Catarrh to Consumption.
Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.
But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and combatted with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.
SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets with every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitution. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing safe, economical and never-failing.

Council Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of our city guardians, postponed from the 4th of July night, occurred Monday evening. After the usual tedious preliminaries of reading the minutes, etc., the business of the session was opened by the

Of C. G. Darling, W. C. Carson and 17 others, asking for the cutting down and removal of a large oak tree now standing in the center of Monroe street, between 12th and E. University avenue.

Then followed a remonstrance from Z. P. King on whose land the tree stands. After considerable discussion, Ald Allmendinger offered the following:

Resolved, That the tree in front of Mr. King's property, on Monroe street, be allowed to stand, provided he raise the electric light at the intersection of Monroe and 12th streets, to an altitude of at least 60 feet.

Which was adopted.

A petition of Fred Wagner and 4 others, asking for a tar sidewalk "on the east side of Second street," was received and referred to the Sidewalk committee.

A communication of Martin M. Seabolt, resigning the office of alderman of the 4th ward was received and read, but no action was taken thereon.

Your committee, to whom was referred the lighting of the clock tower would respectfully recommend that the lighting of the tower be by gas, the bid of the Ann Arbor Gas Company to be accepted.

On motion the report was accepted and adopted.

Ald. Allmendinger from same committee reported the action of the committee in selecting a drinking fountain, and asked that its action be approved. Also that the committee be allowed to have an ice reservoir constructed underneath the drinking fountain; and to lay stone flagging around the same.

Ald. Wines moved that the action of the committee be approved; and the requests asked be granted. Which was agreed to.

NEW BOOKS.

BATTLES AND LEADERS OF THE CIVIL WAR. The Century Co., Union Square, N. Y. Price 50 cents per number. W. C. Arnold, Detroit, State Agent.

Part 2 is a continuation of this most excellent work. The best illustrated, and best reading history of the late war ever published.

The Howell Republican draws a true picture, if one ever was drawn. "How many a life has been made unhappy and perhaps wrecked by the tongue of a slanderer: "Oh, how lightly is reputation regarded by a certain class; how thoughtlessly do they breathe the breath of suspicion against their neighbor; how unscrupulous are they in resorting to the coward's artifice, innuendo. The traducer always finds eager ears. The shattering of a reputation is looked upon by many with the same eagerness that a hungry man contemplates a sumptuous dinner. The sensation lover dotes on scandal and he is not particular how, or at whose expense his cravings are satisfied. Woman's reputation is in constant danger; a single foul breath may blow away that which has been acquired by years of steadfast rectitude. Against slander there is no defense, no redress. Does a man recover when shot through the heart? As well can a woman recover at whose fair name the vicious blow of slander has been struck. What semblance of a human being thinkingly assails that one precious tribute of woman—her reputation? Much of this despicable talk among loungers is not intended in its deadly results, but it is none the less liable to taint fair names. A bridle of some kind should be placed upon tongues that are so prone to wag."

After reading this from the Fenton Independent we are moved to exclaim Watt's the matter? "The Detroit Tribune's correspondent out at Ann Arbor gets to the front in his account of Tuesday's proceedings by announcing that the day began early. That's right. If the day hadn't commenced until way along in the afternoon it might have occasioned the the suspicion that Gov. Luce had got his vote in on daylight.

A MEMORY.

How dear to my heart is the school I attended
And well I remember, though distant and dim,
That red-headed Bill and the pin that I bended,
And carefully put on the bench under him.
And well I recall the surprise of the master
When Bill gave a yell and sprang up from the pin,
So high that his bullet head busted the plaster
Above, and the scholars all set up a din.
That active boy Billy, that high-leaping Billy,
That loud-shouting Billy who sat on a pin.
Washington Post.

And well I remember the scene that soon followed;
Aye! Fresh in my mem'ry the incident lingers,
How I whimpered at first and afterwards hallooed,
As my collar was held by the teacher's stout finger's.
How he wolloped me long with a limber beach gad,
And shook me and jerked me till my shoe-strings untied;
And I wished as I went to my seat, faint and sad,
That Bill or the teacher had long ago died.
That fierce-visaged teacher! That stout fingered teacher!
That teacher who blistered each inch of my hide!
Vernon Inter-Lake.

BILL NYE ON BIG HATS.

The late William Shakespeare once wrote in an autograph album these words:

All the world's a stage,
Sincerely your friend,
WM. SHAKESPEARE.

Perhaps he meant that there were flies on it—but we will not undertake to enter this field of thought. However, to speak in a more serious vein and treating the subject in a more dignified way, I will state that after a number of years' scrutiny of the world I am convinced that the great bard used this expression in a figurative sense only. Could he pick up his pen to-day he would either erase the above line or add to it so that it would read:

"All the world's a stage, and nobody but the woman in the high hat can see what is going on up there.
"Yours bitterly, BILL."

It is not a new field, perhaps, this discussion of the tall hat, but I desire in my poor, weak way to add my testimony to the testimony of those who have sat down on said hat. I feel of a truth—occasionally—that this high hat is making an old man of me and drawing lines of care here and there over my fair young face. Here at a time of life when I ought to be in the full flush and pride of manhood I find myself no longer able to build the fire in the morning, and my breath, which was once as robust as that of the upas tree, now comes in short pants.

The tall hat with a wad of timothy or a five-pound pompon at the apex thereof, has brought this about. How would a man look who might sit in the bald-headed men on the front row, because they offered no obstruction to the vision?

And now, what do we see?

We do not see anything!

I will leave it to any disinterested person to say whether I do not love and admire woman, whether aggregated or segraded, but she does do some things which as her friend and admirer I deeply regret.

Not long ago I had the pleasure of attending one of Mr. Booth's performances in which he took the part of Hamlet with great credit to himself, as I afterwards learned from a member of the orchestra who saw the whole performance.

If I had not promised a former wife of mine that I would never touch liquor I would have been amply justified that evening in saturating myself with bay rum or some other seductive beverage.

I paid a large price a week beforehand for a seat at the Hamlet performance, because I had met Mr. Booth once in the Rocky Mountains and had made a deep impression on him. I had also told him that if he ever happened to be in a town where I was lecturing I would dismiss any audience to come and hear him, and he might do as he thought best about shutting up on the following night to come and hear me.

Well, I noticed at first, when I went in, that the row before me was unoccupied, and I gathered myself up in a strong, manly embrace, and hugged myself with joy. The curtain humped itself, and the first act was about in the act of producing itself, when a meek little gentleman, with an air of conscious guilt, came down the aisle in advance of a woman's excursion, consisting of four female members of his family, I judged. He looked about the house, timidly took off his coat and seemed to be preparing himself for the vigilance committee. Then he sat down to see whether executive clemency could do anything for him.

The first woman of the four was probably over forty, and yet with her almost beardless face she looked scarcely thirty-eight. She wore a tall, erect hat, with a sort of plume to it, made by pulling the paint-brush tail out of an iron-gray mule and dying it a deep crimson.

She wore other clothing, but that did not incense me so much as this hat, which I had to examine critically all the evening.

She moved her head also, and kept time with the music, and breathed hard in places, and shuddered once or twice. She also spoke to the miserable man who brought her. Her voice was a rich baritone, with a low xylophone action, and she breathed like the passionate exhaust of an overworked freight engine. When she spoke to her escort I noticed that he shortened up about four inches and seemed to wish he had never entered society.

The other three women had broad hats with domes to them, and the one who sat on my right also sat on her foot. This gave her a fine opportunity to look out through the skylight of the opera house now and then. The next one to her wore a deceased Plymouth Rock rooster in her hat. The fourth one sat in front of an oldish gentleman who went out between the acts and came in with a pickled olive in his mouth each time. He could not see anything on the stage, but he crawled up under the brim of this woman's hat, with his nose in the meshes of her hair, and his hot local option breath in her neck, patiently trying to see whether the slender legs in long, black hose belonged to Mr. Booth, Apollinarus or the ballet.

If you will continue in your excellent paper to sit down on the tall hats, I will get you quite a number of subscribers here.—Bill Nye, in N. Y. World.

BY VICTOR C. VAUGHAN, M. D., PH. D.

TYROTOXICON, CHOLERA INFANTUM, ETC.

The experiments upon animals (which are given in the full paper to be published in the annual report of the State Board of Health) convince me that the development of tyrotoxicon in milk is a frequent cause of cholera infantum and kindred affections. When we remember that these diseases are most prevalent among the poor classes of our large cities where fresh milk is almost unknown, we can readily understand their frequency. By such people milk is often not obtained until it has begun to sour, then it is kept at a high temperature and often in a most foul atmosphere, and we all know something of the readiness with which milk takes up bad odors. This milk is then eaten by the little ones who are weakened by poverty and everything that poverty means, insufficient food generally, and that of the poorest quality, insufficient clothing, insufficient and vitiated air. With these facts before us, it is not surprising that in all our large cities thousands of children die annually from the summer diarrhœas. Moreover, in our country places, how little attention is given to the food of children, we all know from actual observation. Cows stand and are milked in filthy barns and yards. The udders are generally, so far as my observation goes, not washed before milking; the vessels for the milk are frequently found not as clean as they should be. Then there are the thousands of children that must draw their sustenance from bottles, the cleansing of which is in many families not properly attended to. Crusts of the decomposing milk form around the neck of the bottle, in the tube and nipple, and lead to the rapid decomposition of the entire contents of the bottle. I think that one of the most important advantages to be secured to breast-fed children arises from the lessened danger of infection of the milk with germs which may produce poisonous ptomaines.

I would not claim that decomposed milk is the sole cause of the summer diarrhœas of children, nor would I claim that tyrotoxicon is the only poison that may be developed in milk. It is only one of a large class of bodies which are produced by putrefaction, and many of these are cathartic in action.

RULES FOR THE PREVENTION OF TYROTOXICON IN MILK.

1. The cows should be healthy and the milk of any animal which seems indisposed should not be mixed with that from the perfectly healthy animals.

2 Cows must not be fed upon swill or the refuse of breweries, or glucose factories or any other fermented food.

3. Cows must not be allowed to drink stagnant water; but must have free access to pure, fresh water.

4. Cows must not be heated or worried before being milked.

5. The pasture must be free from noxious weeds, and the barn and yard must be kept clean.

5. The udders should be washed, if at all dirty, before the milking.

7. The milk must be at once thoroughly cooled. This is best done by placing the milk can in a tank of cold spring water or ice-water, the water being of the same depth as the milk in the can. It would be well if the water in the tank could be kept flowing; indeed, this will be necessary unless ice water is used. The tank should be thoroughly cleaned every day to prevent bad odors. The can should remain uncovered during the cooling, and the milk should be gently stirred. The temperature should be reduced to 60° F. within an hour. The can should remain in the cold water until ready for delivery.

8. In summer, when ready for delivery, the top should be placed on the can and a cloth wet in cold water should be spread over the can, or refrigerator cans may be used. At no season should the milk be frozen; but no buyer should receive milk which has a temperature higher than 65° F.

9. After the milk has been received by the consumer, it should be kept in a perfectly clean place, free from dust, at a temperature not exceeding 60° F. Milk should not be allowed to stand uncovered, even for a short time, in sleeping or living rooms. In many of the better houses in the country and villages, and occasionally in the cities, the drain from the refrigerator leads into a cesspool or kitchen drain. This is highly dangerous; there should be no connection between the refrigerator and any receptacle of filth.

10. The only vessels in which milk should be kept are tin, glass or porcelain. After using the vessel, it should be scalded and then, if possible, exposed to the air.

PREVENTION OF SUMMER DIARRHŒAS.

But in the prevention of the summer diarrhœas, attention to the food must not stop with its introduction into the body. The ferment which produces tyrotoxicon is widely distributed, and it only awaits conditions suitable for its development. We do not know exactly what germ it is that produces this poison; but it is either the butyric acid ferment or some ferment which is frequently developed along with the bacillus butyricus, because I have found that if some butyric acid ferment be prepared according to the method usually followed in making butyric acid, and milk be inoculated with this and allowed to stand at the temperature of the body for a few hours or at the ordinary temperature of the room for several days, the poison will appear. Moreover, as is well known, the bacillus butyricus grows best in the absence of air, we have already seen that the exclusion of air favors the development of tyrotoxicon. We are aware of the fact that the butyric acid ferment frequently does develop in the stomach. Therefore, I think that the prevention of these diseases necessitates some attention to digestion. If the food lies in the stomach or intestines undigested, putrefactive changes will occur there.

During the hot months, children who are allowed to take food at will often drink large quantities of milk simply for the purpose of quenching thirst. I feel that this overloading the stomach with milk, caused by thirst, often is of no little detriment. It is hardly necessary to specify in regard to other ways in which attention should be given to the digestive organs of children. Those that partake of other foods with their milk should be allowed only the most wholesome articles, and these should be in most perfect condition. Moreover, the depressing effects of extreme heat on the nervous system and its consequent injury to digestion should always be borne in mind.

WHAT TO DO WHEN SUMMER DIARRHŒAS OCCUR.

The first thing to do is to stop the administration of milk in any form. The ferment is present in the alimentary canal and giving the best of milk would be simply supplying the germ with material for the production of the poison. This no-milk treatment is not by any means a new idea; but the reason of it has not been hitherto understood. Now, that we know what that a powerful poison is formed from the putrefaction of milk, the necessity of its exclusion must become apparent to all.

The foods used may consist of chicken and mutton broths, beef juice, and rice or barley water. With this list no difficulty will be experienced in giving the child sufficient nourishment.

Man wants but little here below,
But wants that little strong.

This is especially true of a purge. The average man or woman does not precisely hanker for it, as a rule, but when taken, wishes it to be prompt, sure and effective. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets leave nothing to be desired in point of efficacy, and yet their action is totally free from any unpleasant symptoms, or disagreeable after effects. Purely vegetable, perfectly harmless.

Michigan has the brightest record of any state, in the economy of its legislature and the industry and the faithfulness of its state officers. It has more and better institutions than any other state in proportion, the lowest expenses and the lightest tax. This is a record of which all Michigan people should be proud.—Vermontville Echo.

Consumption Cured.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis Catarrh, Asthma, and all throat and lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

The Harbor Springs Republican is correct in the following: "We believe what the people of this country want is a good deal less law and more justice, less quibbling and expense, and surer and speedier punishment for the guilty, better protection to society and less freedom to criminals. If a defendant is guilty, punish him, if innocent let him be vindicated by the facts and not on technicalities."

I am Proud to say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

LITERARY NOTES.

The vital subject of the day is that which comes under the general head of Socialism. The newspapers give it the foremost place in their discussions and the people at large are more interested in the settlement of this question than in any other that is before them. Henry George and Dr. McGlynn are the most talked about men in the country to-day, and there is no denying that there is a great movement on foot, the only question is where is it going to end! The subject is just now rife for the satirist and the satarist has taken it in hand. What "Ginx's Baby" did for temperance, what the "Battle of Doring" did to arouse the British nation to its own weaknesses, will the "Republic of the Future" do for the question of Socialism. Mrs. Anna Bowman Dodd has chosen this title for a political brochure that Messrs. Cassell & Company have in press for immediate publication. This little book is in the form of a brilliant and highly original series of letters supposed to be written by a Swedish Nobleman, on a visit to America in the 21st Century. In these letters the writer has depicted what the social, civil and political aspect of America would be under Socialistic rule, after socialism had become a fixed and stable form of government. The subject is treated with an extraordinary degree of reality and naturalness. The picture of this America of the future is handled with the power and breadth of grasp which we are beginning to look for as the characteristic of Mrs. Dodd's work. The humor is not the least attractive feature of this little book, being trenchant and irresistable. And as there are wholesome kernels of truth liberally scattered throughout this keen satire, the book will be as valuable to enlightened Socialists as it will prove interesting and convincing to the general reader.

Peculiar in medicinal merit and wonderful cures—Hood's Sarsaparilla. Now is the time to take it, for now it will do the most good.

From the Pontiac Gazette: "By the passage of the enabling act by the legislature, the Eastern Michigan Asylum comes in possession of about 90 acres of the Seeley farm by purchase from George H. Seeley. This purchase squares up the real estate of the asylum, and places its authorities in fine shape for putting the cottages plan in operation. Two cottages will be erected immediately, one for each sex, capable of accommodating fifty inmates each. The class of inmates which do not require bolts and bars will here find new homes."

The Day Express going east will hereafter stop at Dexter to let off passengers at 5:08 p. m. standard time.—Leader.

The wheat harvest has been pretty generally completed, and the grain that was left by insects has been secured in excellent condition. The harvest is several days earlier than usual.

W. K. Allen is our assistant, and we hope the people will interest themselves as much in giving him information as they did his predecessor. That is the way to make a live local paper.—Dexter Leader.

Lewis Yager, of Lima, fell from a hay stack last Thursday, striking head foremost, and broke his collar bone and injured his neck; only on account of thickness he would have broke it.—Chelsea Herald.

J. O. Thompson, formerly the able local of the Dexter Leader has gone to Alpena to accept a similar position on the Alpena Pioneer. He is a live, wide awake quill slinger, and may good fortune be his.

A boy in the southern part of Saline township paid $14 for a shotgun last spring and, up to date, he has secured $13 in bounty on the woodchuck scalps he bagged, to so say nothing of the fun. A very useful kind of a boy.

Jas. L. Gilbert spent the 4th here with his family. He has been gone for several weeks in the wool business, and has been all through Michigan, Indiana, etc., buying wool. He left Tuesday, and is still on the road.—Chelsea Herald.

The commencement exercises and university semi-centennial were of such a nature and success as to give Ann Arbor a great boom, and publish her far and near as one of Michigan's fairest and most successful cities, and the center of her educational system.—Dexter Leader.

The horse chestnut cure for rheumatism has been knocked silly by a Grand Rapids man. He has carried a chestnut in his pocket for two years, and says he never suffered so in his life as he has during that time. He says the alleged cure is a chestnut indeed.—So. Lyon Picket.

An effort is being made to raise by subscription a fund to pay for concerts on our streets, on Saturday evenings by the cornet band. We hope it will prove successful, as it would draw many people in from the country to hear the music, and as a matter of course they would do their trading here.—Saline Observer.

A letter signed "A Dakotian" comes from Mayville, that territory, enclosing the following: "A North Dakota paper says: Gopher tails are a currency for the face value of the county bounty. Newspapers take them on subscription, merchants for goods, and they occasionally find their way into the contribution basket at church."

Up to date 7,000,000 trade dollars have been redeemed at par under the law passed last winter. These were chiefly held by the bankers of the country, who paid about 80 cents for them. Their profits therefore, which came out of the pockets of the people, amounted to $1,400,000 on this little transaction, perpetrated by means of a wise and discriminating democratic congress.

In the list of graduates in the law department of the university last week, we noticed the name of Thomas D. Kearney Esq, whose admission to the bar we chronicled recently. Mr. Kearney was a brilliant student, has hosts of friends wherever he is known, and we predict for him merited success in the ancient profession of the law. We felicitate the legal gentleman on the successful completion of his studies.—Chelsea Herald.

MICHIGAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The next meeting of the Michigan Press Association will be held at Port Huron, commencing Tuesday, July 26th. The committee on ritual will be ready to report, and a "Michigan Sanhedrim," will be organized. Papers will be read as follows:

"Women in Journalism," Mrs. M. L. Rayne, Detroit.
"The Newspaper Man, how made," O. W. Rowland, Paw Paw.
"Does it Pay?" J. C. Van Duzer, Escanaba.
"The Newspaper in Politics," Wm. Stocking, Detroit.
"Necrology," Otis Fuller, St. Johns.

President Ainger will of course deliver a learned address; Vice-President McMillan, of Bay City, will respond to the Mayor's Address of Welcome; Maj. J. W. Long, of Grand Rapids, will write a press song especially for the occasion; E. J. Kelly, of Pontiac, will lead the singing and promises an "all-wool-a-yard-wide" gent's quartette.

An excursion to Kingston and the Thousand Islands will close the festivities.

The Ann Arbor students and citizens have verified the maxim, "A little learning is a dangerous thing," by the petty indignities contemplated against Gov. Luce, at the anniversary of the "Varsity."—Three Rivers Tribune.

And a few editors in the State have demonstrated the fact that they can write learnedly(?) upon a subject they know nothing about, and the editor of the Tribune is one of 'em. Had Gov. Luce come to Ann Arbor, as he ought to have done, he would have been treated with all the respect his office should have brought to him. He would have been entertained by the mayor of our city, who is one of our wealthy and hospitable citizens. But he didn't come and some of his admirers now seek to excuse him for shirking his duty by the cry that some boy or girl student at Ann Arbor would have made up a face at him, if he had done so. For shame! The editor of the Three Rivers Tribune is informed that neither the students at the University or the citizens of Ann Arbor, are hoodlums or sand-lot-ers, but gentlemen and ladies, and can give their traducers points on what belongs to good manners any day in the week.

It is a shame that an editor of a reputable journal should attempt to spread a wrong impression among the people by such misrepresentations. There was not a thing said or a thing done that Gov. Luce or his most ardent admirer could have taken the least exceptions to during the entire commencement, nor would there have been if that official had been present, and the above assertion, made with the direct intent of creating prejudice against the University is nothing more nore less than dirt. Second-hand dirt at that, for it originally appeared in a Detroit paper that has left no stone unturned to misrepresent the University and its friends.

The Michigan legislature peformed a wise and beneficient act when it passed the bill to prevent gambling in stocks, bonds or produce, and to prohibit the renting of buildings for such purposes. This small dabbling in produce and stocks in what are known as bucket shops, is one of the most pernicious kinds of speculation. It is every bit as demoralizing as cards. The risk of loss in a bucket shop is exactly as great as it is at a faro table. Besides this that evil habit—the irresistible desire of making money on a chance venture is contracted and it is a difficult matter to free one's-self from this thralldom. Many a man with a respectable competence has lost it all by frequenting bucket shops. If men cannot conserve their own interests with wisdom and thrift it is the duty of the law makers to help them to it.

Michigan, in her state university at Ann Arbor, has an institution of which she may well be proud, and which she can poorly afford to stint or starve. There is no single institution in the state more worthy of the best she has to give. A great institution of learning is not built in a day or a year, but after a generation has given it the benefit of its brightest and best minds and bodies.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Harper's Weekly for Saturday, July 9th, has two pages devoted entirely to illustrating the U. of M., together with excellent portraits of Ex-president Tappan, President Angell, and Dr. Frieze. It has quite a lengthy article descriptive of the University.

The Ann Arbor COURIER unmercifully wallops the gubernatorial back on account of the University appropriation matter, it might just as well hang up its cat-o-nine-tails, and let the sores scab over.—Stockbridge Sun.

Its hung brother, but not entirely out of reach.

The Detroit base ball club still leads the league—by five games.

The Unitarian Church, Ann Arbor.

The First Unitarian Society of Ann Arbor, was organized in the old court house, January 21st, 1867, under the ministrations of Rev. Charles H. Brigham. The next month the society began occupying the old M. E. Church on the S. W. corner of 5th and Ann streets, which they soon after purchased. Here they worshipped until the autumn of 1882 when they removed to their new stone edifice on the corner of State and Huron streets. Mr. Brigham was pastor of the society for ten years, resigning on account of impaired health in the summer of 1877. The next year the pulpit was occupied by J. H. Allen. In the autumn of 1878 Rev. J. T. Sunderland was settled and has been in charge of the society from that time until the present with the exception of two years, from July 1884 to July 1886, when he was away on leave of absence. The new church and lot cost $15,000, and the organ, church furniture and library something over $3,000 more. The library, which contains nearly 2000 volumes, is a very choice collection,—in works of broad, advanced religious thought and scholarship being surpassed by few libraries in the country. It is open for public use on Sundays, free. Members of the church and congregation draw books without charge, others pay one dollar a year. A reading room also is maintained in connection with the library, and here not only liberal religious papers but the best magazines and reviews are to be found. In 1883 a lot was bought adjoining the church on the north, on which a parsonage costing $3,600 was built. There are about fifty families connected with the society. The large students' bible class held at noon on Sundays, and the Sunday evening services adapted largely to the wants of the students, have always been noticable features of the church. The Unity Club, which is literary and social in its aim, and has come to be one of the institutions of the city, has now been going on for nine years. The present trustees of the church are Prof. W. H. Pettee, Prof. J. W. Langley, J. B. Allen, Joseph Whitark, Judge W. D. Harriman and Mrs. J. M. Ashley. The Secretary of the church and society is Mr. Benjamin Brown. The church and parsonage are paid for and the society is entirely free from debt besides having a fund of $1,200 the interest of which goes annually to the purchase of books for the library.

Proposed Christian Association Build'g.

A short time previous to the closing of the university a religious census of the students was taken by the Students' Christian Association, replies being received from 1,306 of the 1,563 students. Of this number 805 were professing Christians; 639 members of churches, 569 of whom were members of evangelical churches. In the literary department alone 309 out of 604 were professing Christians, and 291 members of evangelical churches.

Of the 92 persons composing the faculties 59 are members of evangelical churches, 19 are regular attendants and supporters of such churches, and 7 are members of other, not evangelical.

The Students' Christian Association of the U. of M. has grown from a membership of 15 in 1857 to 329 the past year. Some of the Sunday morning meetings are attended by upward of 400 students, and the socials are attended by hundreds. A Bible-class meets every Sunday p. m. In the library of the association there are about 1,000 volumes of carefully selected religious books. In connection with the association there are organized two bands, one of those who intend to enter the mission field, home or foreign, and the other of those who expect to take up the work of the ministry. The former had 15 members the past year, while 15 more students proposed taking up missionary work. The latter has 14 members, six of whom were in the senior class, while 8 more students thought of entering the ministry. The work of these bands is but just begun, and is only a promise of what can be accomplished.

The association has come to a crisis in its history. It has outgrown the rooms which can be given it in the university buildings. Its work is opening out in every direction, and the possibilities of its influence are bounded only by the number of students in the university. Under these circumstances the demand for a new building for the use of the association becomes imperative. When it is considered that Michigan University with its 1,563 students stands second in point of numbers in the list of colleges and universities, leading Yale by 429, and falling only 125 below Harvard, while in its literary department alone it had about 180 more students than Princeton, 445 more than Brown, 393 more than Williams, 357 more than Amherst, and 329 more than Bowdoin, and only 139 less than Cornell all told, it will be seen that here is a mighty center of influence, a strategic point which it would be folly to neglect. Young men and young women go out from college with characters formed, and they go into the schools of this state, into positions of power and influence in every community, to transmit the impressions of their college life to the young people of the state. Nor is it simply a question of reaching the 1,563 young people now in the university, for at least one-third of the students leave every year, and their places are supplied by others.

The citizens of Ann Arbor, and faculties and students have raised $2,500 for the purchase of a most desirable lot for the association, and $15,000 are required to erect such a building as is needed. The Baptist state conventions of '84 and '86, the Congregational state general association of '84, the Detroit and Michigan Methodist conferences of '84 and '86, and the Presbyterian synods of '84 and '86, have endorsed this project, and seconded the appeal for funds. It is an enterprise that is too broad for any one town. It reaches wherever there are those who are likely to come to the university for their education, or wherever the graduates of the university are likely to go to use their education. This is the first call that has ever been made for money to carry on religious or moral work in the university. The building is needed not simply as a facility for work, great as is its need in that direction, but also to give dignity and permanence to Christian work in the university. Here is a chance for some able pursed man who loves mankind to erect a lasting monument for himself.

At the very moment Governor Luce was driving home the back way—so as to steer clear of Ann Arbor—with the consciousness of having curtailed the University' resources some $40,000 Yale was rejoicing in the gift of $300,000 from her alumni.—Detroit Free Press.

City Subscribers to the Courier should leave their street and No. at this office at once to insure the delivery of their papers.

The Caro Jeffersonian has been looking up the hospital business and draws these wise conclusions: "We see that Gen. Alger, of Detroit, has offered to give $10,000 toward taking the clinics away from Ann Arbor and removing them to the former city. If the very generous gentleman had offered that amount of money toward establishing a hospital in Ann Arbor so the medical students at the University could have the advantages that such an institution would give, there would be some good sound reason as well as generosity in such a gift. But it is nonsense to suppose that a student who will go to one of the colleges in Detroit and take a six months' course for one or two years with all the clinics of the world at his command is as good as a student with a three years' course in Ann Arbor with nine months in each course, even with the limited clinics at their command there. The proper way to do is not to separate the clinics and school, by having the former in Detroit and the latter in Ann Arbor, but rather to build up a better clinic in Ann Arbor in connection with the University. The latter thing can be done, if the wealthy Detroit gentlemen would use the same means to do it as they do to remove the clinics from Ann Arbor."

The Detroit Free Press has this to say editorially, in its issue of July 7th: "The Ann Arbor 'Business Men's Association' is booming the resources and advantages of that city in a neat pamphlet wherein they are succinctly and illustratively presented. Location, climate, health, soil, temperature, government and financial condition are all set forth as attractively as the facts will permit, while the public buildings are shown pictorially. In point of fact the association is advertising the merits of Ann Arbor, and thereby showing its excellent judgment. The newspaper, of course, would be the best medium for carrying out their purpose; but next to that comes a readable and judiciously distributed pamphlet.

To most children, the bare suggestion of a dose of castor oil is nauseating. When physic is necessary for the little ones, use Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take. Try them.

UNIVERSITY ITEMS.

Specifications have been perfected and bids are wanted for the new laboratory, boiler house, dissecting building, and also for four new boilers.

Prof. A. H. Pattengill has been made full professor of Greek, and Elisha Jones full professor of Latin. They have held associate professorships heretofore.

Of our university Harper's Weekly says that "it is an institution in whose progress not a single state alone, but the whole country as well, may claim an interest."

Gov. Luce is said to be enjoying himself under a big tree in a fence corner of the harvest field with a cider-jug, cutting his wheat by the sweat of the hired man's brow.—Eaton Rapids Journal.

Prof. W. H. Payne is considering an offer from Haverford College of Philadelphia, Pa., a wealthy Quaker college. His salary there would be nearly double his salary here, which is a great inducement.

The regents have appropriated $6,000 from the contingent fund to erect a building for a dissecting room. This is a wise measure, for the perfume that pervades the medical college building in many parts is certainly not as sweet as patchouly.

The picture of Dr. Frieze presented to the university was by a modest man. President Angell has endeavored to gain permission to announce the name but the generous donor declines the publicity. It is an elegant picture of this gentleman who is so much loved by all who have known the university for the past quarter of a century.

Last Saturday there was hung in the lecture room of the law department a fine portrait of Judge Cooley, painted by L. T. Ives of Detroit, 48x58 in. in size, handsomely framed, the whole outfit costing about $500. The picture is the gift of Albert D. Elliot of York, Pa., a member of the graduating class of the law department, and is a gift that is fully appreciated by the university authorities. We are creditably informed that a portrait of Judge Campbell will soon be placed on the walls of the lecture room as a companion to it, the gift of a Detroit alumnus.

The Manitoba Daily Free Press, of July 5th, received at this office last Saturday, had this item:

Last evening's train from the south brought in Prof. J. B. Steere, of the Michigan State University, Ann Arbor. He is in charge of three students of the University, and is going to the Philippine Islands for a year's scientific study and exploration. They leave this morning for Vancouver, where they take the steamer Parthia for Yokohama and Hong Kong, and thence to their destination. With the party is Mateo Francisco, a native of the Philippine Islands, and he, with Prof. Steere and Mr. E. L. Moseley, one of the students, were registered at the New Douglass last night. The other two students arrived here on Sunday, and left yesterday morning to spend a day fishing at Kamloops. They will join the others there, and proceed at once on their journey.

"You can put it down as a straight pointer," said a gentleman in a position to be well posted, last Friday, "that Dr. Maclean will succeed in his undertaking to get the clinical department located at Detroit." Continuing he said: "Now if the regents move the clinical department to Detroit to meet the convenience of a professor who lives there, how long before the bealance of the school will be moved to meet the convenience of some other professor who will live at Detroit? I am informed that the sudden conversion of a certain professor of the medical department to this scheme of Dr. Maclean's is the promise given him that he will be provided for, and his great desire to live in Detroit, will then be gratified. Oh! I tell you, Mac is working this scheme with all of his Scotch shrewdness and with few scruples. You can put it down as certain that he will succeed."

APPOINTMENTS.

DON'T USE BIG WORDS!

In promulgating esoteric cogitations or articulating superficial sentimentalities and philosophical or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your statements possess a clarified conciseness, compacted comprehensibleness, coalescent consistency and a concentrated cogency. Eschew all conglomerations of flatulent garrulity, jejune babblement and asinine affectations. In trying to impress upon others the superiority, reliability, and purity of all medicines and chemicals at Goodyear's Drug Store it is not necessary to use jawbreakers. Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or thrasonical bombast. Sedulously avoid all pollysyllabic profundity psittaceous vacuity, ventriloqual verbosity vandiloquent vapidity; shun double entendres, prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity obscurent or apparent. In other words, talk plainly, naturally, sensibly, and truthfully, say, that Goodyear's Drug Store is really the best place in Washtenaw County to buy pure drugs, etc., at low prices; also that especial attention is given to the careful preparation of prescriptions and family medicines.

Ella H. Hoyt was granted a divorce from Edward C. Hoyt, in the circuit court Monday, by Judge Joslyn. The parties were formerly from Dexter, where Mrs. Hoyt still resides.

It is pretty hot weather to initiate candidates, but the K. P. boys are putting through some pretty good timber, and so much of it that they have to hold extra meetings to accommodate the candidates.

The resignation of Martin M. Seabolt, as alderman of the 4th ward, which was tendered Monday night will be regretted. There ought to be more business men in the council instead of having any drop out.

The Peninsular Paper Co. of Ypsilanti having lost their president, L. A. Barnes, by death, held an election last Thursday and made D. L. Quirk, president; J. E. Beal, secretary; and C. P. McKinstry, treasurer.

The Dexter Junior base-ball club came down to Ann Arbor Monday, and played a friendly game with a junior club of this city, beating our boys by a score of 14 to 11. The game was a very interesting one. Our boys will play at Dexter Tuesday.

Herman J. Eisele, the Detroit street grocer, died of consumption this morning after a lingering illness. He was a young man highly respected in the community, and his death will cause much sorrow among his many friends, and sympathy for his family.

The Midland Sun has been purchased by John N. Bailey, formerly proprietor of the Argus, of this city, who announces that he will change its politics from a free lance to an out-and-out straight democratic paper. Mrs. Clementia A. Corsellus died Friday July 9th, aged about 77 years, of general debility, and funeral services were held Sunday p. m. at 5½ o'clock from St. Andrews church, Dr. Earp officiating. Postmaster Duffy having found it impossible to cover such an extent of territory with so few carriers. The Postmaster General is invited to Ann Arbor to look over the extent of territory to be covered by carriers. A personal inspection would result in at least two more carriers —perhaps three.

The next recital of the Summer School of Music series will occur on Monday, July 18th, instead of upon the 14th as at first advertised. It will be held at Hobart Hall. The tramps are growing bolder continually in their actions. Besides annoying residents by a continual begging for meals, they are growing troublesome in other ways. A resident of the 3d ward, while driving home a few evening's since was stopped and not permitted to proceed until he had given a couple of men ten cents each. Is it impossible to have the people protected? Is there no law that will reach this class of out-laws? It is getting dangerous also for women to go upon the streets evenings unattended.

The Ladies' Charitable Union is making a beginning looking to the establishment of a Home for aged and infirm people. This Union has done a great deal of good in this community by furnishing aid to people who are deserving, and many a one has been kept from hunger and suffering through the true Christian workers in its ranks. It is thought that much more efficient aid can be given by having these people in a Home, where all their wants can be administered to. The Christian people of the city can afford to engage in this good cause and help it along.

ON A WHEEL.

The Fifth Annual Meet of the Michigan Division, L. A. W.

Last Friday may be looked upon as a gala day in this city, it being the occasion of the fifth annual meet of League of Wheelmen of this state. There were about 100 cyclers present, and the glistening wheels as they glided about the city, made a pretty appearance, besides giving it an air of life.

At 10 o'clock a. m. the business meeting was held at the rink. The club rooms of the Ann Arbor Bi. Club, in the St. James block, were headquarters during the meet. Chief Consul Johnson of Detroit presided at the meeting, the principal business being to listen to the report of the Secretary-treasurer which showed the organization to be in a prosperous condition financially and otherwise, the membership having increased 45. J. E. Beal of this city was re-elected secretary-treasurer, after which an address by T. J. Kirkpatrick, of Springfield, Ohio, the president of the national league, was listened to.

At 11:30 o'clock one of the most interesting contests of the day occurred, it being the climbing of the high hill in the fifth ward. It was something of a climb for the spectators, also, the sun pouring down its rays in a manner that made people wilt. There were three contestants, James H. Hedges of Adrian, who made the distance in 1 minute 53 seconds; W. E. Metzger, of Detroit, in 2:11½ and Geo. Farnsworth, of Adrian, in 2:15. At 12½ o'clock all the wheelmen gathered in front of the court house where a picture was taken of the meet by Gibson. After this a dinner at Haugsterfer's was served. At about 2 o'clock a line was formed of all the wheelmen in front of the St. James, and the cavalcade moved off in fours, then in twos and so on, followed by the judges and other officers of the day on four wheels. The line of parade was marked in many places by handsomely decorated residences.

At about 2½ o'clock the race around the campus—a forty acre plat, making just one mile—occurred, the entries for the same being Geo. Farnsworth, of Adrian, who took the first prize, making the distance in 3 min. 21 secs.; Fred. N. Henion, of Ann Arbor, came in second in 3:30 and E. M. Mooar, of Grand Rapids third.

The trick riding by C. H. Smith, of Detroit, which followed, elicited considerable applause, and the way he spun around the street on the large wheel of his bicycle after removing the rear one, was astonishing to the beholders.

The triangle race was probably the most exciting of the day. There were three contestants, W. W. Todd and James Hedges of the Adrian club, and George Kuebler of the Saline club. They left the corner of S. Main and Packard sts. at about 4 o'clock, and made the triangle, from here to Saline, from Saline to Ypsilanti and back to Ann Arbor again, 28 miles in remarkably quick time. Todd and Hedges came in neck and neck nearly, Todd crossing the line about a foot ahead of Hedges, covering the entire distance in 2 hours 12 minutes, Kuebler coming in a minute later.

In the evening a reception was given the attending wheelmen by J. E. Beal at his residence at the corner of Fifth and William sts., and the exercises of a remarkably enjoyable occasion ended.

BUGLE NOTES.

The only man who lost anything was a gentleman from Saline, who had too much confidence in his man.

Everybody had such a good time that they would be pleased to have the Meet meet again in Ann Arbor.

The day was a hot one, and the lookers-on as well as the racers themselves had short pants—for breath.

Chas. W. Wagner, Lew Clement and Evart H. Scott were in Detroit Saturday, and enjoyed the moonlight excursion on the river.

The most successful riders—in their own estimation at least—were the five who rode on four wheels, propelled by equine power, and brought up the van of the procession.

C. H. Smith and G. E. Holcomb, rode out from Detroit, Friday, on their bicycles in 3 hours, 25 minutes. Richard Steele, of St. Johns, came from Lansing Thursday, in eight hours. It is about 70 miles by the road.

A bicyclette, a modern improvement on the old-fashioned velocipede that was in vogue some 25 years since, was in the procession, and looked queer enough beside the great tall wheels. But there can be no headers from them.

One of the features of the parade was a tandem tricycle ridden by F. J. Kirkpatrick, of Ohio, President of the L. A. W., and J. H. Johnson, of Detroit, Chief Consul of the Michigan Division. The next day H. M. Snow, of Detroit, and J. E. Beal rode it into Detroit in four hours, a record which we think will not soon be beaten. They kept up with the twenty-five bicyclers who rode in, and, although it went somewhat harder in sand, on a hard surface road it easily kept up.

BACH & ABEL'S COLUMN.

Our Summer Silks begin to go slowly. There's only one sure way to liven them. Make the Prices so Low that you'll snap them on sight. That's what we have done. No half-way work; a Silk sensation.

They might sell in the next few weeks and they might not. We want no uncertainty. The time to hustle them out is when you are asking for them. Early fall arrivals will soon be pushing and crowding to get in; the Summer Stuff must go. You'll find a few Styles in window this week, Has been $1.00 and $1.25. This week 55 cents.

Women's White Embroidered Muslin dresses verycheap to close them out. No refuse or rubbish! Fresh, perfect and handsome. Have been $4.50 to $12. They're now $3 to $8.

SEERSUCKERS.

There are dozens of styles in which beauty seems to have been the last thing thought of. You think so when you see them in the piece; but whoever saw an ugly Seersucker when made up? The 9 cent Crinkles have been 12½ and this week the 12½ were 15 cents last week. Plenty of Creams at 5 cents. Plenty more at 6 cents. Rattling good quality, either of them, for much more than the price.

CORDED GINGHAMS.

Among the newest, nattiest, neatest of the Cotton novelties. You'll likely think they're from Paris. The idea is, there's French fancy in every pretty thread, but the work is Yankee. Price 12½ cents from 20.

PERCALE. The tough, yard wide "shirting" so many ladies are buying. Forty to fifty styles. 12½ cents from 16.

There is pushing and crowding every day about the 17 cent Sateen counter. They're worth an effort to get. Light or dark colors. Everyone has been 25 cents.

Do you suppose we'd sell such heaps and heaps of Muslin and Cambric Underwear if you could make it at home for anything like the money? You Can't.

PARASOL ITEMS. All of our $4.00 Satin and Lace trimmed Parasols now $3.00. Our $2.50 and $3.00 Satin and Lace trimmed Parasols now $2.00. If the worth of these goods were fully known we wouldn't have one left by Saturday night.
