THE DEAD LETTER.

BY JOHN G. HAZE. He risked little in the rude wakening which he now undergoes. His information was whispered in a low, hurried tone.

Grant thought a moment. His plans had been carefully matured; but if he had really passed the previous night at that very far house, he could not be aiming for Danville, and the lady's story must be true.

Meanwhile General Babcock stole quietly out, silently aroused messengers, saddled horses, and watched with the appearance of things about the enclosure. It was evident that a larger party than theirs had stayed there lately.

Returning to the house, he found Grant with dispatches ready, and mounting with but two companies he rode away to find Sheridan. He found that was a ride worth taking, under the stars, with the silence of midnight about him.

Challenge and countersign were rapidly given and exchanged as they passed the pickets, and Sheridan was reached in time to receive a history briefly of the preceding day's pursuit. "This was a misadventure," he then said, "pursuit was resumed by all hands on the morning of the 8th—the second and sixth corps, under Meade, moving north of the Appomattox or directly in the trail of the enemy, while Sheridan, undecided as to Lee's making for Danville, led his cavalry to head him off from Lynchburg, his only remaining refuge."

Not many days ago the mercenary world of Frussia was greatly excited by the news of the capture of an officer usually long time puzzled the agents of that kingdom. The Royal Bank had sent a box with a hundred thousand dollars from Berlin to Munster.

On the 7th of April they were sure that Lee was aiming to reach Danville; and accordingly Sheridan with his forces moved rapidly forward to defeat that purpose. Grant, with his staff and several other officers, which were in the water-plantation, demanding rest and refreshment. It was nearly dark; they were judged and worn out with the fierce excitement of the preceding days and the hard riding.

During the preparation of their supper, and once afterward, a tall and elegant lady had been visible; but she vouchsafed no word or look to the Yankee officers, and evidently sought, by her haughty and disdainful looks, to make them feel how unwelcome was their presence.

Possession perhaps more vitally of power of endurance than his companions General Babcock did not himself so deeply as the rest, so, being as sentinel, he stood up and down the hall, running in Southern fashion through the house.

The General was startled and amazed, but wisely kept from betraying his surprise, and answered as if very weary. "Oh, please let us forget the army just now. If Grant has made a mistake it is his affair; but you can't imagine what a delight this evening has been to me. I shall never forget it; and when this conflict shall close, I shall hope to see your acquaintance. THE OLD CATHOLIC CONGRESS AT MANCHESTER.

Correspondence of the Journal of Commerce. The Old Catholic Congress at Manchester. Its Purpose and Spirit. MANCHESTER, September 24, 1871.

I cannot refrain from giving to you some impressions I have received while attending for the past few days the sittings, private and public of the "Congress of the Old Catholics." You are unacquainted with the principles and objects of this Congress, know who are its prominent members, and are aware of its importance.

The death of General Robert Anderson is announced in the following dispatch received by the Associated Press last night. "CINCINNATI, October 27.—Private dispatches received here to-day say that General Robert Anderson died at Nice, France, last evening. He had gone from Venice to Nice three weeks ago, hoping to receive benefit from the change of climate. He was accompanied by his family, and was with him. His remains will be brought by the United States vessel Guericke to this country for interment."

From the outbreak of the war on the secession of the Confederate States, Robert Anderson occupied a prominent position in the history of America, and the news of his death will be received throughout the country with unfeigned regret. He was born in Kentucky in 1805, graduated at West Point in 1825, and on the 1st of July, 1847, received his first commission as brevet second lieutenant of Second Artillery.

Not many days ago the mercenary world of Frussia was greatly excited by the news of the capture of an officer usually long time puzzled the agents of that kingdom. The Royal Bank had sent a box with a hundred thousand dollars from Berlin to Munster.

The New License Ordinance.

Our readers have already been advised that the Common Council has taken in important and decided step in administering the affairs of the city. First, on the petition of a large number of citizens, a special police force has been ordered, and then to obtain the funds necessary to pay the tax on an ordinance which would regulate the licensing of billiard rooms, saloons, eating houses, etc. That the interested public may know just what has been done, and why it was done, we append the full report of the committee recommending the passage of the ordinance, and also the ordinance itself:

COMMITTEE REPORT.

The committee to whom was referred the question of employing a police force submitted the following report. They recommended the passage of the following resolutions and accompanying ordinance and regulations:

1st. The police force is required for the protection against burglars. Situated as we are, on one of the great thoroughfares of the State, and with a large floating population concerning the character of which at best we can know but little, our city seems to furnish a comparatively safe refuge for desperate characters against whose depredations we have little or no protection.

2d. A police force is required as a protection against incendiary as well as accidental fires. It is necessary for your committee to call attention to the fact that our supply of water and fire apparatus is entirely inadequate to the wants of the city, and that any general conflagration must result in the destruction of the more compactly settled portions of the city. Our only safety is in the discovery of fires at their inception, which can only be done through an efficient and watchful police.

3d. A police force is required to suppress disorder and secure the enforcing of the ordinances of the city and laws of the State, and it is justly due to our generous patron that we should execute our guardianship faithfully, and secure to our city a reputation as being a model town in all that relates to morality, sobriety and orderly conduct. There is no interest in the city that requires our fostering care to a greater extent than that connected with the University. Our future prosperity or ruin will turn upon the success or failure of that institution. The committee have been informed, and believe, that the burden of the complaint of the committee of the Legislature that visited us last winter was the moral sentiment in our midst as shown by the great number of saloons, billiard or gambling rooms, and the riot and disorder that prevailed and was reported to prevail on our streets during the night, and not infrequently far into the morning.

4th. Other cities in our State, of far less pretensions than our own, support an efficient police force, and consider it a necessary element for their protection.

5th. Your committee are of the opinion that the revenue derived from the tax on billiard tables, and the fines imposed for the violation of ordinances, will be sufficient to nearly if not quite support the police force recommended, and these sources of disorder may thus be made to pay for their own regulation and control. We, therefore, recommend the passage of the ordinance and regulations.

AN ORDINANCE Relative to Billiard Tables, Saloons, &c.

Be it Enacted by the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen of the City of Ann Arbor:

SECTION 1. No person shall keep a billiard table within the limits of the city of Ann Arbor without a license from the Recorder.

SECTION 2. A keeper of a billiard table shall be liable to keep a billiard table without others are allowed to play, and for which any money or its equivalent, or any check or counter in lieu of money, is paid or received.

SECTION 3. The Recorder is hereby authorized to grant a license to any person to keep a billiard table on the payment into the city treasury of ten dollars per quarter in advance, and the Recorder's fee, for each table proposed to be kept by such person, and his executing a bond to the corporation, in the sum of one hundred dollars, with two or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the Common Council, conditioned that such person will faithfully observe the charter and ordinances of said city.

SECTION 4. It shall not be lawful for any person to keep any billiard table, saloon or other house or place for gaming, eating, drinking, without first obtaining license therefor from the Recorder and paying for the same at the rate of twenty-five dollars per quarter, payable in advance, at the end of the first, second, third, fourth and fifth months of the year, April, July and October in each year, and giving bonds, with three sureties to be accepted by the Mayor and Recorder, in the sum of two hundred dollars; that such saloons shall not be open on Sunday or remain open after 11 o'clock at night; and that no intoxicating drink shall be sold or given away to any minor or person intoxicated at the time.

SECTION 5. No person licensed as aforesaid shall at any time permit or suffer any gaming for money or other value on any billiard table kept by him, nor shall any person be guilty of betting or gaming for money or value thereon; nor shall any person so licensed permit or suffer in or about the establishment where such table is kept by him any drunkenness, quarreling, fighting or other disorderly conduct, nor keep, permit or suffer any such establishment to be open or any playing on such table during any part of the first day of the week called Sunday, or after the hour of 11 o'clock in the evening or before the hour of six o'clock in the forenoon of any day, nor permit to play thereon or thereat any minor or student after the parent, guardian or teacher of the school at which such student attends shall notify such keeper not to permit or suffer any such minor or student to play.

SECTION 6. Any violation of or failure to comply with the provisions of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding seventy-five dollars and costs, to be recovered before any justice of the peace of the city of Ann Arbor, and in the imposition of any such fine and costs the said justice of the peace may make a further sentence; that in default in the payment thereof the defendant be committed to the Detroit House of Correction or the Washington County Jail for a period of time not exceeding ninety days.

SECTION 7. This ordinance shall take effect from and after its passage.

Made and passed in Common Council, this twenty-fourth day of October, A. D. 1871.

The Council is on the right track. While the constitution and the State laws will not permit the licensing of liquor saloons, they both, with the city charter, warrant the Council in licensing billiard rooms and eating saloons. And it is certainly within the province of the Council to make such licenses conditional. This is what the ordinance does. Enforced, it will prevent a vast deal of disorder, demoralization and confusion; will insure peaceful nights and Sundays; and will protect the youth of our city and those sojourning here in the time being. We hope that every good citizen will encourage the Council in its good work, and insist that the new system have a fair trial.

The Kansas Pacific Railway and Agriculture.

The officers of the Kansas Pacific Railway are making laudable efforts to develop the agricultural interests along the line of their road, and are meeting with admirable success, as the following paragraph from the Kansas City Bulletin will demonstrate:

"One of the most pleasing and interesting displays made is that of the Kansas Pacific Railway, showing what they can raise in the way of vegetables and cereals along the line of road through Kansas and Colorado; pleasing, because we may look on our city as the key to that wonderful country represented here, and interesting because people in the east, who will visit us, and indeed a large proportion of the residents here, look upon the idea of anything growing from the soil in those districts as utterly absurd. In obedience to a circular issued by Beverly R. Kain, general ticket agent of the Kansas Pacific Railway, who, by the way, seems determined never to lose a chance of advertising his road, the station agent along the line have sent in contributions, and when we remember the lateness of the season, the show made is really wonderful. Mr. Weston, land agent of the company here, is managing matters at the exhibition building, and has arranged the display in a most tasty and effective manner, and in conjunction with the rest, he exhibits products of the 'Great American Desert,' which attracted so much attention individually and from the newspapers at the great St. Louis fair. Most of these products came from Wilson's, two hundred and thirty-nine miles from here, where the company has an experimental garden, and some from Ellis and Pond creek, thirty-three miles from here, and thirty miles west.

Some of the most noticeable were as follows:

Potatoes and beets from Abilene; do from Potawatomie county; squashes from Abilene; cereals and native grasses, seedling trees of different varieties, and sorghum fifteen feet high, from Wilson's; squashes, broom corn, sorghum and peanuts from Ellis; petrified wood weighing sixty-five pounds; a soil of buffalo grass eighteen inches deep and twelve inches through. We understand that nearly a car load of contributions arrived this morning, which we will be able to notice when placed on exhibition. In the center of the display is the shaggy head of a large buffalo bull, shot near Wilson's, which is an object of great interest to the strangers from the east and draws a crowd from morning till night. The company certainly deserves much credit for making this most attractive and novel exhibition.

CONFIRMATION OF THE ABOVE.

In confirmation of the above we can give our personal testimony from recent observation. In our recent trip to the west we met at Ellis, 303 miles west from Kansas City, and within the borders of the heretofore called 'Great American Desert,' a Michigan man, an old acquaintance, who adds to his vocation as keeper of the railroad eating house—and he makes a good one—the experimental and practical business of farming. He assured us that the vegetables with which the tables were supplied, and in the list were potatoes, beets, onions, parsnips, cabbages, etc., all first quality, were raised by himself. And we also noticed a piece of winter wheat looking as well as the average fields in Washtenaw county the present season. Mr. EDWARDS—for that was our friend's name—also informed us that he had kept a weather record for the last two years,—that is by date but lacking a rain-gauge,—and that there had been rain as often, on an average, as twice a month. The same successful experiments we noted at other stations, and also attempts to cultivate trees, which promised all that was expected. And so that bugbear, the 'Great American Desert,' had moved further to the west.

—Great credit is due to the officers of the K. P. R. for the enterprise with which they are pushing their agricultural operations away out upon the plains. In proving that these lands are arable they will do a service not only to themselves but to the whole land-seeking country.

The New York Globe says:

"It is announced that one of our society belles has accepted the offer of marriage from the Alexis' ball by having her hair lit up by little gas jets, the reservoir of which is to be concealed amidst a wilderness of false braids, puffs and curls, and a French twist. She is to pay Alexander Martin $10 for dressing her hair for the evening, and arranging her crown of blazing tresses, while she pays $150 for the false hair added to her own abundant tresses. This is not an original idea of the young lady's, however. It was a device of that Miss Fanny Carter, of Boston, who was first married to a grandson of old Peter Lerriard, and after his death, to Mr. Bonald, a brother-in-law of Senator Conkling. She wore such a head-dress on one occasion at a ball at the Tuileries, in Paris."

Geographical changes of great magnitude have taken place during the last ten years in the districts adjoining the Caspian Sea and the Ural River. The water of the river has sunk more than one foot, and many bays on the northeast coast of the sea have been entirely drained. The delta of the Ural has diminished from nineteen to five branches, and its area is now only seven versts instead of one hundred and thirty versts. The sea has advanced inland, and the Caspian is now six versts inland.

OFFICE OF THE

SPRINGFIELD

Fire & Marine Insurance Co

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 25, 1871.

To Our Readers:

As many of the companies have been dissolved in the amount of their Chicago losses, we conclude at this day to make the following statement, which we know to be correct:

Assets at market value ... $1,077,000
 Chicago losses not over ... 240,000
 All other outstanding losses ... 47,200

This will give us our Capital of $500,000 entire and surplus of $737,800, and we expect a salvage of $25,000 at Chicago.

Our adjusters are paying all losses at Chicago in cash as fast as they can be adjusted.

Our Directors and Stockholders are pledged to the Company pro rata on their Stock $25,000 within thirty days as a Reserve against all outstanding risks in accordance with the laws of Massachusetts and New York. This will give us Capital and Surplus of over $500,000 after paying all outstanding losses.

This plan is a very sound financial basis, and we shall expect a large increase of business at your hands, on good and desirable property, at largely increased rates. Your efforts in our behalf at this time, in this direction, will be appreciated. Select your business with care, and do not be misled by the false risks at heretofore, and please be particular not to give us too much in one risk or locality.

Hoping for favorable reports from time to time, we remain yours very truly,

DWIGHT R. SMITH, Vice President;
SAMUEL J. HALL, Secretary.

H. D. BENNETT,
 Agent, Ann Arbor.
