A CHILD'S SKIN
Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at time a great portion of the body, ever since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to his scalp which became covered with scabs and sores, and from which it sticky fluid poured out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scabs the skin was raw like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered in blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. Not a spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his sufferings. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I can not say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and wish all similarly afflicted to know that my statement is true and without exaggeration.
CHARLES MCKAY,
October 6, 1885. PEABODY, MASS.

I have seen Mr. McKay's boy when baddly affected with the Eczema. He was a pittiful sight to look at. I know that he has tried our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made you as regards the curing of his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particularly.
WILLIAM MCCARTHY,
33 Foster Street. Peabody, Mass.

I do not know of an instance in which the Cuticura Remedies have failed to produce satisfactory results. I believe I have sold more of them than of any other skin remedies I have ever handled during the thirty-three years of my experience as druggist,

A WORD ABOUT CATARRH.
"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammelling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple Cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviates are simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a fatal termination. SANDFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, has never failed; given when the disease has made frightful inroad in delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and tastes have been recovered, nad the disease thoroughly given out."
SANDFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions; price, $1.00

"A LAW AGIN IT."
BY MRS. ARCAIBALD.

"Our church has got a bran' new man,
The Baptis' preacher can't come near him,
And Sunday being bright and warm,
I thought I'd like to go and hear him;
But if I'd know'd 'twas fashion day,'
With women dressed like fancy picters,
To take my mind in sermon time,
I'd stayed at home and read the Scripters.

"I'm old and I'm old-fashioned, tbut
I notice quick what isn't decent,
And I say women act like geese
In aping after style that's recent.
They comb their hair straight up behind,
And put in arrers for to pin it,
And friz and bang it down in front;
There ought to be a law agin it.

"They buy the highest hats there is,
And make 'em higher yet with trimmin',
And feathers frizzlin' out, until
They look like Injunks more than women.
And bustles! land, I saw one girl
Who couldn't sit straight up a minute.
I say it's awful—and I say,
There ought to be a law agin it.

"'Twan't so when I was young—why then
The girls at church was worth a seein';
They didn't dress till folks forgot
To praise the author of their bein';
Our gowns was neat, with buttons up
And down, in modest rows, to trim 'em,
I mind Aunt Polly Jones declared
There ought to be a law agin 'em.

"But she was queer; I recollect
The bonnit that I got one summer
Had lace and roses on the side,
And so it liked to overcome h:r,
For when she saw that bunch o' lace,
With artificial posies in it,
She just rolled up her eyes and said:
There ought to be a law agin it.

PLANT LICE AND THE CODLING MOTH.

Perhaps no family of insects is more widely distributed, more generally destructive and better known than plant lice.

In our greenhouses, on window plants, and on almost all outdoor vegetation their harmful work is seen. Nor do they confine themselves to any single part of a plant. Some work on the roots and sap the vitality of the herb or tree; others draw their nourishment from the stems and twigs, and thus blight the plants; still others suck the vitality from bud and foliage. A few, possibly more than we are aware of, work on both roots and leaves. Most all of our cultivated vegetables, grains and trees have their characteristic plant louse enemies. Not only are these insects widely distributed, but when present in any considerable numbers they do great damage. Every lady who keeps house plants knows this full well.

As is well known plant lice on outside vegetation pass the winter as little dark oblong eggs usually fastened to the buds. With the warm days of spring these eggs hatch, and so rapidly do the lice increase that soon, by the middle or last of May, the lice are often counted by millions and billions. Sometimes they start off in great numbers in spring. I have seen apple trees in April when hardly a bud could be found that was not the home of lice, and I have counted as many as fifty lice on a single bud. Surely there is not much promise in such a bud.

Another feature which is very characteristic of plant lice, is their sudden disappearance. Our cherry trees may be black with them in May, and within a month the lice may be so used up that we can hardly find a specimen. The same is true of nearly all the species that infest our out-doors plant and trees. This welcome riddance is due to insect enemies of the lice. A syphus fly maggot with a pointed head just reveis amidst the plant lice. This maggot seems never satiated. It is hard to understand how so small an insect can take so large a meal. The maggots are constantly banqueting on the plump, juicy lice. The lady bird beetles, especially the larvae or grubs also do signal service in this same direction. Last year, owing to the excessive drouth, plant lice were very common and abundant. This gave the lady bird beetles a rich opportunity, and often we we might see thousands on a single tree. This sad feature in this case was that many people, through ignorance, thought these insects were the real culprits, and so destroyed them by the thousands. We have also found several species of the Ichneumon family of the genus Aphidius, very minute parasites, which destroy these lice by the thousands. Thus it is that plant lice on out-door vegetation, though they may threaten dire mischief early in the spring, are almost vanquished before summer comes. Occasionally a year like last year (1886), owing probably to the excessive drought, the plant lice thrive out of proportion, and succeed in spite of their enemies, when they do most serious injury. Owing to this scourge, many an orchard which promised bountifully in the spring of 1886 failed almost utterly to bear good fruit.

In some cases, as in the snow ball, the leaves roll up and protect the lice from their euger foes, and thus these beautiful shrubs are likely to suffer seriously each year, even if they are not wholly destroyed through the blighting presence of plant lice. Other plants, like the white willow, are likely to suffer seriously about one year in four.

REMEDIES.

I have found nothing so satisfactory in treating plant lice as the kerosene and soap mixture. To make this I use one-fourth pound of hard soap, preferably whale oil soap, and one quart of water. This is heated till the soap is desolved, when one pint of kerosene oil is added and the whole agitated till a permanent emulsion or mixture is formed. The agitation is easily secured by use of a force pump, pumping the liquid with force back into the vessel holding it. I then add water so that there shall be kerosene in the proportion of one to fifteen.

On snow ball we find that this mixture, in the proportion of one to eight, used just before the plant lice eggs hatch is astonishingly efficient. A twig not treated and one from the same bush that had been treated were each put into a glass bottle in a warm room. In a few days the one bottle was alive with the newly hatched lice, while in the other only one live louse was found. Bushes side by side, the one treated and the other not, give equally satisfactory results. This early treatment is absolutely necessary in such cases as the snow ball, and is to be recommended on the score of economy in case of nursery stock and fruit trees. It is easier and requires less of the liquid to thoroughly drench a leafless tree than one in full foliage. It is also less difficult to make the application very thorough, which is all important. We have just applied this liquid to orchard trees where the buds were literally covered with lice, and we find the lice totally used up. In counting two hundred, one live louse was found.

We are are very pleased to learn that this early treatment is so efficient. As just suggested, this liquid must be applied with energy. If used for the adult lice or for eggs or newly hatched lice and it is not effective, it is only because it is applied too gently. We must use a good force pump and dash the liquid onto the plants so it will scatter everywhere and reach every egg, even though these latter are crowded between the buds and the stem and reach every louse, even though they were sheltered by myriad leaves. Just here is where some will fail, they will sprinkle the liquid gently down and so not reach one-half the eggs or lice.

LONDON PURPLE OR PARIS GREEN FOR CODLIN MOTH.

In Bulletin 14, issued a year ago, I urged as I have for several years, the value of the arsenites in fighting the codling moth. I only wish to add at this time a few hints that I am sure will be of aid to any who contemplate making use of this excellent remedy. If all would practice it millions of dollars would be saved to our people.

1st. Use London purple or Paris green, and not white arsenic. London purple is cheap, mixes easily, and perhaps is a little less likely than Paris green to blight the foliage if used too freely.

2d. Apply early, just after the blossoms have fallen, when the apples are the size of a small peas. If we wait longer than this some of the insects will have entered the apples and be beyond reach of harm, and so we shall partially fail of success.

3d. Use a dilute mixture, not more than one pound of London purple or Paris green to two gallons of water. If I were to make any change at all it would be to make it more dilute, rather than stronger. If kept stirred, and it should always be while being used, we note that the liquid is evenly colored. This proves that poison is in every drop of water. I have proved repeatedly that the faintest traces of this poison is sure death to the wee insects. So it is not large doses, but thorough distribution that is needed. Not that there is not poison enough on each apple, but that many apples have received no poison at all. If as dilute as recommended above we may scatter so thoroughly as to reach nearly every fruit and yet not scald or blight the foliage. It stands to reason that in using poisons it is always best to use the minimum quantity necessary to success.

4th. Apply the poison with great force. The apples are concealed and protected by many leaves, and to insure contact of the poisonous liquid with the calyx end of each apple, it must be dashed on to the tree with great energy, then it will scatter and every apple will receive the fatal atom and every larva be killed. The neglect of this caution is why some have only saved 75 per cent. of the fruit. I have frequently saved every apple, and that with only one application, but this was in time, and absolutely thorough. Lastly, be sure that the mineral is well mixed. This is best done by grinding first fin a little water and then adding the full completement.

No one need fear to use this remedy. If the orchard is used for pasture, stock better be kept out for a few days. The poison should never be handled with the bare hands, nor should it be used when there is a wind to blow the spray or dust on to the person using it. But most important of all, be careful where the poison is left. No poison ought ever to be left unlabelled, and poisons ought always to be put where they cannot possibly do any harm. Carelessness in handling is the cause of nearly if not all the accidents which result from such poisons. I wish to thank C. P. Gillett, whose painstaking, conscientious and intelligent assitance has been of great value to me in these experiments.

LITERARY NOTES.

"The Discovery of Guiana," by Sir Walter Raleigh, and "Natural History of Selborne," by Rev. G. White, Vol. I., are the latest publications of Cassell's National Library.

The story of "John Noman's" life, by Charles Henry Beckett, to be issued soon by Cassell & Company, is the product of a virile imagination. The characters have been drawn with a firm hand, and the marked individuality which they possess and hold to the end, shows Mr. Beckett to be a literary workman of unusual power. The interest of the reader is enlisted from the very beginning, and it grows more absorbing as the perusal progresses, over the chain of incidents through which the plot is developed. The reader will hardly arrive at a full conception of the broader plan of the novel, until he has finished it. When he comes to a full realization of the bearing of John Noman's story upon the profoundest problems of human life, of man's coming and going, and of his buffeting with the fates. We are confident that Mr. Beckett's story will take its place among the notable works of fiction of the year.

Ticknor's Paper Series is a happy idea of the publishers, and will be very acceptable to all readers during the summer that is now so closely upon us. It includes a number of the most famous and successful of the novels of the past five years—books like Guenn, the Story of a Country Town, A Nameless Nobleman, and the Story of Margaret Kent, and others of equal value and merit; and with these come brillant new works, like DeMontauban's The Cruise of a Woman-Hater, and the vivid and fascinating Venetian novel, The House of the Musician, by Virginia W. Townsend. Such a group of novels as these titles indicate will be as refreshing as a seabreeze in summer. They are handsome and shapely volumes, bound in heavy-paper covers. The series for 1887 will include 13 volumes, appearing one each week during May, June and July. The retail price is 50 cents each volume, a remarkably low price for such handsomely-printed and made-up copyright books.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis Catarrh, Asthma, and all throat and lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

BOOK NOTICES.

HISTORY OF THE PACIFIC STATES: CENTRAL AMERICA. By H. H. Bancroft. Vol. III.

The latest volume of Mr. Bancroft's history series treats of Central American States from the time of their independence from Spanish rule in 1801 to the present day. The world knows little or nothing concerning this subject, and it is especially important. Unlike the history of Mexico, there is little that is either dramatic or romantic to record concerning the Central American history of the past eighty years.

Mr. Bancroft has not depended on the mere interest of narrative to carry the work, but he has made the book an important addition to the historical and commercial inspiration of the world.

The Central American States have begun to play a foremost part in the trade of the world. Coffee, fruit and other products are attracting the merchants of the Old World as well as the New. In the present volume the climate, commercial and natural resources and business advantages are carefully discussed by the historian.

Half a dozen chapters describe the independence secured by all the States, and their subsequent progress. The most interesting part of the succeeding portion is that which treats of Walker, the filibuster:

William Walker was born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1824, being of Scotch descent. After receiving a classical education he studied law, and later followed the medical profession for a time in Philadelphia. He then traveled in Europe one year, and on his return was connected with some of the important newspapers of the country, north, south and west. Tiring of that, he successfully practiced law in Marysville, California. In 1852 he visited Guaymas, and from the operations of Count Raousset conceived the plan of creating with adventurers from California independent republics in some of the sparsely populated territories of Mexico. Hence his expeditions to Sonora and Lower California, of which I gave full accounts in my volume on the northwestern states of Mexico. Few persons unacquainted with Walker would suspect the presence of so much ability and energy beneath his plain exterior. He was little more than five feet four inches in hight, with a rather dull and slow appearance. A man of few words, though an attentive listener, his aspect was that of a serious, thoughtful person. A remarkable feature of his face was a deep, intensely brilliant, blue-gray eye, large and intelligent. Sincere and devoted to his friends, says a devoted adherent, his enemies say he was not easily forgiven or appeased. He was indifferent to personal ease and comfort and to the acquisition of wealth. He was not incapable of lofty conceptions and possessed courage, abnegation, but there was little of what might be called genius about him, though his mind was sufficiently unbalanced in certain directions to give him a title to that distinction. He wished to be a great man, like Cæsar or Napoleon, but the elements of that quality of greatness were absent. He might have carved for himself a career of honor and usefulness but for the restless ambition that possessed him to obtain a place among the notabilities of the world, even by a disregard of law and justice. The idea of manifest destiny, so prevalent among his countrymen, which implied the conquest of the Latin race by the American the Anglo-Saxon afforded him, as he imagined, the coveted renown, and at the same time securing, through his instrumentality the future happiness of Spanish America. But, unfortunately for him, he committed a fatal mistake in inception of his career in Nicaragua acts which alienated from him the men who had invited him to co-operate in the consolidation of democratic principles, and some of his latter measures whatever may be thought of his earlier ones, savored of recklessness and disregard for the good opiniou of mankind.

Mr. Bancroft is merciless in his denunciation of Walker. It is a pity that he could not have allowed him a grain of charity.

William, the Norman, was only a species of filibuster, and he was far more cruel than Walker. However, he was successful and Walker was not.

Come to the bridal chamber, Death!
Come to the mother, when she feels
For the first time, her first-born's breath,
And thou art terrible!

The untimely death which annually carries off thousands of human beings in the prime of youth, is indeed terrible. The first approach of consumption is insidious, and the sufferer himself is the most unconscious of its approach. One of the most alarming symptoms of this dread disease is, in fact, the ineradicable hope, which lurks in the heart of the victim, preventing him from taking timely steps to arrest the malady. That it can be arrested in its earlier stages is beyond question, as there are hundreds of well-authenticated cases where Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has effected a complete cure.

Reconciled to the Boys.

She goes to school and she belongs to an educational family of prominence, who have lately moved from San Francisco for official convenience, so she had to go to a new school. The first day she found that, contrary to her experience, boys and girls were together in this school. That offended her, and when she went home she complained: "Mamma, that's not a good school. I don't think I'll like to go there." "Why?" "There are boys and girls all together there. It isn't pleasant." "Well, my dear, try it a little, any way." The next day she came home in better humor. "Do you like the new school any "Oh, yes, mother. The teacher has put the loveliest little boy next to me. He's a lovely little boy. I think I shall like the school." The third day she came home in the wildest of spirits, beaming all over: "Oh, mamma! I know all the boys in the school now!" This is one of those stories that good mothers like to read, so we are told, and have no reason to doubt it.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Those Railroad Passes.

The railroad managers have in our judgment made a mistake in discriminating in favor of the legislature in the matter of passes. In point of fact the inter-state commerce law did not require them to take up editorial passes or thousand mile tickets, but the railroads made that claim in taking up passes and thousand mile books, and having made it, should be held to it. It has now become generally known that they have not taken up the passes issued to members of the legislature and the people are getting a clear conviction that they are intended to be a bribe or to lay members under such personal obligations as will influence their vote upon measures affecting railroad interests. Therein the railroad men are short-sighted. If they knew the people better they would know that when the people come to understand the motive of the roads in this legislative pass business, it will inevitably create such indignation that if the present legislature fails to do its duty, the people will see that a legislature is elected in two years with special reference to railroad legislation, and that will do its full duty. But the wisest of men make mistakes, and the ordinarily astute railroad magnates take their turn of making fools of themselves.—Petoskey Record.

Astonishing Success.

No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all druggists and dealers, in the United States and Canada.

ALL ABOUT A BOND.

When the Court House was erected it was soon discovered that there was not sufficient support for the floors and they began to sag. The architect laid it to the builder having put in poor material and he charged it upon the architect for not providing enough supports in his plans. So between the two, responsibility could be charged upon neither one, and the county had to pay several thousand dollars to put in girders. The same blunder was made in the University Hall and in the Museum building, where the State had to stand the cost of repairs and strengthening. In the building of the Tappan school, important items, such as for grading, a heating apparatus, and water closets, were omitted, and the district had to stand the extras.

Now, in the proposed addition to the High School, Messrs. Smith, Jacobs, Mack, Bach and Beal, intend to look after the interests intrusted to them and guard against having to go back to the people for another appropriation to help the Board out on extras.

They stand firmly to the resolution:

That the Architect shall give a bond that the building shall be erected; furnished with a complete system of ventilation and heating; seating in the school rooms, Library and auditory, the latter to seat not less than 1500 persons in sight of the stage; that the light in all the rooms of this building and of the old shall be according to the best standard authorities; that the materials furnished and the workmanship shall be first-class in every respect, to show no cracking or sagging for the term of three years from its completion; that the drawing of the plans and the proper supervision of erection shall be done, and the building made ready in every way for occupancy—all within the appropriation of $24,000.

The architects are to give bonds to make up any deficiencies in their specifications and they can require bonds of the contractors that good material shall be used. In the meantime the architects have a superintendent under them to watch the construction.

Now, for some reason or other the President of the Board, followed by Messrs. Whedon, Gruner and Doty, opposed the bond, and proposed to cast aside any proper guarantees from the architect. Shutting their eyes to the blunders already standing as monuments of carelessness or negligence, they advocated a policy calculated to repeat those of the Court house, the Tappan School, the Main Hall and the Museum buildings.

Had Mr. Harriman's motion been carried to go ahead and ask for bids on these plans of Donaldson & Meier, the district would have been stuck for some $1,500 on two items alone, which are omitted from the specifications. For no provision is made for seats in the school rooms, the library, or the auditory of the hall, and the specifications call for pine floors, when it had been decided to have hard wood floors.

The excuse is given that bonds are not usually required for public buildings. Now, even if that were true it would be no excuse for this School Board to neglect a proper safeguard. But it is not true, as we hold in our hands several letters from prominent architects certifying that it is customary to require a bond of an architect employed for public work. For instance E. E. Meyers, of Detroit, one of the best-known architects in the country, gave bonds when he built the State Capitols of Michigan and of Colorado and the new Insane Asylum at Omaha, Nebraska. In several of the states this is required by law. We hold an affidavit from the draughtsman of E. E. Meyers & Son, that "for the past six years it has been the custom of that office to furnish a bond whenever furnishing plans and specifications for the erection of public buildings." Mr. Hess, the architect of the Normal building at Ypsilanti, writes that "it is customary to require a bond from the architect when employed on an important public building, guaranteeing the accuracy of the work." So Mr. A. E. French, the architect of the State House of Correction at Ionia, and of other important buildings, writes: "It is both usual and proper to require architects who are employed to design public buildings to give a bond with sureties guaranteeing the accuracy and sufficiency of their work."

No one can show how the tax-payers' interests would be liable to be imperiled by requiring a bond of the architect guaranteeing that his work is accurate, complete and sufficient and that the building shall be erected within the appropriation of $24,000. On the other hand, there is great danger if it is not done.

Mr. Donaldson was here last night and was presented with the bond as drawn up. He wished for time to look it over and the board adjourned for a week. This delay about the bond has arisen by the architect not having been informed by the proper officials that a bond would be required, although he had been warned of it by a member who knew it was to be required.

A NEW BOOK.

There has just been issued from the COURIER press a book which is unique in this state. It is the Road Book of the Michigan Division, League of American Wheelmen, compiled J. H. Johnson, Chief Consul of Michigan. As its name somewhat implies it is a description of roads available for bicycle riding, and the routes therein cover 2,661 miles, besides a special one from Buffalo to New York City of 572 miles. There are given the names of places along the roads, the distances between them, the kinds of roads, the hotels where League members get special rates, the names of the local consuls where a traveler can receive a welcome and any information he may desire, repair shops, and the points of interest in the towns. Seven maps, especially designed for the book, mark out the rideable sections in this state, also including one of the Chicago and Milwaukee routes, and the Ontario district, and a good map of Detroit. Furthermore, this useful little hand-book contains the constitution and rules of the L. A. W., including those of the racing board; that of the State Division; a list of the railroads in this country which carry bicycles free; and a law opinion on the rights of wheelmen in the highways by Isaac B. Potter of N. Y., with a comment thereon by Hon. Isaac Marston. Several State Divisions of the L. A. W. have gotten out road books, but this combines their useful features, while avoiding their frequent lack of clearness and their clumsiness. It is a 6½x3½ book of 100 pages, bound in morocco, convenient for the pocket, and an indispensable guide for a wheelman who does anything in touring. Mr. Johnson has put a vast deal of labor on getting up this work, and he may well feel proud of it. Members of the League in Michigan are entitled to a copy free; members of the League outside of the state can obtain it for one dollar, while one who is not a member can obtain it neither for love nor money. Thus the advantage for every wheelman to join the League is to get this book; to get the Bulletin, a weekly paper; to obtain reduced rates at the hotels and to have his bicycle carried free by the railroads.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We predict that Mr. W. H. Brearly will make a great success of the Evening Journal, notwithstanding the attempts of envious rivals to prejudice the public against him.

The committee of the Business Men's association must feel very much pleased over the statement in the Register last week, that they were in collusion with the COURIER.

In the trial of Fred Joslyn at Corunna, the school teacher who shot Thos. Morrison, a parent who came there to thresh him for punishing his boy, the jury disagreed—five for conviction and seven for acquittal.

Something should be done by the city authorities to prevent the repetition of such a scene as was enacted on the banks of the mill race last Sunday. To allow such indecent exposure as was done at that time, in sight of a large number of people, is against the laws of all decency and honor.

Chairman Weston of the democratic state central committee, has disgusted the leaders of his party all over the state by writing a letter favoring the most stringent liquor legislation. Weston will take a walk now probably. Later—Weston takes it all back. Swallows it like a veritable crow eating carrion.

According to the best record of gain and loss, the government seems to hold title to 1,616,101 square miles, or 1,034,330,842 acres. If as is claimed, one acre, thoroughly tilled, will subsist one person, the public domain alone as it now stands is sufficient to support a population a dozen times as large as ours is at present.

There seems to be a strong tide throughout the country setting in towards a higher tax on saloons and local option. Bills to such an effect are before the legislatures of Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania. That is the most practical kind of prohibition. We hope to see the $500 tax put on in all these states, especially in our own.

It is very probable that the legislators have at last come to their senses and will now do something for the people regarding the reduction of rail road fares. A bill for this purpose was passed by the house in committee of the whole, last week, and is set down for special order to-morrow, when it will undoubtedly be passed by that body.

To charge such men as Dr. W. F. Breakey, G. F. Allmendinger, and A. W. Hamilton, the committee of the Business Men's association who awarded the contract for printing the descriptive pamphlets of the city to the COURIER, with having resorted to tricky and underhanded work in awarding this contract, is an insult not only to these men but to the entire association.

General Lawton, the newly appointed Minister to Austria, repudiates the idea of a "New South," and says that the phrase is a misnomer. The same men are at the front now, he says, as under the old regime. The General is a living illustration of the fact. He even refused to apply for a removal of his political disabilities before he found that it was necessary before he could get an office.

The Kalamazoo Herald had this fine puff for the slugger aggregation: "John L. Sullivan, the champion prize-fighter, drunkard and hoodlum, arrived here to-day noon with his gang. Sullivan and Sheedy are registered with their wives. The noble party are billed to give a slugging exhibition to-night, to which the elite of the Boiler avenue district are cordially invited. The Herald office will close promptly at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon and the city editor may be found in Gilkey's woods, but these are his sentiments anyhow."

The "blue law" resolution of our council has been severely commented upon, but what would our people think if they lived at the western terminus of the F. & P. M. R. R.? The News says that the "boys in Ludington have got to get off the streets at 8 o'clock now, by order of the city dads. The city hall bell will ring at that hour, and if the boys are discovered out after that hour they will be run in by the truant officer. The people are well pleased by the ordinance. The council has also decreed that the saloons shall be closed at 10 p. m., and has detailed an officer to see that they do."

The legislature has made important changes in three sections of the statute relating to taxes for township purposes and the auditing of bills against townships. Under the law amended no more than $1,000 can be raised by tax in one year, as a contingent or general township fund. Any further money required must be raised as a special fund for a particular purpose, which must be entered in the records of the township, and the money so raised be used only for such purpose. All the bills audited by the board must be made out in items, and kept on file for inspection by the tax-payers.

The Washtenaw county papers ought to organize a press association for mutual benefit and social intercourse. Many counties throughout the state have such organizations, and they work much good for the publishers, gets them better acquainted with each other, and causes them to labor harmoniously together without the unnecessary and injurious opposition in business which oftentimes occurs without regard to good sense and the interests of the profession. There are fifteen local papers in the county, and an association could easily be organized. Let some of the county seat papers broach the subject, and if thought best call a meeting there for the purpose named—Saline Observer. As the county editors are all a very good natured set, it might not be dangerous to get them all together.

The action of the legislature in rooting out the "graveyard" insurance companies of this state is a commendable thing, and some law to effectually crush them out of existence ought to be enacted. The attempt to kill an old man at Coldwater by parties who held a policy for several thousand dollars on his life, is but a fair sample of the crime these companies tend to bring upon the people. It is even said that there are physicians in the state who take out policies on the lives of their patients whom they consider but short-lived. With a policy of a few thousand dollars upon the life of yourself or a near relative or friend held by the attending physician, how much would you consider that life worth. Of course no honorable physician, or honorman would go into this business, but there are those who care little how they obtain money as long as they obtain it. This disreputable species of insurance should go.

In the case of Gottleib Waldmeier against William A. Russell and William Dansingburg, a verdict was awarded the plaintiff for $325.

The case of Louis Knapp against William Yager having been amicably settled outside of court, the case was discontinued.

The most interesting case during the week was that of Elmira S. Howe against her mother, Eliza North, for the support and maintainance of an insane son of Mrs. North's, during a period of about ten years. This case occupied the court during Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday morning, the jury then bringing a verdict of $4,000, in favor of the plaintiff. The case will probably be carried to the supreme court. A. J. Sawyer, of the counsel for the defense, withdrew from the case and made no argument to the jury, because Judge Joslyn restricted him to one and one-half hours to make his argument, Mr. Sawyer claiming that he could not do his client justice in that short time.

A former graduate of the medical department, in sending a renewal of subscription for THE COURIER from Greeley, Colorado, has this to say of the great curative qualities of that climate: "Wish you would use your influence to have consumptives come here before it is too late. So many wait until they are told by their physician that nothing more could be done except to go to Colorado, when if the doctor would be honest enough to think more of the lives of their patients than they do of their pockets they would come in the first stage when life would be assured. It is a grand place for asthma People are learning that Greeley is better for them than Colorado Springs or Denver, hence, we have a great increase of invalids. Greeley is not so high and does not have as much wind as the former places."

A grand torch-light procession in which all the students, alumni and faculty take part, is suggested to take place during the celebration of the semi-centennial. The suggestion comes from the Argonaut and is a good one.

President Cleveland has acknowledged the receipt of an invitation to attend the semi-centennial exercises of the university, and although not able to give a positive promise that he will be present, says that he will try to do so.

The directors of the university base ball club have picked out the following team for this year: Hibbard and Miller, battery; Wilkinson, McMillan, Carpenter and McDonald, infield; Lawson, Malley and Jaycox, outfield; Booth, Hildner and Grey, substitutes.

The university base ball club plays at home on the following dates: Cass club of Detroit, May 31st and June 4th; State agricultural college club, June 11. Abroad, Cass club at Detroit, May 28th, Amateurs at Detroit, May 30th. A game will probably be played here during commencement week.

The Argonaut complains bitterly because a great portion of the students who are so interested in the base ball games, refuse to give anything toward paying the expenses of the same, but are always on hand during a game to "sponge" on their more liberal brothers. This in not as it should be.

Professor Griffin commenced to quiz the senior laws separate and apart Monday on Evidence. He is very popular with the department and his advent is hailed each week with delight although it means hard work, for the seniors, as he gives them to lectures each time he comes, together with two quizes, both forenoon and afternoon being occupied.

The regular Field Day contests will be held Saturday, May 28th, on the Fair Grounds. The program is as follows: 100 yards dash; 220 yards dash; 440 yards dash; 120 yards hurdle race; standing broad jump with weights; standing hop, step and jump; heavy and light weight boxing; wrestling catch-as-catch-can; running high jump; putting shot; throwing hammer; 1 mile bicycle race; fancy bicycle riding; three legged race 100 yards; and fat man's race, over 200 lbs., 100 yards. Persons wishing to contest must hand in their names to Mr. Reinhart during this week.

Death of Lucy W. S. Morgan.

On Thursday last, at 5:30 p. m., Mrs. Lucy W. S. Morgan died at her residence, corner of Huron and Fifth streets, of general debility. She had far passed the average of life, being 91 years and ten old, and her death was not unexpected as she has been very sick for some time past.

Mrs. Morgan came to Ann Arbor in 1830 when there were but three houses in the village. She was born in Middletown, Connecticut, and during her younger days was a school teacher. Being a woman of more than ordinary intellectual ability, she was very well informed on all matters of history as well as on every day topics.

Mrs. Morgan, being of an economical turn and very capable in business transactions, had amassed during her lifetime a large fortune, estimated to amount to nearly half a million. She owned in her own name vast land interest in this county and in Jackson. Many years ago, she purchased a tract of land where Jackson now stand, for a mere song. A portion of this she afterwards deeded to the city for a park; but they gave it to the Michigan Central company to build their shops upon. Mrs. Morgan, seeing that the land had not been used for the purpose that she intended, brought suit to recover and did so, the case going to the supreme court. The company gladly paid her the sum of $40,000 to settle the case. In this manner and by strict business integrity she managed to gather a handsome fortune.

Her husband, E. W. Morgan, survives her at the age of 82 years. The funeral was held from the residence on Saturday afternoon.

May Crop Reports.

For this report returns have been received from 965 correspondents representing 710 townships; 640 of them from 415 townships in the southern four tiers of counties and 163 from 144 townships in the central counties. Correspondents this month almost without exception note the severity of the drought. The rainfall in April at Lansing amounted to only .98 of an inch as compared with 1.51 inches in 1886. In March and April the rain and melted snow amounted to only 2.28 inches as compared with 3.34 inches in 1885. In 1883 the rain and melted snow in March and April was .05 of an inch less than this year, but in that year before the 9th of May, heavy rains had fallen amounting at Lansing to nearly 3½ inches, while this year the rainfall previous to May 10, amounts to less than one-eighth of an inch.

Wheat on sandy soil made very good growth during April, but on clay soil the growth was very unsatisfactory. The average condition in the southern counties is 87 per cent., comparison being with the vitality and growth of average years. The condition in this county shows only 81 per cent. of an average crop while fully four per cent. of the wheat sown is winter-killed and will be plowed up.

In fruits, the per centage of an average crop is 91 per cent. of apples and 81 per cent. of peaches.

Reports from nine mills and elevators in the county show that 41,887 bushels of wheat were marketed during April.

IF NOT, WHY NOT?

IF a new merchant enter into business in your city and invite every one to come in and get acquainted and learn his business methods, IS it not FAIR to give him a call.

If Not, Why Not?

IF this merchant sells you as good goods for as little money, and uses you as well as dealers away from home, IS it JUST to give him a trial?

If Not, Why Not?

IF other dealers offer you goods which your home merchants can furnish, and maybe cheaper, or else make the outsider sell cheaper, IS it not POLICY to get your home dealer's prices and terms before buying?

If Not, Why Not?

IF a dealer is established in your own city, where you can always find him to have errors corrected and differences adjusted and who is reliable and responsible, IS it not BEST to buy of him where you can know everything will be as represented?

If Not, Why Not?

IF a man works to merit the confidence of the people, does everything on the square tells things as the are, uses you honestly and well, IS it not RIGHT to give him your trade?

If Not, Why Not?

I am here in your city with a full line of Musical Goods. The celebrated HAINES BRO'S PIANOS, the NEW ENGLAND PIANOS, Famous ESTEY ORGANS, GUITARS, BANJOS, VIOLINS, STRINGS and, in fact, anything and everything a music store should have.

I'm bound to sell honest goods at honest prices, tell things as they are, and in this way try and build up a trade. If you do not call on me when in need of goods, I can only ask,

Ann Arbor Commandery will observe ascension day, to-morrow, with appropriate cermonies, according to the following programme: 4 p. m. —The Knights will assemble at their asylum in full dress, and proceed to Forest Hill cemetery, where the graves of Sir Knights will be appropriatly decorated. 7:30 p. m.—Divine service will be held in the asylum of the commandery, Rev. T. W. Maclean, of Ypsilanti, officiating The friends of the commandery and the public generally are invited to be present at the evening service.

On Sunday afternoon last large numbers of men and boys were swimming in the race, adjoining Swift & Co.'s mills, and this was not the worst part of it, for most of the time during the afternoon and evening, they were not content to stay in the water, but were running up and down the bank (without an article of clothing on) throwing stones in the water. As this exhibition lacked any degree of decency, and there is a city ordinance imposing a fine of not over $25.00, or thirty days in jail, we are in hopes that our city officials, whose business it is to attend to it, will see that the scene is not repeated.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Only a Farmer's Daughter" at the Opera House, May 23d.

Mr. Barnes has written a good play. It is one that will live, and if always given by a company as superior as the one forming the present combination, it will bring honor and profit to the author.—N. Y. Herald.

The plot of the play we have before described in our columns; its presentation on the stage met every anticipation. Each actress and actor have a good part and several admit acting of the highest order.—New York Telegram.

Rev. Kerr B. Tupper of Grand Rapids will deliver a lecture at the Baptist Church on Friday evening. Subject: "Be a Man." Since his sermons here last winter so many have expressed a desire to hear him again, that the Baptist Young People have secured him for a lecture, believing that the impression he made then should secure him a large and appreciative audience. An admission of twenty-five cents will be charged.

Mr. Barne's play bears the unmistakable stamp of originality and genius, and it is not improbable that "Only a Farmer's Daughter" will prove to be that famous American play for which we have been waiting so long. Its plot is full of interest, its dialogue beautiful with poetry and sparkling with wit, while its characters are firmly drawn and brilliantly colored.—New York Times.

Bach & Abel have an editorial on dry goods this week.

If the liver and kidneys are sluggish and inactive, Hood's Sarsaparilla will rouse them to prompt and regular action. Take it now.

Says he positively believes he would have died had it not been for the relief afforded in Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Eberbach & Son.

DON'T USE BIG WORDS!

In promulgating esoteric cogitations or articulating superficial sentimentalities and philosophical or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your statements possess a clarified conciseness, compacted comprehensibleness, coalescent consistency and a concentrated cogency. Eschew all conglomerations of flatulent garrulity, jejune babblement and asinine affectations. In trying to impress upon others the superiority, reliability, and purity of all medicines and chemicals at Goodyear's Drug Store it is not necessary to use jawbreakers. Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or thrasonical bombast. Sedulously avoid all pollysyllabic profundity psittaceous vacuity, ventriloqual verbosity vandiloquent vapidity; shun double entendres, prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity obscurent or apparent. In other words, talk plainly, naturally, sensibly, and truthfully, say, that Goodyear's Drug Store is really the best place in Washtenaw County to buy pure drugs, etc., at low prices; also that especial attention is given to the careful preparation of prescriptions and family medicines.
