Friends of The Courier, who have business at the Probate Court, will please request Judge Harman to send their printing to this office.

LOCAL.

Saturday was a busy business day for Ann Arbor.

The inspection of Ann Arbor's G. A. R.

post occurs Friday evening.

Thos. F. Leonard is building new fences and slipping up his premises on Ann street.

Those who attended Bob Ingersoll's lecture last evening found out his idea of blasphemy.

Water works and anti-water works arguments (?) have been flung about in Memorial Day will be observed in this city by Welch post G. A. R., and the L.

D. Society of the 5th ward.

A meeting of the council was held last Thursday evening, to take action upon the druggists and liquor bonds.

The fire department is in need of new hose a fact which is demonstrated more and more at every fire we have.

Henry Binder is making thorough repairs in his store building on Main st., which Adolph Hoffstetter is to occupy.

Rev. R. B. Pope gave his congregation a rich treat Sunday, in the way of telling them what he saw on his trip to New Orleans.

We learn that Patrick Wall, formerly of this place, and for many years supervisor of Northfield, will soon take up his residence in Lansing.

In talking by telephone the past week, we have caught bits of conversation from various other lines. The new board must be giving us an interlude.

The May social occurs at the M. E. church this evening. Tea will be served at 6 1/2 o'clock. The ladies will endeavor to make this unusually entertaining.

The Saline Observer placidly remarks:

"Ann Arbor people are talking of purchasing a new location for the county jail, fourth up town. It wouldn't be a bad idea."

J. M. Jeanneret, has leased the store in the St. James block formerly occupied by Sheverson's barber shop, and has opened therein a store for hair work and dress making.

Wednesday last, at the residence of O.

C. Sweetland, the ceremony was performed by which Mr. Lewis Sweetland, and Miss Katie Richter, both of Lodi, became man and wife.

"Look out for $20 counterfeit bills!"

says an exchange. Why, bless your heart, old boy! If we should find a $20 bill on where in our pocket we should know at once that the thing was counterfeit, of course.

Bel a two-cent stamp that — will be the next postmaster. Watch and see if this prediction fails.—Adrian Record.

Take the bet, and are glad to see the opportunity of denying the extravagant and excessive and inexcusable assertion made above! The next postmaster will be of course.

The Rutledge Publishing Co., of Easton, Penn., failed to send the book they agreed to send for the local notice we published for them some time since, and we are inclined to think them a fraud. We wrote them regarding the matter but have received no response to our communication.—Manchester Enterprise.

The firm has usually been prompt in responding, but our last "ad" has not been settled for as agreed.

The COURIER made another mistake last week, and what was very peculiar the same error appeared in the columns of nearly all our esteemed contemporaries, just as the previous ones have. It was C.

C. Warner and not C. C. Warren who purchased the lot on Ann st., and who is to build a new residence thereon.

A certain esteemed contemporary, which shall be nameless, wants to know why a certain member of the council doesn't express his opinion of things at the council meetings instead of in cold print? The answer, probably, is because said member isn't a blasted fool. Every man to his own calling. Blacksmiths are seldom good newspaper men; neither are good newspaper men orators.

Monday evening, an old gentleman named Mr. Guinan, went to the depot with his son, who was going west on the 8 o'clock train. For some reason he got upon the cars, and before he could get off the train got under considerable headway, and though warned not to attempt to jump off he did so, and was terribly cut and bruised thereby. Before being found he had wandered to the State street crossing of the road and was tawling upon his hands and knees in a dazed condition.

Great green lawns are indeed beautiful, but yards with an occasional bed of flowers scattered through them are still more attractive. Ann Arbor is noted, the state over, for the beauty of her streets, and the handsome lawns and yards. The beauty of many a great plot of green would be enhanced by the introduction of a flower bed or two. And now is the time to select these beds. Don't put it off any longer.

The delight with the existence of flowers, with their varied and beautiful flowers, and gay foliage always gives, will be well worth the trouble it costs. Sow seeds and plant bulbs and roots now, and the rich harvest will be ready to take the world together there is little enough of the beautiful that finds its way into let us take a little pains to enjoy them house of mother earth. Give us more flowers.

The 6th Ward will soon have a new engine.

The east end of W. Washington st.

looks verily like business.

The postoffice now keeps open half an hour longer evenings, to 8 p. m.

There is to be a flower festival at the Baptist church Friday evening.

Snow flakes with the rain, Sunday, sent a shiver through young gardens.

There are many complaints of sore throat throughout the city. Look out for an epidemic.

Sunday, May 3d, the first peal of thunder heard in these parts this spring rolled down upon us.

May Day was the usual one—cold, sour and disagreeable. We have seldom seen a really fine one.

The old pioneer clerk, William Fisher, is now on duty at the new dry goods store of Tuomey Bros.

The Ladies' Charitable Union meets

Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Jaycox, on S. State st.

The re-building of the De Vane store, on Huron st., is progressing finely, and will be a grand improvement.

The building occupied by Bliss & Bliss as a bowling alley on Main street, is being refitted for saloon purposes.

The foundation walls for John G.

Koch's new dwelling house, corner of Liberty and Fifth sts., are being laid.

Rev. Mr. Nichols, who is to occupy the pulpit of St. Andrew's church during July and August, is a professor in Yale college.

John Defoe made the matting and figures for the handsome pictures of the dent. class of '85, shown in Watts' store window.

That street scraper is doing good service on Washington st. Don't let up until all our streets are put in good condition again.

The church school given by Miss Clements and Miss Douglass at St. Andrew's parsonage last Friday night, was an enjoyable affair.

Civil engineers under Prof. J. B. Davis of Ann Arbor are in town establishing the building grade on Lafayette and Lake streets.—South Lyon Excelsior.

A package of sweet and beautiful trailing artubus was sent to Mrs. Wm. H.

Potter a few days since, by her daughter,

Mattie, who is visiting at Ludington.

Steve Webster, formerly of Ann Arbor, came out ahead in a suit at Detroit to recover goods seized by the sheriff, on which his wife had a chattel mortgage of over $4,000.

County Clerk Robison, after riding through the country considerably, tells us that wheat is in prime condition generally speaking, though there are a few pieces killed out somewhat.

At a meeting of the township board of Ann Arbor town, held Monday, John C.

Mead and Selden W. Shurtliff were appointed on the board of review to look over the assessment roll.

After a long five months of a hard winter and the frosts still lingering in the lap of spring, Martin Clark had the pleasure on the 3d of May, of gathering a meal of seagrass from his own garden.

Wm. B. Dowd, of New York city, the oldest son of Wm. Dowd, a former famous Ann Arborite, was married April 30th, at the Windsor hotel, New York city, to Miss Estelle Easton, of Philadelphia.

C. H. Sparks, representing the firm of P. J. Pauly & Bro., of St. Louis, was in town yesterday, showing the steel cells made and put in by that company. The jail committee will meet to-day to receive bids.

In the Wayne circuit court, George Vaudecar asks a divorce from his wife, Jennie Todd, to whom he was married in Ann Arbor last November. He claims to have been married by force, and that Jennie was a deceiver.

Many Ann Arbor people will learn of the death of Will J. Tuttle, formerly of Detroit, at his home in Detroit, on the 23d ult., with great regret. His father
