IF WE KNEW. If we knew the cause and ways of our troubles, how would we solve them? If we knew the cause and ways of our troubles, how would we solve them?

Running a Race. Rain! rain! rain! It seemed as if the very "windows of heaven" were opened for a cosmic deluge; as if the clouds would never cease to pour their silver rain upon the earth...

The reservoir had been built in the fall, and was not completed until winter had set in; and, not expecting the strength of the dam would be so severely tested, an old frame had been put in. But it was now feared that the dam and embankments would prove inadequate to the vast pressure of water against them.

Not so, however, with William Preston. Though he sought his pillow, vainly did he woo the sweet influence of sleep, he was restless and nervous, and tormented with an indefinite dread of coming evil, that imparted such acuteness to his senses...

Oh, I don't mind the drenching! I am used to it. If the rain does not cease before long, however, we shall be drowned out here in the valley. All the meadows are under water now.

But after he had saddled his horse, and even mounted him, an uneasy feeling, a feeling that he could not define or account for, prompted him to ride to the door, to repeat the advice he had given his wife but a moment before.

God of heaven--help! help! was the ejaculation that burst from the heart and lips of the agonized man; and, lending forward to urge his horse to yet greater exertions, and quickened his already lightning-like speed.

Jeff Davis Conscription Message. The following is President Davis' message recommending the passage of a conscription law: The Senate and House of Representatives of the Confederate States.

These reasons would suffice for inviting your earnest attention to the necessity of some simple and general system for exercising the power of raising armies, which is vested in Congress by the constitution.

Jefferson Davis. The bright sun and spring-like weather render Paris very beautiful. The Champs Elysees and Wood of Boulogne attract crowds of every rank and class, from the Emperor to the peasant.

The two Rebel Generals Johnston. A correspondent desires to know the relative reputation of Joseph E. and Albert Sidney Johnston as military men.

The Wind of Cannon Balls. The times have been such that the brains were not the main world do, And three or four, but now, they rise again, And twenty in real numbers on their crowns, And such as from our side.

THE MICHIGAN EIGHTH. Colonel Fenton's Official Report of the Action on Wilkinson Island. HEADQUARTERS 87th MICH. REG'T., Steamer Honduras, off Wilmington Island, Ga., April 18.

At this point it was in the hands of our people as well as before the fall of New Orleans. Having made himself master of the river and rapids, the enemy had no doubt secured possession of the enemy to-morrow, it would not have the slightest effect upon the issue of the contest.
