Mr. Graham started out in August to make sketches for the illustration of a eries of articles, and returned to this city a few days ago. In the course of a recent conversation with a Tribune reporter, Mr. Graham stated that as a northerner he was nis movements were so closely watched that his work was often seriously impeded. Speaking of the difference between English and American elections, the Pontiac Gazette says: "The beauties of the Engelectoral system are exemplified by Mr. Parnell, who has telegraphed to this country for contributions in money, to pay his election expenses. It is said the average cost to a candidate to a seat in Parliaent, in a contested election, is $50,000 This expense is sometimes borne by the candidate himself, sometimes by some wealthy patron and sometimes it is paid by an appeal to the public charity, like the call to pay a church debt."

From the Oakland County Advertiser, published at Holly, we clip the following:
"The rush of voyagers to Europe is almost as remarkable in its way as the counter-tide of immigration. The passenger business of the outward-bound ocean steamships has never been so great as now, except, possibly, in the Paris and London world's fair years. The season of European travel began early with the pleasure seekers this year, and the many engage-ments made for the cabins as far ahead as midsummer, show that the out-flow will be heavy and long-continued. A month hence, all the out-going passenger ships will be uncomfortably crowded, as those arriving are now. The year is a prosperous one for the steamship companies, and many of them have to put on extra steamers.'

The Saturday Review, published at Grand Rapids, says: "Through a recent appointment by the governor the people of Grand Rapids are informed of the existence of a law providing for a board of commissioners whose duty it is to prevent the spread of dangerous diseases among animals and to protect the people of the state from the dangers arising from the consumption of diseased meat. That much good might be accomplished by active work on the part of such a companion. work on the part of such a commis one doubts, and it is to be regretted that the law creating the board makes no provisions for salary or expenses. As, how-ever, Dr. and Ald. J. B. Griswold, of this city, has been appointed a member of the board, the people of Grand Rapids and vicinity can rest assured that all the authority conferred by the law will be used to prevent the sale of diseased animals, either as live stock or meat. Dr. Griswold not only ranks among our best physicians in the treatment of disease, but is acknowledged to be the most unselfish of citizens in contributing both time and money to ecure the general good health of the community. It is an open secret that a great deal of meat is placed upon the market which is unfit for use. The retail dealers, as a rule, are honest in dealing with cus-tomers, and bad meat is generally thrown away when discovered, but this creates loss, and it is possible that a few will cheat chance buyers rather than lose money. Speaking of the Ohio republican convention and Hayes' administration, the Three Rivers Tribune discourses very wisely: "Sherman easily carried the Ohio delegates at large, and his friends claim all the district delegates, though the Blaine men claim eight of them. If the latter are correct the delegation stands 36 for Sherman and 8 for Blaine. The highest vote in the convention for Blaine men was The Saginaw Herald says: "With the retirement of Postmaster-General Key, the last vestige of the present administration's could be retired by the retirement of the same of the usual pattern except in two particulars: free public schools were called for throughout the whole country, to be supported by general taxa tion, to be free from sectarian influences. and to be secured by appropriate constitutional legislation; and the administration of Hayes was eulogized. On this latter subject history will reverse the current judgment. Partisan heat and supposed political necessity now blind the eyes of men to the merits of Hayes, but as time goes by his administration will loom up the records of the American Kemphine - in Hayes' crowning merit that with a hosspirit of political retaliation, he has firmly and calmly ruled according to the law, exand calmly ruled according to the law, exalting its province in the work of government, and has called to the front, to the utmost possible limit, the best elements of his party. On the school question there can be no differences of opinion among republicans. "Education," as a democratic sage long ago said, "is the bane of democracy," but it is the life of republicanism. It is more than this—the destroyer ism. It is more than this—the destroyer of sectional and race prejudice, the promoter of thrift, energy and prosperity, the enduring life of the Republic."

Referring to the proposed counting of the electoral vote by congress, the Gratiot Journal says: "A new joint rule for the government of congress in counting the presidential electoral votes has been agreed upon by the democratic members of the senate committee on rules and the select committee appointed to consider the subect. The rule proposed provides that in case only one certificate of the electoral ote of a state be presented to congress, it shall not be rejected except by the affirmative vote of the two houses, and that in case of two returns neither be counted unless the two houses agree that one of them is the true and valid return. former twenty-second joint rule on the subject required every electoral vote to be rejected to which any objection was sustained by either house. The new rule is objectionable in that it opens the way for counting in the democratic candidate whether he is elected or not. old rule the electors cast their votes and forwarded them to the president of the senate, and then as both houses are controlled by the same political party, they could easily agree that the return for the candidates of that party was the true and valid one. In this way the democracy could capture the presidency without re-gard to the decision of the people at the polls, and that it would avail itself of the opportunity, if necessary, is clearly fore-shadowed by the Cronin business in Oregon three years ago, the attempts to bribe electors in southern states at the same ime, the Garcelon operation in Maine last fall, and the more recent attempts to defeat the popular will by ousting Representative Washburn and Senator Kellogg from their seats."

One thing became more and more sur-prising, however, to each one of us, and that was the amount of cutting down which our most careless statements demanded under this new rule.

Don't be too Sensitive. There are many people, yes, many people always looking out for slights. They cannot carry on the daily intercourse of the mily without finding that some offense is designed. see impertinence in every one they come in ontact with. Innocent persons, who never dreamed of giving offense are astonished to find some unfortunate word or momentary taciturnity taken for an insult. To say the east the habit is unfortunate. It is far wiser to take the more charitable view of our fellow-beings, and not suppose that a slight is intended unless the neglect is open and direct. After all, too, life takes its hues in a great degree from the color of our own mind, if we are frank and generous, the world treats us kindly; if, on the contrary, we are suspicious, men learn to be cold and cautious to us. Let a person get the reputation of being "touchy," and everybody is under restraint and in this way

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION. The state convention for the purpose of choosing delegates to represent the party at the coming national convention, to be held in Chicago; to choose a new state central committee and elect a chairman for the same, met at the Detroit opera house, Wednesday at 11 o'clock. Quite every county in the State was represented, and the gathering was such an one as only sure victory for a party can rally. A great honor was conferred upon this county by making Capt. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, chairman of the convention, both temporary and permanent. The permanent officers were:

President—E. P. Allen, Washtenaw.
Secretary—Jas. O'Donnell, Jackson.
Vice-Presidents—Geo. W. Hough, John M.
Osborne, D. R. Cook, Wm. Chamberlain, Samuel A. Yeomans, J. C. Wilson, W. W. Andrews,
C. F. Gibson, S. M. Stephenson.

Prof. Moses Coit Tyler, of this city, was also honored by the chairmanship of the committee upon resolutions, and from that committee submitted the following report, which was adopted:

which was adopted:

1. The republican party of Michigan, in council assembled, gratefully and reverently recall the memory of its two illustrious chiefs who have fallen since our last convention—William A. Howard and Zachariah Chandler—and in this city, where they sleep in their graves side by side, we solemnly pledge renewed fidelity to the great and sacred principles for which these men lived and died.

2. Those principles are exact justice, and the security of all civil and political rights of all men, of whatever race or nationality, and in whatever section of the country; the baliot-box made and kept accessible to every citizen, without peril and without intimidation; the rule of the majority as expressed in an honest ballot, honestly cast and honestly counted; absolute fidelity to all public and private obligations; a sound currency as the only system that is honest and that gives to the laboring men fair and just protection; and the authority of the nation as expression of the will of the American people.

Words and Their Abuses.

A gentleman well known to our citizens, writing from Chicago, respecting an article which recently appeared in the columns of this paper, says:

"Two weeks ago I carried down to the preachers' meeting' a slip cut from the Courier with a list of sentences containing common words often incorrectly pronounced. After the meeting of Monday is over our preachers usually stay in and about the book-room for an hour or two for social conversation. I submitted the sentences to some of them, and very soon there was a great deal of interest aroused. Amongst the number who tried to read them were one of our bishops, two editors, several college professors, and any number of preachers that as yet do not need doctoring. The failures were by no means confined to one church, as various denominations were represented. With all the glee of school boys after one was put through he would join the rest in looking for another victim. There are 29 words which might be mispronounced by an ordinary reader. Our little company went all the way from eight to twenty-two. The best record, so far, is that of Prof. Slocum, of the Moselev high school, of Chicago, who got through with six errors. I thought you might be pleased to know what the Courier is doing for general education in Chicago."

Last Wednesday morning a son of J. D. Kief, of Manchester, named Addison D., was brought before Judge Harriman, who granted an order of commitment to the insane asylum at Pontiac. He is but 14 years old, and has formerly been employed in the store of W. H. Pottle, of Manchester, as a clerk. About two weeks since symptoms of insanity began to develop, and he has been gradually growing worse since. The case seems to be a very sad one, but hopes are entertained of the disease being only temporary.

Oh, dear! what next? A scientific writer gives it as his opinion, and a positive fact, that tomatoes contain all the elements of calomel, and "that he has known them to salivate persons!" If that be true, then we say, let 'em salivate! yes, we repeat it, sir, let 'em salivate! for we propose to eat them as long as our appetite continues in the same channel it does at present. There will be death lurking in the rutabaga next, while lettuce and cabbage leaves will have to grow with the skull and cross bones interwoven upon their succulent leaves.

NERVOUS POWER,
Are positively and speedily cured by Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites

The merit of this remarkable remedy is due to its llar property of restoring the wasted tissues of body to their original firmness and vigor. It is known that for every thought and action there death or decay of an amount of material proporionate to the magnitude of the thought or action. This waste is supplied by the unimpaired nutritive functions. The precocious activity of youths, the middle aged, and old age itself cause an undue decay PROSTRATION.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Sir,— Ms. James I. Fellows, Sir,—
Baving, while at your establishment, carefully axamined your compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, I felt the cattle manipulators of Victoria, Texas, have unduly excited the market by making the following offerings: Yearlings, $6; two-year olds, $10 to $12, and three-year-olds, $17 to $18. To say that these are the highest throat and lungs, it has done wonders. In restoring persons suffering from the effect of diptheria, and the cough following typhoid fever, prevalent in this region, it is the best remedial agent I have ever used. But for persons suffering from exhaustion of the powers of the brain and nervous system, from long-continued study or teaching, or in those cases of exhaustion from which so many young men suffer.

Fruit Trees on Lawns.

A correspondent in the Gardener's Chronical Hearth and the cattle manipulators of Victoria, Texas, wild roar, the rushing mighty waters; again he played soft and low, gently, more gently, till with one long graceful sweep of the bow, he ended with a long drawn wail that seemed like the cry of a lost soul.

For a moment the audience sat spell bound. Then came such a burst of applause as made the house shake. Through it all, Paganini stood, his tall form held stiffly erect. At last with flashing eyes, and dilated nostrils, he again raised his bow. Instantly a mighty stillness fell upon all. He drew his bow across the strings.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Chemist,

Dear Sir,—Having used your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites for some time in my practice, I have no hesitation in recommending it to my patients who are suffering from general debility, or any disease of the lungs, knowing that, even in cases utterly hopeless, it affords relief. This year the cattle trade has opened unusually brisk in Texas, and cattle are held at surprisingly high figures, which has very much stimulated the cattle few cheers for "Paganini." which has very much stimulated the cattle market, and caused, we fear, an undue excitement among the cattle drovers of that state. While the demand north, particularly this section, is very great and continually increasing year after year, we do not believe that the prices at which cattle are held in Texas can be fully sustained in this section, where the cost of delivery is added to the price paid; nor do we believe that should be contracted by division boards, so that whatever space is left may be crowded with bees. The hives should be looked over once a week, and as soon as any colony has brood on a third comb, the honey on the comb having the least brood should be uncapped, and that comb placed between the other two. In subsequent examinations, the combs should again be changed, putting those containing the least brood into the middle of the brood nest, and uncap-ping honey. Continue this until all combs except the two outside ones are full of brood up to the top bar. Then shove back the division board and put an empty frame into the middle of the hive, as often as the last one inserted is filled with brood. In this way the bees are stimulated to raise much more brood than they would if left to themselves.

Feeding Horses.

More horses are annually killed or injured by over-feeding and by injudicious feeding than by starving or most other causes. In horses we can detect as many different temperaments and dispositions as in man, though but few horse owners take this fact into consideration in the management of their horses, particularly that part of it relating to food and feeding. Some horses are natural gluttons, and they must be seen to carefully or they will, at times, be apt to seriously injure themselves by feeding too fast, while much of the food they consume will pass through them undigested, for the simple reason that it is swallowed before it has been properly masticated. We like to see what is termed a "good feeder," (one who does not mince or pick over his food) but then we are not at all partial to the ravenous one. Such a horse as the latter named will dive into his feed with mouth wide open, and invariably take more at a mouthful than he can either hold in his Bitters, from which she obtained permanents.

oats, while moistening the oats or feeding cut food prevents him from pandering to his greedy propensity. A horse with a delicate appetite is usually a tender, delicate animal, and not at all desirable. The trouble with most persons who keep horses, no matter whether on the farm for farm work, or for driving purposes, is they feed too much hay; and to this cause can be contributed the general sluggishness often manifested by the horses until they have been working a couple of hours, while the wind is also much impaired. Night is the only time when hay should be fed, especially to animals used for quick work. Even the snow-plow team should have but ittle hay at the morning and noon feeds, but give them a generous supply at the evening meal. By doing this, your horse will keep in better spirits and condition, and free from any tendency to "pot belly" which horsemen so much dislike to see. How to Make Boys Love the Farm.

The following is taken from a letter in St. Nicholas for March. If more parents treated their boys in this way, it would be much better for both:

"I am a little boy, ten years old. When I was four, my mother took me to see my grandfather, who gave me a dollar. When I came home, my father offered to give me a heifer for the dollar and a year's work at five cents a day. I said all right, and after the year's work was done, he sold the cow and gave me the money, with which I bought a four-year-old cow. After a while this cow had a calf, and when he was a yearling, she had another. When the first calf was a two year old, I traded him for another cow. The first cow by this time had a third calf, and the second cow also had a calf. I sold two of the yearlings for twenty-three dollars, and had six dollars besides. I put this money at interest for ten cents on a dollar, a year. Afterwards I bought another cow, selling the first old one for $27, buying tions and overwhelming proofs, is post-paid two pigs. By trading round I now have two cows, two calves, two pigs, a pony and saddle, and $24 in money at interest, all made in six years.

Paganini's Peculiarties.

Paganini was the greatest master of the violin the world ever produced. On one occasion he was solicited to appear in Ferarra, Austria. As is well known, Paganini was not a handsome man. Tall and bony, his ungainly form, and awkward shuffling his ungainly form, and awkward shuffling steps were often a subject of sport. Just previous to his appearance in Ferrara he had been very ill, and when he came on the stage, he looked more like a maniac than the renowned Paganini.

His ill-fitting clothes hanging loosely upon his emaciated form, his hair uncombed, his face soiled by the splashes of mud, which had fallen on it during his hasty ride—this was the appearance of the man section, where the cost of delivery is added to the price paid; nor do we believe that there will be a corresponding increase in the price in northern markets for that particular class of cattle. The large increase of cattle in southern Texas, we fear, does not fully sustain this increase in price, and the cattle manipulators of Victoria, Texas, have unduly excited the market by making the following offerings: Yearlings, $6; two-year olds, $10 to $12, and three-year-olds, $17 to $18. To say that these are the highest figures that cattle have been held at in lanes, and the fallen produce is looked upon as common property, provided the traveler does not trespass for it. Even in suburbs of cities and large towns, where but a few feet of land is allotted to each home, and where one would suppose that each inch of room would be made available, the front yards are planted with evergreen trees, or purely ornamental shrubs, to the utter exclusion of apple, pear, or plum trees—any of which would be far preferable in every respect.

Spring Management of Bees.

Hives should have all the sun they can get, except during the time of a honey harvest in the hottest weather. Temporary shade, if it can be arranged then, is very desirable. When but few hives are kept, it is a good plan to have them stand on the south-east side of a tree, during the spring, and then as clover begins to bloom, and the weather grows hot, to move them move them out again in the fall.

Spreading brood is an operation absolutely necessary to get stocks strong enough in spring to get honey from early harvests. The brood nest of each colony should be contracted by division boards, so that whatever space is left may be crowded.

An Honest Medicine. Of all medicines advertised to cure any affection of the Throat, Chest or Lungs, we know of none we can recommend so highly as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness, Tickling in the Throat, loss of Voice, etc. This medicine does positively cure, and that where everything else has failed. No medicine can show one half so many positive and permanent cures as have already been For Ashma and Bronchitis it is a perfect specific, curing the very worst cases in the shortest time possible. We say by all means give it a trial. Trial bottles ten cents. Regular size $1.00. For sale by Brown & Co., Ann Arbor.

GENTLEMENT:—Please notice the enclosed photograph of wheat cut from the same length of drill seven inches apart—superphosphate and no superphosphate. Draw your own conclusions which is which. Of course this is showing more difference than the field will average; but this shows what superphosphate will do on very poor soil. This was cut from a very poor spot, but each had the same chance with the one exception. It was cut rath of June, shows the earliness of that fertilized. I have the best piece of barley in this section—roo lbs. superphosphate per acre sown on wheat stubble. The best farmers here are taking note of these things.
