Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried severel doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best known remedies in the conner without effect. I asked her to try your Cutteura Remedies. Got her a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bettles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot telp stating to you about your wonderful Cutticura Remedies. You have saved my mother's life, I cannot find words to express my EDWARD LUEDER, 1505 Broadway, N. Y.

CUTICURA, the great skin cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, prepared from it, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT. the new blood purifier, internally, are a positive cure for every form of skin and blood diseases from pimples to scrofula.

Sold everywhere. Price: CUTICURA, 50 cents Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1.00. Prepared by the Potter Drug & Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases," 64 pages, 50 illustrations, and 100 testimonials.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking ensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodical from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of stantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing effected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of Sanford's Radical Cure manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, and safe.

SANDFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bot-tle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER; price $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON.

But when I spoke to Mrs. Brown
Her inmost soul was shaken,
To think that Mrs. Green could be
So very much mistaken.
She did assure me Johnny was
As good a child as any,
Except for learning naughty things
From Mrs. Whiting's Benny.

And Mrs. Whiting frets because Of Mrs. Blackham's Freddy
She fears he's taught young Benjamin
Some wicked tricks already.
Yet Fred is such an innocent

QUESTIONINGS.

Tell me, O dying day, Before thou fadest away Kissed by the sun.
Hast thou no vague regret,
Now that the sun is set,
That life is done?

Tell me, O rapturous night,
If the soft starry light
Fills the desire?
Hast thou no discontent
When the warm day is spent
Without its fire? Teil me. O world remote,
If no light shadows float
Over the sky?
Teil me, I fain would know
If longings come and go
After we die.

THE SCHEME OF THE PRINCESS MOLL.

BY EMMA SHERWOOD CHESTER. It was not very deep laid, and it did not in the end prove altogether successful, but being a scheme, and devised by the Princess Moll, her brother has chosen to record it. She came to us rather late in our lives, and found, if not exactly a welcome, at least a perambulator in our halls and a bib at our table.

There were four of us in or just out of college when, at the beginning of a long vacation, we were called upon to rejoice at her arrival. "Quite a little prince mother remarked, when for the first time we stood in a row before her, and presented our compliments, or what mother was pleased to term as such. to the roll of muslin and lace in a bassinet; and some how from that hour our sister was known as" the Princess Moll."

Tom was in uniform, and I in cap and gown, and for this reason we believed the princess selected us her favorites from the first. "Gad!" said Tom, with a mix-ture of horror and astonishment, "look at her make eyes at me. Do they do that usually at her age?"

But Tom is inordinately vain, and the "eyes" of which he spoke were the mere languid roll of a pair of blue optics that might quite as well have chanced upon me as him

Well, Moll had come to stay, we discovered, but with the exception of an occasional cry from the nursery or the roll of the preambulator under our windows, we heard and saw little of her. Tom went back to West Point, and Winthrop Tomore Cornell To joined the sophomores of Cornell. Malcolm and me, who were engaged in choosing a profession, remained the privilege of becoming better acquainted with the Princess Moll.

She had reached the age of eighteen months when I was first called upon to rescue her from a position of peril. Gradgrind, the maid—my mother is English, and calls her American servants by their surnames, to their own mystification and resentment—had "stepped off a piece," and let the preambulater oscillating on a edge of rock at Newport.

It was a charming day, and the princess was, I observed, as I gathered her from the sand into which the perambulator had eventually plunged, arrayed in her best. She wore a little coat of a silky cloth, and a white plush cap that reared up in the crown in an altogether fetching manner. Happily no one but Gradgrind, who until she began to cry, when I told her that the thing must never be repeated, and myself adjusted Moll in the coach.

The princess seemed instinctively to perceive that Gradgrind, whom she never appeared to love, had in some mysterious way come off conqueror in this affair, and pouted her disapproval at both me and the maid. When I stepped back to allow the coach to precede me, she made frantic gestures with her hands, which were encased in small white mittens, and fairly drove Gradgrind from her post. She then bent her eyes upon me in an imperious manner, which caused me to cringe.

"Ah, but dear princess," I mentally ex-

Now Gradgrind, who had a face of the heavy, manly type, and a figure like an encyclopædia, was not the sort of person to call forth that kind of remark, and I could afford to laugh good-humoredly. "Don't you see the fix I'm in—the kind of prisoner of Chillon I've got to be?" It's a scheme of Moll's to enslave me and there's no more escape from her than from Norn. She had me at the Casino and on the avenues till I'm the figure of the day. She stops at the bazaar, and sent? calls my attention to the rugs; and she even went so far as to demand a Persian lamp, which—heaven help me!—I bought for her, and permitted her to carry home. Malcolm grinned. "As if she didn't try her little game on me, and if I'd allow myself to be guiled that way! Gradgrind do love me!"

to the Princess Moll, and the Princess As I uttered Moll to Gradgrind? I'm the slave to not infant." So I was a slave, and to an infant. Well, I had suspected it. But why should Matcolm stand there tapping a racket on his arm, and grinning like a gargoyle? I suppose the fellows of my club looked that way when I passed—and gargoyle? I suppose the fellows of my club looked that way when I passed—and Miss Reardon.

I had discovered the intention of the princess to thwart all possibility of a mysteb between me and the latter for match between me and the latter, for which she had taken the popular method of making me appear ridiculous in the eyes of the one woman before whom I desired to shine. Only that very morning we had passed her, the princess imbibing the juice of an orange through a column of striped candy, while I wiped the escaping nectar from the front of her coat with my handkerchief. Gradgrind contrived to look provokingly detached from us at that moment too. Miss Reardon, sweet girl, never so much as smiled, but bowed gravely, and with a lingering expression which would, under other circumstances, have filled me with happiness. The princess frowned, withdrew the striped column from her lips, and said, "Go 'way!" in unmistakable accents to the lady who proposed to do

But the coach was lurching violently back and forth, swayed by Moll's angry objections. "N-o-o! n-o-o!"

At this she redoubled her screams, and

"She doesn't always behave so," I explained weakly. "It is an absurd fancy she has that my time is exclusively hers. The sooner she is broken of it the better;" and so saying, I threw the tiny hands back into her lap and walked resolutely away with Miss Reardon. But I did not has already been completed in northern has already been completed in northern has already been completed in northern enjoy one moment of that walk. The tones of my companion's voice echoed in ears as baby lamentations. The imploring anguish of Moll's eyes pursued me over every inch of the way. Whether justly or not, I suffered the remorse of a "It is very pretty," Miss Reardon re-

"Pretty!" I reiterated bitterly. "Yes. I suppose it is your choice of a fad. Some run to moose-skin gaiters and some to terra cotta Derbys. Yours took

"Good heavens!" I protested, "you don't for a moment fancy that it is a matter of choice with me, my dangling after the Princess Moll?"

"Oh, they all make a virtue of their folly. I suppose it is martyrdom to wear salmon colored gloves or a bangle for dear Marbro's sake."

I fairly groaned. "Oh, that you should so misinterpet me. I swear to you on my nor that I have suffered more from the importunity of that child than tongue can tell. She froze to me from the min-ute I first committed the fatal mistake of Moll gurgled triumphantly, as well she might, for it was the successful preface to her scheme. Daily after that she contrived to attach me to her train, until one morning Malcolm, encountering the interesting trio at the gate, demanded: "I say, is it Gradgrind or Moll?"

"Because love has a tendency to make money—for its object; whereas I have nover doubt that love of the genuine sort was ever evolved out of mere money.

The objects of this Convention are to form a Republican League for the State of Michigan; to supervise and to encourage the formation of permanent clubs in every county; and to give a unity of sound Republican principles may be established and maintained.

Each club shall be entitled to as many delegates as it shall elect, but shall have only one vote. Where clubs are already existing, they are requested to meet and elect delegates; while in those places not having a club organization Republicans are urged to form one at once and send representatives. Eligibility to membership in the League consists in the Republican Club having a constitution and a membership of twenty.

Prohibition will effect Vineyards and Apple Orchards. EDITOR COURIER: In the last number of your valuable paper I attempted to recite some reasons, as viewed from a business standpoint, why it would not be an act of wisdom on the part of the elecan act of wisdom on the part of the elec-tors of this county to adopt the prohibi-tory, or as it is more generally known, "the local option law." This common designation of the law, however, is a misnomer. It is not properly a "local" but a "county" option law. A local option law would be option by townships option law would be option by townships, villages and municipalities.

This week I shall present a few more reasons. In this article the business of the farmer and the fruit grower is con-

The farmer who casts his ballot in favor of the adoption of the law in question, with the idea that the results will alone effect his city fellow citizens, makes an egregious error. He will be astonished to find himself a criminal under its provisions, but he is assuredly liable to neet with such a contingency.

By examining this proposed law, it will be found that its provisions are sweeping in their scope and of an iron-clad nature. You can not manufacture, buy, sell, keep or give away any brewed, malt, fermented, vinous or intoxicating iquors of any kind, description or name.

That precludes the manufacture of cider. The moment the juice is out of the apple fermentation sets in, and the farmer who makes the beverage characterized by Dr. Reynolds, of red ribbon fame, as "the devil's kindling wood," is certainly liable to criminal prosecution, fine and imprisonment. He may say that the law will not be enforced so rigidly as to include cider. That makes no difference with the fact. If he keeps cider in his house, or asks a neighbor to have a glass of it, he is a criminal in the eyes of the law, and if he should be so unfortunate as to have an enemy an act of that kind might cause him serious trouble.

might cause him serious trouble.

Our cider mills must stop making cider, and the apples that go into its manufacture become practically a dead loss on the hands of the farmer. A loss that is not

Liquor Manufacturers Say That High License Does Not Hurt the Liquor Trade or Diminish Drinking. Boom Ann Arbor by Local Option!

Admiral Luce of the IJ S. navy said after two summers in Portland, that in no city could he allow his sailors such liberty and in none was there such a freedom from drinking. If high license laws are such a blessing—aid the temperance cause so much, why does the liquor trade favor it?

We quote from some of the leading western liquor manufacturers and dealers. First from the largest distilling company in Nebraska, Willow Springs Distilling Co., P. S. Iler, Pres; J. H. Iler, Sec. Omaha, Neb., Jan. 7 1888: "High icense has not hurt our business. I do the Convention. Every Republican is most earnestly requested to see to it that his county is represented.

JUNIUS E. BEAL,

The Convention. Every Republican is not think high license lessens the quantity of liquor used. I would be in favor or high license rather than trust to the non-enforcement of the law under prohibition. We have had a great deal of business in the state of Iowa, both be-fore it was prohibition and since, and we can say positively that there is very little satisfaction in doing business in that state now. Ever so often the goods are seized and is causes a great deal of delay and trouble to get them released; and then there is the fear of not getting money for the goods and all the forms we have to go through make it very annoy ing business. It is like running a rail-road underground. I believe that high license is one of the grandest laws for the liquor traffic." Second, from Dick Bros. Brewing Co., of Quincy, Ill., one of the largest in that state, rated by the merchantile agencies from $300,000 to $500,-

000. Office of Dick Brothers Brewing Co., Quincy, Ill., Jan. 6, 1887: "High license has not hurt our business so far. taxes, it taxes." You may grant local option which appears to be connected now with all license laws, but they may make such local option laws as oppressive as prohibitory laws, as it is done now in the state of Missouri. Prohibitory laws may not be enforced but can be enforced as many examples in Kansas and Iova show. By all means prevent the passage of prohibitory laws." Third, from the leading brewers in $1,000 high license Omaha: Metz & Bros., Brewers and Maltzers, Omaha, Nebraska, Jan. 26, 1898 "High license has been of no in 1888. "High license has been of no injury to our business. In our opinion high license does not lessen the consumption of liquor." Note first, that high li-cense does not hurt the liquor business. Second, that there is as much liquor drank under high license as ever. Third, that prohibiton and local option does hurt the business. This testimony comes from Nebraska where the license is fixed at $1,000 and Illinois, where there is the Harper high license law, and from private letters addressed to their brothers in the liquor trade in New York and not in-square miles, and population in proportion. Yet when the supervisor of Lyndon meets the supervisor of Waterloo to divide the fractional school district tax, here would hurt business. This is a big mistake. It hurts the liquor trade but assists all other legitimate business. The money spent for liquor is not spent cab. that property each side of the county line may pay proportionately. You will see by the above that Lyndon with 36 square miles is assessed for more dollars than Waterloo with 54 square miles and 50% more inhabitants.

Comrades Greene, Dr. students by exchanging places with his lecture and quiz hours, last week.

Breakey and Saunders were appointed a committee on resolutions, which will be presented at the next meeting of the Post.

The following poem, written by Comrade J. H. Stark, of Welch Post, is very appropriate to the occasion: One by one our comrades leave us For the eternal camping ground Yes, our ranks are fast depleting, As the years go rolling round.

Soon our grand victorious army Will have passed in last review, Soon life's battle will be ended. Soon the dark stream forded through. Let our remnant stand together,
As we stood in danger's hour,
Union was our strength in battle,
Broke forever slavery's power.

Broke the chains and broke the fetters, Never to be forged again, Made our starry flag float proudly O'er a broad and free domain. Let us never be disheartened,
Though we often feel neglect
From our country which brave tho
Gave their life's blood to protect.

They placed all upon the altar, Suffering what no pen can write, To preserve forever union To the North and South unite. Of our deeds as well as hardships Let a prosperous country tell, This should satisfy us, comrades. That our work was done so well.

Let the glorious recollection
That we kept our country one,
Be our legacy to loved ones
When our earthly mission's done. JACOB H. STARK. Adjutant Welch Post. Ann Arbor, Feb. 7, 1838.

Penny Press. Frank Jones (not from Saline) familiarily known to the people as Si Perkins, is to appear at the opera house on Saturday evening, February 11th, in his inimitable drolleries. Of this performance the Kingston, N. Y. Leader says:

This is solely an insurance organization, and has proven very satisfactory to its membership. There have been six assessments during the year. One feature is an emergency fund, deposited in the state treasury of Massachusetts, which now is over $80,000. This is to provide against epidemics. The late L. A. Barnes, of Ypsilanti, had a $3,000 policy. "Music Hall contained a large audience to listen to "Si Perkins, or: The Girl Left behind Me." The play abounds with laughable scenes and witty sayings. Si Perkins would draw smiles from even the soberest Quaker from Quakerdom. The character is ably taken by Mr. Frank Jones. Zana, a Gypsy waif, was finely sustained by Miss Alice Montague, a sprightly and vivacious actress. Both Si and Zana rendered some fine music on several instruments. Betsy Buggles, the Robert Taylor aged 12, and Allen Webb | Widder, by Mrs. Genie Howard; Israel Budge, a Romany Gypsy, by Harry Lloyd and Prof. J. Potiphar Hopper, by William Blaisdell rendered their respective parts in a very acceptable manner. The thresh-

THE MYSTIC BELL.

For one accustomed to attend the en tertainments at the opera house, the sight which greeted his eyes as he gazed at the faces surrounding him last Satur-day evening was indeed astonishing. He could easily imagine himself in a strange city, for in the vast assemblage there was scarcely a familiar face. Here and there was an occasional habitué, whose face shone kindly in the otherwise strange multitude. The audience, however, was very select, very intelligent, and if we are not mistaken very critical. To say that such an audience was highly pleased with the entertalnment is the best praise that can be given the ladies and gentlemen who produced on that evening "The Mystic Bell of Ronquerolles."

It is not the desire of the writer to to criticise. That must be left to those to criticise. That must be left to those who have the requisite talent. He will simply give his impressions. The play itself has some defects, one of which is its failure in some scenes, to properly impressions.

press the audience with the drift of the scheme being worked out.

Mr. C. T. Alexander, as Nicholas, entered into the spirit of his character, and brought it out more completely than amateur actors are wont to do. There was some hesitancy at first, but as he progressed he seemed to be more and more gressed he seemed to be more and more engrossed in his work, and more than made up for what might be attributable to stage fright at first. Miss Kate Seymour as the Baroness de Ronquerolles acted well her part, though at times a little too oratorical and unnatural, as was also Miss Gertrude Wade as Marie, the Baroness' daughter. Miss Wade and Miss Seymour were each very graceful in their movements, not at all 'stagey,' and prompt when the cue was given. It and prompt when the cue was given. It is doubtful if there are many amateurs who would have done better. Miss Pollard as the Comtesse de Cerny, failed to throw quite enough spirit into her char-acter; that is, she did not evince sufficient concern when Nicholas' revelation of the cipal point in her character was to look pretty, that she accomplished. Coon as Mme. Girard, a tenant on the estate, was capital, though a trifle timid, and E. N. Smith's Valentile was comically excellent. Mr. Louis Boyle as Jean Gauthier, a mason, could not well be bettered, it was as near perfect as such character could be portrayed. Mr. J. H. Lee was the most self-possessed actor upon the stage, and his portrayal of the Marquis de Lormias, capital, though he addressed the audience at times when he should have addressed those with whom he was conversing. Mr. Wyeth as the Chevalier de la Rapinierre, and Mr. Cooper as the Comte de Cerny gave good satisfaction. It is not exaggerating to say that some of these characters were delineated equally well with the majority of professional troupes, and we doubt if any audience as an entirety ever went mestead, on the S. Ypsilanti road, at 2 away from that opera house better pleased lock, p. m. yesterday, Rev. Dr. Ryder with what they saw and heard than did that of last Saturday night. A notice of this play, however, would be unjust without giving to the grand moving spirit of it all, Prof. de Pont, due credit for his untiring energy and excellent skill. It is no small task to take untrained talent and polish it up so that it is acceptably presentable to the public. This part the professor did admirably, the only criticism being a little too long intervals

A Notable Book.

The steadily growing taste and the consequent demand for the best productions in the musical art, have been the means of bringing to public notice recently some of the best-collections of piano-music ever published. A very handsome book, in every way worth of its name, is "The Classical Pianist," a large volume of piano-pieces by some of the best authors. It is a carefully edited collection of the modern "classic" gems, all being with the ability of ordinary piano-players, and suitable, also, for teachers use. Every piano-player should examine "The Classical Pianist." It is large, sheet music size, clearly printed, nicely bound, and contains nearly 150 pages of choice music by eminent composers-Li zt, Rubinstein, Jensen, and many others. The publishers will send a descriptive circular concerning this or any other of their books, free. The price of "The Classical Pianist is $1. Oliver

A Big Reward.

The enemies of bird protection are still sending notices to the press trying to frighten people from signing the Audubon pledges, by the ridiculous story that they can be turned into promissory notes. They got the New Yor- Sun to publish a names of all the pretended victims, as well as the name of the banker who ne gotiated and held the notes; but on inquiry being made by the Forest and Stream Publishing Company through Messrs. Hammond, McDonald & Mc-Donald, a firm of lawyers in Seneca Falls, it appeared that all the names were fictitious and the story utterly w thou foundation. The Sun, finding that it has been imposed on, published a complete denial of the story, which it characterized as "a tale of imagination." Items of this kind are still floating about through the press, and it is useless to try to trace each one to its source. "A lie will travel
