OCTOBER.

On hill and field October's glories fade;
O'er hill and field the blackbirds southward fly;
The brown leaves rustle down the forest glade,
Where naked branches make fitful shade;
And the last blooms of Autumn withered lie.

The berries on the hedgegrow ripen well—
Holly and cedar, burning bush and briar;
The partridge drums in some half hidden dell,
Where all the ground is gemmed with leaves that fall;
Last storm from the tall maple's crown of fire.

The chirp of crickets and the hum of bees
Come faintly up from marsh and meadow land,
Where reeds and rushes whisper in the breeze
And sunbeams slant between the moss green trees.

Green on the grass and golden on the sand,
From many a tree whose tangled boughs are bare
Lean the rich clusters of the clambering vine
October's mellow haze's dim the air
Along the uplands and valley, where
The distant steeples of the village shine.

Adown the brook the dead leaves whirling go;
Above the brook the scarlet sumacs burn;
The lonely heron sounds his note of woe
In gloomy forest swamps where rankly grow
The crimson cardinal and feathery fern.

Autumn is sad; a cold blue horizon
Darkly encircles checked fields and farms,
Where late the gold of ripening harvest
But bearded grain and fragrant hay are gone,
And Autumn mourns the loss of Summer's charms.

Yet, though our summers change and pass away—
Though dies the beauty of the hill and plain
Through wraith and color fade with every day—
Hope passes not, and something seems to say
That all our brightest joys shall come again.

And if the flowers we nurture with such care
Must wither, though bedewed with many tears,
They shall arise in some divine air,
To bloom again, more fragrant and more fair,
And gladden us through all the coming years.

The sun sinks slowly toward the far-off west;
The breeze is freshening from the far-off shore;
So come, fair eve, and bring each weary breast
That sense of tranquil joy, of gentle rest,
Felt in the happy Autumn's gone before!

From the Continual Monthly.

A DETECTIVE'S STORY.

The following is a true story, by a late well-known member of the Detective service, and with the exception of some names of persons and places, is given precisely as he himself related it.

Late one Friday afternoon, in the latter part of November, 18—, I was sent for by the chief of the New York Police, and was told there was a case for me. It was a counterfeiting again.

Notes had been forged on a Pennsylvania bank; two men had been apprehended, and were in custody. The first, Springer, had turned State's evidence on his accomplice; who, according to his account, was the prime mover in the business. This man, Daniel Hawes by name, had transferred the notes to a third party, of whom nothing had been ascertained except that he was a young man, wrote a beautiful hand, and had been in town the Monday before. He was the man I was to catch.

It was sundown when I left the superintendent's office. I had not much to guide me: there were hundreds of young men who wrote a beautiful hand, and had been in town last Monday. But I did not trouble myself about what I did not know; I confined myself to what I did know. Upon reflection I thought it probable that my man had been in intimate relations with Hawes for the last few days, probably since Monday last, although it was not known that he had been in town since that day. He might not be a resident in the city; but I decided to seek him here—since, if he had not left town before the arrest of Springer and Hawes, he would not just now run the risk of falling into the hands of the police by going to any railroad station or steamer wharf.

I determined, therefore, to follow up the track of Hawes, and thereby, if possible, strike that of his confederate—which was, in fact, all that could be done. Hawes was a small broker. He lived in Eighteenth street, and had an office in Wall street.

He lived too far up town, I thought, to go home every day to his dinner; he went home, most probably, always to the same eating house, and one not far from his office.

After inquiring at several restaurants near by, I came to one in Liberty street, where, on asking if Mr. Hawes was in the habit of dining there, the waiter said:

"Have you seen a young man here with him, lately?" I inquired.

"No—no one in particular," replied the waiter.

"Are you sure of it? Come, think," After scratching his head for a moment, he said:

"Yes, there has been a young man here speaking to him once or twice."

"How did he look?"

"He was short, and had black hair and eyes."

"Who is he? What does he do?"

"He is clerk to Mr. L—, the linen importer."

"Where does Mr. L— live?"

The waiter did not know. Looking into a Directory, I ascertained his residence to be in Fourteenth street. The stores by this time were closed, so I went immediately to Mr. L—'s house, and asked to see him. He was at dinner.

"I am sorry to disturb him," said I to the servant, "but I wish to speak with him a moment on a matter of importance, and cannot wait."

Mr. L— came out, evidently annoyed at the intrusion.

"Have you such a person in your employment?" said I, describing him.

"No, sir, I have not."

"You had such a person?"

"I have not now."

"Did you discharge him?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"What business is that of yours?" he asked, rather haughty.

"My name, sir, is M—, of the police. I am after this fellow, that's all. Tell me, if you please, why you discharged him?"

"Oh, I beg your pardon," said Mr. L—. "I took you for one of his rascally associates. I discharged him a week or ten days ago. He was a dissipated, good-for-nothing fellow."

"Was he your bookkeeper?"

"No, he was a junior clerk."

"Have you any of his handwriting that you can show me?"

He fumbled in a side pocket and drew out a pocket book from which he took a memorandum of agreement, or some paper of the sort, to the bottom of which a signature was attached as witness.

"That's his writing," said he.

It was a stiff schoolboy's scrawl.

This was not my man then. I apologized to Mr. L— for the trouble I had given him, and withdrew.

Last time, said I to myself. I am on the wrong track. I must back to the eating house, and begin the chase again from the point where I left off. I saw the same waiter.

"I want you to think again," said I. "Try hard to remember whether there was never any other man here with Hawes on any occasion."

After reflecting for a little while, he said he thought he recollected his going up stairs not long ago, with another man, to a private room.

"Did you wait on him yourself at the time you speak of?" I asked.

"No—most likely it was Joe Harris."

"Will you send for him, if you please," Joe Harris came.

You waited on Mr. Hawes a few days ago, when he dined with another gentleman in a private room up stairs, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Who was that other man?"

"He is a young man who is clerk in a livery stable in Sullivan street."

"What are his looks?"

"He is tall and light haired."

"Do you know his name?"

"His name is Edgar."

I hurried up to Sullivan street, went into the first livery stable I came to, inquired for the proprietor, and asked him if he had a young man in his stable of the name of Edgar.

He said he had.

"Does he keep your books?"

"Yes, he takes orders for me."

"Let me see some of his handwriting, if you please."

I went down into one of them, and asked if a tall young man with light hair had been there that evening. A tall young man with light hair and mustache had come in from the theatre with a lady, and had just left. I asked my informant if he knew the lady. She was a Miss Kearney, he answered.

"What?" I continued, "didn't her sister marry the actor Levison?"

"Yes, the same person."

"He lives in Walker street, near the Bowery, I believe?"

"Yes, I think so," replied the man.

I considered a moment. Of course no one could tell me where Edgar had gone to; but I was tolerably certain he had gone home with the girl. Where she lived I did not know, but I thought it probable the actor could tell me. So we started on to Walker street. There are—were at the time I speak of—several boarding houses in Walker street.

We passed one or two three-story houses with marble steps. "Shall I ask along here?" said Clarke. "No," I answered; "poor actors don't board there; we must look for him farther on." We kept on, and after a little while, we found one that seemed to me to be likely to be the house we were looking for. I rang the bell and inquired for Mr. Levison.

He was gone to bed. It was now twelve o'clock. I desired the man that opened the door to tell him that some one was below who wished to see him immediately. He soon returned, saying that Mr. Levison was in bed, and could not be disturbed: I must leave my business, or call again next day.

I thought it necessary to frighten him a little; so I sent up word that I was an officer of police, and he must come down instantly, or I should go up and fetch him. In a few moments the actor made his appearance, terribly frightened.

"Before I could say anything he began to pour out such a flood of questions and assertions that I could not get a word in. 'What did I want with him?' I had come to the wrong man; he hadn't been doing anything, etc., etc. 'I don't want you,' I began—but it was of no use, I could not stop him; his character was excellent, anybody would vouch for him; I ought to be more sure what I was about before I roused people from their beds at midnight, etc., etc. His huddled words and apprehensive looks made me suspect there was something wrong with him; but it was no concern of mine then. I seized him by the shoulder, and ordered him to be quiet."

"Don't utter another word," said I, "except to answer my questions, or I'll carry you off and lock you up. I have not come to arrest you. I only want to ask you a few questions. Haven't you a sister-in-law named Miss Kearney?"

"Yes, what do you want with her?"

"I am not going to do her any harm. I only want to know where she lives."

"Oh! she lives in — street."

"Goodness, yes; it is number 34. I have boarded there myself until only a little while ago."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, I have got a dead-latch key somewhere about."

"The deuce you have! Give it to me: it is just what I want."

"Give you a dead-latch key! A pretty notion!"

"I wouldn't give it to any man—not to all the detective squad in New York."

"Look here, my friend, I am M—, pretty well known in this town. I have a good many opportunities in the course of my business to do people good turns, and not a few to do them ill turns. It is a convenient vocation to pay off scores, particularly to persons of your sort. If you will give me that key, I'll make it worth your while the first chance I have. If you don't, you'll be sorry; that's all."

I gave him a significant look as I concluded. He looked me in the face a minute—as if to see how much I meant, or if I suspected anything; then turned and ran up stairs. In a few moments he came down, and handed me the key. I took it with satisfaction.

"Now," said I, "you'll have no objections to telling me where your sister-in-law's room in the house is?"

"Third story, back room, second door to the left from the head of the stairs."

"Thank you, good night."

We walked rapidly to — street, and reached the house. I stopped a moment to examine my pistols, by the street lamp, and then softly opened the door. Clarke and I stepped in, and I shut the door.

Leaving my comrade in the hall, I crept noiselessly up stairs, and tapped at the door of the room.

"Who is there?" called out a woman's voice. "Open the door," I replied, and I'll tell you what I want."

"You can't come in. I have gone to bed."

"Oh, well, I am a married man; I'll do you no harm; but you must let me in, or I shall force the door."

After a moment's delay the door was opened by a young woman in a morning wrapper, who stood as if awaiting an explanation of the intrusion. I passed by her, and walked up to a young man sitting in a low chair by the fire, and tapping him on the shoulder, said: "You are my prisoner." He raised his head and looked up. "Why, Bill," I exclaimed, "is this you? I have been looking for you all night under a wrong name—If I had known it was you, I'd have caught you in an hour." And so I would.

Postoffice Notice.
Mails leaving Ann Arbor for the East and West, close as follows:
Going West, at 7 A. M.
Going East, at 3.30 P. M.
JOHN I. THOMPSON, P. M.

Wants.
We want on subscription to the Argus.
50 cords of good wood.
50 bushels of choice Winter Apples.
75 " " good Potatoes.
Flour, Beans, Butter, Eggs, Cheese,
Lard, &c., &c., and
$1.00 CASH. Finally we want every man who owes us a single dollar to pay us immediately.

Prices of labor, material, and of necessities for the support of our family have reached such a price that unless our patrons ALL come liberally, or, at least, partly, to our aid we cannot keep the wheels of business in motion, and shall be compelled to issue a proclamation compelling upon the free circulation of the Argus.

We dislike to do in our columns, but shall still make room to make personal calls upon our friends, or accept the alternative and fall down at the feet of high prices.

Wool has been coming forward freely during the week, and selling at 60 to 70, at which figures we may now quote it.

Wheat has been on the "ramp" during the week, and we quote Red, $1.25, Amber $1.40, and White, $1.52, all No 1.

Dr. R. J. Lyons will be at the Monitor House in this city on Tuesday, the 20th inst., and at Hibbard House, Jackson, on Wednesday the 21st.

NEL COLE has returned from New York with a large stock of Boots and Shoes fitted to the season. He purchased before the recent gold panic, and knows he can sell as cheap as "any other man."

We are happy to see that the business men on the east side of Main street, between Huron and Washington are "improving their ways." Their example should be followed by others.

As the season for bad walks is fast approaching we may be permitted to suggest to our "City Fathers," or the proper committee, that much side-walk which has been ordered down in various parts of the city has not yet been constructed. It is time the work was done.

The Baptist Convention, at the close of its recent session in this city, adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That we desire to express our appreciation of the liberality and kindness extended to the members of this convention on the part of the christian families of Ann Arbor, who, without distinction of sect, have opened their houses to receive us, and we make the record of our heartfelt thanks.

The Great Wardrobe.
Among the numerous establishments of Detroit that are deserving of special notice, is that of A. BURNHAM & CO., dealers in gentlemen's clothing and furnishing goods. Their store is situated in a central part of the city, on Jefferson avenue, near its intersection with Woodward avenue, and is one of the largest in the West. It is filled with desirable styles of fashionable goods, comprising everything that is necessary to replenish a fall and winter stock. They have on hand, and are constantly receiving a great variety of ready-made clothing, such as pants, vests, dress and business coats and overcoats, in every size and latest styles, also everything in the line of furnishing goods—shirts, drawers, ties, hose, suspenders, and so on—suitable to all tastes and to the wants of all classes of customers, whether they sell at wholesale or retail, at prices that can scarcely fail to suit. There are few purchasers who visit the "Great Wardrobe," that do not find there every article they are in search of. It is worth one's while, though he should not desire to purchase a single article of clothing, to step into this establishment, just to see with what facility one may be fitted out with a fashionable and complete suit, and to notice how many articles there are belonging to a gentleman's wardrobe, which, though he never possessed, are now considered indispensable to every well-dressed citizen. Though one may have fallen among thieves, and been suddenly stripped of every article of attire, he has but to find his way to Burnham & Co.'s, where he can be re-clothed and fitted in short order.

Messrs. B. & Co., have had long experience and much success in their business. They are enterprising and liberal citizens, and are honorable and high-minded dealers. We cordially recommend all who are in want of these goods to go to the "Great Wardrobe," in Detroit.

For once we take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to an advertisement—that of Howe & Stevens' "Family Dye Colors," in this day's paper. These Dyes have become a household necessity, and so general in their use that many a well-dressed lady finds that many an article once rejected as out of date, is, by the aid of these Dyes, made as good as new.

For once we take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to an advertisement—that of Howe & Stevens' "Family Dye Colors," in this day's paper. These Dyes have become a household necessity, and so general in their use that many a well-dressed lady finds that many an article once rejected as out of date, is, by the aid of these Dyes, made as good as new.

The Army of the Potomac.

New York, Oct. 12.

The Washington correspondent of the Commercial states, under date of Sunday, 11th: "The city was somewhat startled this morning at the authentic news from the Rapidan that the rebel army had abandoned its late position on the south bank of that stream and that our cavalry had already encountered one of its retreating columns. This intelligence was rendered exciting by the widespread rumor founded merely on inference and doubtless, that the retrograde movement of Lee simply meant the resumption of the offensive by a flank movement around through the inside of the Warrenton line to the north bank of the Rappahannock, thus placing the rebel forces between Meade and Washington, after the manner in which Stonewall Jackson flanked Pope on the same ground. If these really be the rebel plans, they have been fairly thwarted. General Meade is not the man to be caught in so old a trap.

"Those who came from the army this morning seem to agree in the impression that the retreat is to draw the rebel army close to the railroad at Gordonsville, where the rebels have an extensive depot of supplies, where a force will probably be left and the remainder of the army sent there or to the defenses of Richmond. All military men concur in believing that the rebels do not intend any campaign in Virginia this autumn, but as the rebels have made the first movement, the true sequel will soon be at hand."

HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM.
This is the most delightful and extraordinary article ever discovered. It changes the sun burnt face and hands to a pearly satin texture of ravishing beauty, imparting the marble purity of youth, and the delicate appearance so inviting in the city belle of fashion. It cures the freckles, pimples, and eruptions from the skin, leaving it fresh, transparent and smooth. It contains no material injurious to the skin. Patronized by Actresses and Opera Singers. It is what every lady should have. Sold everywhere.

Demas S. Barnes & Co.
General Agents,
202 Broadway, N. Y.
Agents for an interesting letter.—Messrs Post & Bruff, Agents, N. Y. Sanitary Society, Rochester.—Gents.—I deem it due to you state the magical effect of that one bottle of "People's Cure" which I obtained from you in November last. Seeing the advertisement of your So. city offering to give your medicine to anyone for the cure of their children, I obtained a bottle for a poor girl of my congregation, who had long been nearly helpless from Rheumatism, and strange to say, that one bottle cured her entirely. I write this hoping it may aid the Society in its efforts to introduce the medicine, and bless those who may need such a remedy; and I use strong terms, as I believe its merits fully justify the most superlative form of speech.

Yours, Respectfully,
C. R. WILKINS,
Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church,

LYON'S KATHAIRON.
Kathairon is from the Greek word, "Katharo," or "Katharizo," signifying to cleanse, purify, and restore. This article is what is now so singularly. For preserving, restoring and beautifying the human hair it is the most remarkable preparation in the world. It is again owned and put up by the original proprietor, and is now made with the same care, skill and attention which gave it a sale of over one million bottles per annum.

It is a most delicate Hair Dressing.
It cures the scalp and dandruff.
It keeps the hair soft and glossy.
It makes the hair rich, soft and glossy.
It prevents the hair from falling out and turning gray.
It restores hair upon bald heads.
Any lady or gentleman who values a beautiful head of hair should use Lyon's Kathairon. It is known and used throughout the civilized world. Sold by all respectable dealers.

HEIMSTREET'S
Inimitable Hair Restorative.
IT IS NOT A DYE.
But restores gray hair to its original color, by supplying the capillary tubes with natural substance, imparted by age or disease. All instantaneously dyes are composed of toxic agents, destroying the vitality and beauty of the hair, and afford of themselves no dress. Heimstreet's Inimitable Coloring not only restores hair to its natural color by an easy process, but gives the hair a Luxuriant Beauty.

It promotes its growth, prevents the falling off, eradicates dandruff, and imparts health and pleasantness to the head. It has passed the test of time, being the original Hair Coloring, and is constantly increasing in favor. Used by both gentlemen and ladies. It is sold by all respectable dealers, or can be procured by them of the commercial agents, D. S. Barnes & Co., 202 Broadway New York. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1. 6m22

TWENTY-ONE YEARS AGO.

Mr. O. C. Barrett, a distinguished Chemist and Druggist of the city of Buffalo, N. Y., invented and manufactured a compound known as BRISTOL'S BALM OF HOARHOUD, which is a perfect specific for coughs, colds, or any mucous or mucous affections arising from damp, cold, or sudden change of the weather.

Every person who has ever taken BRISTOL'S BALM OF HOARHOUD, pronounces it the best article ever invented, and so justly celebrated it has become, that the market is already full of imitations, counterfeiters, and most dangerous compounds, under the name of Balm of Hoarhound. Therefore, always be careful to call for Bristol's Balm, and see that the WRITTEN signature is on the outside label of the bottle.

Mark.—This invaluable Medicine has been now some twenty-one years before the public, and without any effort on the part of the proprietor, its sale has become very extensive, and is daily increasing. The low price at which the Medicine is sold (25 CENTS) enables ALL to partake of its healing qualities.

715 FOUND WATSON'S NEURALGIA KING
WONDERFUL SUCCESS.
The attention and research of the most distinguished Chemist and Physician of the age have been devoted to the production of a remedy for those most distressing maladies NEURALGIA and RHEUMATISM. After long study and many experiments, a specific preparation has been discovered. WATSON'S NEURALGIA KING, an internal Remedy is curing thousands of cases where all other remedies have utterly failed. We are assured that it is no mere "ANODYNE," relieving for the moment, while the disease remains, but is a perfect SPECIFIC CURE for those painful diseases. The vast number of Liniments, Embrocations and External Medicines, which act as stimulants to the surface only, are merely palliatives, and do not reach the source of all trouble, and effectually banishes the disease from the system.

Price.—One Dollar per Bottle. Prepared by C. R. WALKER, Buffalo, N. Y., and For Sale by G. W. C. W. For Sale by STEBBINS & WILSON, GREENVILLE & FULLER, and C. E. REBACH & Co.

A FEW REASONS WHY THE American Watch IS THE BEST.
It is made on the best principle, while the foreign watch is generally made on principle at all.
Let us look at the contrast. The foreign watch is mostly made by women and boys, and hand. While their work is cheap, their work is dear at any price. Such watches are made without plan, and sold without guarantee. They are irregular in construction, and quite as irregular in movement. They are designed only to sell, and the buyer is the party most thoroughly sold.

Those who have kept "ances," "Jupons" and "Swiss lovers" in professed repair for years will appreciate the truth of our statement.

The Plan of the American Watch.
Instead of being made of several hundred little pieces, screwed together, the body of the American Watch is formed of SOLID PLATES. No jar interferes with the harmony of its working, and no sudden shock can show its machinery out of gear. Scarcely one part from another is unknown to its constitution, and in repairing or any business pursuit, it will hold together as firmly as a single piece of metal. It is just what all machinery should be—1st. ACCURATE. 2d. SIMPLE. 3d. STRONG. 4th. ECONOMICAL.

We not only secure CHEAPNESS by our system, but QUALITY. We do not pretend that our Watches can be bought for less money than the foreign maladies, but that for its real value it is sold for one half the price. OUR SOLDIER'S WATCH (named Wm. Ellery) is what its name indicates—Solid, Substantial, and always Reliable—warranted to stand any amount of Marching, Riding or Fighting.

OUR NEXT HIGHER QUALITY OF WATCH (named E. S. BARTLEY) is similar in form and general appearance, but has more jewels, and a more elaborate finish. OUR LADIES' WATCH, recently brought out, is put up in a great variety of patterns, many of them of rare beauty and workmanship, is quite small, but warranted to keep time.

OUR YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S WATCH is neat, and large and just the thing for the pocket of Young America.

THE PROOF of the merits of our Watch may be found in the fact that we now employ over five hundred workmen in our factories, and that we are still unable to supply the constantly increasing demand.

OUR THREE-QUARTER PLATE WATCH is thinner and lighter than the others we have described. Its fine chronometer balance is delicately adjusted to correct the variation caused by changes of temperature. These Watches are chronometrically rated, and are the fruits of the latest experiments in chronometry and are made by our best workmen, in a separate department of our factory. For the finest time-keeping qualities they challenge comparison with the best works of the most famous English and Swiss makers.

It is impossible to enjoy the bloom of health, and vivacity of spirits, unless the Menes are regular as to the time, the quantity, and quality. When they are obstructed, nature makes her efforts to obtain for it some other outlet, and, unless these efforts of nature are assisted, the patient usually experiences Depression, Nervousness, and finally CONSUMPTION as a result of its way, and prematurely terminates a miserable life.

My wife has been suffering from Rheumatism, an inflammatory character for about six or seven years, sometimes very acutely. About the first of June last she commenced taking your "People's Cure," and continued to take it some three weeks. In ten days after she commenced, the swelling and stiffness of her joints gradually lessened, and in three weeks she had disappeared altogether.
