TWO YARDS OF EARTH. BY EDGAR L. FANTON. Two yards of earth, and a marble bust Reared aloft from the common dust...

Two yards of earth, and heaven's air Flaming the lilies white and fair; And modest violets gathered around, And spotless virtue under the ground.

Two yards of earth, and a woman's name, Whose life was woe, and whose death was shame. And the cold rain beating a naked mound, And a thousand miseries under the ground.

Two yards of earth! O who shall say Whether of these is the better clay? God give us grace in our hapless road That leads to this kingdom under the clay.

BEAUTIFUL IN OLD AGE. How to be beautiful when old? Not by lotions, eyes, and pigments, Not by washes for your hair.

Some white locks are fair as golden, Grey as lovely as the brow, And the smile of age more pleasant Than a youthful beauty's frown.

Talks With Women. BY JENNIE JUNE. The creation of "strong-minded" women, so-called is due to the individualism of men...

Political clump, party strife, the clashing of interests, the anxieties of public and business life, are, I think, unnatural and distasteful to most women.

Women have human sympathies, human feelings, human hopes, human fears, human ambitions. These must be properly gratified, or they will be obliged to find an outlet in other directions.

The Kingdom of heaven is within us; it must grow from within, and not from without. The heart and brain of the individual man or woman must penetrate the family, the neighborhood, and the world.

They tell a funny story in the London Clubs about Vernon Harcourt, the "Historic" of the London Times. Four gentlemen were discussing the subject of bores, each declaring that he knew the most disagreeable man in the world, and the dispute growing animated, it was agreed that the four bores should be brought together at dinner.

DOUBLE COURTESY.—I was in love once with a fat girl. She was very fleshy. She was enormous, but the source of my true love came from grief. The next day, she sent for a negro on a night one evening. I was sentimental, I said many soft things; I embraced part of her. She seemed distant. She frequently turned her lovely head from me. At last I thought I heard the murmur of voices on the other side. I arose and walked around; and then I found another fellow courting her on the left flank. I was indignant, and upbraided her for her treachery in thus concealing from me another lover. She laughed at my conceit, as if she were not big enough to have two lovers at once.—Don Platt.

A gentleman in Alabama in exerting himself one day felt a sudden pain, and fearing his internal machinery had been thrown out of gear, sent for a negro on his plantation, who made some pretensions to medical skill, to prescribe for him. The negro, having investigated the case, prepared and administered a dose of his patient, with the utmost confidence of a speedy cure. No relief being experienced, however, the gentleman sent for a physician, who on arriving, inquired of the negro what medicine he had given his master. Bob promptly responded: "Rosin and alum, sir."

"What did you give them for?" continued the doctor. "Why," replied Bob, "de alum to draw de parts together, and de rosin to soddor um."

From the Boston Congregationalist. THE BATTLE FOR WOMEN. There is one fixed point of departure for any rational discussion of this question. To ignore it is to make the discussion nearly worthless.

Now, motherhood is not the occupation of a moment. For months preceding the fact of maternity the body is controlled by it, taken much out of its ordinary course, set aside from many of its severer labors.

Not only are the physical powers fully preoccupied both before and after the birth, but neither body nor mind is in regular and normal action for life's common uses.

These exigent duties of maternity may be said naturally to occupy a woman from twenty to forty-five years of her life.

These leading women, most honored and famous in marriage, but pre-occupied with maternity, must become conspicuous in the world.

hold herself clear to meet it. She has no right to induce circles of clients to contrast to her their legal interests, and then, fairly acquainted with their affairs, withdraw herself to any private and domestic concern whatever.

The obvious and only answer must be, "Then these women must avoid maternity. That is not their only duty. Others are paramount. She need not be a mother."

These women shall be celibates! But are not all our reformers braiding their plies for women at the polls by saying, "Men are not men without women, and women are not women without men?"

But these professional women, who have hearts as well as heads, passionate for love, tenderness and home will have way. Marry, forsooth, they must and will! Yet they are under bonds to success and honor not to interrupt their professional pursuits by the long pauses of frequent maternity.

These leading women, most honored and famous in marriage, but pre-occupied with maternity, must become conspicuous in the world.

THE UNIVERSITY—THE WOMAN QUESTION. Mr. Editor: Having read in a previous issue of your paper "Observer's" article upon the admission of women to the University, and being desirous to present the views of the "other side" as well as our own limited powers will allow, we crave the privilege of making the "retort courtois" through the columns of your paper.

The speedy downfall is predicted with due solemnity by "Observer." After the invasion of those halls so long sacred to boots and broadcloths by curls and crimoline, it is assumed as inevitable that some changes must take place.

But the women of Michigan are not prepared to accept this conclusion. They are as proud of the State University as are the men, and its downfall would be as sincerely regretted by them.

How naively in the Professors to suppose that a right to assemble at other Conventions than a "tea-party" is how extremely simple of them to believe that their daughters have the same right to the fruits of the tree of knowledge as their sons.

How ridiculous that they should consider that when a woman does a man's work, as well as a man, she should be paid man's wages! But when men of their known worth and wisdom will enlist in support of "theories" which in "Observer's" eyes, "disgrace civilization," we do indeed predict ultimate success to the cause, and despite the admission of women, long life and continued prosperity to our noble University.

Tea and coffee. Hall's Journal of Health says: Taking into account the habits of the people, tea and coffee for supper and breakfast add to human health and life, if a single cup be taken at either meal, and is never increased in strength, frequency or quantity.

Then comes the announcement that it is not the true woman, the modest woman who will ask admittance, but that who are "restless under the natural and divine law of womanhood," and "who part for notoriety?"

earnest, truly modest women,—those who realize the fact that there are God-given talents entrusted to their keeping, and who remember with fear and trembling the fate of him who "dugged in the earth and hid his Lord's money." But suppose a woman take a degree at the University, we need not infer that because she can she needs must put on her "single" as an Attorney and Counselor at Law, or become a disciple of Galen. Yet, if it be necessary, let her do so, we beg you, rather than be driven by poverty and want to crime, or to pander to the vices of those who would confine her to her "sphere."

But another terrible consequence of the opening of University portals to women, is foreseen by "Observer." Perhaps at some future time there may be some Miss or Mrs. so aspiring, so ambitious, so inclined to "part for notoriety," as to be competent to fill the chair of a Professor in this University. Perhaps some future Board of Regents,—not having the fear of Man before their eyes, and recollecting how many times during the past year, the Presidency of this institution has been offered to worthy and distinguished gentlemen, only to be respectfully declined, "with regrets," like an invitation to dine—might have the audacity to offer it to the before mentioned Miss or Mrs. and she, conscious of ability to discharge the duties of the position, have the impudence to accept. Such a contingency might, "in the course of human events," take place, and, ergo, let us keep women out of these halls, lest our great-grandchildren should come under petticoat government! Sensible, very!

Where the Sun Does not Set. The following graphic passage is from the description of the voyage of a messenger by a Mr. Campbell and his party, from the north of Norway, from a cliff 1,000 feet above the sea:

"The ocean stretched away in silent vastness at our feet; the sound of its waves scarcely reached our airy lookout; away in the north, the huge old sun swung along the horizon, like the slow beat of the pendulum in the tall clock of our grand-father's parlor corner. We all stood silent, looking at our watches. When both hands came together at 12 midnight, the full moon, coming triumphantly above the waves, a bridge of gold running due north, spanned the water between us and him. There he shone in silent majesty, which knew no setting. We involuntarily took off our hats; no word was said. Combine, if you can, the most brilliant sunrise and sunset you ever saw, and its beauties will pale before the gorgeous coloring which now lit up the ocean, heaven and mountain. In half an hour the sun had swung up perceptibly on his beat; the colors changed to those of morning; a fresh breeze rippled over the sea, and the songster after another piped up in the grove behind us; we had slid into another day."

THE UNITED STATES SENATE'S STATIONERY BILL.—Some suggestions and rather amusing items of information may be found in the report of the Secretary of the Senate, detailing contingent expenses of that august body for the year ending December 6, 1869. This document tells just what newspapers each Senator prefers to read at the public expense, and also shows some painful mistakes on the part of them all to be fully informed of events and opinions in the States which they respectively represent. It is hard to understand, however, that Senator Edmunds should find it needful to the discharge of duty to have Our Young Folks for one year at a cost of $2; Senator Salisbury, Democrats Monthly at $5; Senator Harlan, the Ladies' Repository, Leslie's Magazine and Leslie's Pictorial at $4 each; and Senator Cole, Oliver Optic's Boys and Girls Magazine at $3. We find again, $5 charged at one time, and $3 at another for snuff for the use of Senators. Three packages of scissors, in extra super velvet cases are put down at $15, and no end of two, three and four bladed pen-knives at all sorts of prices. On the 19th of February, $10 was paid for back hire, conveying a committee to inform Gen. Grant of his election; while the next day only $5 was paid for conveying another committee to Gen. Grant's residence. Pocketbooks and card cases figure frequently in the list of articles purchased, some of them costing $4.50 each. The price of a pen-knive set down at $24, but what use they were intended for is not told; nor is the same set down of the happy recipient of one extra morocco note case, with lock, at $21. On the 19th of May, 1869, it appears that somebody had a polished rosewood desk, at $200 which was boxed up at a further cost of $8. The amount of stationery of all sorts is incredible. Without having gone into a thorough computation, one would say that the honorable senators must have several hundreds of gross of inkstands, more than a thousand gross of pen-knives, and enough lead pencils to keep an ordinary family in kindling wood an entire winter. The entire account covers 80 pages of fine print.

PEN PHOTOGRAPHS OF TWO WALL STREET OPERATORS.—The personal appearance of two lady "operators" who are now causing a sensation in Wall street, is thus sketched: Mrs. Jennie C. Claffin, though married eight years, is a young girl about 20 years of age. Her features are full, and her countenance smiles upon her countenance. She is, to all appearance, the photograph of a business woman—keen, shrewd, whole-souled, and apparently a firm foe of the "girl of the period" creation, whom she describes as a sickly, squeaming noodle-judice in an evening's gesture. Mrs. Victoria C. Woodhull is her sister. She is some five years older than Mrs. C., and has a keen, bright eye. She is bristling with nervous temperament, and it might be apprehended that a serious financial shock would not tell well on her constitution. She states that since she has been in the business in New York—some two or three years—although their operations were conducted solely through agents in the street, they have made about $700,000.

A young lady from the rural districts went to Des Moines to see the elephant. In the street-car the conductor said to her, "Miss, your fare."

"Well if I am," replied she, "I don't want any of your impertinence."

It is more from carelessness about the truth than intentionally lying that there is so much falsehood in the world.
