

President Johnson takes his Stand.

An official statement of the greatest importance has just been made by an authoritative exponent of the opinions of President Johnson, in respect to the restoration of the late insurgent States.

The message of Provisional Governor Perry would, on general public grounds, be a state paper of great consequence at this juncture, but it becomes invested with the gravest import when it announces what the author knows the deliberate opinions of the President in respect to what is the duty of Congress next December.

In view of the relations heretofore existing between President Johnson and Gov. Perry; the public necessity which existed that the former communicate his views freely to the latter in respect to the admission to Congress of members-elect from the Southern States, and the high personal character of the latter, we are authorized to treat the following declarations, as made by Mr. Johnson himself:

The election of members of Congress should be provided for as early a day as possible. It is a matter of the highest importance that our representatives in Congress should be in Washington, ready to take their seats, on the first Monday in December.

By act of Congress, passed March, 1865, it is made the duty of the Clerk of the previous House of Representatives to "make a roll of the Representatives elect, and place there on the names of all persons, and such persons only, whose credentials show that they were regularly elected in accordance with the laws of their States respectively or the laws of the United States."

In July, 1862, Congress passed an act prescribing an oath of office for all persons to take who were elected or appointed to any office of honor or profit under the Government of the United States.

The third article provides for the election by Congress of a President and a Vice-President, who are to serve one year, the appointment by the President, and confirmation by the Senate, of a Cabinet modeled on the plan of the Cabinet of the United States, and authorizes the President to make treaties and appoint envoys and ambassadors.

The fourth article directs how State and District Clerks, or clerks, are to be appointed, provide the regulations of membership, and stipulates that the weekly dues of members are not to be less than ten cents, and the initiation fee not less than one dollar.

The Fenian Constitution.

At the recent General Convention of the Fenians in Philadelphia, a Constitution was adopted, and the organization of the Brotherhood perfected by the election of the executive and legislative officers as provided for in that instrument.

The Fenian Brotherhood is a distinct and independent organization. It is composed, in the first place, of citizens of the United States of America, of Irish birth and lineage; and, in the second place, of Irishmen and friends of Ireland living on the American Continent and in the Provinces of the British Empire, wherever situated.

Its headquarters are, and shall be, within the limits of the United States of America. Sec. 2. Its members are bound together by the following General Pledge: I, solemnly pledge my sacred word, that I will labor with earnest zeal for the liberation of Ireland from the yoke of England, and for the establishment of a free and independent government on the Irish soil; that I will implicitly obey the commands of my superior officers in the Fenian Brotherhood, in all things appertaining to my duty as a member thereof; that I will faithfully discharge my duties of membership laid down in the Constitution and By-Laws thereof; that I will do my utmost to promote feelings of love, harmony and kindly forbearance among all Irishmen; and that I will foster, defend and propagate the aforesaid Fenian Brotherhood to the utmost of my power.

Sec. 3. The Fenian Brotherhood shall be subdivided into State, district and local Circles—States and districts by Centers who shall reside within the limits of their respective jurisdictions. The second article provides for a system of representation in the General Congress, to be composed of fifteen Senators and a House of Representatives, similar in its general features to the Congress of the United States.

The third article provides for the election by Congress of a President and a Vice-President, who are to serve one year, the appointment by the President, and confirmation by the Senate, of a Cabinet modeled on the plan of the Cabinet of the United States, and authorizes the President to make treaties and appoint envoys and ambassadors.

The fourth article directs how State and District Clerks, or clerks, are to be appointed, provide the regulations of membership, and stipulates that the weekly dues of members are not to be less than ten cents, and the initiation fee not less than one dollar.

The fifth article provides for the election by Congress of a President and a Vice-President, who are to serve one year, the appointment by the President, and confirmation by the Senate, of a Cabinet modeled on the plan of the Cabinet of the United States, and authorizes the President to make treaties and appoint envoys and ambassadors.

The sixth article directs how State and District Clerks, or clerks, are to be appointed, provide the regulations of membership, and stipulates that the weekly dues of members are not to be less than ten cents, and the initiation fee not less than one dollar.

The Michigan Argus.

ANN ARBOR MICH. FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 10. 1865.

The charter election of the city of Detroit occurred on Tuesday. For a few days previous considerable excitement had prevailed in the newspapers—which, judging by the fact that over twelve hundred less votes were polled than at the Presidential election last Fall, must have subsided before Tuesday morning.

MILLS, Democrat had a majority for Mayor of 893; MOORE, for Recorder, 1,011; STARKEY for City Clerk, 643; HARTWELL, for Attorney, 619; LEAD BEATER, for Treasurer, 776; ROBINSON for Surveyor, 1,129; MCCracken, for Justice, 90; while the Republicans elected STOLL Police Justice by 1397, and WILLARD Director of the Poor by 28.

Either the Democrats or the Republicans didn't 'pull true,' that's evident. The emigrant steamer Atalanta arrived at New York, from Havre, on the night of the 2d inst., having a large load of emigrants on board, and both the cholera and small pox. The cholera broke out among the steerage passengers, and of some sixty cases twenty died during the passage.

Excitement was kept down by not making the nature of the disease known, and no cases occurred in the cabin or among the crew. The Atalanta was sent into quarantine, and the authorities are making every effort to prevent the spread of the epidemic. As cleanliness is the great preventive, the authorities of all the cities of the land should see that streets, and lanes, and yards, and out-houses, are purified before the warm weather of another summer.

HENRY JOHN TEMPLE—Lord PALMERSTON—the Premier of the British Cabinet, and for half a century prominently connected with the British Government, died on the 18th ult., at 9.35 A. M. Lord PALMERSTON was born in Ireland on the 20th day of October, 1784, and therefore lacked but two days of being 81 years old.

It is supposed that EARL RUSSELL will succeed to the Premiership. In another column we give place to the prospectus of the New York World. We have read the World daily for the last two years, and can cheerfully endorse it both as a political and news journal.

OUR COMMERCIAL RELATIONS WITH FRANCE.—Information has been received that the French Government has lowered the duties on raw whalebone, the product of American fisheries, the tariff on that article now being the same as on that imported into France from European countries.

The National Intelligencer, in noticing a visit to the President, of a delegation of ladies from Baltimore, and their presentation of a petition numerous and signed, urging the clemency of the Executive in behalf of Jeff. Davis, says the interview was a protracted one, and of the most agreeable character, and the fair petitioners left the city carrying with them the most pleasurable impressions of the President.

THE MEMORIAL CHAPEL.

Circular of the Central Committee. The circular published below, presents the matter of the memorial chapel proposed to be erected in the University grounds at Ann Arbor.

At a meeting of the Society of Alumni of the University of Michigan, held June 28th, 1855, it was unanimously resolved to erect a memorial building at Ann Arbor, to the brave and gallant dead who have fallen in the late civil war, and the Alumni pledged themselves to raise fifty thousand dollars for this purpose.

Secretary McCulloch to-day promulgated the statement of public debt, as it appears from the books of the Treasury, and returns and requisitions in the Department, on the 31st of October, 1865. THE WORLD.

An Independent Democratic Daily, Weekly and Semi-Weekly Newspaper.

After four years of civil war, forced upon the people of the United States by the violence of sectional parties, we now enter upon a new era of unity and of progress. North and South, a cordial co-operation of all the best men is needed to repair the waste of war, to establish our Peace through the triumph of sound constitutional principles in the administration of the government, and our Unity by guarding all that makes Union desirable.

The great Democratic Party, whose history in the past is the history of private property, of territorial extension, and of public order in America, stands now, as it has ever stood, the Party of the Nation, superior to all sectional passions in its loyalty to the rights of equal states, and to every citizen of the individual citizen. One more time will be heard, once more its adherents will be rallied to its time-honored standards in every city and town of the Northern and of the Southern States.

Principles of this great Democratic Party of the Nation, that shall continue to be firm witness throughout the ordeal of civil war. It will now be devoted to the not less arduous task of applying those principles to the solution of the many and weighty questions—financial, social, political—which come up in the reconstruction of the Nation. Faithful to the real interests of all sections, it will be enabled by the prejudices and blinded by the prepossessions of none.

Whatever skill can devise or enterprise accomplish will contribute to make THE WORLD what it is not now, a daily journal of news, correspondence, editorials, commercial and market news, cattle market and provision reports, and a fresh and entertaining miscellany of literature. Published Tuesday and Friday.

THE WEEKLY WORLD, a large quarto sheet, sent as daily, has now the largest circulation of any weekly journal published here. Its extraordinary success since its union with the New York Argus has justified the most liberal expenditures, which will make it unrivaled in interest and value to farmers—Published Wednesday.

Asphalt or Coal Tar Walks. Last year we gave an account of the method of making garden walks of coal tar and sand.

The ground is excavated for the walk to the depth of three and a-half inches, and as wide as the path is desired.

The cost of such a walk is from 40 to 60 cents a square yard, according to the price of materials in different localities.

Loss of Manures. Liebig assures us—and certainly our noses corroborate the assertion—that no considerable portion of the more valuable properties of manure escapes from our pig-sties, and other places of deposit in the form of pungent gas, known to chemists by the appellation of ammonia.

Many years ago, whilst residing in Philadelphia, I had progressed gradually into the last stage of Pulmonary Consumption. All hopes of my recovery being abandoned, my physician, Dr. Parry, endeavored to renovate the country.

For many years past I have made as many five hundred examinations weekly with the "Respirometer." For such examination my charge is three dollars, and I will not give one cent without the receipt of a doctor's prescription.

When you see an ox-bow with the bark tight, there are no worms, no powder-post, and you cannot separate it from the wood, and what is true in one kind is true in all kinds of timber, and every kind has its peculiar kind of worm.

I have wondered that there has not been more said on this subject, as it is one of great importance, even for firewood, and especially for shipbuilding.
