How Partridges Drum.

The article in your last week's issue, copied from St. Nicholas, endeavoring to explain how partridges produce the peculiar sound called "druming," must have been written by some one wholly unac-quainted with the habits of those beauti-

I have resided for many years in Cen-ral Pennsylvania, among the detached tridges are so plentiful as to enter or chards, and grain fields in flocks; and where the sound of the "drumming birds can be heard at any time in the woods; thus presenting excellent opportunities for acquiring an accurate knowledge both of the bird and of its peculiarities, and the following which is the result of my observations, can be relied upon for its authenticity, and will find many endorsers by reputable residents of localities where these birds are abundant. Partridge, or ruffed grouse (they are called pheasants in Pennsylvania), are gregarious to a certain extent, and the sound called "drumming" never occurs when two or more birds are together; but as soon as the male bird gets separated from its companions, he singles out a smooth log, mounts it with his head lengthwise with the log, and gives it a vigorous flapping with his wings, at the his strokes are very slow, gradually quickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained to be a seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained than in dry and warm seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained to be a seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained to be a seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained to be a seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained to be a seaquickening until it resembles the rolling is obtained to be a seaquickening until i jumps off and walks slowly to a bush near by, where he picks his feathers or scratches the ground, until suddenly remembering his log beating exercise, he starts for the log on a smart run, accelerating his speed with his wings; mounting it, he cautiously looks around for a moment, draws his wings to their full

One of the difficulties in growing wool in far southern latitudes is that the qualty of the wool deteriorates. Where the climate is not cold enough to make the wool a necessity of protection of the sheep, nature, always considerate, is less careful to maintain its quality. It soon degenerates into a kind of hair and soon loses its value as wool. For this reason orthern sheep-growers will always have an advantage over those farther south.

THAT FAMOUS "LECTURE."

Rush to the Defense of Its Deliv erer-A Few Points Made and a Few Answered.

EDITOR: We, the undersigned members of the senior class, who listened to Prof. Maclean's lecture of Monday, April 11th, to which frequent reference has been made in your paper, would respectfully ask you to correct some of the misstatements [The Courier has made no misstatements] that have been made concerning the substance of his remarks, especially would we call your attention to the following paragraph which we copy from your paper of May 4, 1887. "The graduates of the Michigan University medical department are the laughing stock of the medical profession." We were present at the lecture referred to and heard all that Prof. Maclean said upon that occasion, there was nothing in his lecture upon which your informant could base such statements as you attribute to him in the above paragraph. We would also say that there was nothing in Professor Maclean's remarks, but what the students consider to be true, [People do get queer ideas sometimes] and have been for years well known facts to the students and profession at large. [Astonishing that the students still come be more to the credit of the University and to his own credit, than it is at present? It is a dirty bird that fouls its own nest]. Further, we would suggest that men who have been engaged in medical study and teaching, are better judges of the methods of elevating the standard of medical education [a man may be a good surgeon and a perfect novice in other things, you know] than those who have had no cratic sheets as the Chicago Times. And yet there are some union soldiers in this in what? cutting a college in two?] and we think that the opinion of Prof. Maclean, who has devoted the greater part of his life to medical study and teaching, and who has given fifteen of his best years to the work of building up the medical department of the University, [Indeed, the medical department was quite famous before he came from Canada, and others think that Profs. We have yet to meet the medical man who is a friend to the University, who does not deplore this defect in the medical department and wish some means could be devised for remedying it. [If this is such a great defect, how is it that graduates of this department always stand at the head of the profession wherever they go? Please tell us?] There is not, we believe, a member of the faculty who does not appreciate this, and it is a well known fact that our venerable and highly respected dean, Prof. Palmer, with Prof. Ford, entered into an arrangement some years ago with the Detroit College and were only prevented from carrying it into effect by the objection [based on its impracticability] on the part of the Re- | sold to Wm. local jealousy," perhaps?] and not by the pleen of a few individuals.

There is another point of which we think we are at least as good judges as yourself, and that is that the University did not make Prof. Maclean what he is, as you assert; [Oh! certainly, no! didn't Maclean make the University and every thing that in it is?] but on the contrary his ability and skill has helped to maintain this department. [Yes, people frequently get the big head]. The University owes its reputation to the men of talent and ability who are in its various faculties. [Perhaps some quite as able men laid the foundation before these men came here]. A man destitute of ability, derives no benefit from any connection with the University, [the Regents are perhaps "influenced by local jealousy" when they decline to hire such men], but only makes his ignorance and inefficiency the more promnent, and if ever the University authorities shall be guided by the conceit that it is strong enough to bolster up men of inferior capacity [Don't you waste any sleep over that proposition; why, even some its departments, it will speedily destroy that reputation which IT has acquired up. [This opinion couldn't have been influenced by the fact that Dr. Maclean's exuminations are soon due?]

Since we feel constrained as students of the department to thus appear in public print [you made a mistake, boys] to refute a SLANDER against one of our most esteemed teachers, we will go a little farther and express our firm convictions as students and friends of this department, here then]. These facts constitute the that all those who have its welfare at heart will, if they are wise, speedily set themselves at work to supply these defects in clinical advantages that are so unmistakably tending to its decline. [That's right. A worthy object, providing wise plans are adopted].

We subscribe ourselves respectfully yours in the interest of truth, justice and the medical department of the University. [In which we are ready to cordially

The following is a cendensation of the bill introduced by Representative Bates,

THE TAX FEATURE. 1. An increase of the tax to $800 per year for all wholesale dealers, and to $5 0 per year for all wholesale dealers, and to $5 the sort of year; but in no case less than half of the annual tax.

4. Half the proceeds of the tax shall go to the county and half to the city, village or township from which it was collected.

5. The penalty for non-payment of the tax shall be a fine of $200 and (not or) imprisonment for 10 to 90 days, with the condition that if the tax is not paid at the end of the term of imprisonment, the imprisonment shall continue until it is paid, but not to exceed 91 days.

REGULATION.

1. No liquor shall be sold to minors or intoxicated persons, or to persons in the habit of getting intoxicated, or to persons whose husband, wife, parent, child, guarqian or employer, or the supervisor of the city or township, or the superintendent of the poor, shall foroid such seiling.

2. No apparatus for any games—billiards, pool, cards, dice, etc.,—shall be kept in the room where liquor is sold, or in any adjoining room communicating by hallway, and it shall not be lawful to play such games in any such room.

shail not be lawful to play such games in any such room.

3. There shall be no concert or entertainment of any kind in the room or in any room adjoining or connected by hallway.

4. No saloon, bar, tavern or restaurant, or other place where liquor is sold, shall be opened on Sunday, election day, legal holiday; or on any night from 9 p. m. to 7a. m. This provision covers back doors, side doors, and all entrances whatsover.

5. The place of sale must be in the front room, on the first floor, and the view from the sidewalk must be unobstructed by any forfeiture of the tax pa d as a penalty for any offense against the regulations, and the deprivation of the privilege of doing business for a year; in addition to penalties of fine and imprisonment at every turn.

7. Bonds must be given with two sureties, who must make affidavit that they are no way interested in the sale of liquor, and who cannot be on more than one bond, or hold any elective or appointive office in any county, city, village or township of this state.

On Friday last, the lower house of the worthy.' egislature passed by a vote of 60 to 13, a very important measure, and one which if passed by the senate and approved by the governor, will put the enforcement of the law in the hands of a state constabulary, and practically take all responsibility out of the hands of local officials. The law is copied somewhat after the U. marshal, at a salary of $1,200, with power to appoint a force of deputy state marliquor law, and are paid by the counties. The practical effect of the law is to take them to the state constabulary. The design of the act is to compel a rigid exe cution of the liquor laws in Detroit and ilish article that appeared under flaring headlines in the Chicago Times of the date mentioned. It says:

"Thank God! the claim agents, the demagogues, the dead-beats and pordioseros and deserters and coffee-coolers and hounty-jumpers, composing, our great bounty-jumpers composing our great army of volunteer mendicants have been "But the maintenance of the President's righteous veto of the pauper pension in quity is not the end of the war upon th national treasury which has been prose cuted by that army of insatiable cormo rants ever since the war upon the nation closed. The President ordered a half and the order has been sustained, but the army of comorants and claim agents and bounty jumpers and professional mendicants only have been checked, not conquered. In fact it is their first repulse since the crusade of the noble army of pension beggars began. Their leaders, the claim agents and the party demagogues, will endeavor to rally their blood-sucking host and renew the war of mendicancy against industry. It is necessary therefore, to follow up the ad-vantage that has been gained, and give the hostile horde of thieves and beggars no rest until they shall have abandoned their villianous undertaking to depend on the government for support and gone to work to support both themselves and the

"The Times repeats, therefore, now that the veto of the pauper pension steal has been sustained, everything that it uttered when there seemed to be great danger that congressional representatives of the claim agents and bounty-jumpers would override it. Not merely that most scandalous measure that has ever been sent to a president for his signature is the object that invites continued and uncom-promising condemnation, but the prin-ciple which it was sought in that in iquitous measure to apply, the theory and doctrine upon which it was pro-jected, and the whole vicious fabric of sophistry, cant, hypocrisy and humbug that patriotic rascality raised for its support.

"It is a postulate of claim agent that the grand army of pension beggars 'saved the country,' etc. That postulate is ab-solutely false. No country, no nation, political constitution, system or estab-lishment has ever been saved by, or been able to depend for its salvation upon citizens that are not in the habit of depending on themselves or that would not indignantly spurn the idea of being or becoming either dependents or benefi-ciaries of government. Nay, the truth is broader than this. Not in all the history of the world can a political society found that becoming permeated with the idea that government is an establishment for the support of citizens instead of an agency for the execution of justice among them, did not speedily perish. No! this republic has not been saved by an army of pension beggars, nor has any pension beggar, nor any advocate or apologist of pension beggary the least basis of a claim to be enrolled among its saviors. On the contrary pension beg-gars, pension beggary and the notions of government that they imply are more dangerous enemies of the nation than un-

"A southern writer who stood among the unpensioned rebels has objected in a tone of great bitterness to this crusade of the pension beggars on the ground of alleged injustice to the citizens who fought on the wrong side: 'There is nothing left of the war,' he says, 'except the annual tax [that is] wrested from the impoverished south to pay penle dealers, and to $5 0 per year alers, regardless of the sort of sions to the soldier of the rich and prosell. "The ex-rebel soldiers,' continued the Times, are toiling day by day and ex-hibiting industry energy and thrift that never were expected of them. Why is Simply because the ex-rebel sol dier has not been enticed, tempted and encouraged by pension bills, designed by demagogues to buy his vote, to become a professional mendicant. On the other hand, the ex-soldier of the north, instead of thriving by independence on his own energies and industry, is in the almshouse, according to Mr. Warner, or, according to other claim agent statesmen, will soon be there unless papa govern ment grants him a pauper pension. Why is this? It is because papa government has indoctrinated him with the pestilent notion that it is becoming to a savior of his country to fulfill the character of a dependent on its bounty of a mendicant of a loafer, of a pauper without character or self-respect who has gained the blessed right to 'lay down and open his mouth

"Which of these citizens-the ex-rebel soldier who is supporting himself and at the same time contributing to the support of the government by depending on his own industry and energy, or the ex-sa vior of his country who is lying at the door of a poor house (unless the bidder of his vote lies) opening his mouth and velling for a teat to suck-is the worthier nember and more capable supporter and defender of the commonwealth? The Times says without hesitation: The exrebel, the man who is supporting the government as well as himself by his industry, energy and thrift, is incomparabetter citizen and stronger pillar of the state than the ex-savior of his country who is begging the governmen to put a premium on pauperism and improvidence by giving him support from the earnings of the more industrious and

August 1st. UNIVERSITY ITEMS.

The next chamber concert will be given une 4th, in Hobart Guild hall.

The seniors and juniors of the Beta Theta Pi were too much for the underclass men at base ball last Saturday. The lits and medics will struggle over a game of Rugby on the campus Saturday. There may be considerable clinical material after that date.

The university semi-centennial is engaging the attention of the university uthorities, and everything possible will be done to make it a great success.

Filibert Roth, who has been appointed to take care of the museum and its collecions, is not a taxidermist, but will have charge of the building until Prof. Steere eturns from his trip to the Philippine

The executive committee of Hobart Guild have so far reconsidered the rule in regard to dancing that hereafter, while no regular dances will be allowed, dancing will be allowed if desired by those attending the Guild socials.

The engineering society of the universiy have elected the following officers: A. E. Whittaker, '88, president; F. M. Crocker, '89, vice-president; W. A. Livingstone, '88, secretary and treasurer; P. A. Rich-

The visiting committee appointed by the governor to look over the university, consisting of Senator Stockbridge, of Kalamazoo; Hon. Geo. B. Brooks, of East Saginaw; and Hon. Wm. A. Moore, of Detroit, were at the university yesterday nspecting its various departments.

Secretary Wade would consider it a great favor if students and others pedestrianizing about the campus would not wade over the grass making hideous lookng foot-paths all over the short-clipped lawns. A very reasonable request and one that ought to be complied with. Plans for the addition to the engineering or mechanical laboratory are comses the bill work will be commenced. The sum of $16,000 is proposed for this building and its equipment. The plan is the same as published in the Courier er than on official business loses his official July, and when completed the buildlast July, and when completed the building will be quite as attractive as any on

The two leading societies of the law department had a joint contest in University Hall, Saturday evening Each had an essayist, a declaimer, a debater and an ortor. Prof. Henry Wade Rogers presided and the Chequamegons furnished the music. The audience was impartial and ap-plauded the excellent efforts of all with equal force. It was a program of no in-Considerable merit.

The university base ball club played a great game last Saturday p. m. on the campus with the Athlerican program of no incampus, with the Athletics of Detroit. It was probably one of the sharpest games ever witnessed on the grounds, and result-ed in a score of 3 to 4 in favor of the U. of M. boys. One peculiar feature was the fact that the catchers of both nines are brothers, named Miller, and each tried his very best to win.

Saturday morning last the Students Lecture Association held its annual round up, and election. The officers chosen were: C. A. Reed, president; C.V. Nafe, vice president; M. Rosenthal, corresponding secretary; H. B. Bracewell, recording secretary; Edward Boyle, treasurer; W. W. Parfet, assistant treasurer. The receipts from the season's lectures were $1, 519.50; expenses, $1,511.15; leaving profits of only $8 35.

The dental department gathers in its attendants from all over the world. A new student from England has just arrived, which makes three gentlemen and and one from the United States of Columbia, South America, while the states of the Union are nearly all represented even to California. The department is crowded to its utmost capacity. The sessions of the Michigan Inter-Colegiate Prohibition Association were well attended, and some excellent speeches made. The following officers were cnospres., T. B. Read, Hillsdale; sec. A. E. Jennings, Ann Arbor. The following colleges were represented: Adrian, Albion, Normal School, Agricultural College, Hillsdale, Kalamazoo, Ypsilanti Business College, and the University of Michigan.

There was a good attendance. The freshman banquet at Hangsterfer's last Friday evening was a highly enjoyable affair. H. K. Seager delivered an excellent oration, having for a subject "The Ideal," Miss Faith Helmer gave the class prophecy in an entertaining manner, the ated as poetess, and the class president closed the literary feast. The feast of good things followed, after which Toast-Master Ramsay proposed the toasts of the evening: "Gentlemen of '90," response Miss Franc Arnold; "Class of by Miss F. N. Jayne; "Our Genius," E. Z. Miller; "Our Prospectus" E. F. Gay; "Ladies of '90," J. R. Angell. After the toasting

Regent Shearer, accompanied by Archiect Lloyd, of Deroit, were at the university Monday looking over the ground for the proposed new heating apparatus building to be erected near the east group of buildings. At present three boilers under and are in a dangerous location and condition, it is proposed to build a new building, similar to the one for the main build ngs, and have the chemical and engineering laboratories, the medical and denta colleges and eventually the president's house heated therefrom. For this purpose the appropriation bill as it passed the senate provides $15,000 and it is absolutely necessary to have it all completed and

Buffalo the Courier has this to say:

Over twelve hundred persons braved the bad weather to attend the entertainment of the Equine and Canine Paradox last night and enjoyed the remarkable feats of Prot Morris performing dogs and ponies. The street parade yesterday was a very attractive one and the show proved more so. Pony Romeo, the favorite, walked on two legs waltzed, posed as a statue, went to sleep and did many other clever tricks. A party of the dogs set the children in the audience wild by playing house, in full length dresses and "going visiting" in solemn family style Several wonderful feats of leaping were per formed by the dogs. One rode a pony and showed great skill on horseback. As a whole the performance surpassed anything of the kind ever shown here.

CAMP—On April 19th, 1887, Wil'ie Camp, aged 7 years, 7 months and 25 days. On April 20th, Nellie Camp, aged 9 years, It months and 27 days. On the day following Gracie Camp, aged 2 years and 16 days. These were all children of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison H. Camp, of Ann Arbor township, living a few miles northeast of the city, and the dread destroyer came to them in the shape of diphtheria The feeling of these parents no words can portray or pen describe. The lone-someness of the home in the absence of these bright, happy little ones, is an ex-perience that none but those who have uffered such an affliction can in the least comprehend. And then, too, for these dying children to be deprived of seeing playmates and friends whom the esired so much to see, was an additional ardship. It is related of little Nellie who was a member of the Sunday Schoo and had been taught by her mother to pray, that during her sickness she said to her mother: "Mama, I asked the Lord
