THE UNIVERSITY. The Fifty-First Year of its Usefulness Opens Auspiciously.

A Brief History of the Institution. This week the University of Michigan begins the first year of its second Semestrial, and forty-nine years after this one, it is altogether probable that one of the greatest centennial celebrations of any of the great schools of learning in the nation will be celebrated by the alumni and friends of the University here at Ann Arbor.

In view of this being the opening week, we have considered it quite appropriate to give our readers a sort of a university illustrated edition. Consequently excellent cuts of nearly every building on the campus is given in this issue.

The governing power is a board of regents, eight in number, elected by the people, two of whom are chosen at the spring election of every even numbered year.

It isn't ability quite so much in this world as it is energy that brings success. And where great success is obtained it is the combination of both—a rare combination, some way.

places were not open to them and many years passed before the oddity ceased to affect people, but to-day many of our people who keep roomers and boarders prefer the "co-eds," as they are termed in college vernacular.

In 1871 the present main hall, connecting the north and the south wings, was erected; in 1875 the Homoeopathic College, the Dental College and the Hospital were provided for by the Legislature; in 1881 the Literary Building, and in 1888 the Mechanical Laboratory was completed.

It was not until 1858 that steps were taken by the Regents to establish a Law Department. On October 3, 1859, the Law school was opened.

Immediately after the close of the civil war the number of students in the different departments was greatly increased.

It is quite impossible by any concise statement or schedules to give an adequate notion of the financial difficulties encountered, work done, and the growth and development of the University in its different departments since its organization, nor to portray the many interesting events in years past—the "rushes," the hazing, college politics, college organization, etc.

President Angell entered upon the duties of his office in 1871, and under his administration the university has prospered well, and during the past year boasted 1,572 students.

It was in 1858 that the question of the admission of women to the privileges of the University first arose. Among the Regents and Faculty the objection to co-education was strong, and application on the part of the young ladies was refused. The controversy over this question continued until 1870, when by a resolution of the Regents the University was thrown open to the fair sex.

Miss Madelon L. Stockwell, of Kalamazoo, was admitted to the classical course in February, 1870, and in the fall of that year eleven other young ladies entered the Literary Department, three the Department of Pharmacy, eighteen the Medical Department and two the Law Department.

The number of ladies in the various departments during the past year was about 300. There was at first a decided prejudice among Ann Arbor people against "lady students." Many of the boarding

HOW TO BE HAPPY.

Keep your temper. Practice strict temperance. Go to Goodyear for ginger ale and soda water.

Never be in an unfitting hurry. Buy all your drugs of Goodyear. Persevere against discouragement. Rise early and be an economist of time. Never acquiesce in immoral or pernicious opinions.

Maintain dignity without the appearance of pride. Have your prescriptions accurately put up by Goodyear.

Be guarded in discourse, attentive and slow to speak. Think nothing in conduct unimportant or indifferent.

Manner is something with everybody, and everything with some. And good, clean, nice goods are everything to a buyer. Goodyear keeps them.

Preserve self-possession, and do not be talked out of conviction. Be prudent and forward in business, and never to assign reasons to those who have no right to ask.

But ask for what you want at Goodyear's and you will be politely waited on. Ofttimes the blackness which we believe we see in others is only our own shadow.

Live within your income; be saving, avoid as much as possible either borrowing or lending.

Go to J. J. Goodyear, the druggist, for anything in his line, and you will be so well pleased that you will always trade with him afterwards.

The weather is not very propitious for the fair this week, and it is a thing to be regretted, for never in the history of the society has there been such a fine display. In live stock especially is this true. The management has been obliged to build two extra sheds, one for cattle and another for horses, and all are filled to overflowing. In the line of cattle there is an exhibit that would do honor to any state fair.

The general feeling throughout the city is greatly in favor of an ordinance for bidding the burning of leaves and rubbish in the streets, and Aid Wines' ordinance would be heartily approved by many people who have suffered from the infernal nuisance of the smoke of burning leaves. How would it do to set aside certain days for the purpose if it must be done, and let the air be purified the rest of the year.

The commissioners appointed to condemn the land owned by Luther James near William st., consisting of Alfred Davenport, of York, J. F. Spaffard, of Manchester and E. M. Cole, of Superior, met at the office of Judge of Probate Monday, and heard a statement of the case, Hon. A. J. Sawyer acting as counsel for the T. & A. R. R. Co., and Hon. John F. Lawrence for Mr. James. The commissioners viewed the land and adjourned until Thursday, to-morrow.

Geo. A. Brown, first vice president and acting president of the Student's Christian Association, informs us that there is no truth whatever in the report that the association had resolved to pay only $2 per week for rooms for their members. The association has taken the trouble to obtain lists of rooms with their prices, which are open for the inspection and use of the members, and others, and that constitutes all of their action in reference to rooms. Which explanation we are pleased to make.

They had come in to the fair. A young lady, clad in a plain calico dress, was walking up S. Main street this a. m., holding the hand of a youth of 20 or thereabouts, with a rural look about him. When they reached a certain grocery the young man saw a basket of coconuts on the sidewalk. He quickly dropped the girl's hand, and, rushing into the store, exclaimed, excitedly: "Say, mister, gimme tin cents' worth of them big pretzels with hair on 'em. Gosh, but won't I make the old man's eyes stick out."

State University, granted me a state certificate for life without examination on my diploma from the U. of M., and recommendation from her professors."

Dr. Vaughan in his lecture on Sanitary Science yesterday cautioned all of the class about drinking the water, either from wells or the water works, without the same having been first boiled. He said that typhoid fever follows a dry summer as sure as night follows day, and he predicted that it would rage here to a great extent this fall and winter. In the same lecture he advised students as to the desirability of obtaining well ventilated rooms.

Anton Eisele, the well-known Detroit street marble dealer, died Monday morning last, after a long illness, of consumption. Mr. Eisele was born in Germany in 1840, and was consequently 47 years old. Mr. Eisele came to Ann Arbor directly from Wurtemberg, Germany, in 1860, and within a few years afterward engaged in business with his brother, John, to which business he succeeded in 1860, and has since carried on. He was a prominent member of the St. Lawrence Benevolent Society, the C. M. B. A., the German Workingmen's Association, the A. O. U. W., president of the Beethoven Gesangverein, and a leading member of St. Thomas' church choir. Mr. Eisele was well known to all of our business men, had served two terms as supervisor and one term as alderman of the 4th ward, and was highly respected in the community. He leaves a wife and seven children. The funeral services will be held Thursday (to-morrow) morning, at 9 1/2 o'clock, from St. Thomas' church, of which he was a member.

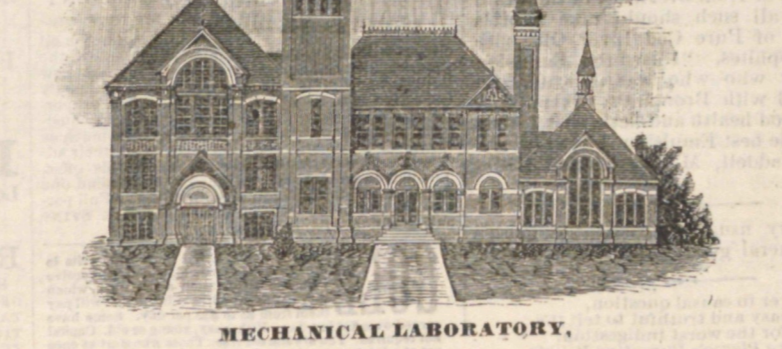

CHEMICAL LABORATORY.

J. T. Jacobs has sold two Holstein heifers to go on to a farm near Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. M. M. Tuttle has just returned from Chicago, where she purchased some of the "sweetest, prettiest, loveliest bonnets" that she ever brought on, so the ladies say.

There are some nice unfurnished rooms to rent at No. 18 Cemetery st. That handsome carriage which A. R. Schmidt took to the state fair not only took the prize, but was quickly taken as a prize by a wealthy Cincinnati who wanted something superior for his own use. Mr. Schmidt feels quite happy over his success.
