I cannot say enough in praise of the Cuticura Remedies. My boy, when one year of ige, was so bad with ecz my that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doc tors said was could head, and that his hair would never grow ag in. Despairin of a cure from phy si dans, I began the use of the Cuticura Lemebies, and, I am happy to say, with the most per lect success. His hair is now splendid, and there is not a pimple on him. On the night of the tenth inst. a party of men called at the house of Amiss and induced him to go out upon the road some distance, upon the representation that a neighbor was found very ill When he had proceeded some distance from the house he was pounced on and given to understand by the mob that unless he de-livered up the United States flag in his house he would be killed. He said he would die before he would do so. While he was held by a part of the mob others went to the house and demanded of the old lady that she produce the flag. In stead of handing out the flag she pointed a shot gun well loaded and full cocked in the face of the men and coolly informed them that unless they left the premises she would kill somebody. The party fled and Mr. Amiss, who is well known in this authority that the men who attempted the capture of the flag belonged to the "F. F. Vs." All of this incident occurred within 30 miles of Washington.

The COURIER is accused of many things by its democratic contemporaries unjustly. There has not been a word of personal abuse or mud throwing in the columns of the paper during the cam-paign. The hardest things said of any one have been of Mr. Stearns, and in that case we are simply fighting fire with fire, paying him off in his own coin, with his own style of warfare, in which we are justified. No other candidate from Mr. Cleveland down to the coroner on the democratic ticket has had an unkind word said against him, and we defy the Adrian Press or the Ypsilanti Sentinel, on any other paper to produce one from these columns. The tariff issue has been fought hard. We have the side of justice and right, as we firmly believe, and have neglected no legitimate argument that we could bring forward to prove ourselves right on that point. The assertion that we have been throwing mud is not true, and coming from the Adrian Press, especially, is simply ridiculous.

The Detroit Free Press this morning says in speaking of the Indiana canvass: "Never were two political parties engaged in a more serious and deadly warfare than the democratic and republican parties to-day. They do not jest with one another as in other years, but each man speaks his convictions with a seriousness only prevailing in war times." Yes, and this same question is one that should have been settled at Appomattox, for it is nothing more nor less than the right of the northern states. right of the northern states to conduct their business on business and humane their business on business and humane principles instead of upon the basis of slavery and free trade. The Free Press is right. It is the old fight over again, and the result will be the same as then.

REMOVAL OF THE MEDICAL DE-PARTMENT.

It was thought that the following resolution of the Board of Regents carried at its last meeting, had settled a much vexed question:

THAT BAKER BILL.

The Argus has been howling itself hoarse for two weeks about Mr. Allen's record on the Baker conspiracy bill, which was passed by the legislature of 1877, and misrepresenting Mr. Allen's record in relation thereto.

In the first place what is the "Baker Conspiracy Bill?" "It is a law concocted by Frederick A. Baker and Edwin F. Conely, two democratic lawyers of Detroit who were members of the house of representatives for Wayne county in 1877. So the bill originated with the democrats. Both of these democratic legislators were railroad attorneys and did their level best to push the law hrough as they first prepared it, making an employee upon any railroad who left

The proposed bill was opposed by Mr. Allen and Mr. Sawyer of this county who were then representatives in the legislature. By referring to page 229 of the House Journal of 1877, one of the yery first amendments offered to the bill, the found was offered by Mr. it will be found, was offered by Mr. Allen. The record reads in this way: Mr. Allen moved to amend the bill by in serting in line 1 of sec. 1, after the word "willfully," the words "and maliciously."

This was carried by a vote of 76 to 7. (Mr. Norrisyoting no.)

It was this very amendment of Mr. Allen's that cleared Thos. B. Barry who was arraigned under that law. They could not prove him guilty of doing a "malicious," a "criminal" act. But if a man should place obstructions upon a railroad track in front of a train on which the editor of the Argus was riding, with the intent of destroying the train and killing the people thereon, even the Argus man himself would want to see him punished therefor, would he not? And Mr. Allen, by that amendment, changed the law so that the mere act of an employee in striking could not be punished, but a

The statement of the Argus that law-yers hired by Mr. Burt, cleared Mr. Barry is not true. The only help Mr. Barry had outside of himself was from the Knights of Labor who stood by him, when Mr. Burt's friends and associates at Saginaw were determined to imprison him, and would have done so had it not been for this little amendment of Mr.

Allen's to that Baker bill.

But even then Mr. Allen did not favor the bill. Mr. Sawyer offered an amend ment, and there were others besides who had amendments passed. But Mr. Aller still opposed it, and on page 231 we find him offering still another amendment: Mr. Allen moved to amend the bill by in serting after the word "corporation." where ever it occurs in the three sections of the bill the words "firm or individual."
This passed by a vote of 75 to 8. (Mr. Norris

If there are any republicans who propose to vote against the party and its candidates on the ground of local option they may wake up some fine morning in the not distant future and find out that they have bit their own nose off.

amendments had been made, Mr. Allen voted yes, and 66 others voted the same way, while 17 voted no. Among those voting "yes" we find the name of Hon. John D. Norton, the present democratic candidate for state treasurer, then a democratic representative from Oakland county; we also find out of 21 democrats in the house, 12 of them voting yes, and in the senate 4 out of $\frac{1}{2}$ The assertion of the Argus that Mr. Allen made a speech in favor of the bill is not true. He made no speech for the bill, but only for the amendment. It looks reasonable that a man would make a speech in favor of a bill he was constantly ing to amend, doesn't it? It is truly astonishing that a gentleman who is so honorable in the affairs of every day life, as is the editor of the Argus, will resort to such unblushing fiction o score a point against as honorable, up right and good a man as ever trod a Washtenaw county street, simply because he is running for office on an opposite political ticket from his own!

A Cowardly Attack on Dr. Pope.

In a city paper last week was a communication signed T. P. Wilson with great headlines announcing Rev. R. B. Pope's insanity, which in its spirit was altogether characteristic of the man writing it. It reminds us of a little incident occuring a number of years ago when good old Dr. Cocker was giving bible class lectures Sundays at the M. E. church. One day he received an anonymous letter charging him with hypocrisy, lieing, wilfully deceiving and misleading the young. It hurt his gentle spirit to have any one (even a cowardly anonymous writer) accuse him of such baseness and with Mr. Pope he looked up the matter until they had satisfied themselves and friends that this Dr. Wilson had been the author of the letter. He was charged with it and could not deny it.

This Wilson also had other reasons why he did not dare face Mr. Pope. One was because he himself had once entered the Northern Ohio Conference of the Methodist church, remaining there only two years. The peculiar reasons why he never was received into full connection by the church authorities were shown to Mr. Pope, and Wilson accordingly laid low until he thought Pope was hopelessly insane and unable to defend himself. Now he crawls out and tries to torture a man whose condition should excite the profoundest pity—not only for him but for the suffering family—not the con-temptible gall of a coward who only dares strike what is down and apparently unable to defend itself. But we are glad to be able to say that Mr. Pope's case is not so hopeless as this Wilson thinks, and the doctors give every encouragement that he will entirely recover. When he does, we expect to have some further points about certain other peculiar things this Wilson has been en-

As to Hildreth, we are not surprised to see W. defending him, after his dirty character was exposed in the public prints of Cleveland. At Hildreth's trial the first ballot was for his conviction, but the majority were talked over to whitewashing him for the good of the church. Soon afterwards the Sunday World came out with renewed charges against him for having been caught in a cemetery in a compromising situation and for other wicked acts. They continued exposing him, daring him to thrash the editor, force the paper to retract or to resign his holy office. The Methodist Cabinet at Ashland decided that Hildreth must meet the charges then ready to be signed or withdraw. He was unable to answer the charges and got out. Everywhere Hildreth had been dirty acts were discovered and Methodism owes much to Dr. Pope who had the courage to protect his pul-pit from such debauchers as Conway, Hildreth and many others. It is a pity there are not more brave men who are

A friend writes us in this way: learn that Henry Watterson is to speak here soon on the beauties of the Mills bill, and let me tell you it means free trade and nothing short of it. The state of Texas, in this man Mills' county, pays skilled labor 30 cents a day to the em-ployes in such manufactories as they have, and they are few and petty. In Mr. Mills district there are but 21 of these socalled manufactories, employing 78 persons, and paying an average yearly wage-rate of $121. The competition of the pauper labor of Europe has no terrors for them, for they have pauper labor at home.

Conressman E. P. Allen will speak at he Dexter opera house, on Monday evening, Oct. 29th. The captain is one of the clearest debaters on the tariff estion there is on the stump, and it is hoped that he will have a good audience.

A 11th CAVALRY VOICE

Adjutant Van Vliet Gives the Man who "Resigned for the Good of the Service"

a Terrible Scorching. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. Editor of the Ann Arbor COURIER:-My attention has been called to an article published on the editorial page of the Adrian Press, in a recent issue under the caption, "For the good of the ser-As a former member of the Eleventh Michigan Cavalry, and of the military family of Colonel S. B. Brown, I feel called upon to grant the request of numerous comrades, who have asked me to answer and dany the truth of staroners. answer, and deny the truth of statements made therein, reflecting, as they do, on every worthy member of the regiment. In general, the article confirms the fact that Lieutenant Stearns did resign at the request of Colonel Brown, and that his resignation was approved for the good of the

But it is attempted to break the force of these facts, by assigning the reason Col. Brown asked for the resignation, as the result of a personal quarrel. By an attempt to drag down 13 other officers of the regiment to his degraded position, by asserting they resigned for the same reason, and by falsely asserting General Burbridge admitted that Lieut. Stearns

Col. Brown had no quarrel of any kind with Lieut. Stearns. It is a fact well known to the members of the regiment generally, that Lieut. Stearns was unfit or the position of an officer, by his ut-er lack of the dispotition to perform the luties assigned him, and to obey the orders of his superiors, as he had sworn to do when mustered into service.

In the opinion of Col. Brown, as also of Col. J B. Mason, Major H. L. Wise, and many other officers of the regiment, Lieut. Stearns was by reason of his utter disregard of discipline, the common courtesies of a gentleman, and the lack of courage, together with his general unsoldier-like bearing, deemed unfit to retain the commission he held, both on account of the general example to others, and a consideration for the lives and careful handling of those so unfortunate as to come under his command.

This is the meaning of the words of the approval of his resignation, as every soldier well knows; and as to Gen. Burbridge having admitted the justice of Lieut. Stearns' position, it is a reflection Tues on the character of that able officer to make such suggestion, particularly in the light of the fact that Gen. Burbridge also approved the resignation of Lieut. Stearns, for the good of the service.

Lieut. Stearns was paid for his time by the government, as much when recruiting as at other times, and there is no truth in his statement of having devoted his time to recruiting at his own expense. If Capt. Henry Bowen ever contem-plated resigning, it was truly a pity he failed to act on such contemplation, since am well aware his resignation would have been quite as cordially "approved and earnestly recommended" as that of Lieut. Stearns, even had it been tendered for the good of the service". In fact it was seriously contemplated by the Colonel commanding, requesting his resignation, for exactly that reason.

There could be no question about the authority and right of Col. Brown to distribute recruits for his regiment, in such manner as he deemed proper, and the in-terference with such plans offered by Lieut. Stearns, as claimed by the article in question, called for more than simply being ordered back to his quarters as he

The government and not Capt. Henry Bowen, furnished arms and accoutre ents for all the recruits. Lieut. Stearns did not command Company "L" in the action at Saltville, Va., where Lieut. Geo. W. Cutler fell while gallantly leading that Company, and was taken prisoner.
Lieut. Col. J. B. Mason did not com-ommand of a battalion of the Eleventh Michigan Cavalry. The Company to which he belonged "H" was not even in the near battalion, on the occasion re-Lieut. Col. Mason, and Major Henry

L. Wise commanded the rear battalion, of which Company "B" was the rear guard, admirably handled on that occa-

guard, admirably manded of that occasion by that gallant and efficient officer, Lieut. Cassius M. Wise.

The gallant Mason fell, mortally wounded, in the arms of Maj. H. L. Wise. On this occasion, Lieut. Stearns was not at Col. Mason's side when he fell, and the assertion that he was, is a slander on the memory of the lamented Mason, as well as on the other officers of the regiment. The statement regarding the use of some very bitter language by Lieut. Stearns regarding Col. Brown is a frank admission from a confessed, disgraceful, unprincipled and detestable character who would be a fit correspondent for that notoriously copperhead sheet the "Detroit Free Press" of war times. It is unnecessary for me to say Lieut. Stearns' vounted denouncing of Col. Brown, as a coward, drunkard, liar, and dirty dog, would seem about the level he would seek, had the cowardly fellow possessed the courage to face the music such action on his part would have occa-To members of either the Sixth or Eleventh Michigan Cavalry, in both of which Col. Brown served, the result of any such conduct to Col. S. B. Brown, needs no elucidation, but, for the benefit of strangers to that worthy officer, I will remark that Col. Brown's character for sobricty as well as integrity and courage, is second to no citizen of the state, which he so manfully represented, whose honor he so gallantly upheld on many a well contested field, and in which he has lived an honored citizen more years than have passed over the head of his traducer.

Had Lieut. Stearns indulged in any such tirade against Col. Brown, as it is claimed in the article he did, there would have been no opportunity for this discussion, but instead, no doubt, a funeral, and Lieut. Stearns would have been unable to officiate as a mourner.

There could be no basis for the blush of shame in a character which this confession of Lieut. Stearns proves his to be, onsequently it is fitting he should regard his disgraceful conduct with pride, as the article claims he does, and there is no doubt but his army record will go down to his neighbors and fellow citizens, as well as his children, as evidence of the extent to which a vicious nature, supplemented by a cowardly disposition, can mould the conduct of adepraved being.

I now turn to the annex, or part of this remarkable editorial, to which is attached the name of "H. Bowen late Capt. Company "H" 11th Michigan Cavalry" the companion in shame by endorsement, of Lieut. Stearns. It is a fitting companion piece to the preceding aggregation of falsehood and slander, and an imperishable monument to the disgrace of its author.

Think of it! Thirteen disabled and honrably discharged officers, in one little sentence of this man of Mars, branded with the stigma of lasting infamy as companions in shame of Lieut. Stearns, the self-confessed traducer of a noble officer, and open riolator of his solemn oath of office, in which, after 24 years of reflection, he now glories, and refers to with

No comment is necessary on this subject to members of the regiment. To those not members, I desire to say, no shadow of truth attaches to this statement. Lieut. Stearns stands alone in the list of officers of the 11th Michigan Cavalry who resigned their commissions "for the good of the service," and I take this oc casion on behalf of my thirteen comrades so slandered, to brand as an infamous lie this statement over Capt. H. Bowen's

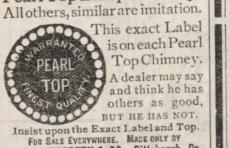

In conclusion, no occasion for the attack made in the article referred to, on Col. Brown and other worthy officers of the regiment appears, except to build up the character of Willard Stearns, on the ruins of others, and perchance enhance his prospects politically.

He has an undoubted right to enjoy

GEO. A. MACBETH & CO., Pittsburgh, Pa. Col. Brown, an aged and respected citizen of St. Clair, Mich., my esteemed for-mer commander, and of the many other comrades of the Eleventh Michigan Cavalry, who have called my attention to the article discussed, and roundly de nonnced, both Lieut, Stearns and Capt. Henry Bowen, for its authorship and utter disregard of truth, I take this occasion to denounce the article in general as an outrageously infamous combina-tion of untruth, unworthy of notice of any decent selfrespecting citizen or sol-dier, and to characterize the authors as unqualified and unfit for membership in the "Grand Army of the Republic," as I am advised they claim to belong to that

If you were to hire an attorney to fight a difficult suit at law for yourself you would consider it economy to hire the best one you could find, would you not? A torchight procession numbering by actual count 443 men in line paraded the streets, headed by the Chequimegon band, out-doing all former demonstrations. The Rink was filled to overflowing, every available space being packed. The speech of Hon Theodore Rosevelt was full of patriotism, and it was a candid, sound argument why the electors of this country, especially the young men, should be found in the ranks of the progressive and clean republican party.

Mrs. Marilda Fletcher, who spoke in Dexter last Thursday evening, was well liked by the people of that place and vicinity, and made votes for the party. The review this speaker gives of progress of the country under "tariff-torrevenue," and under a protective tariff policy is a striking and wonderful argu ment for the present republican system, and her arguments from All h to Omega were clear, concise and to the point. No speech delivered at Dexter during the campaign has had a better effect, and it was pronounced by many of the old impaigners as the best speech they had listened to in years. We should like to have our contempor aries bring forward a single unkind or ungentlemanly deed that Capt. Allen has ever done. We should like to have them point to a man in this entire district that he ever insulted with abusive language or wronged out of a penny. We should like to have them parade a single honest reason why he is not entitled to the suff rages of the people of this county in preference to the man who is running against him. He is kind hearted, pure in character, honest, fearless, and incorruptible. Furthermore he is a native of this county, born and reared here, and one in whom lege building. He is one of the successful men of the country.

Prudence! Prudence! Prudence! Prudence!

In medication, as in aught else, prudence should be ourguide. Yet thousands cast it to the winds. Every new nostrum finds its patrons, the medical empirics of every false school have their gulls. Every change in the gamut of humbug is rung successfully—for a time at least—the notes being furnished by the credulous. In happy contrast to the many advertised impostures of the day stands Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, now in its third decade of popularity, approved and recommended by physicians, indorsed by the press of many lands, sought and prized by invalids everywhere. It is an ascertained specific for and preventive of malarial diseases, chronic indigestion, liver complaint and constipation, checks the growth of rheumatism and neuralgia, is a peerless invigorant and useful duretic. Nervous neonle benefited by it.

Literary Notes.

Harper's Magazine for November can-not be said to "run" to poetry, as it cotains only two bits of verse—one a s n net of Wordsworth's, illustrated by Alfred Parsons (this is the frontispiece), en titled "Why canst thou not as others de ?" and the other, "In Darkness," by Forence Earle Coates. November, however, is not a poetical month, and the quality of the verse in this number will make up for the short supply.

The Quiver for November begins with an illustrated paper describing "An East End Free Library." This is followed by the last installment of the delightful serial, "In Her Own Right." It might not be amiss to speak right here of the admirable illustrations that accompany the serial stories in Cassell & Co.'s magazines. They are among the few that help the reader's imagination. "An Hour With the Friends at Jordans," is an illustrated paper describing just what its title come well known to the world if the retaliation business should presently force Canadian commerce to use her own bays and gulfs as shipping-points for Europe. Meanwhile, any one who desires to get earlier information should turn to Harper's Magazine for November, where C. H. Farnham has an artitle on this subject. Mr. Farnham was chiefly after points of picturesque interest, but his de scription of the great gulf and the lower river is wide, and gives not only an idea of the wild scenery of the estuary, but suggests its commercial resourses and possibilities. The illustrations represent carefully selected subjects and views, and add to the strong impression made by the

The melancholy days are come, but they have not affected the tone of Cassel's Family Magazine. The November num-ber is as bright and cheery as though it belonged to the merry month of May. The serial story, "Comrades Once," opens the number, and is followed by an admirable description of 'Japanese Homes and Their Surroundings," The number of "How to be Happy, Though Married," contributes the second of his papers on "The Love Affair of Some Famous Men," telling us the amusing story of Dr. John son's courtship and marriage, and that of Carlyle, among others. The latter they Carlyle, among others. The latter they think has been misrepresented by his biographets, particularly by Mr. Fronde. "The Art of Type-Writin2" is described, and the Rev.
