

A Proclamation by Governor Crapo.

Michigan Soldiers, Officers and Men: In the hour of national danger and peril, when the safety—when the very existence—of your country was imperiled, you left your firesides, your homes and your families to defend the government and the Union.

Citizen soldiers, recognized by the institutions of the land as freemen, as American citizens, that proudest of all political distinctions, and possessing in common with every citizen the elective franchise, which confers the right to an exercise of the sovereign power; you had become so identified and engrossed with the national enterprise and prosperity derived from the untrammelled privileges of republican freedom, that the enemies of these institutions, in their ignorance of the principles upon which they are founded, madly and foolishly believed that you were destitute of manhood.

Fatal mistake! and terrible its consequences to those wicked and forsown men, as well as to their deluded and blinded votaries! Soldiers! you have taught a lesson, not only to the enemies of your country but to the world, which will never be forgotten.

Mitchell and the New York News. John Mitchell has been removed from the editorial chair of the N. Y. News by the authority of the United States, under charge of treason.

The war department has issued an order permitting soldiers wishing to retain their arms the privilege of doing so by paying for them.

It is announced that among the special applicants for pardon are Gen. Robert E. Lee and Hon. A. H. Stephens.

Gen. Butler has made another speech, taking grounds in favor of universal negro suffrage.

Gen. Grant was ordered at the Chicago Fair, by the fair ladies, and surrendered at discretion.

The various committees are zealous at work, and are fast perfecting the arrangements for a rousing celebration on the Fourth.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says: In the case of Jones and others, vs. Keep, our Supreme Court decided that the law of Congress requiring stamps to legal processes, in the commencement of suits or otherwise, is unconstitutional.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has consented to submit an agreed case to the United States Circuit Court, Maryland, upon the question of farmers' incomes, whether the 17th section, as amended, imposes a tax on sales, in 1864, of produce which have previously paid an income tax.

The Michigan Argus.

ANN ARBOR MICH. FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 23, 1865. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

The Rochester Democrat, a leading R-republican Journal, "pitches in" to one Senator Chandler, commonly known as "Zack"—for saying in a recent speech in New York that the armies of the United States were competent to meet on a single battle-field the combined armies of the world.

It is understood, though not officially announced, that Osborn, recently tried before a military commission in New York, for furnishing "contraband" news to the enemy, through that intensely loyal journal, the Philadelphia Press, was acquitted.

While the radicals had President Lincoln to deal with, and "differences of opinion" existed, they were wont to bully and bluster, impose upon his good nature, and "tolerate" him until they could get what they wanted.

The war department has issued an order permitting soldiers wishing to retain their arms the privilege of doing so by paying for them.

The President has appointed James Johnson, of Georgia, to be Provisional Governor of that State, and Hon. Andrew Hamilton, Provisional Governor of Texas.

Gen. Butler has made another speech, taking grounds in favor of universal negro suffrage.

Gen. Grant was ordered at the Chicago Fair, by the fair ladies, and surrendered at discretion.

The various committees are zealous at work, and are fast perfecting the arrangements for a rousing celebration on the Fourth.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says: In the case of Jones and others, vs. Keep, our Supreme Court decided that the law of Congress requiring stamps to legal processes, in the commencement of suits or otherwise, is unconstitutional.

The Feeling of the Soldiers.

Gen. Washburn, in taking leave of the Department of Memphis, made a speech, in which he said that our soldiers who "have faced death in every shape upon the battle field, or in tents and camps, amid dangers and putrefaction, are more kindly disposed toward their old assailants than those who have kept safely out of harm's way by remaining at home."

Gen. Slocum, who commanded one of the wings of Sherman's grand army in its great campaign, made one of the happiest speeches at his reception in Syracuse on Thursday that we have seen.

The lesson of the past four years will not soon be forgotten. Those who attempted to destroy our government, have laid down arms, and fully acknowledge their utter and complete failure.

It is understood, though not officially announced, that Osborn, recently tried before a military commission in New York, for furnishing "contraband" news to the enemy, through that intensely loyal journal, the Philadelphia Press, was acquitted.

The great parties of the future, like those of the past, will crystallize around the few leading and fundamental principles which have always characterized our political divisions.

Having a democratic party worthy of the name, we shall have, of course, a hostile party, which will lay its foundations, not so much in the sense of abstract and equal rights, as in the dictates of expediency, or in an assumed devotion to the general good of society.

The New York Independent, edited by Henry Ward Beecher, the great organ of the abolition radicals, thus opens its batteries upon the administration.

Gen. Butler has made another speech, taking grounds in favor of universal negro suffrage.

Gen. Grant was ordered at the Chicago Fair, by the fair ladies, and surrendered at discretion.

The various committees are zealous at work, and are fast perfecting the arrangements for a rousing celebration on the Fourth.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says: In the case of Jones and others, vs. Keep, our Supreme Court decided that the law of Congress requiring stamps to legal processes, in the commencement of suits or otherwise, is unconstitutional.

Condition of the Interior of Mississippi.

A correspondent of the New Orleans Times, writing from Jackson, Miss., June 1, says: "Arriving at Big Black on the cars from Vicksburg, a rickety old hack bore me on a dusty road to this point."

Heavy calamities have fallen on Jackson. Once a beautiful city, it is now a mass of ruins. Piles of brick and mortar cover the once famous retreats of wealth and fashion.

From the N. Y. Evening Post, June 18th. The Reorganization of Parties. The great parties of the future, like those of the past, will crystallize around the few leading and fundamental principles which have always characterized our political divisions.

The wool market has been quiet and with the prospect, amounting to a certainty, that the new clip will open at rather low figures, there is a general tendency of prices, in the Eastern market to shade off.

The Toronto papers complain of the army of bounty-jumpers in that city. A state of Julius Caesar is to be placed in the garden of the Tuileries.

The Emperor Maximilian has just assigned himself a salary of two millions of dollars per year from the Mexican treasury.

The wheat harvest commenced in Georgia ten days ago. It is thought the crop will be large enough for State consumption.

Out of sixty-five graduates from the last class at West Point, over three-fourths of them have applied for commissions in the cavalry.

A letter writer says Washington can boast a marvellous proportion of beautiful women, but many of them look better than they behave.

Jerome Buck and Steven Chittenden, of New York, have been retained to assist Charles O'Conner in the defence of Jeff Davis.

At Altoona, Penn., last week, two young ladies who were walking arm in arm, were struck by lightning and instantly killed.

From New Orleans.

New Orleans, June 19. Gen. Sheridan is busy organizing the Texas expedition. Gen. Meredith, commanding the cavalry, is moving into Texas with a large force of Red River and Shreveport.

The following paper was published this day: The twenty-five per cent. tax on cotton from the east side of the Mississippi River is revoked.

From Havana. New York, June 21. The steamer Eagle River brings Havana dates to the 17th.

The Haytian war continued, but President Guffard's troops were victorious in all engagements and the forces of the rebels were decreasing.

The news from Venezuela is of a satisfactory character. Gen. Falcon has been elected President. A petition signed by most of the wealthy inhabitants of the island of Cuba has been forwarded to Spain, asking that Gen. Dulce may be superseded as Captain General.

The State Prison Burned. JACKSON, Mich. June 15. A fire broke out at 11:30 o'clock this evening at the State Prison.

What New York pays for Amusement.

When the future historian of the republic takes up the burden of our great conflict, it will interest him and his readers to turn for a while from the glare of flaming cannon, and bristling musketry, to examine the social conditions of civil life in a country in which such scenes of rigorous warfare were enacted; and it will promote accuracy in the estimate of our national character to study the habits and demeanor of society through its baptism of fire and blood. To this end we have collected the items of expenditure of the people of New York for public amusements during the present season, as eminently calculated to illustrate the temper and life of our people. From the first day of July to the 30th day of April, last, the seven principal theaters and the Academy of Music in this city, received for dramatic performances, $1,053,000, and paid tax on the same to the amount of $21,060. The largest sum paid by any theater for tax during the period above named, was that paid by Niblo's Garden, amounting to $1778.92. The smallest sum paid by any theater, between the foregoing dates, was that paid by the Old Bowery Theater, amounting to $1681.64. The second largest tax was that paid by the Academy of Music, amounting to $3,320. The second smallest tax was paid by the New Bowery Theater, and amounted to $1,817.66. The third largest tax was paid by Wallace's Theater, and amounted to the sum of $2,788.44. The third smallest tax was paid by the Broadway Theater, amounting to $2,271.56. The French Theater from October to February, paid a tax of $197.48. The three Negro Minstrelsy Exhibitions paid tax to the amount of $2,440.24. Bryant's paid the largest tax, amounting from September 1, to April 30, to $393.00. Wood's establishment paid the next largest, amounting to $278.16. Campbell's & Hoolley's Troupe paid tax to the amount of $719.08.

From October 1, to March 31, the Hippodrome, in Fourteenth street paid tax amounting to $1,540.74 on their equestrian and other performances. The American Theater, 414 Broadway paid a tax of $774.30 their receipts from July to April. The German Theater paid, from September to April, tax to the amount of $1,952. In addition to the foregoing amounts of tax paid by places of amusement between July 1, and April 1, we may mention Barnum's Museum, the taxes on the gross receipts of which reach the high figure of $5,178.68. Independent of the sums enumerated above, a large amount of tax is paid annually in this city by the proprietors of miscellaneous exhibitions, making a total of not less than $30,000 annually, paid into the Treasury from the single source of public amusements in the metropolis alone.

The Home and Family of Henry Clay. A Kentucky correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial tells the following melancholy story of Ashland, the late home of Henry Clay—one of America's "first" orators, and for many years the idol of the old whig party—and the history of his descendants.

The old home of Henry Clay is now occupied by the family of Hon. Thos. Clay, one of his sons, and present Minister to one of the South American governments. It is owned by the heirs of James B. Clay—a degenerate son of the great statesman—who, it will be remembered, died in Canada about a year ago. The house in which Mr. Clay lived when at home, was torn down some years since by James, and a magnificent structure erected on its site, and there is nothing now about the place to remind one of him who once owned and honored it, except the family buggy in front of the house beneath which he used to sit and talk with his family and friends.

Mr. Clay had five sons. Four of them survived him. One, who bore his father's name, was killed in the Mexican war. Thomas, as I have said, is now a government Minister. John is living in one-half of the old homestead (now divided into two farms). James died a fugitive in a foreign land, and Theodore (the oldest of the family) is, and has been for twenty-five years, an inmate of an insane asylum, still claiming to be every one with whom he converses, that he is the original George Washington, and refusing to a call by any other name. Mr. Clay had no possessions of any kind at the time of his death, with the exception of Ashland, which was, of course, worth a considerable sum; but even that was heavily mortgaged, and he thought at one time he would be compelled to abandon it to his creditors, until one day when he entered the bank to pay one of his notes, he was told that he did now owe a cent! Kind and generous friends had taken his case in hand, and lifted the pecuniary burden from his shoulders.

Richard and Asparagus.—Both start into growth early in the Spring, hence it is better to set out roots in the Fall. Neither can be injured by manure, but a light, deeply worked soil is all objectionable. The 'giant' asparagus is always found on rich soil, which has much more to do with large stalks than any special variety. Plenty of manure will always bring 'minimoth' or 'colossal' rhubarb from Linneus roots, the best soil to plant, all things considered. Speaking of rhubarb, reminds us of pie made of half-rhubarb and half green tomatoes, after the manner of rhubarb pies, but with less sugar, which are very good.

Mr. Angus McDonald writes to the Witness to judge that a female mule belonging to Judy Jarvis, of Cornwall, had a foal. This, if there is no mistake about it, is a remarkable fact in natural history.
