"Royal" Absolutely Pure.

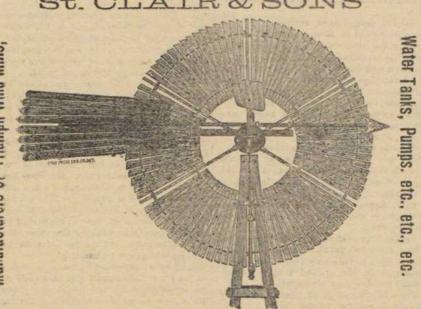

The only Baking Powder yet found by chemical annlysis to be entirely free from lime, and absolutely pure is the "Royal." This perfect purity results from the exclusive use of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes, which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder but the "Royal."

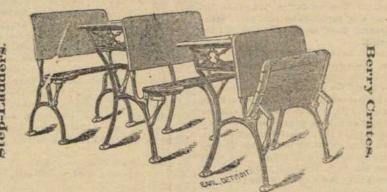

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U.S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness, and superior quality of the "Royal":

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or any injurious substance.

Rev. J. T. Sunderland will exchange pulpits next Sunday with Rev. Dr. Rex-ford of Detroit. Dr. Rexford's subject in the evening will be that which Mr Sunderland has advertised in his series of discourses on religious problems viz: 'In what Sense is Jesus a Savior?'

George W. Hayes, of Detroit, died unday at his residence in that city, aged 63 years. His body was taken to his old home in Dexter where the funeral was held Wednesday. Mr. Hayes was well known in business circles in this city where for several years he was manager of the farmers' store.

A large joint transfer house is to be erected at Manhattan Junction by the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor roads for the purpose of accommodating freight over the roads, and to facilitate the easy transfer of the same. This improvement will entail considerable expense, as many new tracks will have to be built to ac commodate the necessary business of these roads at that place. It may not be generally known that when a maple tree is bruised it never heals but decays, and that insects attracted by the sweet sap gradually eat into the hear of the tree and kill it. The city snow plows are bruising more shade trees and paving the way for more treeless street in a day than a man could do in a week with an axe. Unless something is done o stop this wanton destruction Lansing will some day have to pay a heavy pen alty.—Lansing Journal. Perhaps this is why so many of our maple trees died last

The Unitarian church held its annual meeting last week Tuesday, with a large attendance. Reports were read of the past year's work, from the pastor, the trustees, the treasurer, the library commutee, the ladies' union, the Sunday school, the Sunday evening young people's class, the unity club, the U. C. Welub, and "The Unitarian" and the boys club. The church is out of debt; all its many activities are gaing forward and many activities are going forward with vigor; the past year is probably the mos prosperous that the society has ever had

One hundred and seventy volumes have been added to the church library during New York Sun. "My Aunt Bridget." a new farce-comedy by Scott Marble, was given at Windsor theatre, with George W. I would ask the gentlemen which is the correct title as in one place in the issue of January 21, it speaks of "The Mystic Bell of Rou-querolles," and in another "The Mystic ell of Rouqueralles?"

It is strange how some men can sit around for hours, days, weeks and months and not get tired. There is a man in our city who can take the premium on being the champion "setter." He has tired out all of our chairs. Somebody please invite him for a while and give us a rest and a chance to try onr chairs and read our daily morning paper.

Tuesday evening Mrs. Matheson, mo-ther of Mrs. Dr. Trler, was seriously in-jured through the carelessness of a drayin, the shaft of whose dray was drive with great force against her side. reserved. Standing room only, the little sign hat never fails to gladden the heart of John T. Ford, was displayed last night at Ford's opera house. But the sign did not accurately describe the situation. The attraction was Thatcher, Primrose and West's minstrels. It is a startling thing to announce that a minstrel perrmance is entirely new, but it is true in this instance, for it is radically different from the old-timers. Burnt cork and wallow-tail coats have been discarded, by the end men, for white faces and handsome court costumes. And this is not the only change. Ancient jokes have given way to new ones, and the speciality acts are not as they were, but re fresh and novel and interesting. its entirety the company is decidedly the best ever seen in Baltimore. Place Your Hand in Mine, Wife. 'Tis five and twenty years to-day Since we were man and wife-

And that's a tidy slice, I say, From anybody's life. And if we want, in looking back, To feel how time has flown. There's Jack, you see, my baby Jack, With whiskers of his own.

Place your hand in mine, wife-We've loved each other true. And still, in shade or shine, wife, There's love to kelp us through It's not been all smooth sailing, wife-

Not always laughing May; Sometimes it's been a weary strife To keep the wolf away. We've had our little tiffs, my dear: We've often grieved and sighed; One lad has cost us many a tear,

Our little baby died. Place your hand in mine, wife-We've loved each other true; And still, in shade or shine, wife, There's love to help us through. But, wife, your love along the road

Has cheered the roughest spell; You've borne your half of every load And often mine as well. 'T've rued full many a foolish thing Ere well the step was taken; But, oh! I'd haste to buy the ring And wed you o're again.

Place your hand in mine, wife-We've loved each other true: And still, in shade or shine, wife, There's love to help us through Twas you that made me own the hand That's working all along, In ways we cannot understand, Still bringing right from wrong.

You've kept me brave and kept me true, You've made me trust and pray; My gentle evening star were you, That blessed the close of day. Place your hand in mine, wife-We've loved each other true: And still, in shade or shine, wife, There's love to help us through.

Boys, What Are You Reading?

That prince of good fellows, Robert J. Burdette, says: No, oh no; we are not going to pitch into the five cent blood and thunder novelette; not right directly, at any rate. We were just looking over a story in the June number of a most excellent and highly respectable juvenile magazine; a good magazine, that doubtless views with alarm, as do all the rest of us. the poisonous literature of the news stand. This story is about a boy, 15 years old, who, while standing alone on his father's engine on a lonely siding, saw a runaway train of cars, started by the wind, sweep past him down the grade. Usual thing-the lightning express nearly due; the train dispatcher always manages to have a lightning express about due when anything of this kind happens. There is "no tele-graph wire either;" this is also usual; a road without a wire is apt to run lightning expresses and limited trains every fifteen minutes. The boy thinks quickly boys of fifteen are always quick thinkers; he runs his engine out on the main line, setting the switches for himself, for his father has gone to supper, miles away in the country, presumably, as it is quite customary for railway engineers to take all their meals at distant ranches, leaving their engine in the charge of away:" and he has "less than an hour" to catch them. He caught the runaways, which were flying like the wind; he slowed up "with great judgment" - nor write. we should think so-"crept along the side of his flying engine, got on the pilot, lifted the coupling bar the subject of pools, rate cutting, and "with one hand" and reached over as he have no place for you."

"made the coupling and dropped the them; got them started back, he makmiles to run in this shape, but he made it, got in on the siding, time to turn the switch, and the "Lightning" thundered "I gave him the place, the employby. Then "the boy fainted dead away." somebody fainted. Now the question s just this: does the boy get anything better out of such nonsense than he does out of 'Kid the Sleuth Hound, or 'The Boy Terror of Gory Canon." ourselves and the comma we really find "The Boy Terror" quite as easy to be lieve and much more interesting read-We haven't the least objection

The want of accurate knowledge of what one knows is one great cause of the habit of not giving one's whole mind to what one hears or does, and tends to superficial views, especially when living with those with whom superficial views are enough. There cannot be a more unwholesome situation than this-appearing constantly what you are not, sometimes better sometimes worse; the fact is, that werse in any way would be better. All strength of character depends in acting upon-weakness in being acted upon by-others. One sees how, by energy, one can take the command of certain people; and clearly one of the great acts of life is in gaining that power over the characters around you, whether friends, acquaintances, servants or children. It is the same story all the way through. It is putting precisely the same powers in action that gained Lord Chatham his ascendancy in the House of Commons, knowing how to tirer san parti from each one of all the surrounding materials. You are to do to your children and servants what you are to do to your own immediate faculties-draw them out, make the best of them, put each to its proper use -Catherine Stanley.

Some of the girls who come up to Vassar are as helpless as babes. They are the daughters of n ill onaires, and never brushed their own hair or sewed a button on their boots in their lives They are only too glad to have some one do those things for them and that is how the poorer girls make pocket money. Last year a pretty eyed girl came to college and stated during first weet that her tuition and board were paid by a kin I relative, but every penny for dress car fare and thousand and one little incidentals she must earn herself.

Soon after her arrival the following announcement appeared on her door: Gloves and shoes neatly mended for 10 cents each. Breakfast brought up for 10 cents.

Hair brushed each night for twentyfive cents a week. Beds made up at 10 cents a week That little freshman made just $150 the first year and that paid all of her expenses and a good part of her tuition fee. —Vassar Girl in New York Journal.

THE BRUISER KING.

The Whole World Pays Homage to Sul-John L. Sullivan, whose success has been greater than that of any visitor to England except "Buffalo Bill," is a typical American in that all of his successes have been won by "hard knocks. Boston may hug herself with positive unc.ion in the knowledge that three representatives of her pecul ar culture have won unusual social recognit on in England Lowell, Holmes and Sullivan.

According to the English idea, the 'greatest' of these is Sullivan. The phlegmatic English populace is seldom "enthused" to the point of unhitching the horses from the carriage of a popular idol, while excited men wrangle for the honor of a chance at the rope which is to drag it through the streets.

It well illustrates the power of mind over matter Sullivan, dined and wined by the nobility, followed and cheered by surging masses of "we, the people." drawing crowded house at his exhibitions, must be sated, if one of his stamp can be, with adulation and applause.

It would be a sad "blow" to him if he should be "knocked out" in his coming contest with the English champion. The best of athletes reach, sometimes early, a point at which their powers begin to wane. Over-training often produces serious effects. John C. Heenan died in the prime of life, wasted away with what was calle I consumption. A post-mortem examination in many of these cases has revealed that it is the primary organs, the kidneys, liver and heart, that are most affected by Athletic over-training.

If they are taken care of, there is little Harry Wyatt, the celebrated English trainer and athlete, says: "I consid r Warner's safe cure invaluable to all who are training for out-door sports. I have given it to many whom I have trained for the athletic world with great benefit." Sullivan is beyond question the present 'Athletic King," and if he follows Wyatt's advice, he will no doubt long remain at the head of the "profession."
