Baking Powder Figures THAT DON'T LIE!

The Royal Baking Powder Co. try to give the inference that their powder contains more Cream Tartar and that its Leavening Power is greater than any other made, as stated in their advertisement on the "Comparative Worth of Baking Powders," exhibited by black lines. Our name was mentioned in connection with one of our cheaper brands, made of different materials as the trade might demand. Our Cream Tartar brand of Andrew's Pearl was omitted, evidently for a very good reason, judging from the relative merits of Andrew's "Pearl" and the Royal, as clearly demonstrated by the Government Chemist, Dr. PETER COLLIER of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, from samples received by him from dealers who furnished the samples from their stocks on hand

No wonder the Royal Co. omitted Andrews' Pearl from their "Comparative List" as Government Chemist Collier's analysis shows conclusively two things: 1st, That Andrews' Pearl contains more Cream Tartar than the Royal, as shown by the cuts above; 2d, That the Leavening Power of Andrews' Pearl is greater than the Royal, as shown by the two black lines above.

CHALLENCE.

We will gave the Royal Co. or any one else $1,000 or $5,000 if they can prove by any fair mutual test that Andrews' Pearl Baking Powder does, or ever did, contain alum or any injurious substances, and this challenge is open forever. Andrews' Pearl Baking Powder is sustained by a testimonial as to its purity and strength Government chemist, such as the Royal Co never have published. TRY IT.

A SHATTERED INTELLECT.

"Help! help! help!" I started to my feet in a tremor of fright as this cry rang through my room, and gazed at the partition wall which divided my apartment from the room next to it in helpless terror. Then I bethought me of the hall, and rushing out there I knocked on the door next to

Silence, followed by a low demoniacal

A voice evidently that of an aged woman, called out: "Go away!"

Then I could hear her laugh and mutroom. On the way I met the boy who was janitor of the building. "Who has No. 27?"

"Some crazy vomans," he answered in disrespectful haste, and was gone before I could ask another question. A mad woman in the next room! Surely fate was unkind to me. I had come here to improve my own mind, and found myself tete-a-tete with idiocy. I could move out, but I had only just moved in, and ducats were as scarce as hen's teeth. I was preparing myself for dramatic readings, and spent the most part of my time in the drill work of the profession, with intervals devoted to the rendering of classical music, con I comforted myself with the belief that however hard my poor Fred Breigel had a finger on his left quarter-size model, but was four times as demented neighbor shricked and raved her out with an opp I decided to stay where I was and attend to my own affairs.

If I had only done so! "Mind your own business" is a homely formula, but it is a little classic of sensible, pertinent advice, which we would do well to engrave on the ritual of our daily lives in letters of gold. So much for parenthesis

I studied aloud. I raved and ranted to develop my voice. I paced my chamber in a long white gown and holding a tallow candle in my rigid hand, while I strode up and down, repeated in sepulchral tones: O-w-it dam-n-ed spot, owit I say-one-two; why then tis' time to-"Save me! save me! help! help! for God's sake, help!" I dropped my candle, jumped into bed, and drew the bed-clothes over my head. There I lay and shivered until

Then I saw a pale, still woman with a resolute face, coming out of number

"How is your patient?" I asked hurplaster. These were all carefully made | riedly as she passed me on the landing. The woman stared at me a moment as if she did not quite understand. "The-the insane woman," I explained.

"Oh, yes, much better, but I cannot stop to talk," and she hastened away while I wondered whether she was a nurse to the mysterious woman shut up there, or a relative, possibly a daughter. I decided on the latter when I heard the fond language she used to-ward the poor demented creature. Never a harsh or reproachful word, but the tender endearments of an affection that was as self-sacrificing as only the strongest filial love can be. And so proud and careful of the unconscious sufferer that no eye was allowed to rest upon her in that wretched state. I honored and respected such devotion, and soon in my own way I longed to assist the sad and silent woman, who shrunk from the advances of strangers, in her labor of love. I began by leaving tiny bunches of flowers at the door. Then small offerings of fruit, and I had a selfish reward in the silence and peace that followed each occasion. I could hear the patient softly laughing or talking to herself, and I even imagined she had learned to expect the tributes of my sympathy. Who knew? It might even act as a new mind cure, this outside diversion from an unknown source. Several times I had tried to talk with the daughter-as I had decided her to be- but her manner was so reserved, and so strange, that I began to think she, too, was non compos mentis: that they were, in fact, a mad family. But I had learned that she filled a resp position during the day, and that her whole life was given up to the cheerless society of the wreck whom she protected with such devotion that I had never vet caught a glimpse of her. I felt that to help such a sorrow was a privilege, and I desired no thanks or acknowledg-

And yet-I will confess it now-it was sometimes hard to bear. The ravings of insanity are never pleasant to lis ten to, but there was a peculiar weirdness in the muffled cries that rang

But there came a climax, as there does to most of the tragedies of life, and it did not come a moment too soon, for I had fallen into a nervous condition that, if I had been a fine lady, would have caused-my friends and myself great apprehension. But I am not a fine lady, and the few friends I had lived far away and did not trouble themselves about me. And I had become absorbed, fascinated, haunted by the nameless terror on the the other side of my partition. I too, was beginning to laugh hysterically; to scream and "murder" in my sleep; to mutter, and jabber incoherent words. My face had grown white and wild looking. I fancied that every next door neighbor avoided me, as if afraid of me-ha! ha!

poll parrot.-Mrs. M. L. Rayne, in Detroit Free Press. The New Rich of New York.

The third circle of New York society is based on money—money alone—and so freshly made as to contain a clinging odor of the manner of its making-no always fragrant. Its members are apt to be vulgar, if from no other cause from their pecuniary ostentation and love of display. They have not had wealth long enough to become accusless in their desire to advertise a fact which affords them so much shallow importance. As a rule, they are but half educated, and their manners are defective. They tend to noise, self-assertion and boastfulness; they rehearse their tires, soldom remantic or enticing; they strut and swaggar from conceit and consciousness of what they have accom As money is their sole test of worth and significance, they are not squeamish as to the method of its obtainment, and they do not inquire, therefore, too closely into the antece-dents and record of the members of their set. They form a kind of buffo company whose pretensions and extravagance would be diverting, if not repel-They have the showiest carriages in the park, the costliest clothes, the biggest diamonds, the highest voices, and the worst pronunciation. They are forever advertising themselves in every possible way by word of mouth and by paragraphs in the newspapers. Their dearest ambition is to be thought fashionable, and they are so diligent to this end that outsiders are often made to believe them all that they They are very fond of frequenting the watering places, notably Saratoga-they do not affect Newport, where Knickerbocker or Mayflower blood, backed by a big income, asserts itselfand of attracting attention by their gaudy turnouts and their miscellaneous prodigality. The members of other circles rigorously avoid these shoddyites, as they are commonly called, and the shoddyites have, therefore, little society save of their own sort. This always annoys them, and they spend more lavishly than ever when they make an advance that is repelled, being under the impression that cash is social as well as inancial capital, and that its reckless disbursement is a passport to a better circle they are always trying to enter. It is their misfortune that they can conceive of nothing higher or holier than money, and the blunders they commit from this misunderstanding are manifold and momentous. If they fashionable the prejudice against fashion would not be without reason, for they are odious to every one possessed of self-esteem and delicacy.-N. Y. Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Rising at four or five, even in the winter, he often built his own fire, and then worked upon his correspondence and his journal, while the main part of the day was given to public affairs, these being reluctantly interrupted to receive a stream of visitors. In the evening he worked again, sometimes going to bed at eight or nine even in summer. His recreations were few-bathing in the Potomac before sunrise, and taking a walk at the same hour, or a ride later in the day, or sometimes the theater, such as it was. For social life he had little aptitude, though he went through the forms of it. This is well illustrated by one singular memorandum in his diary: "I went out this evening in search of conversation, an art of which I never had an adequate idea. I never knew how to make, control, or change it. I am by nature a silent animal, and my dear mother's constant lesson in child hood, that little children should be seen and not heard, confirmed me in what I now think a bad habit."-T. W. The particulars are as follows: In company with Miss Hattie Swathel and Mr. Chas. E. Bond, Miss Burleigh at the time named set out for a horseback ride from the east end of Liberty street, going west, Miss Burleigh riding a mustang. It is thought that a riding whip which hung at her side, and kept touching the horse, frightened the mustang into a run, resulting in the throwing of Miss Burleigh near the corner of Division and Liberty streets, but a short distance from her old home. Whether the young lady struck a stone when thrown or not seems uncertain a large part of the scalp on the back part of the head was torn off, and it is thought her lungs were also injured. will be held in Detroit August 13. As Consciousness was not recovered until vet there has been but little discussion as Friday. Washington Letter.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June, 30, 1884. Congress wants to adjourn on next Satturday. One stumbling block to so early an adjournment is in the conference committees, where the many additions and alterations made by the Senate to the Navy, Consular and Diplomatic, Army, Pension, Indian, and Postoffice appropriations, have caused opposing views on these measures to be held with great obstinacy. But the members of both houses are getting very tired, and they may not allow any political squabble to keep them here. Many of them say even if some of the appropriations have to be simply bridged over until they meet again, they must go.

The third house as the lobby is called s still in session, and has charge of many jobs not yet put through. It will try to tuck its pet measures quietly into some of the still pending patch-work bills, like the sundry civil, legislative, and general deficiency. As is usual in the confusion of a hurridly closed session, there will be some crude legislation in the next few

As to the House, it has nothing to do now, or rather it it will do nothing now but make speeches, talk, quarrel, and pass unimportant measures. It is waiting on the Senate which was late getting the Appropriation bills from the house. The Senate now has all these bills, which have not gone to the conference committees and when they are out of the way, the resolution to adjourn will be adopted by the upper branch, and gratefully conurred in at the other end of the Capitol.

The senate is working energetically today over the River and Harbor bill, proposing to give Government employees who have worked more than eight hours a day since the eight hour law was passed, the extra pay to which they claim right. No conclusion was reached, and the subject is likely to go over to the next

And so will many other bills. The calendars of both houses are full of measures which ought to have been considered, and which will stand little chance of being properly considered during the next short session. But the Senate could do nothing more than it did. It is already several years ahead of the House with work.

The practice of printing in the Congressional Record, speeches which have never been delivered in the Halls of Congress and of suppressing speeches which have been delivered, has caused a good deal of trouble and misunderstanding. The way in which Senator Logan's record was assailed the other day in an unspoken speech which a member got leave to print, is a case in point. Senator Logan's ket. name appeared in a list of alleged "land grabbers" and his friends rushed at once lively political debate in the House, and calling forth a little speech in the Senate from Gen. Hawley. The Senator from Connecticut, said the object of a statement that Senator Logan held 80,000 acres of land could only be to prejudice a gentleman whose circumstances are such that he can hardly speak for himself, though abundantly qualified, as everybody knows, to do so. Mr. Hawley further said that Senator Logan was only the owner of the land upon which his father died, to which he had added a little Valentine, and Cannon explained that date, at their residences, of Washtena Member McAdoo, would not have made the statement on the floor, that he covertly inserted in the Record, and that it was meant to mislead the country.

The Record purports and is intended o show what actually takes place in Congress and after this session, speeches that have not been delivered in either house will be prohibited its pages.

Ku Klux Parade.

From the authentic history of "The Ku Klux Klan: Its Origin, Growth, and of two or three, with their paraphernalia carefully concealed. If questioned, they answered that they were going to Pulaski | Use it. to see the Ku Klux parade. After nightfall they assembled at designated points near the four main roads leading into town. Here they donned their robes and disguises, and put covers of gaudy materials on their horses. A sky-rocket sent up from some point in the town was the ignal to mount and move. The different companies met and joined each other on discipline appeared to be admirable. Not 31, at reduced rates. a word was spoken. Necessary orders were given by means of the whistles. In single file, in death-like stillness, with funeral slowness, they marched and countermarched throughout the town. While the column was headed north on one street it was going south on another. By crossing over in opposite directions the lines were kept up in almost unbroken continuity. The effect was to create the impression of vast numbers. This marching and countermarching was kept up for about two hours, and the Klan departed as noiselessly as they came. The public were more than mystified. The efforts of the country was confident that he could identify the riders by the horses. But, as we have said, the horses were disguised as well as the riders. Determined not to he lifted the cover of a horse that was near him, and recognized his own steed and saddle, on which he had ridden into town. The town people were on the alert would be with the Ku Klux. All of them, almost without exception, were marked ningling freely and conspicuously with the spectators.

"Perhaps the greatest illusion produced was in regard to the numbers taking part in the parade. Reputable citizens were confident that the number was not less than three thousand. Others, whose imaginations were more easily wrought upon, were quite certain there were ten thousand. The truth is that the number four hundred. This delusion in regard to numbers prevailed wherever the Ku a deep impression on him by reason of its mysteriousness."

Diseases of Fruit Trees.

For the last hundred years or more, nder the influence of the peculiar nethods of cultivation which have been mployed by our fruit growers, various liseases have appeared from time to time in several of our important fruits, and to such an extent have some of them developed within the last ten or fifteen years that they have completely destroyed the fruit industry in some sections, and now threaten a more general annihilation of one of the most enticing and profitable occupations for the farmer. For the last hundred years we have heard of the "blight" in pear trees, and the best records show unmistakably that the disease has been on the increase during that period. So badly is it developed in some fruit sections, as through Southern New York, that it is a matter of extreme difficulty to find a really healthy tree. For the last eighty years we have also heard of the "yellows" in peaches, and here again we find that history records a constant development of the affliction. So serious have its ravages proved that whole sections have been deprived of the very important industry of peach culture. Not only this, but the disease is now so thoroughly established, and has come to be so much a matter of inheritance, that the life of the tree is greatly modified and even determined by it. The peach is naturally a long-lived tree, instances brought to my notice showing that it may live upward of one hundred or more years, and, if well cared for, it will certainly produce fruit for a long period. At the present time, however, as in the great peach districts of Delaware and New Jersey, we find that, owing to the certainty of disease appearing, or the inherently weak constitution resulting from its previous operation, the period of a profitable life is limited to nine years, at the end of which time the trees are rooted out of the soil as worthless .- D. P. PENHALLOW, in Popular Science Monthly for July.

Our city hotels are being kept up in good shape as visitors testify. The following is from the Kalamazoo Telegraph in regard to the experience of one of their leading citizens while here: Mr. L. L. Clark who very recently spent several weeks at the St. James hotel, Ann Arbor, speaks in the highest terms of praise of his treatment by Mr. J. L. Stone, the proprietor, and Mr. Cutler, the clerk, who he says paid him, a stranger, every possible attention. He warmly recommends the house to his friends.

Lorenzo Davis reports $38.85 bounty paid in May for 259 woodchuck scalps at fifteen cents per scalp. Of this number B. F. VanSlyke, Foster's Station, brought the largest lot, 40, and Wm. Harrison the next largest, 32. $66 is the amount paid for the June returns of 440 scalps, Wm. Warren bringing 52 scalps, the largest number, and Nelson Garlinghouse being next with 47 scalps. For May and June 1883, when ten cents per scalp was paid, 415 scalps only were brought in; this year during these months 699 were reported, the gain being 284 scalps, therefore. MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. Hood's Sarsaffaril-LA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend Hood's Sarsaffarilla with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours, REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances.

E. G. Love, Ph.D."

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure.
"H. A. Mort, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious sub-stance." HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology." "I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which a composed are pure and wholesome.

S. Dana Hayes, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world. Note-The above Diagram illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by

Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts. * While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength are to be avoided as dangerous.

third of a century. Alvin Grim, of Vale, Iowa, writes: ATHLOPHOROS has helped me much. The anin in my limbs is all gone, but some lameses is left yet, and well there might be, or I have been troubled for thirty-five areas with Rheumatism."

Mrs. A. B. Baker, of Chicago, Had rheumatic pains in her back for fifteen years, and Mr. Baker had been the victim of Rheu-matism until his head was drawn down over his left shoulder. Mr. Baker writes:

"Half a bottle of Athlophorospiade 6

"Half a bottle of ATHLOPHOROSTHADE of me as good as new. My wife has taken of the other half, and has not complained of the back since. She says her back never was so free from pain and ache as it has been since she has taken the ATHLOPHOROS." There are many people who think that because they have suffered so long, and have tried so many medicines in vain, they must "suffer on their three score years. But you see what ATHLOPHOROS has done.

However Severe your Pains; However Great your Disappointments, Try Athlophoros
