Baking Powder Figures THAT DON'T LIE.

The Royal Baking Powder Co. try to give the inference that their powder contains more Cream Tartar and that its Leavening Power is greater than any other made, as stated in their advertisement on the "Comparative Worth of Baking Powders," exhibited by black lines. Our name was mentioned in connection with one of our cheaper brands, made of different materials as the trade might demand. Our Cream Tartar brand of Andrew's Pearl was omitted, evidentily for a very good reason, judging from the relative merits of Andrew's "Pearl" and the Royal, as clearly demonstrated by the Government Chemist, Dr. Peter Collier of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, from samples received by him from dealers who furnished the samples from their stocks on hand

DR. COLLIERS' ANALYSIS

C. E. Andrews & Co.—Gentlemen: I received by express from Thos. Lydon and J. P. Harkins & Co.. Grand Ave., Milwaukee, and Harper Bros., Chicago, Ill., samples of Andrews' Pearl and Royal Baking Powders. The cans were in good condition when received and the seals unbroken. I find upon analysis that Andrews' Pearl Baking Powder contains about four and a half (4½) per cent. more cream tartar than the Royal Baking Powder, and a proportionately larger percentage of carbonic acid gas, and I find it to be free from alum, and any injurious substances.

> PETER COLLIER. U. S. Chemist, Dept. of Agriculture.

Government Chemist Collier's Analysis as to the Leavening Qualities.

ANDREWS' PEARL

No wonder the Royal Co. omitted Andrews' Pearl from their "Comparative List," as Government Chemist Collier's analysis shows conclusively two things: Ist, That Andrews' Pearl contains more Cream Tartar than the Royal, as shown by the cuts above; 2d, That the Leavening Power of Andrews' Pearl is greater than the Royal, as shown by the two black lines above.

CHALLENCE.

We will gave the Royal Co. or any one else $1,000 or $5,000 if they can prove by any fair mutual test that Andrews' Pearl Baking Powder does, or ever did, contain alum or any injurious substances, and this challenge is open forever. Andrews' Pearl Baking Powder is sustained by a testimonial as to its purity and strength never have published. TRY IT. Covernment chemis C. E. ANDREWS & CO.,

The most pleasant fifteen-minute conversation we have lately had, was enjoyed by us last Saturday morning with J. D. Schnaltman, who related some of his war experience. Mr. S. was but 18 when he enlisted, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Bull Run. He served ten months in Libby and other prisons, and was finally released on parole from Charlestown jail. Mr. S. has received a Springfield gun (of the self-primer style) Springfield gun (of the self-primer style, of which but a few were made), which he will keep as a keepsake, as he thinks it at one time saved his life. From the Dexter Leader. Emily Burkhart died in this village on the 11th inst., of Bright's disease of the kidneys, in the 67th year of her age. The deceased was born in Summit ounty, Ohio, and has been a resident of the State of Michigan about forty years, and was a resident of North Lake about eighteen years. Shortly after the death of her second husband she removed to fish in the lake. Dexter. She had been in feeble health for a number of years, but managed to get along with her few household duties, with occasional help, up to last fall, since which time she has been practically helpless. Her mind gradually gave way under the progress of disease. A niece and step-son by her first husband cared for her and ministered to her comfort during the last months of her life. She had been for five or six years a member of the Methodist church in Dexter, and her funeral was held in said church on Thursday morning last, the pastor officiating. Our townsman J. F. Clark, who has just returned from a two or more years' residence in Nebraska, is enthusiastic, way they do things out there, way they do things out there, wonders how people can content themsolves to live in such a staid old town as this. As an illustration of the way in which they push things in that country, the presents us with a newspaper article descriptive of a town named Athens, on the line of the C., St. P., M. & O. R. R., which, on the 30th of April last, was without any sign of settlement, and on the 21st day of the following month it contained, thirteen places of business, with residences going up as by magic in

From the Enterprise In answer to the question: What does it cost to raise a bushel of wheat? President Green, of the S. W. Farmers' club said he plowed 10 acres in 1879, and kept strict account of the expense of raising the wheat, interest on the land, taxes etc., and found that the wheat cost him about thirty cents a bushel. On Friday morning a dirty looking chap registered at the Goodyear house, and the following day on being asked to settle he informed the clerk that a pistol shot in his breast would be the only pay he would get. Landlord Farrell put the ellow out of the house, but he persisted in annoying him with his presence until Sunday, when deputy marshal Horace Wisner attempted to find out what the scamp wanted around here, when he struck him a blow. For that he was arrested and jugged and on Monday morning brought before justice Perkins. He was very decided in his language but pleaded not guilty, when a jury was struck who found him guilty without leaving their seats, and he was taken to Ann Arbor jail for sixty days. Some think him a stubborn, ugly scamp, while others consider him insane. SALINE. Saline celebrates the fourth of July.

Monday last Messrs. Deubel, Ald. George and Mr. Moore, went to a small lake some five miles from Dexter, to camp out and fish. Before they were settled a storm came up and drove them into a small dwelling near by, where they were obliged to pass the night. They retired to bed up lower part of the house literally in flames, —the mother frantic, for two children were still in the house, abed behind a screen which the men had not noticed. While Deubel and Moore resisted the fire all they could with pails and water, George crawled under the smoke on the floor to the thildren's bed, and seized the smaller one, celling the other to follow. This the child was unable to do, and after placing the first in safety, Mr. George made the journey again, and brought out the second. The family being saved the house was left o its fate, and in a short time was a heap of cinders, the gentlemen losing all their fishing equipments, and most of their cloth-The rain still fell, and the almost inensible children, naked and chilled were taken to a miserable stable, and made as comfortable as possible, in the hay and straw, until morning, when they were carried to the nearest neighbor two miles away in the buggy of the fishing party, who immediately sought the village to replenish their wardrobes, and make themselves presentable. The father of the family was absent at work. The fishing family was broken up for the time, but we doubt not the gentlemen reflect with more pleas-

Heretofore, it has been an opposition more or less formidable, but this is everything and consequently nothing. eloquently argued, and as mercilessly voted down, when a member arose to say that the system of appropriating public moneys for the alleged improvement of little creeks that could never be made navigable, was wasteful, extravagant, and inexcusable. Its only purpose was to "boom' the members securing them when they asked for a second term.

WATER IN THE DESERT.

The Most Priceless Treasure of Life to the Arab-Some of the Desperate Struggles for Its Possession-Fighting for the Wells in the Soudan.

The Soudan campaign, from first to last, has been a comment on the vast value of water in the East. One of the history is the flight of the Torgote Tartars from the Russian frontiers to those of China, about a century ago. Throughout this awful journey across the pathess, waterless desert the Bashkirs and Khirghises followed on the heels of the flying Kalmucks, and the continuous trail of corpses told a fearful story of the unceasing conflict and perpetual massacre. The desperate persistence of the escaping hosts in pushingt on was equaled by the frenzied cruelty of those who pursued them, until the scenes of carnage and brutality that ensued was such that it seemed as if "a nation of madmen were flying before a nation of fiends." But the horrible climax was only reached at the end of their two thousand miles of disastrous pilgrimage, when after a loss of four hundred thousand of their number, the Kalmucks. mad from thirst, came in sight of the lake of Tengis. Hundreds of the pursuers and pursued had already lost their reason from their dreadful sufferings. Thousands were being borne along upon camels and horses, helplessly exhausted by two days' want of water. But as hosts, reduced now to about two hundred thousand, rushed in a body with frantic DeQuincey's terrmticipated solace. In Chinese Emperor, happeining will a force of cavalry to be at the very spot, saw what was happening, and sent out But there was time gubjects. before the horsemen reached the scene for one of the most ferocious conflicts ever recorded against man. In the general rush toward the saving water, all discipline and command were lost-all attempts to preserve a rearguard neglected-the wild Bashkirs rode in among the encumbered people and slanghtered them by wholesale, and almost without resistance. and tumultuous shouts proclaimed the progress of the massacre; but none eeded, none halted—all alike, faces blackened by the heat and with tongues drooping from the mouth, continued with maniacal haste toward the lake. The Bashkir was affected by the same misery as the wretched Kalmuck and into the lake the whole vast body of enemies rushed, forgetful of all things but one almighty instinct. The absorption of their thoughts in one maddening appetite lasted for a single half hour, but in the next arose a final scene of parting vengeance. Far and wide the waters of the solitary lake were instantly dyed red with blood. Here rode a party of savage Bashkirs hewing off heads as fast as the swaths fall before the mower's scythe; there stood unarmed Kalmucks in a death grapple with their detested foes, both up to the middle in water. Every moment the lake grew more polluted, and yet every moment fresh hosts came up to the water and rushed in, not able to resist their frantic thirst, and swallowing large draughts, visibly contaminated with slaughter. Wherever the lake was shalenough to allow of men raising their heads above the surface there, for scores of acres, were to be seen all forms of ghastly fear, of agonizing struggle venge-until the martial spectators, of whom there were not a few, averted their eves with horror as they rode down to the lake to the rescue of the hapless fugitives.

This, undoubtedly, is one of the most striking instances of catastrophe arising from the absence of water in the desert ever chronicled, but who can not recall, from numerous works of travel, or, in-deed, from history, numerous other illustrations of the same fierce peril of with disasters from this cause, and every desert bears witness against itself in the warning skeletons of man and beast which lie scattered up and down its surwastes gathers round the spring and well. Their daily existence, the affairs of tribes, the history of races, are determined by the position and abundance of the local water supply. It is for the possession of the oases and the life-giving trickle of water in the midst of it that the present fights of the pastoral nomads are fought. Their religious on the subject of water, its use and of Paradise is the luxury of unstinted springs of cold water. Nor is there any room for wonder that this should be so. his most desperate courage for the conflict round water. It is to him the central blessing of life; and in all his imagination he can find no other simile for earthly beauty or heavenly bliss than the precious fluid of which nature has been so ruthlessly sparing. The sand is the Arab's ocean, the oases are his ports, and with all the accuracy of ships' courses they steer their way over the trackless wastes. To be betrayed from the straight line by a mirage, or driven from it by the attacks of enemies, or delayed upon the road by sand storms, may, as in the case of a vessel at sea, compel the voyager to make for some other port than that for which he had started. But the sun or the stars are always there, and for the rest what better compass does the Bedouin ask than his camel's amazing power of scent? The dromedary's nose is a needle that never needs readjustment. No accidental attractions make it unfaithful to its duty. A fearful peril attaches, nevertheless, to any deviation from the shortest route; for even these hardened 'children of the desert'' find the passage from one spring to another as much their powers of endurance can bear, and are accustomed to time them so exactly most terrible episodes ever recorded in that they often arrive at their journey's end with water-bottle and strength alike exhausted. Nor is it easy in the wide range of human emotions to imagine any more stirring pleasure than the first glimpse upon the horizon of the patch of palms which tells of a spring at their feet; nor any longing more intense than the eagerness with which the solitary traveler presses forward toward the friendly encampment, which his keen sight discovers clustering around the oasis. After days of solitude and utter silent traveling perpetually in the center of an unbroken circle of blistering sand, the relief of green palm-fronds, of human voices, of rest, must be such a rapture as almost to indemnify the Arab for all the drawbacks of his hard life; and no wonder that the word "water" is the darling of all his language. For it is a veritable miracle-worker. Our soldiers in Egypt were astonished, when tramping along the apparently hopeless desert, to see how luxuriant crops and gardens alternated with bare sand, how a mere rill of water turned the wilderness into a farmstead and charmed up to the surface of the soil all the latent magic of whether in the Eastern hemisphere or the West, water is indeed a magician, as wonderful in the suddenness and completeness of its work as any genii not have the potency sired. Industry without fit is a parallytic, a cripple. With it, it possesses a talisman that transfigures everything, work of his hand. Openhing of parts of Western America, a recent writer, says: "Water here is everything that precious. Without it the sage brush laughs at man, and the horn of the jack rabbit is exalted against him. With it, corn expels the weed, and the long-eared rodent is plowed out of possession. Without it grease wood and gophers divide the wilderness between them. With it, homesteads spring up and gather the orchards about them. Without it, the silence of the level desert is broken only the coyote. With it come the laughter of running brooks, the hum of busy markets, and the cheery voices of the mill-wheels by the stream. Without it, the world seems a dreary failure. With it it brightens into infinite possibilities. No wonder then that men here prize it, exhausted ingenuity in obtaining it, fought about it. I wonder they do not worship it. Men have worshiped trees, wind and sun with no greater cause." Change the phrases here and there, and the passage might stand for Asia, for nothing is so striking in many parts of the East, notably Arabia and the eastern provinces of Africa. as the supreme importance of water. It determines localities, regulates their proportions, and controls their prosperity.

Just as in the far West men buy and sell water claims, as if they were mines in full work, and appraise each other's estates, not by the stock that grazes upon them, or the harvests gathered from them, but by the water-rights that go with them, so in these oriental countries of desert and torrid sun clans measure their wealth by the flow of water within their boundaries, and the importance of of spasms of death, and the fear of death—revenge and the lunacy of repower involved in the issue. Every power involved in the issue. Every stream might be a Pactolus, so precious is it; every pool a Bethesda, so great its virtues. To compass the wonder-working thing, all energies, whether of individual or of community, are fiercely employed; and prized above all that Arabs possess is the tribal right to access to a given spring, or the privilege of encampment by a special well. In war it attains, if possible, to a still greater preciousness, for it is then the one absolute essential of the campaign, thirst? Annals of exploration abound Our troops, as we have noted, marched in obedience to the dictates of this supreme necessity. An army, beguiled from the path that led to the widely separated wells of the Soudan, would need to meet no foe to find its doom, for thirst is the swiftest of tortures, and swifter than the onrush of Arab spearmen.-London Telegraph.

According to statistics obtained by the Secretary of State in regard to wages paid to farm hands it is noted how well paid they are in Washtenaw. The entertainment will this year consist of a Grand Concert to be given by the Ladies' Amphion Club, assisted by Miss Mary L. Word, pianist, Mr. Wm. Luderer, solo violinist, Miss Julia Caruthers, accompanist, and the Beethoven Quintette Club, of Detroit, under the able direction of Mr. Orin Cady. The Amphion Club under the leadership of Mr. Orin Cady has made for itself a reputation which is not exceeded by any musical organization in the state; and it is only necessary to the complete success of any entertainment in Ann Arbor to announce that they will appear in one or two numbers to insure a full house. But this time they take the major part of the program, and none should lose this unusual opportunity of hearing them; and of also showing our friends from abroad that though we do not live in the "city" we enjoy often what many cities seldom if ever do,-first-class vocal music, furnished by our own personal friends.

As much might be said for the Beethoven Quintette Club, and for the others who are to take part in the program did space allow. The concert will be given in University Hall on Monday evening, June 23rd, at 8 o'clock.

High School Alumni.

The exercises of the Ann Arbor High School Alumni Association will be held this year on Friday evening, June 20, in the Baptist church, commencing at 8 o'clock, P. M. The society will this year have the unusual pleasure of listening to a masterly address by Dr. Samuel A. Jones, of this city, who has kindly consented to deliver the annual address. After the address the members of the association and their invited guests will adjourn to the parlors of the church where they will be bountifully served with refreshments, after which toasts will be responded to by prominent citizens and graduates of the school, among whom will be representatives of each of the classes in the University. The large and very successful meeting last year gives assurance of a large attendance this year, and the executive committee has already made unusual preparations, so that all may come feeling confident of an abundance of everything to make the occasion an enjoyable one. The music will also be an attractive feature as solos will be sung by Miss May Whedon, Miss Jessie Strickland, and Messrs. C. B. Cady and L. D. Wines; besides quartettes in which Mrs. Dr. A. L. Worden of Des Moines, Iowa, and Mr. Will Whedon of Boston. Mass., will take part. On account of the rapid increase of the numbers of the graduates of the school and the consequent inability of the secretary to keep track of so many addresses, specially printed invitations will hereafter be discontinued, and a general invitation ex-tended through the city papers to all members of the association, which includes all graduates of the school and former and present teachers The public generally are invited to attend the literary part of the program.

Nature's great remedy, Kidney-Wort, has cured many obstinate cases of piles This most distressing malady generally arises from constipation and a bad cond tion of the bowels. Kidney-Wort acts at the same time as a cathartic and a healing tonic, removes the cause, cures the disease and promotes a healthy state of the affected organs. James F. Moyer, carriage manufacturer, of Myerstown, Pa., testifies to the great healing powers of Kidney Wort, having been cured by it of a very bad case of piles which for years had refused to yield to any other remedy.

A cow, with a rope attached to her horns and one of the front legs, while being driven along the street past the mineral springs last Monday, began running and threw herself into the ditch, breaking her neck instantly. The animal belonged to Mr. Stein.

It is quite probable that Company A will dismiss about fifteen or twenty members of the company soon, and there will then be an opportunity for that number of new recraits. If the recruits are enlisted before July 1, they will go into camp in August with the company. About sixty men of the present force will be in camp this year.

The Methodists of Indiana, Michigan and Ohio will hold a Centennial Jubilee at Island Park Assembly, July 10th and 11th. A host of prominent men will take part, including Revs. R. S. Rust, J. C. We happen to know whereof we speak when we say that there is no truth whatever in an item appearing in one of last week's papers, clipped from the Ann Arbor correspondence of the Saline Observer. The item referred to spoke of Forepaugh's leaving with a Chronicle editor one hundred tickets to be distributed among the University professors, &c. Meanwhile, the Observer's correspondent here would do well hereafter to observe more caution before giving circulation to an untruthful item of this sort.

A backward spring has somewhat retarded trade with us, though nothing like as much as could reasonably be expected. Our spring stock is complete in every department, and is the largest stock exposed for retail in this city or any other city in this part of the State. Strangers are invited to visit the store, though their only errand be to see.

Having recently announced novelties n black dress goods to the exclusion of staples, let us remark that in all the leading staple fabrics in Cashmeres, Tamise, Camel's Hair, Grenadine and Nun's ceedingly strong in all of our lines and Straw Hats. justly confident in our prices. Our silk Warp Henrietta at $1.50 "is a rare bar-

Combination suits are "en regle." The Mackinaw Hats, patterns piled on the counter in the southeastern part of the store you can multiply by about four, to get at the variety. Here are modest plaids and stripes, gray mixtures, melange effects., etc., etc., prices $1.25, $1.35 and $1.75.

You are quite satisfied that "home made underwear" is an unwise investment of time and toil. Can't be otherwise, if you have turned over carefully the masses of delicate drapery and tried the tucks and trimmings, to see if we have really been successful imitators of your home-made work. If we have, it won't take long to figure the difference in cost, if your own time is not cheaper than factory wages. Ladies' skirts at large sale, and deservedly so. The new $1.40, $2.00, $3.00 and $4.00 are worthy of inspection.

The parasol season has opened with a rush. It finds us prepared with everything desirable in coaching, Lace Trimed, Carriage, &c., &c. Look at our black brocades at $7.00 and $10.00, our color ed brocades at $15.00.

Jerseys are still the popular thing, we have twenty styles for ladies. Some are plain as plain can be, and others are braided and beaded until they sparkle and dazzle. Prices begin at $2.00 and end at $20.00. Splendid presents they are for the girls, and not much bother to secure the proper fit.

A recent purchase enables us to make an exceptional offering in Women's Hosiery. To quote prices hardly seems useful, it tells so little, for instance, for us to say we have ladies' hose full regular made solid colors, the reader would naturally say, why, every store have such, but the fact remains, that no with French feet at 30cts, it is a quality universally sold at 40 and 50cts. The competition, June 21st, I will sell all plumes and tips motto in this department is quality first, always quality. Prices adjusted on that basis. Messes. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
early part of 1877 I had been a constant surferer from scrofulous ulcers or sores, which had finally reduced me to a helpless condition, as described in my letter to you in September of that year. The continued excellent health which enables me to keep house for my aged father and to enjoy life, keeps alive my intense personal interest in Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude for the permanent cure this wonderful medicine effected in my case nearly two years ago, while living in Lowell, when all my physicians gave me up as being in an incurable condition. One thing before I close. I have recommended your Sarsaparilla to hundreds, and I Think more than a thousand cases, and my faith in its invincibility in curing scrofula has become absolute by the wonderful cures it has effected aside from my own. I trust you will not be slow in making the merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla known everywhere, for it is a duty you owe to mankind. With best wishes I remain very truly yours.

The above deplets a very pleasant feature of bicycling as a sport. The club have ridden from their headquarters in the city, to a suburban village some twenty miles away, where they await the arrival of the racing members who were to start just thirty minutes later.

Five minutes more and the two foremost of the racing men—Fri, on his "Harvard," and Yonson on his "Yale," appear in sight. The pace is tremendous: the men are neck and neck, and Dodges, the captain of the club, whom you observe is leaning on his "Shadow "light roadster, in the foreground, declares the race a tie.

"Where are the other men?" he asks.

"Oh, behind, somewhere," is the reply.

"Are there any 'Harvard's' or 'Yale's' or 'Shadow's' among them?"

"Not one."

"Not one."

"An! that accounts for it," says the captais.
American bicyclers as a body will realize the force of the captain's last remark, but the thousands of new riders which the coming year will produce, should each one of them realize that the only true economy in choosing a bicycle is to be content with nothing less than the very best that money will procure. Each should find out all he can about bicycles before making his choice, and in order to assist enquirers in their search for information, we will, on receipt of a a three-cent stamp, send to any address, a copy of our large illustrated catalogue by return mail.
