Grant and Stanton—Which Ranks?

The New York Herald is responsible for the following good thing: When

Gen. Grant was about to leave Washington to enter upon that sublime campaign which began with the battle of the Wilderness, and ended with the downfall of the rebellion, he called upon

Secretary Stanton to say good-by.

The Secretary was anxiously awaiting him.

During the two and a half years that President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton had managed the Eastern armies, it was the first point in their plans to keep

Washington heavily garrisoned with troops. Large bodies of men were stationed in the fortifications around the city, and other large bodies were kept within supporting distance. Now that Grant had come into power Stanton wanted to see that the defence of Washington was not overlooked. The Secretary remarked:

Well, General, I suppose you have left us enough men to strongly garrison the forts?"

"No," said Grant, coolly, "I can't do that."

"Why not?" cried Stanton, jumping nervously about. "Why not? Why not?"

"Because I have already sent the men to the front," replied Grant calmly.

"That won't do," cried Stanton, more nervous than before. "It's contrary to my plans. I can't allow it. I'll order the men back."

"I shall need the men there," answered Grant, "and you can't order them back."

"Why not?" inquired Stanton again.

"Why not? Why not?"

"I believe that I rank the Secretary in this matter," was the quiet reply.

"Very well," said Stanton, a little warmly, "we'll see the President about that. I'll have to take you to the President."

"That's right," politely observed

Grant; "the President ranks us both."

Arrived at the White House, the General and the Secretary asked to see the President upon important business, and in a few moments the good natured face of Mr. Lincoln appeared.

"Well, gentlemen," said the President, with a genial smile, "what do you want with me?"

"General," said Stanton, stiffly,

"state your case."

"I have no case to state," replied

General Grant; "I'm satisfied as it is," thus outflanking the Secretary, and displaying the same strategy in diplomacy

Enoch Arden Boiled Down

Philip Ray and Enoch Arden Both were "spoons" on Anne Lee; Phil did not fulfill her notions,
She preferred to mate with E.

Him she wedded, and she bore him Pretty little children three;
But, becoming short of rhino,
Enoch went away to sea.

Leaving Mrs. Arden owner
Of a well stocked village shop,
Selling butter, soap and tallow, Beeswax, whicopod, lollipop.

Ten long years she waited for him,
But he neither came nor wrote, Wherefore she concluded Enoch Could no longer be afloat.

So when Philip came to ask If she would be Mrs. Ray,
She, believing she was widow'd,
Could not say her "no."

And a second time was married,
Gave up selling bread and cheese,
And in due time Philip nursed a Little Ray upon his knees.

But, alas! the long-lost Enoch Turn'd up unexpected 'ly,
And was vastly disconcerted
By his act of bigamy.

Yet, reflecting on the subject,
He determined to atone,
For his lengthened absence from her,
By just leaving well alone.

Taking to his bed, he dwindled Down to something like a shade,
Settled with his good landlady,
Next the debt of nature paid.

Then, when both the Rays discovered How poor Enoch's life had ended,
They came out in handsome style,
And gave his corpse a funeral send.

This is all I know about it,
By next mail to Alfred Tonnyson, P. L., the Isle of Wight.

playing the same strategy in diplomacy

as in war.

"Well, well," said the President,

laughing, "state your case, Secretary."

Secretary Stanton obeyed; Gen.

Grant said nothing; the President listened very attentively. When Stanton had concluded, the President crossed his legs, rested his elbow on his knees, winkled his eyes quaintly, and said:

"Now, Secretary, you know we have been trying to manage this army for two years and a-half, and you know we haven't done much with it. We sent over the mountains and brought Mister

Grant—as Mrs. Grant calls him—to manage it for us, and now I guess we had better let Mister Grant have his own way."

From this decision there was no appeal. Nobody ranked the President.

So Gen. Grant went off with the army, and Secretary Stanton went back to his office.

American Millionaires.

The New York correspondent of a contemporary, chronicles some of the queer doings of the nouveaux riches. A petroleum millionaire recently walked up Broadway for the purpose of buying kid gloves. Determined to make a "sensation," he purchased at no place less than twenty pairs, his sole object seeming to be to secure as many colors as possible. He had hired a man to carry his purchases, and when he thought he had enough—how many is not stated—he amused himself by giving them away to the seediest and dirtiest people in the street. As a consequence he was soon surrounded by a vociferous crowd of ragamuffins, eager to participate in his favors; kid gloves worth three dollars a pair were not to be despised by those who could easily turn them into ready money. The result, after the whole affair, was that the mob was dispersed by the police, and the petroleum magnate marched off to the station-house, where he paid a substantial fine with the air of a nabob, and then walked away satisfied.

A friend who has spent some weeks in the Pennsylvania oil region, relates one or two amusing incidents of the manner in which some of the ignorant farmers, suddenly grown rich, conduct themselves. A person rejoicing in the cuphonious cognomen of Tarr, is the proprietor of some of the richest oil land in Venango county. One year ago this Tarr was not the possessor of $5,000; to-day he is "worth" a million and a half. He has not only sold portions of his land at fabulous prices, but he has also an interest in all wells on his property. Tarr has one daughter, a buxom Pennsylvania dame, whose ideas of social enjoyment never before rose above a country apple "paring bee," and whose education was confined to the care of cattle and the cooking of a farmer. When Tarr grew rich, he determined to "give his darter an education." "Langwidges" he didn't care much about, but "moosic," he thought, would embrace all things. So

Tarr filled with Wheeling, West

Virginia, to receive a musical education.

The services of an accomplished professor were secured, and the buxom

Pennsylvanienne seated herself before the piano. She drummed and thrummed, the teacher retreated, and wept, and scolded, but at the expiration of some months the young lady knew no more than when she began to torture the keys. She sent for her father to take her home. The old gentleman came, much exasperated at the result of his ambition to give his daughter a "finished education." He was pleased to charge the failure to the teacher, whom he summoned to his presence, and interrogated in this wise: "Hain't yer got no piauonics?" "Yes, sir."

"Hain't yer got no moosic-books?"

"Plenty." "Hain't yer got time enuff?"

"All that is necessary." "Well, then, what do you want?" "Mr. Tarr, I am sorry to say that your daughter lacks capacity." "Capacity—'capacity!'" why (and here the old gentleman used a very expressive word), "why don't yer buy her one? I've got money enuff!"

Another story is related of a man named Funk, also a heavy proprietor of oil lands. When oil was "struck" on Funk's farm, certain capitalists approached him for the purpose of purchasing

The government is making a prodigious and fearful mistake in the mode of trial it has adopted for the conspirators in the late assassination. It makes a double blunder, in fact, first in resorting to a military tribunal, and secondly in causing the proceedings to be held in secret.

The following details of the capture of Jeff. Davis, while attempting to make his escape in his wife's clothes, have been received from Maj. Gen. Wilson.

The following dispatch announcing the capture of Jeff. Davis, has just been handed me by Col. Minty, commanding the 2d division.

HEADQUARTERS 1TH MICH. CAVALRY, CUMBERLAND, GA., May 14th, 1865. To Capt. W. W. Scott, A. G., 2d Division: Sir—I have the honor to report that at daylight yesterday, at Irwinville, I surprised and captured Jeff. Davis and family, together with his wife's sisters and brother, his Post Master General Regan, his Private Secretary, Colonel Harrison, Colonel Johnson, A. D. C., on Davis' staff, Colonel Morris Lubwick and Lieut. Hathaway; also several important names and a train of five wagons and three ambulances, making a most perfect success.

The powers that be at Washington have seemed to yield to the universal protest of the press against a secret trial of the conspirators to assassinate the President and other high officers of the nation, and have opened the doors to reporters. But they have only seemed, for the "commission" closes its doors to the reporters whenever it pleases, and supervises their reports of the testimony taken, allowing only such evidence to go to the public as it shall graciously permit.

The rebel army, which is not a modern improvement, but the ability of a great nation to provide for a great debt, and to make it the most convenient and best form of personal property, is a modern wonder.

The editor of the News don't relish the little item in our last issue about the Postoffice, and his fore-knowledge of the "change," and so gives vent to his "pencilings" by saying hard things about "Pond." We trust that he will preserve his equanimity, and not let his angry passions rise to too high a pitch just as warm weather is approaching.

The Michigan Argus.

ANN ARBOR MICH. FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 19, 1865. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

In another column we give place to an article from the New York Post severely criticising the decision of the government to try the assassins of the President and Secretary SEWARD by military commission, instead of in the courts established by the Constitution and the laws to take cognizance of such offences.

We might fill our columns with similar extracts from "loyal"—we mean Republican—journals who have dared—and even the Detroit Tribune may be included in the category—to dissent from the action of the government, but do not deem it worth our while, for the most of our readers need no arguments to convince them that the murderers of the President, and the attempted murderers of Secretary SEWARD, with all their accessories, ought to be tried by the civil courts, and those not already convinced will not be if we give up our entire space to the effort.

We regret as a lover of law, that the government, the executors of the law, should put it at defiance, even to punish criminals who could not escape their just deserts if the law was permitted to take its course; and we think that sooner or later every good citizen will come to the conclusion that military tribunals should be confined exclusively to the adjudication of offences against the articles of war, and that all other criminals should be turned over to the civil courts. There is no safety in any other course, and a military despotism will result from its adoption.

The powers that be at Washington have seemed to yield to the universal protest of the press against a secret trial of the conspirators to assassinate the President and other high officers of the nation, and have opened the doors to reporters. But they have only seemed, for the "commission" closes its doors to the reporters whenever it pleases, and supervises their reports of the testimony taken, allowing only such evidence to go to the public as it shall graciously permit.

In another column will be found the official announcement of the capture of JEFF. DAVIS, the President of the defunct Southern Confederacy. His capture was effected by the gallant boys of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, who pursued him to that "last ditch," which in this instance proved to be his wife's petticoats.

It is not yet officially announced whether the captured President will be put on trial on the charge of conspiring to assassinate President LINCOLN, or whether he will be indicted, tried, and hung for treason. He can get no more severe punishment than he deserves, and the question alone to be considered is what disposition of him is the best for the future of the nation.

The editor of the News don't relish the little item in our last issue about the Postoffice, and his fore-knowledge of the "change," and so gives vent to his "pencilings" by saying hard things about "Pond." We trust that he will preserve his equanimity, and not let his angry passions rise to too high a pitch just as warm weather is approaching.

The rebel Gen. Lee and family are living in Richmond on government rations regularly served out to them.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN. The sale of the first series of $300,000,000 of the 7-30 Loan was completed on the 31st of March, 1865. The sale of the second series of Three Hundred Millions, payable three years from the 15th day of June, 1865, was begun on the 1st of April. In the short space of thirty days, over One Hundred Millions of this series have been sold—leaving this day less than Two Hundred Millions to be disposed of. The interest is payable semi-annually in surcease on the 15th of December, and 15th of June, by Coupons attached to each note, which are readily cashed anywhere. It amounts to One cent per day on a $50 note. Two cents " " " $100 " Ten " " " $500 " 20 " " " $1000 " 30 " " " $5000 " More and More Desirable. The rebellion is suppressed, and the Government has already adopted measures to reduce expenditures as rapidly as possible to peace footing, thus withdrawing from market as borrower and purchaser. This is the ONLY LOAN IN MARKET now offered by the Government, and constitutes the GREAT POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE. The Seven-Thirty Notes are convertible on their maturity, at the option of the holder, into U. S. 5-20 Six per cent. GOLD-BEARING BONDS. They are always worth a premium. Free from Taxation. The 7-30 Notes cannot be taxed by Towns, Cities, Counties or States, and the interest is not taxed unless on a surplus of the owner's income exceeding six hundred dollars a year. This fact increases their value from one to three per cent. per annum, according to the rate levied on their property. SUBSCRIBE QUICKLY. Less than $300,000,000 of the Loan authorized by the last Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within two months, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans. It now seems probable that no considerable amount beyond the present series will be offered to the public. In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the Loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Banks throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders. JAY COOKE, Subscription Agent, Philadelphia. May 1st, 1865. SUBSCRIPTIONS WILL BE RECEIVED BY THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF ANN ARBOR, and FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF YPSALANTI. 7001000 WHAT EVERYBODY SAYS! We have a number of boys in our city, as in all other cities, who, when in school think it mainly to disobey the rules and annoy their teachers, and when out of school, delight in playing the rowdy in the streets, breaking windows in school and other buildings, stealing chickens and eggs, and perpetrating other acts of lawlessness.

Our home capitalists seem inclined to compete with those financiers of the Eastern States who have so long monopolized the insurance field in our State, reaping rich annual harvests from the premiums paid.

Those who know these men have confidence that they will not lend their names to any bogus affair, and that the company will be "sound and reliable."

Messrs. WELLS, CLEMENTS and HENNING, three of our active business citizens, returned a few days since from a tour of observation to Western Missouri and Kansas.

The Commercial Bulletin, Boston, reports the wool market as rather quiet during the last week, with a check in operations towards the last, owing to the decline in gold, cotton, &c.

On Friday afternoon last a collision occurred near the plank road crossing, between the Express train coming East and a hand car which had left the depot just before expecting to reach the side track at McManis's Mills.

There was a very heavy frost in this vicinity on Friday morning last—in fact a freeze—which injured Grapes, Cherries, Strawberries, Tomatoes and other vegetables, and cleaned out things generally.

Gov. CRAIG has issued a proclamation setting apart Thursday, June 1st, "as a day of humiliation and mourning," and recommends to the people of the State to suspend all secular employments, and attend religious services in their respective places of worship.

The American Artisan has completed its first year, and has met with such deserved success as to induce the publishers to materially enlarge its borders, and it, therefore, appears as a sixteen page paper instead of an eight.

Produce is not coming forward in any quantities. There is plenty of old wheat, old corn, &c., in "first hands," but farmers don't relish the present prices and besides are actively engaged in putting in their spring crops.

We have received Part XLVII. of the Rebellion Record, now published by D. VAN NOSTRAND, 192 Broadway, New York, and still edited by FRANK MOORE.

The weather has so far recovered from the chill of the late frost that the ice cart has commenced its daily rounds, and the clear crystal lumps dispensed by LATHIER & SOX are refreshing.

Preparations are being very generally made throughout the State of New Jersey for the public reception, in the various towns and villages, of her returning soldiers.

Railroad communication between Richmond and the South is being established as fast as possible.

It is said that many of Gen. Sherman's officers and enlisted men are anxious to join the Mexican emigration enterprise.
