been told before but it is worth retelling. She came to Washington determined not to offer wine to her guests; this was the determination of a lifetime, and she would not and could not abandon it. To give a state dinner without wine was declared to be impossible; all Washington of the States named: society was opposed to her; I believe it even became a Cabinet question. For a year she was a target for the sort of arrows which it is so hard for any woman to bear lilinois.... unflinchingly. But she bore it all; by her patient persistence and her tact she carried the day and conquered Mrs. Grundy in her own field. She never has offered Washington follows her lead; and I doubt pursuit with such reckless eagerness that before he was aware of it, he found himself in the lands of the Philistines, and in the very presence of the brother of Goliath. Ishbi instantly recognized him as the hero who slew the giant, and fired with vengeance, seized him, and binding him need and heels laid him under a wine press, in order to press him to death. But by some miracle, the earth beneath became soft and Ishbi could press no wine out out of him. derstands the appropriate signals can find a chance for a drink at the House or Senate restaurant; but nothing stronger than lager is drank publicly.—[Rev. The Story of a Salted Mine. A man, now a prominent merchant of Virginia City, won at poker an undeveloped portion of the taxes he would pay in case he would sell for $2,000, being hard pressed financially. The bank was next visited, $500 worth of gold dust and nuggets bought, and the claim thoroughly "salted." ed to Hebron, and great was the rejoicing at the intending purchasers arrived, they prohis safe deliverance from the hands of the Philistines.

Wedded Love-A True Incident.

" Make the bed easy. Mr. B.," said old Uncle Abe to the undertaker, who was preparing the coffin for his aged wife. "Make the bed soft and easy, for her old bones are tender and soft, and a hard bed will hurt He torgot for a moment-that old, gray haired man-that she was dead; that the old bones had done aching forever. Sixty-four years had she walked by his side a true and loving wife. Sixty-four years! Just think of it in this age of divorce. Sixty-four years had they dwelt under the same sorrows of life; together mourned over the coffin of their first-born; together re-joiced in the prosperity of their sons and daughters, and now she had left him alone. No wonder he forgot. Her loving hands had so long cared for him, for he had been the feebler of the two. "Until death us do part," said the marriage service that had united them so many years ago. Death had parted them, but the love still sur-vived. Tenderly had he cared for her all these years, and now tenderly did he watch had gone he could not live, and in a few are subject, that does not respond to this Grasshoppers as Food. In the Sierra and Martis valleys Indian are congregated the warriors and squaws of the tribe, their sisters, cousins and their aunts, all intent upon the accomplishment hand; from a sprained ankle or a gashed foot; of the grand result. As usual the squaws do the work while their noble lords loll upon the green sward, smoke their pipes, and PIMPLES on a L dreamily and lazily gaze upon the countless myriads of buzzing hoppers that fill the air and devour the vegetation. The squaws, carrying cone-shaped baskets of great capacity, scoop the grasshoppers with a fan-shaped implement into their large baskets, and when loaded carry the wiggling mass of insects to camp, and then prepare them for food. The grasshoppers, killed and subse-quently dried, are mixed with mashed pine nuts or cracked wheat, and made into bread, nost delicious to the palate of the Washoe. White visitors at the camp are always invited, in accordance with Indian hospitality, to partake of the compound, and great is the astonishment of poor Lo, at the dis-gust expressed by the white man, for food of this kind. To the limited mind of the Indian it is incomprehensible that any one should reject food which in his vernacular is defined as being "muchee good."

The Nervous Pastor.

The pastor of one of the London churches is notorious for his nervousness. On a re-cent evening, having given out a hymn, he forgot to make an announcement until the organ was pealing its loudest.

'Oh! stop! stop! stop!" he cried, to the great surprise of the congregation.

The organist pulled up very short. Then, with perspiration on his brow, the parson turned to the congregation and began: "During the singing of this collection the hymn will be devoted to the purpose

Respectfully submitted,

Respectfully submitted, WM. A. CLARK, Recorder.

This is to certify that I have examined the above counts and I believe them to be correct. The city nances were never in a better condition than at presat. The Council have practiced strict economy, ereby they have been able to make a great many ermanent improvements. First they have built two isterns, at a cost of $420 50. Two sewer bridges at cost of $325.00. Furniture for the new Council com, $422.00. For this small amount we have fitted p a room in the Court House building, which is a edit to our city, and it will last for years. Hose for re department $450 00 We have had the race in the fth ward filled up at a cost of $65.00, which has added great deal to the appearance of the street. The lower ridge across the Huron river was unsafe and needed building, and if it had not been for the economy racticed by the Council the taxpayers of this city ould have had to vote the money to have built it. his was built at a cost of $1,075 oo. It is a good trong wood and iron bridge and will last a great any years. Made a much needed improvement on est Huron street at a cost of $800.00. The street is ow a credit to the city. I have been working to onsummate a plan by which all city orders should be ade payable in cash, and was in hopes that I might ave had it ready on the 1st of February. If this can done it will save hundreds of dollars to the laborg men of our city. W. B. SMITH,

ANN ARBOR, March 5, 1880.

A RAILROAD clerk and member of the bar at Adrian pleaded guilty to stealing $600 from the company, and Judge Cooley, of the supreme court, who was sitting as judge of the Lenawee court, suspended sentence. A young boy stole a $30 suit of clothes about the same time and pleaded guilty. It was his first offense, and he was a poor boy, but he got four years in State prison.—[Evening News, March 3, 1880.

THE Monroe Monitor says: "As the 440 P. M. expres train of the Canada Southern, bound for Toledo, was leaving the depot in this city, on Friday evening last, a strange deck passenger was discovered quietly perched on top of the rear car. This strange passenger was naught else than a wild turkey. At what station or place he boarded the train, or how far he had stolen a ride, of course was not known. had stolen a ride, of course was not known,
