OUR BREAD IN DANGER.

The United States Government Chemists, in their examinations of articles of food offered for Government use, have developed the alarming fact that almost all the brands of baking powders upon the market are made from alum or phosphates, or contain large quantities of lime or other adulterants. As a matter of fact, of the samples analyzed, the Royal was the only baking powder found free from all of these deleterious ingredients, and absolutely pure.

Alum is used as a substitute for cream of tartar to produce a cheap baking powder. It costs less than two cents a pound, whereas pure cream of tartar costs forty. The effect of alum upon the system has been ascertained to be poisonous, and overdoses have been attended with fatal results. The phosphate are next to the alum powders in cheapness. They contain a large amount of lime. The baking powders sold with a gift are of the alum or phosphate class.

Lime is the most useless adulterant yet found in baking powders. It is true that when subjected to heat it gives off a certain amount of carbonic acid gas, but a quicklime is left, one of the most powerful caustics known. Chemists have found twelve per cent., or one-eighth of the weight, of some of the baking powders advertised as pure to be lime.

The absolute purity and wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder-now affirmed by every chemist and food analyst of prominence, and conceded by all manufacturers of other brands -arise from the exclusive use of cream of tartar which is specially refined by patent processes that totally remove the lime and all other impurities. These facilities are possessed by no other manufacturer.

In his report, the United States Government Chemist says: "The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made for the United States Government. I will go still further and state that, because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public."

THROUGH the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Wray, Druggist, Apollo, Pa., I became acquainted with your Curtoura Hemenies, and take this opportunity to testify to you that their use has permanently cured me of one of the worst cases of blood poisoning, in connection with crysipelas, that I have ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our county. I take great pleasure in forwarding to you this testimonial, unsolicited as it is by yon, in order that others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your Curtoura Remenies a trial. Probably no sacred lyric had a wider popularity or elicited more unqualified oraise than this. For more than a century it has been sung in cottage and palace, in the modest meeting-house and lofty cathedral, in white-winged ships on distant oceans, by millions of dying beds, at the family fireside, and in mission lands, always bringing rest and consolation. Its exquisite sentiment, pure devotion, absorbing trust, child-like faith, and glowing love, breathes in every line. Christ as a refuge is the primal thought:

Other refuge have I none,
Hangs my helpless soul on Thee;
Leave, Ah! leave me not alone,
Still support and comfort me.
All my trust on Thee is stayed;
All my help from Thee I bring;

mall medicine chest, especially in the These chests can be bought at prices ranging from $3 to $25 according to size, kind of material used and beauty of finish. They contain square, velvet lined compartments into each of which a square, bottle with a ground glass stopper is fitted. Beneath is a drawer for salves, You can make your own chest, if handy with tools and disposed to be economical. I have had such a chest in use for over 20 years. It has paid me over and over, and has often spared me great anxiety of mind. It contains six four ounce bottles in which I keep Jamacia ginger, campho sweet spirits of nitre, a mixture of sweet oil and lime water, etc.; it also contains six two ounce vials which I keep filled with laudanum, paregoric, hive syrup, arnica, etc. In the drawer I keep chi rate of potash, sugar of lead, court plaster, ready spread mustard plaster, lint, a wad of cotton, etc. Every article is plainly labeled, and thus I have at hand many of the remedies most needed in or pinary emergencies.

It does not require a great knowledge of medicine to know what to use for the ordinary ailments of the human family, especially for the younger members. In cases of fever a teaspoonful of sweet spirits of nitre in a glass of water taken in small sips at small intervals is most excellent. A relief for scalds, burns, poison ivy, etc., will be found in an external ap olication of sweet oil and lime water. Jamacia ginger is used for cramps in the stomach. Sugar of lead used externally will reduce swellings of the limbs. Hive syrup is given for croup. Arnica is rub-bed on sprains, bruises, insect bites, etc. Chlorate of potash is used for sore throat.
Of course, if the case is a serious one, a by sician should be promptly consulted; but during the interval these simple remedies can be intelligently used, and such prompt and intelligent use is often of great service previous to the arrival of the physician. More than one physician has said to me, in substance, "you have checked the disease in its early stage; I

ANN ARBOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The first school opened in this city was in the year 1825, the next year following its settlement, in a building situated where Mr Duffy's store now is, opposite the present postoffice. History tells us that Miss Monroe was the teacher, and a few rude benches and a chair constituted the furniture. In 1830 the public schools were organized here, and the high school building own below (or one-half of it) was erected in 1855; to which the eastern half was Daniel B. Briggs was the first principal of schools in the new building. He was followed by U. W. book one that contains a reasonable balance of mental and written work The book in present use was adopted about 20 years ago. We have made some progress in teaching Geography. Instead of committing pages of the Geography to memory, and hunting out the answers to quantities of map questions, the child is put to observing and studying the map. The elevation, the drainage the contour, large towns, and even the climate, soil, and productions, are objects of map study. Nearly all geo-graphical facts are read from the map. The map thus becomes a picture-species of objective reality, embodying all the child's geographical knowledge. The subject matter and maps of the text-book are constantly used for reference and information. What we greatly need in this connection is a good set of physical wall maps in all the 5th, 6th and 7th grade rooms in the city. With respect to History and Geography as related to each other, we have always aimed to introduce considerable History into the Geography work—and considerable Geography into the History work; but during the past year in the 5th Grade we have combined History and Geography, in about equal proportions.

This seems to be the ideal way of teaching these subjects in lower grades, and thus far the experiment seems very satisfactory.

The exhibit for the second year, or

It is well occasionally to give expression to views upon the matter of discipline in the schools. I believe that good order, and discipline of a Mayer, John Mayer, Albert Staebier, Theo. Stanger, Alice Staebier, Philip Weinman, Alfred Weinman, John positive type, are essential characteristics of every school that answers the purpose of its existence. The best discipline is that which secures order and studiousness through the personal lie De Fries, Julia Mayer, Adolph Mogk, Lena Noll, Anna Wesch. and studiousness through the personal power and persuasive arts of the teacher. It begins at the heart and works out in conduct. But all teach-ers are not thus gifted, or experienced, nor are all pupils thus subject to the gentler influences. Therefore either corporal punishment must, at times, be resorted to, or more of the dis-orderly class of pupils must be ban-ished from the school. Julia Gwinner, Cassius Orr, William

It is often more merciful to punish a child in school, than to send him into the street where the surroundings are morally hurtful, and often invite to evil. In the use of the rod the teacher is to be reasonable, and is under the same restraint legally as a parent, in the punishment of his own children. But public opinion is often intolerant of school punishment, and is given to hasty judgments against the teacher inflicting them—judgments that very often cripple the use fulness of the school.

weaken the teacher's confidence in her support, to slacken the reins of good government in the schools, and to increase the number of cases of suspension-a result which we all alike deplore, and which, by a little candid reflection we might prevent. HIGH SCHOOL increase of 28 over the preceding year. This increase would have warranted an additional teacher in the department, but there was no room in the building for an additional class. The only alternative was to place the surplus classes out of regular school hours—in the afternoon—and call up-on the regular teachers to instruct them with pro rata additional wages. The amount of such extra pay was $446.75. This does not include $75 paid for the correction of essays in English work. The cost was about the same as would have been that of one teacher for the full year, but the arrangement is open to objection on several grounds. Teachers cannot ordinarily spend six and seven hours per day in the class room as efficiently as they can five hours. Pupils are annoyed by it, as it breaks up their continuous study hours in the afternoon. Moreover the good order of the

has been carried forward with the customary force and efficiency. I can-not speak too highly of most of the instruction; it comports well with the wide reputation of the school, and with the promises held out for pat-ronage. While this is true in general is it not possible that we sometimes forget the great responsibilities that are laid upon us to furnish to the pu pils resorting hither, the best possible facilities for education in all of the varied courses and branches offered in the school? Especially it is to be hoped that we may soon have facilities for microscopic work in Botany and Physiology, and that the instruction in Elecution and General English may be given the scope and opportunity their importance demands. The school is apparently well entrenched in public confidence, but to insure its retention of that position, its equip-ment for doing its work must be gen-

made special proficiency in this work the preceding year. Their assistance proved to be efficient and satisfactory. The following table gives the branches taught in the High School during the year, and the number of pupils in each branch.

We devote a considerable space this week to our schools, but we know of no better way to use it. Schools that are so popular that $6,000 is received in one year from foreign tuition, are entitled to a great deal of consideration at the hands of the local press. The facts and figures given our readers this week, are taken from the yearly reports and show com-pletely the workings of the entire school system of the city for the year. The en-rollment at the High School is far in excess of last year at a corresponding date and last year was in excess of all previ-

The Courier suggests an employment office, where persons having light jobs or chores to do, might find the person to do it. Many years ago, there was an old gentleman in Ypsilanti who made a good business, especially in the fall of the year, by going from house to house, with a box containing a few handy tools, screws, nails, putty, etc., to perform little jobs of repair to doors, windows, or whatever might be in need. If the work required something that he did not have with him, he made a note of it and came

With such a corps of teachers in charge of the schools, our patrons may be assured that the education of their children will be in safe hands. A large measure of the teacher's best endeavors will always be due to the appreciative support of those to whom they stand most nearly and officially related; and for the many words of encouragement, generously spoken by the Board, the teachers in your employ have reason to be spe-cially grateful.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Tax Not a License. ED. OF THE COURIER :- I notice that the liquor dealers you always speak of it as "the liquor tax money," while other papers and people generally call it "liquor license money." Which is right, and what is the difference anyway, between a license and a tax, if any? Both permit the sale of intoxicating liquors I notice. Very truly yours, SUBSCRIBER.

DEXTER, Sept. 5th, 1887.

[The Courier is correct in calling the the demonstrations of Labor day. There were upwards of 1,000 carpenters in a body in the line of procession, which was money received from a tax, not a license. estimated to contain about 13,000 laborers. There is all the difference in the world money received from a tax, not a license. between the two. A tax is a burden placed upon a business, and convevs no immunity or privileges other than such is enjoyed by every citizen or person in the conduct of their business. A license may or may not be a burden placed upon a business. It is a special permission to carry on a business, giving a special protection, in fact a guarantee of security. The taxing of the liquor traffic gives it no special immunity, or promise of safety, for the next day after paying his tax a saloon keeper may have his saloon closed by law, without placing the authorities who took the tax, the county or the state, under any obligation-not even the return of the money. So you see the difference is quite apparent between a tax and a license. Michigan has no license law.]

An Outrage on the Public. TO THE ED. OF THE COURIER :- The common council of this city have been engaged quite extensively of late in the street opening business. I notice they have opened W. Jefferson st., built a bridge thereon over the creek and expended a large amount of city funds in its improvement. The council mean well with him, he made a note of it and came again. In this way he made a living for himself, and was a useful member of the community, until death. But he had no successor, and it is a difficult matter now to find a man to do a small job, without sending to a builder, who will "send a man," and charge a half day for an hour's the land through which it present and the process and the land through which it present and the process and the land through which it present and the process and the land through which it presents and the land through which it presents and the land through which it presents. The people of this city should not be called upon to open up and place in the market lands belonging to Mr. A. or Mr. B. or Mr. C. The opening of W. It made no difference to the people of this city, Mr. Editor, whether the land along the line of W. A Good Investment

A Good Investment is that which yields large returns from a small outlay. Reader, the way is clear! No speculation, no chance, big returns! If you are like most of mankind you have somewhere a weakness—don't feel at all times just as you'd like to—head-ache to-day, backache to-morrow, down sick next week—all because your blood is out of order. A small outlay and what large returns! You invest in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and soon pure, fresh blood courses through your veins, and you are another being!
