of the sunrise he might have had a view from the famous, precipitous mountain called 'Bear's Head.' Eleven miles east of the city of Albany it looks down upon the beautiful lake at its foot.

A LOVE IDYL.

Oh! she was a maid of laughing eye, And she lived in a garret old and high, And she was a threadbare whiskered beau, And he lived in a cellar damp and low.

TALE OF POVERTY AND SUFFERING.

Then Mr. Buckstone drew off his forces and proceeded to make a wily advance upon the fortress under cover of carefully contrived artifices and stratagems of war.

THE RED RIVER RAFT.

There is now a certain prospect that the great raft which has been an obstruction in the Red River, in Louisiana, ever since the advent of white men in this country will soon be removed.

FROM THE 'GILDED AGE.'

That chairman was nowhere in sight. Such disappointments seldom occur in novels, but are always happening in real life.

A LOVELY LADY LOBBYIST.

"I don't know how I ever dared to send you a note, Mr. Buckstone, for you have the reputation of not being very partial to our sex."

THE GAME OF POKER.

About two years ago a Missouri river steamboat left Fort Benton with a party of tough and well-to-do miners on board.

A LECTURER NONPLACED.

You may remember that I lectured lately for the young gentlemen of the Clay-toniah Society? During the afternoon of that day I was talking with one of the young gentlemen referred to, and he said...

THE DREAM OF JEAN PAUL RICHTER.

Prof. Proctor closed his lecture on the stellar universe in New York by quoting Richter's dream in which he shows the feebleness of man's imagination in the midst of the infinite wonders of the universe.

THE DREAM OF JEAN PAUL RICHTER.

"I forgot myself. I have been very foolish. I beg that you will forget this absurd thing." Mr. Buckstone picked up the spray, and sitting down by Laura's side on the sofa, said:

WASHENAW.

What it Means and What it is. A Paper read before the Pioneer Society, February 2, by Wm. M. Gregory. It is evident that the investigations of the Pioneer Associations of our State do not as yet awaken great interest in our people at large.

WASHENAW.

Many years before, the Indians, molested, if not expelled by the French from their favorite fisheries and hunting grounds upon Detroit River, had passed this low timbered belt and called the land of refuge 'Washtenaw.' Our school children know whence Wayne and Monroe counties derived their names.

WASHENAW.

"I hardly think you can," replied Mrs. Kemper. "He is in good health, I suppose; he has complained lately of being sick." "Not likely."

WASHENAW.

In the estimation of some, travelers and others, there is a drawback in the absence of high, commanding elevations. No one pretends that our scenery would not be more striking had we even a mountain of a range like the Green Mountains; or even a solitary Bald head. Our Swiss citizens have felt this.

WASHENAW.

"What made you carry on so toward the last?" I said, "I was trying to make that confounded old idiot laugh, in the second row." And he said, "Well, you were wasting your time; because he is deaf and dumb, and as blind as a badger."

WASHENAW.

"I know I can sell him a policy," I said. "I don't think you can," replied Mrs. Kemper. "When will he be home? I'll call on him. I don't know any reason why I shouldn't insure him."

WASHENAW.

"What's that?" "It's just the man I want," said Gunn. "I know I can sell him a policy." "I don't think you can," replied Mrs. Kemper.

WASHENAW.

Tipkins aroused his wife from a sound sleep the other night, saying he had seen a ghost in the shape of an eagle. "Let me sleep," was the reply of the irate dame, "and don't be frightened at your own shadow."

A Letter from Hon. James P. Joy.

To the Editor of the Detroit Free Press:

It has been, as I will readily confess, with a feeling of deep disappointment that I have read the report of the board of engineers appointed by the Secretary of War relative to the proposed bridge over the river.

But first of all I wish to call the attention of the people of Detroit to their interests in the matter which, if appreciated by them, will go far to remove all difficulty in the way of a bridge, bridge, bridge.

THE INTERESTS OF DETROIT. To the city of Detroit the question is quite as material as it is to the railroads. Indeed, the prosperity of the one will be determined by that of the other.

It is situated about half way between the foot of Lake Huron and Toledo. At the former place the river is narrow and always open.

EXAMPLES IN POINT. The consequence of this state of things is already very apparent. They have developed much more rapidly on the south shore because that way there is not even the obstruction of an ever open and narrow river, as at Port Huron.

A COMPARISON. Let the people of this city consider what it has gained as against them already. It has acquired a short connection with the Saginaw Valley by means of a direct road running down almost through the center of the city.

A STRONG CONSIDERATION. There is not even now west of Detroit a road which is not a considerable extent of the State where Toledo is not contesting with Detroit for the business of the country, and where the south shore roads and its many branches are not picking up the traffic of transportation and commerce.

ANOTHER PASSAGE. But this is not all. There is a northern passage, not so easy and not so good, but a really better one than it is at Detroit. There it is always open, and is only eight hundred feet against about three-quarters of a mile as the boats must run at Detroit.

LET DETROIT FINDER IT. This line is now weak, but not more so than the Southern line was within twenty years. Soon it will be strong and sending out its shoots to gather up more business all along the country through which it passes.

A VITAL CONSIDERATION. Must everything stop when Detroit is reached in winter, and be delayed at all times of the year by a three-fourths of a mile ferrage? Will this city, can this city, quietly submit to this? Shall every railroad leading to it be strangled and the nearest approach to a bridge, while the ever open and rival lines shall live and thrive upon their natural business?

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE Michigan Soldiers and Sailors' Association met at Jackson, Tuesday. Measures were adopted to notify soldiers throughout the State, and urge their presence at the reunion in Jackson, April. Admission to the reunion will be free.

The world will progress in other directions. The rival cities will avail themselves of the advantages that little of the disadvantages until the remedy will come too late, and other places will have acquired the pre-eminence and advantages which Detroit will deliberately have thrown away.

THEIR BEST FRIENDS. I shall allude to other advantages lost by reason of the difficulty of passing the river, and to the advantages that result as sure as the progress of things, and many years cannot pass away before it will be realized.

SELF-EVIDENT FACTS. In the railroad world, as elsewhere, all the weaker roads must, for the sake of the stronger ones. This is the very nature of things. Competition, by reason of the roads leading to Toledo, has weakened the strength and power of the Central Road, and it must make room for the other large sections of the State which are controlled in favor of rival cities.

IT MAY DOUBTLESS BE SAID that these statements are made to accomplish a purpose. Therefore, I say, let no man give any weight to them because they are made by me. Let them contemplate the facts stated which are the tendency to which these facts indicate, and none can be so blind as not to see the inevitable result.

ANN ARBOR. FRIDAY MORNING, FEB. 20 1874.

ALL SORTS OF PEN-SCRATCHES.

WE HAVE TWO objects in view in giving place in our columns to the article headed "Tale of Poverty and Suffering." One to let our readers know that this is a favored community, that there is not in our midst—despite the dull times and demand for employment—such depths of poverty and distress as in the large cities of the country, for New York is but a type of other great cities; and the other to commend the practical suggestions of the article, that work should be given rather than alms, and that when given it should be given to the deserving.

A crisis has been reached with regard to the State hospital. With the few weeks it has been found necessary to close it for cleansing. The accommodations inadequate in every sense, endanger the patients after the most skillful and successful operations. It is just to the professional charges that they should be required to perform delicate operations—receiving no compensation—when the subsequent care must necessarily be so defective.

WE WOULD SHOW the necessity for a State hospital, not far as the restoration of the sick and disabled, it is only required to state such facts as that, for the year ending September, 1872, the average number of paupers maintained in our poor-houses was over 300, of whom 100 were insane.

Our forest life was rough and rude, And strangers could not find, But here, amid the green old trees, Freedom we sought and found.
