President Angell smiles benignly at the thought of being a grandfather. His son Alexis of Detroit has a young heir.

On his way to a quarter-past eight lecture, a freshman recently wore the tassel off his mortar-board.—Chronicle.

C. H. Cline '86 law, will enter the five mile race for the championship of Michigan at the Princess rink, Detroit this week.

One of the questions that the senior medics will be asked in their class history reads "are you in favor of coeducation in medicine?"

W. F. Word, formerly of '84, has returned from his home in Montana, and will complete his college course with this year's class.

President Phillips, of the senior class, has been empowered to appoint the committee on class pictures and all other class matters.

The joint committee for the University from the Legislature will be in town to-day, looking over the campus and considering its needs and necessities.

Miss Buck, of the freshman medical class, has returned to college work. It will be remembered that she was called home by the sudden death of her brother.

There are 12 U. M. graduates in Los Angeles, Cal., seven in law, one teaching, one farming, one raising stock, one in U. S. mail service, one in charge of U. S. observatory.

It was amusing to see how it effected the dean of the medical department when he discovered he had forgotten his notes. He feared he could not lecture at all, but "the boys" say he lectured better than ever.

S. A. Moran is to commence a new class in stenography with the beginning of the new semester. The progress made by the former class has been excellent. The system taught seems to be acquired more readily than many others extant.

The senior class held a meeting Saturday and decided that the time honored senior reception should be held again this year, but did not fix upon date or place. It was further decided that the number to be admitted should be limited to those receiving invitations.

J. Willis Parker, lit '75, from whom an interesting letter will be found upon the first page, has secured for himself a lucrative law practice at Olathe, Kansas, and came within eight votes of being chosen prosecuting attorney of Johnson county last fall. He has one heir, who will not care to inherit his law library.

The graduates and undergraduates of the U. of M. residing at Manistee have organized themselves into a society known as the "University of Michigan society of Manistee." The object of it is to increase the University sentiment in and around Manistee, and also to continue the work of education begun in college. The plan of work to be followed is modeled after the seminary system. This is the first thing of the kind in the state, and affords a good example for other cities to follow.

The new Chronicle editors elected last Saturday at a meeting of the junior class are: Representing the Delta Kappa Epsilon—J. E. Burehard; Beta Theta Pi—J. C. Shattuck; Independents—D. D. Atkins, and O. B. Taylor. The editors retiring are Managing Editor Geo. B. Sheehey; E. E. Powell, various topics; T. C. Phillips, general literature; Dwight Goss, things chronicled. And in parting with them the Chronicle readers bid good bye to as fine a lot of young gentlemen as ever wielded the pen for their delectation.

The proposition to erect the chemical laboratory at the agricultural college instead of at the university meets with a good deal of opposition among the Ann Arbor students.—Detroit Sunday Post.

If the chemical laboratory is to be taken from the university it will indeed be a misfortune that the Ann Arbor students, and probably many others throughout the state will bitterly oppose. It will be had enough for the agricultural college to take the mechanical laboratory from the university, which her authorities have worked so hard to establish. It is a piece of rank injustice to take that away from the university.

The authorities of the Wisconsin University have decided to replace Science Hall, recently burned, by a somewhat smaller building for the general scientific department, to cost $150,000, and to construct a separate building for the chemical laboratory and machine shop, with wings for the foundry, carpenter shop and blacksmith shop, at a cost of $28,000. The heating apparatus for these two buildings will cost $25,000 and the equipments $90,000, making $283,000. In addition to this the legislature will be asked for $45,000 for a gymnasium and arsenal. Our Badger state university seems to have a check sublime toward the legislature. Its Wolverine neighbor dare not even suggest a petty $23,000.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Rugby association and students generally was held Saturday evening, which from the amount of enthusiasm displayed proved the gymnasium question one of great interest to them. It was the unanimous opinion of those present that vigorous measures on the part of the students should be pushed forward, and the time hastened when their long needed want would be supplied. The sense of the meeting was to the effect that a committee of students should be appointed to wait upon and confer with the legislative committee on the university, and the following students were appointed as such: E. A. Rosenthal, Chas. S. Ashley, Thos. S. Jerome, B. W. Shoemaker, F. W. M. Cutcheon, C. C. Corbett, J. B. Denny, and T. C. Phillips. The students have taken hold of the gymnasium with a firm grip this time, and deserve success. In the meantime it would not be out of place for some of our influential citizens to take hold of the wheel with them and help the boys turn it on to the main track of success.

The concert at university hall last Thursday evening, was successful, the hall being well filled. Joseph is immense in his forte—plano forte. He picked the tinkling pearl drops of melody out of the instrument (a poor one) with exquisite grace, while the louder strains welled out in beautiful cadences to his slightest touch of the ivory keys. But we must confess that to our ears the sound of a fiddle—excuse the inelegance, violin—in expert hands, is more to be admired than a piano. And that other instrument, fashioned by divine hands, the human voice, (when not too cultured) excels either. The appreciation of classical music and melody is similar in one respect, both require cultivation before you like them, and our taste has been sadly neglected. Consequently one stanza of "Way down on the Swance Ribber," or "Home, Sweet Home," would have relieved the monotony of the classics—guessed that's right—and the softness of the seat cushions to a wonderful degree, had it been introduced in the programme. Mrs. Haviland has an excellent voice, well cultured and under perfect control, and her effort was deserving of much praise. The Amphion Club rendered two selections faultless, as near as we could judge, and earned the applause given them there.

The third regular meeting of the Philological Society for the present year was held on Wednesday evening. Prof. Wm. H. Payne presented a paper upon the Science of the Educational Values of Studies. Mr. D. J. Hoff read an essay, prepared by Miss Mary S. Case, of Wellesley College, upon the Philosophical Principle underlying the Kindergarten. A good audience was present and the programme was probably the most instructive and profitable ever furnished in the history of the society. Prof. Payne's paper was in an exceedingly interesting field of research. He outlined the history and character of the various attempts to establish a science of educational values, more particularly by Plato and Bacon, by Whewell and Spencer. He next gave his analysis of the subject and developed and defended his own canon of criticism. He then returned to consider the merits and defects of former efforts in this direction, and especially to criticize the dictum of Mr. Spencer. Prof. Payne's long experience as a practical teacher served him well in this part of his paper, and supplied him with a large store of witty and apt illustration, which was highly entertaining and suggestive, and which was thoroughly appreciated by his audience. The author called his treatment of his theme a tentative one, but it was marked for its careful and discriminating thought. Prof. Payne's conclusions provoked a lively discussion, which was participated in by Supt. Perry, Dr. Dewey, Prof. Weed, Mr. Wines, and Mr. Lowrey. The paper from Miss Case was a consideration of the philosophic principle that actuated the educational doctrine and practice of Froebel. Had the essay been especially prepared for the occasion, it could not have been more apt and more consequential to the preceding paper and to the discussion upon it. Miss Case sought to present the supreme object of all education, and by so doing she established the standard by which to determine the value of studies. The essay was well written and the many friends of Miss Case in Ann Arbor thank her for this profitable and entertaining method of showing that amid new duties she has not forgotten us.

Amusements.
At the urgent request of a large number of students the manager of the opera house has secured for one evening's entertainment, the Thompson Opera company, in the great and popular comic opera of the Beggar Student. This is the first time this opera has ever been put upon the boards in Ann Arbor, and the efforts of the management in securing the same ought to be greeted with a liberal patronage. It is only once in a lifetime that you will be privileged to see this entertainment, don't, under any consideration, miss it this time. At the grand opera house, Thursday evening, Feb. 12th.

Probably the biggest card, or one of the biggest, brought out in this city this winter in the way of an entertainment, will be the Thompson Opera company in the Beggar Student, one of the prettiest and most popular comic operas ever put upon the boards. Everywhere this company has produced it they have been met with overflowing houses. At the grand opera house, Thursday evening, Feb. 12th.

The Hearts of Oak company and the Crimes of London company each slipped the Ann Arbor cog some way, and did not appear here as advertised.

The Ann Arbor Turn Verein society announce their grand annual masquerade ball for Friday evening, Feb. 13th, at Hangsterfer's hall. Friday morning Mrs. Wenzel, of Detroit, will arrive with a large line of fancy and comic masquerade outfits at reasonable prices for the evening. The committee of arrangements consists of Wm. Herz, C. Gauss, Jno. Weiss, Geo. Kuebler, Jno. Fisher. Committee on invitations, Geo. Kuebler, Jno. Weiss, Jno. Fisher. Floor committee, Geo. Kuebler and Jno. Weiss. The tickets will be sold for 50 cents if bought in advance, and 75 cents at the door. This annual ball has always been a great success, and we have every reason to believe, from the wide-awake character of those having it in charge, that the coming event will be even more successful than ever before.

Remember the concert to be given by the Choral Union, Feb. 25th.

The Beggar Student is probably the best comic opera ever written.

The Ann Arbor Choral Union are to present the beautiful cantatas: "The Dream," by Costa; and "Rebekah," by Barnaby, on the evening of Feb. 25th. There will be a full orchestra accompaniment by the Chequequameg band.

RINK ITEMS.
The masquerade carnival at the rink Friday evening last was a merry occasion, in fact one of the grandest ever held there. At 9:30 the contestants for prizes were called, and the following found to be the lucky ones: Class 1, a season ticket each to Miss Belle Lewis and Jas. A. Robinson, for the most elegant costumes; class 2, a pair of club skates each to Miss Billingham and H. G. Wiley for the most comical costumes; class 3, pair of club skates to Claude Giendeman for the best representation of a dramatic character—Hamlet; class 4, 50 admission tickets to Miss Florence Beahm for wearing the best comical costume; class 5, 25 admission tickets each to lady and gent who acted out character assumed the best, won by Miss Carrie Winans as Topsy, and Jas. Harkins as Dutch comedian. John M. Cook in his "dude act" won much applause.

Monday night the Girard & Vokes troupe did the most wonderful feats ever seen here.
