

The Gymnasium.

A young person can no more have too much love of adventure than a mill can have too much water power, only it needs to be worked, not wasted. Physical exercises give to energy and daring a legitimate channel...

The Gymnasium is the normal type of all muscular exercises; the only form of it which is impartial and comprehensive; which has something for everybody; which is available at all seasons, through all weathers, in all latitudes...

Whisky Drinking in the Army. "Dunn Browne," the army correspondent of the Springfield Republican, thus discusses the use of whisky in the army:

An army is a big thing, and it takes a great many eatables and not a few drinkables to carry it along. Have you any idea how many barrels of "commissary" (that's a gentle euphemism for whisky) it takes per week to run the machine?

Unpunctual People.—What bores they are—and havoc they make with the precious moments of orderly, systematic business. A person is faithless in his appointments may not intend to swindle people, but he does.
