Was She Frivolus?

The Rev. Mr. Shaw contrasted greatly with his surroundings—his spotless cloth fitting so well his strong, manly figure; his clear cut, Grecian features, and dark, wavy hair, thrown back with careless grace from his smooth brow.

He was visiting one of those wretched tenement houses used by the very poor, and before him was a forlorn group.

A widow who had just burried her husband; she had five helpless children the eldest six, the youngest a nursling baby, and a pair of twins among them. The rags, and, worse than all, the dirt of poverty everywhere apparent. An expression of almost sublime pity some slight jar that marred the harmony of his thoughts. Mr. Shaw was the rector of one of the wealthy churches of the city, and Mabel Lee was one of the parishoners. Her face was Madonna-like in its tender curves and beauty, the large blue eyes with just a tinge of sadness, the perfect curve of the red lips, a faultless com-plexion, and blonde hair that was like a halo of light round the graceful head. But ah, when she talked it was like a damper, a mist on a beautiful picture, marring the tints that otherwise would have been perfect. Bright and witty, but a butterfly; such a devotee to society that one longed for the expression of a single serious thought that could leaven into something like common sense this personification of frivolity. With it all, however, she was lovely and lovable to every one, and Mr. Shaw had long struggled against an interest in her, the indulgence of which he felt would be fatal to his future happiness and usefulness.

Absorbed in these thoughts he found himself in front of Mr. Lee's house, and obeying an impulse, he turned into the gate and was admitted. As Miss Lee entered the parlor, he thought he had seldom seen a fairer vision, and was vexed to feel his heart throb more quickly, and thrill with a pleasure that he felt must be controlled. She greeted him with that easy grace which was one of her principal charms.

"Ah, Mr. Shaw! I am so glad to see you. I had a real spell of ennui this morning. This last novel is wretched, as both hero and heroine died in the most provoking way, all because of some over-strained idea of duty, and I was just wishing that some one would come in and could have a cheerful little chat to dispel the gloomy impression."

"Then I am afraid," smilingly, "you will not like your present visitor. I have not come in a very cheerful humor; and, besides, I wish to ask you a favor." "A favor! That is too lovely. sider it granted, even to the half of my kingdom. I am truly glad that you wish Everywhere that he went in his charity rounds, he could see and feel the influence of Miss Sanks's good acts. All that she did was marked by a practical good sense, and a depth of thought and feeling that he could not fail to admire. Still he chanced never to meet her. never to meet her.

One day, when entering the post-office, he saw in advance of him, the graceful figure of Mabel Lee. She was unaware of his presence, and, standing tely behind her, he felt as if he had received an electric shock, as she asked:

The Use of Sun Flowers. This plant is a vigorous grower and has been extolled as a preventive of malarial diseases. The seed affords excellent food for hens and also for horses. It is said that there is no kind of feed that will keep horses in health, give them a sleek appearance and make them lively and spirited like the seed of the sunflower, feeding half a pint night and morning. It is particularly recommended for giving a horse power of endurance, being fed half a pint night and morning with other feed. The stalks and heads after the seed is worked out, also make good material for fires, and are especially convenient in summer, when a quick fire is desired and an enduring heat is not wanted. In their growth they make a showy appearance about dwellings and give an agreeable fragrance to the air. The latest direction in the line of utilization of the sunflower is the planting of a seed in a place at the proper distances, so that the stalks as they grow will serve as bean-poles. We have seen them started n that way this season, and as they grow the leaves are removed, thus forming ar excellent stalk for the beans, but what has had more bands, off and on, since she was a village than any other place in the state. And the procedure in each case is the same, to-wit: A number of amateurs get band on the brain and organize. They pick up a lot of instruments and practice a while, when the cry is raised: "Why don't the city do something? It is a shame that Ypsilanti don't maintain a good band." The city not being in the band business, a subscription is started, and citizens are pressed to contribute. The band wants new instruhas had more bands, off and on, since contribute. The band wants new instru-ments. Nothing can be done with their old badly assorted horns. Finally new instruments are got. The band manages to raise uniforms, and make a brave show. All cause of outside complaint being removed insubordination begins within. Several want to be leaders. If occasion arises for a part of the band each wants to be chosen, and kicks if he is not. One grievance follows another, and in less than six months after the citizens have pooled in to fix out the band, or some liberal man has assumed the reresponsibility on fair promises, up goes the whole concern; the instruments are scattered or stole, and each individual is ooting his own bazoo about who was in the fault.

The band history of Ypsilanti, in detail, would be interesting, and we have in mind pretty clearly, the composition, and dissolution of the very first "Ypsilanti Band," which flourished forty-three ago, in all glory of key-bugles, clarionets, French horns, trombones, opheclide, and bass drum, and which burst up between here and Saline, on the question of playing for dancing. During two years he struggled against fate in managing the business of his parish, and finally, when the storm broke over his head, he was given a year's leave of absence by Bishop Borgess, and Wheat stacks in some portions of the county were badly soaked by the rains recently, many of which had to be taken the parish was placed in charge of Rev. Fr. Doman, who has since done much to straighten out the complications which resulted from Fr. Blyenbergh's troubles. The end of the year saw Fr. Blyenbergh a confirmed invalid, yet anxious as ever to work, and he was given charge of the Catholic parish at Dexter Two months ago he was forced to announce that but one service will be held on Sundays, and during the past month he had been confined to his bed. His funeral will take place from Trinity church, Detroit, the scenes of his labors, joys and greatest griefs, probably next Friday. Few men could boast of the extensive education of Father Bleyenbergh. Well educated in Europe, he acquired a thorough English education in this country, which was further supplemented by ex-tensive travels in Europe and the Holy Land. As a scientist he was a patient experimenter, and a great number of his acquaintances credit him with being the real inventor of the Vandepoele electric light. Certain it is, however, that he was given an interest in the company for his mprovements in the light. His greatest care was education, and much of his time before sickness and grief overcame him was devoted to his schools. Personally he was a very large hearted man, as many Sherman's Opinion of Grant. Gen Sherman having been asked why he and Sheridan always acknowledged the leadership of Grant, replied: "Be-cause, when I could map out a dozen plans for a campaign, every one of which Sheridan would swear he could fight out to victory, neither he nor I could tell which of the plans was the best one; but finances a little easier.—Saline Observer. tell us which was the best plan, and in a The fellow who gets tired of walking dozen words the reason for his decision, and borrows a team to take him on his and then it would be all so clear to us journey, helped himself to the horse and that he was right, that Sheridan and I and then it would be all so clear to us of Geo. I have seen Grant plan cam-paigns for 50,000 troops along a front line, 2,500 miles in length, and send them marching to their objective points, through sections where the surveyor's chain was never drawn, and where the commissariat necessities alone would have broken down any transportation system in Europe; and three months later I have seen those armies standing where he said they should be and what he planued accomplished; and I give it as my opinion that Gen. Grant is the greatest commander of modern times, and with him only three others can stand-Napoleon, Wellington and Moltke."

Exposure and Conviction.

The information contained in the report made by the hygienic authorities of the nation, on food adulteration, is not only valuable but suggestive. The people of this country are getting to a point where they will not much longer brook the trifling with adulterators. In this connec-tion we wish to say that we believe that the public will not forget the Price Baking Powder Company, for their effort, heroic and single handed as it was, to bring the bread tainters of the world to exposure and conviction. The issue of their war was purity in human diet, and the decision of the National Food Analysts was that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder was the only one they could recommend to general family use, being free from ammonia, lime and all drug taint.

From the landing place to the elevated plain, upon which the buildings and parade ground stand, it is a sharp rise of some 180 feet. Up there it is level and commands a lovely view up and down the river for miles. On this 160 acres are the barracks, officers' houses, parade ground, camping ground and the fortifications with their bristling cannon and their innocent looking little mortars. Nearest the point the plain was white with tents where the cadets encamp through the summer. Sentries tramp to and fro, officers are giving orders and squads are going through their drills. All the cadets are dressed in white except the poor firstyear men, who are called "plebs" or in the morning. Medical and surgical "beasts." They have the heavy grey uni-their first year, for they are "cussed" around and have to do the bidding of every upper classman. Usually at home they have had their own way; here they have not their own way one minute in four years. At home they were free and independent; here they are the servants of all and have to be meek enough to stand unmoved while being "jumped on." That is the term for hazing, and it means that when an upper-classman comes into the new cadet's tent or room the latter has to do all he is bidden. They will make them stand on the table and make a speech or tell a story, sing a song or whistle a tune. Sometimes they have to go through exercises until ready to drop with fatigue; assume all sorts of postures and stand all abuse. If they rebel they are "skinned," that is, marked with de-

The bane of his life is that whenever he walks he has to "fin out." This is to have the arms straight down, the palms to the front, the thumb pressed against the forefinger and the little finger just back of the seam in the pants. It is a difficult position to keep all day but it helps to throw the shoulders back. The way they spend the day in summer is something like this: At 5:30 a. m., reveille and roll call (5 minutes to dress); 5:45, sick-call; 6, breakfast, then drill and exercises until 7:45 when they get ready for morning inspection and parade. At 9 is the artillery drill and at 10:30 the swimming master takes them all to the water. They get back in time for a 1 o'clock dinner. After which the dancing master helps them to settle it for an hour or so. 4:30 comes manual drill and at 6:30 is dress parade followed by supper at 7. The tatoo sounds at 9:30 and all the lights must be out at 10. In the winter they study mathematics English, fencing, bayonet exercise, and practical instruction in the school of the soldier for the first year. It is about the same the next season with the addition of tactics of infantry, artillery and cavalry, which of course remains the chief study for the rest of their service. The 3d year they have a taste of natural philosophy and chemistry, and the last year is devoted to military and civil engineering, mineralogy and geology, law and literature, ordnance and gunnery. By the above program one can see that some time in his tent or room. However, this is usually all taken up in cleaning arms and clothing, or writing explanation and necessary camp equipage. Half-fare is announced on all railroads.

Such attention is paid to neatness that large part of the time is consumed in changing clothes and brushing up. For nstance, in this season of the year they wear white duck suits. As no speck or wrinkle must be visible it necesitates about ten suits per week. The same number of collars and cuffs is also required. This slicking up is called "spooning," and one who is very neat at West Point is a "spooney" fellow, rather than the one who "rushes" the girls, in modern parlance. It goes without saying that the boys at the Academy do not get much chance at the ladies. They are only happy when it rains, for then they do not have to drill.

Thus it is that the Government get picked men upon whose services it has a claim for eight years after graduation. Then too, the profession of arms offers to a man a sure support for life with a fixed salary and a retirement on half pay when old age takes him from active work. It makes these graduates officers in the reg-ular army and they are in the way of It costs the Government bout $1,500 per year for each cadet thus

STANDARD TIME.

On the 8th of next month standard time becomes the legal time of the state. Then the banks and all state institutions will be governed by it. This will gradually change the various time of the cities themselves until before long one can travel from Detroit to beyond the Mississippi, north or south, and have one time which will be railroad and town time, legal and standard time. That this cannot but be a great convenience is at once evident. Although, at first it may cause some confusion, when everyone gets his clock right and gets out of the old rut and used to the new he will not long notice the difference. All one has to do is to get up, eat and go to bed half an hour earlier by the new time, then it will be really the same as before. As long as one wants to get up in the morning a certain length of time after sunrise, what is the difference whether you call it halfpast six or seven o'clock. "A rose by

A Slick Robbery.

A few weeks ago a couple of strangers came to town and rented a portion of the old tannery owned by J. Heinzman in which to manufacture hoops. They quietly pursued their business for a time, occasionally borrowing Mr. Heinzman's wagon to go out in the country with.

Last Saturday they asked for the wagon again saying they wanted to get some stock Sunday, from a farmer. They were granted the request, and took the wagon.

During Saturday night some time they went to Mr. Heinzman's store house, took the centers out of all the rolls of leather

he had, leaving the outside hide tied up

It has been ascertained that the men were from Springwells formerly, and it is probable that they belong to a regular gang of thieves. At any rate they did a slick job, and one that novices could not have put up. The value of the goods stolen is from $300 to $400.

The contract made by the city of Ann Arbor with the Ann Arbor Water Co., provides that the rates to private consumers shall be the same as charged by water companies in other cities similarly situated. What construction is to be placed upon the words "similarly situated," is perhaps a little indefinite, but cause they fail in some particular thing of course the company will construe it in a reasonable way, as it will be for their interest to do so, if they intend to continue supplying water to the inhabitants

That the people may have some idea of charges made in other places, we have taken some pains to secure the printed rates from a few cities in the state, and will give them to the public, together with the rates for this city, as they have been given out by the Ann Arbor Water Com-slight attack of indigestion over the T., A. A. & N. M. R. R., we should judge by the following quotations:

The Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad folks are telling if they run to Durand that they have agreed with the Grand Trunk to run only ilmited or dead trains between Durand and Owosso. That is, take neither freight nor passengers from those towns. How do you like that, Vernon, Corunna, and Owosso?

And this of the same issue: The Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad company

The Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad company has announced that it is about to abandon the direct line north from Ann Arbor to Owosso, and by so doing fail to keep agreements made with original stockholders at Toledo, Ann Arbor and Owosso. Some of the said indignant stockholders as well as citizens of those cities are about to withdraw their support from the so-called Toledo & Ann Arbor road and take up with a new scheme proposed to them by a wealthy railroad company which is now using the T. & A. to get from Michigan to Toledo. The plan is to build a road direct either from Ann Arbor or Dexter, to Owosso via Howell and Bancroft, providing the bonuses already raised will be turned over to the new company. Many of the subscribers will give additional subscription and bonuses. A large number of business men and farmers along the line are already at work, and the plan will soon come to light. Fear of discovery, when she resorts to false hair and dyes, is a source of constant anxiety to her. Any one who is familar at all with poultry knows public and legislatures, and shows how that during the fall all hens undergo th society is dependent upon them for se- process of molting, or shedding of the feathers. This requires usually about three months, or 100 days. As there are only 365 days in a year, we have 265 days left after deducting the molting period If a hens lay regular an egg every other day, she will lay 133 eggs; but she will probably lose three months in hatching out her broods, and even if she is no sitter she will take a resting period. As molting is a heavy drain on the system but few hens laying during that pr though there are exceptions, and where the number of eggs exceed one every two days it will be found that a correspond-ing reduction occurs during some period of the year. While we admit that cer-tain individual hens have been known to lay as many as 150 or even 175 eggs in a year, such cases are rare; and if one has a flock of 20 hens, or more, he should be satisfied if there is an average of 100 eggs dozen. Four dozen out of the nine should
