Analyzing the Baking Powders.

"Royal," only, found free from lime, alum, and phosphatic acid, and absolutely pure.

Under the direction of the New York State Board of Health, eighty-four different kinds of baking powders, embracing all the brands that could be found for sale in the State, were submitted to examination and analysis by Prof. C. F. CHANDLER, a member of the State Board and President of the New York City Board of Health, assisted by Prof. EDWARD G. LOVE, the wellknown United States Government chemist.

The official report shows that a large number of the powders examined were found to contain alum or lime; many of them to such an extent as to render them seriously objectionable for use in the preparation of human food.

Alum was found in twenty-nine samples. This drug is employed in baking powders to cheapen their cost. The presence of lime is attributed to the impure cream of tartar of commerce used in their manufacture. Such cream of tartar was also analyzed and found to contain lime and other impurities, in some samples to the extent of 93 per cent of their entire weight.

All the baking powders of the market, with the single exception of "Royal" (not including the alum and phosphate powders, which were long since discarded as unsafe or inefficient by prudent housekeepers), are made from the impure cream of tartar of commerce, and consequently contain lime to a corresponding

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! A COUNTRY SUMMER PASTORAL.

Flee from the city's rule and law,
From its fashion and form cut loose,
And go where the strawberry grows on its straw,
And the gooseberry grows on its goose;
Where the catnip tree is climbed by the cat
As she crouches for her prey—
The guileless and suspecting rat
On the rattan bush at play.

I will watch at ease the saffron cow
And her cowlet in their glee,
As they leap in joy from bough to bough
On the top of the cowslip tree;
Where the musical partridge drums on his drum,
And the woodchuck chucks his wood,
And the dog devours the dogwood plum
In the primitive solitude.

Oh, let me drink from the moss-grown pump That was hewn from the pumpkin tree, Eat mush and milk from a rural stump, From form and fashion free; New-gathered mush from the mushroom

And milk from the milk-weed sweet, With luscious pineapple from the pine— Such food as the gods might eat!

Of grasshoppers out to grass.

—[S. W. Foss in Tid-Bits. SHADOWS AND LIGHT.

To the fragrant farmyard pass, When the farmer turns his beautiful herd

My wond'ring eyes are set,
fo see the trees look cold and bare
Where erst earth's glories met;
fhe greenwood shade, where song of bird
in joyous notes the bosom stirred,
Alas! by me no more is heard—
So runs the heart's regret.

Where are the many beauties gone
That gleamed beneath the sun,
Where are the joys that thro' them shone
When summer's lints were spun?
They go to crown another year
With leaf as green, and song as cheer,
With thought as fair, and hope as dear
As rhythm e'er begun.

The leaves that grow on yonder trees,
Oh! whither are they fled?
Whose glories kissed October's breeze
In wanton sport o'erhead?
They lie beneath December's snow,
Breathing new life to earth below;
Whose green from Death doth ever flow—
A wondrous joy outspread.

Whence comes the snow, so pure, so fair,
So pulseless and so cold?
Whence comes the bitter, biting air
That doth the crystals mould?
They come to vest the year in gloom;
They come as Death, to things that bloom;
They come the heralds of the tomb,
When Autumn spills his gold.

So fade the charms that Nature yields,
So wither and decay;
To-day a joy that decks the fields
With thits of beauteons May;
To-morrow's shadows, drear and lone,
Which darken scenes where anniheams shone,
Until God's mercy rolls the stone
Of gloom and death away.

Thus youth brings age and winter's snows,
Unerring as the years;
Thus fall of leaf brings summer's rose
Thro's showers of April tears;
Thus life must pass from death to life
Thro' beams of sunshine, cloud and strife,
Tfil Heaven is gained with glories rife
And God's fair light appears.

Patrick Carey, in Troy (N. Y) Times HOW TO GET MARRIED.

An Outline of the Necessary Prelimina-ries Required by the New Law.

The new marriage license law, which goes into effect next Wednesday, provides that before a marriage ceremony can be ested must obtain a marriage license from the County Clerk of the county in which elther the man or woman resides, and de liver such license to the clergyman or magistrate who is to officiate, before the marriage can be performed. Blanks for marriage licenses and certificates must be provided with blanks for the following tems: The full name, age, color, place of residence, place of birth, occupation, and, f known, the father's name and mother's maiden name, of the persons to be mar-ried; the number of times either of the parties may have been previously mar-ried; the bride's maiden name in case she is a widow; the date of the giving of the license; the signature of the county clerk; the date and place of marriage, and the certification of the officiating clergyman or magistrate that the marriage contemplated by the license has been performed by him. An affidavit must be made containing the requisite allegations, under the laws of this state, of the competency of the parties to mar ry, and filed with the county clerk as a basis for issuing the license. The affidavit as well as license must be made a mat-ter of record in the clerk's office, and the date and place of marriage with the name and residences of two witnesses to the marriage, and the name of the minister or magistrate officiating must also be recorded in a book of registration. ninister is to keep a duplicate of all these

If a minister or magistrate shall marry any parties not producing the required license, he will be fined $100, and be sent to jail for 90 days if the fine s not paid, and the same penalty attaches if he does not make a full return as re quired by law. My speech will have but one merit of which I am sure, and that is, that of the twenty minutes assigned to me by your generous chairman. I propose to give ten of them to the ladies, provided they will allow me to come down there and ta!k with them. [Laughter.] I desire to express my thanks to the committee for the high honor they have done me in assigning me the pleasant duty of responding to this sentiment. I am sure you all profoundly regret, and I am sure that no one so profoundly regrets as I that our personation and the embodiment and representative of the sovereignty of the nation, even in its hours of direst peril; and you, citizens, become soldiers, are the right arm of his power, the only source of his power, who stand ready at all times to deal fatal blows to all offenders. From Nashville to the sea, from Vicksburg to the Appomattox, from the center to the circumference of the land, through the crowded streets of our great cities where desperate lawlessness at times rears one so profoundly regrets as I that our worthy Chief Magistrate himself is not present here to-night to respond to this sentiment in his felicitous manner. How TO SAVE THE BEES.

Owing to the extremely poor season many bees will be left to starve the coming winter. Somehow bee-keepers and especially farmers, seem to think that if the bees cannot gather honey enough or their own support they ought to be left to starve. They do not seem to apply this rule to any other kind of stock. Many colonies could no doubt be saved by feeding a very few pounds of honey or sugar syrup. The would-be successful bee-keeper will see that the bees are supplied with sufficient stores for the winter, and September is the best time to place for a fountain. Our opinion is that if a man can't be satisfied with the opportunities this country affords, he had better stay away. We have a great deal of patience with honest criticism, but when the anarchist begins to break things and to use the knife and pistol we are apt to handle him a little roughly. It's a way we have, a sort of excentricity, which is apt, as in the prescase, to produce disagreeable results.— New York Herald.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics. But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad busi-ness and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.
